Here (1) Hezekiah, in deep concern, prays himself, and requests Isaiah to pray, for relief; 1—5. (2) God, by Isaiah, returns him an encouraging answer; 6, 7. (3) By another abusive message Sennacherib defies JEHOVAH to deliver Hezekiah; 8—13. (4) Hezekiah spreads the letter before God, and begs his protection; 14—20. (5) God, by Isaiah, assures him that he and his capital should be protected and delivered, and Sennacherib and his army ruined; 21—35. (6) The prediction is quickly fulfilled in the miraculous slaughter of the Assyrian army and the murder of Sennacherib; 36—38.

Certainly and quickly that holiness which is now begun in them is graciously rewarded, and their sanctified sorrows are balanced with the everlasting joys of the Lord.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. XXXVI.—How quickly providence fulfils some awful predictions! And people may meet with great distress in the way of their duty, in order that their faith may be exercised, their graces brightened, and their glory increased. Let us then always look out and prepare for it, and not wonder if our most impious and treacherous enemies for a time prevail against us, and both with threats and derision tempt us to faint in, or desert the good 4 ^hIt may be the LORD thy God will hear the words of Rabshakeh, whom the king of Assyria his master hath sent to reproach the living God, and will ⁱreprove the words which the LORD thy God hath heard: wherefore ^klift up ^{thy} prayer for the remnant that is ^lleft.

5 So the servants of king Hezekiah came to Isaiah.

6 ¶ And Isaiah said unto them, Thus shall ye say unto your master, Thus saith the LORD, ^mBe not afraid of the words that thou hast heard, wherewith the servants of the king of Assyria have blasphemed me.

7 Behold, ⁿI will ^osend a blast upon him, and he shall hear a rumour, and return to his own land; and I will cause him to fall by the sword in his own land.

8 ¶ ^pSo Rabshakeh returned, and found the king of Assyria warring against Libnah: for he had heard that he was departed from Lachish.

9 And ^qhe heard say concerning Tirhakah king of Ethiopia, He is come forth to make war with thee. And, when he heard ^{it}, he sent messengers to Hezekiah, saying,

10 Thus shall ye speak to Hezekiah king of Judah, saying, ^rLet not thy God in whom thou ^{trustest} deceive thee, saying, Jerusalem shall not be given into the hand of the king of Assyria.

11 ^sBehold, thou hast heard what the kings of Assyria have done to all lands by destroying them utterly; and shalt thou be delivered?

14 ¶ And Hezekiah received the letter from the hand of the messengers, and read it: and Hezekiah ^bwent up unto the house of the LORD, and spread it before the LORD.

15 And Hezekiah ^cprayed unto the LORD, saying, ways of the Lord. Let us never marvel if pride intoxicate sinners, and make them talk big of themselves, their works, and wealth; or if they should pretend power equal to God, or a commission from him. If we maintain our confidence in God, and continue in his service, we need not fear the want of his protection. It is base to make appeals to the people while the affair is but debated between princes; or to take occasion, from soft speeches to banter, the more outrageously; or to talk of bettering men's condition when their ruin is really intended. How horribly insolent is it to compare JEHOVAH to an idol! or to imagine ourselves a match for his power! And, though it be not always prudent to answer the blasphemy of railers, yet we ought always to be deeply affected with it.

who hath sent to reproach the living God.

18 Of a truth, LORD, the kings of Assyria have laid waste all the nations and their countries, 19 And have cast their gods into the fire: for they were no gods, but the work of men's hands, wood and stone: therefore they have destroyed them.

20 Now therefore, O LORD our God, save us from his hand, that all the kingdoms of the earth may know that thou art the LORD, even thou only.

21 ¶ Then Isaiah the son of Amos sent unto Hezekiah, saying, Thus saith the LORD God of Israel, Whereas thou hast prayed to me against Sennacherib king of Assyria:

22 This is the word which the LORD hath spoken concerning him; The virgin, the daughter of Zion, hath despised thee, and laughed thee to scorn; the daughter of Jerusalem hath shaken her head at thee.

23 Whom hast thou reproached and blasphemed; and against whom hast thou exalted thy voice, and lifted up thine eyes on high? even against the Holy One of Israel.

24 ¶ By thy servants hast thou reproached the LORD, and hast said, By the multitude of my chariots am I come up to the height of the mountains, to the sides of Lebanon; and I will cut down the tall cedars thereof, and the choice fir trees thereof: and I will enter into the height of his border, and the forest of his Carmel.

25 I have digged and drunk water; and with the soles of my feet have I dried up all the rivers of the besieged places.

26 Hast thou not heard long ago, how I have done it; and of ancient times, that I have formed it? now have I brought it to pass, that thou shouldest be to lay waste defenced cities into ruinous heaps.

27 Therefore their inhabitants were of small power; they were dismayed and confounded: they were as the grass of the field, and as the green herb, as the grass on the house tops, and as corn blasted before it be grown up.

28 But I know thy habode, and thy going out, and thy coming in, and thy rage against me.

29 Because thy rage against me, and thy tumult, is come up into mine ears, therefore will I put my hook in thy nose, and my bridle in thy lips, and I will

30 And this shall be a sign unto thee, Ye shall eat this year such as groweth of itself; and the second year that which springeth of the same: and in the third year sow ye, and reap, and plant vineyards, and eat the fruit thereof.

31 And the remnant that is escaped of the house of Judah shall again take root downward, and bear fruit upward:

32 For out of Jerusalem shall go forth a remnant, and they that escape out of mount Zion: the zeal of the LORD of hosts shall do this.

33 Therefore thus saith the LORD concerning the king of Assyria, He shall not come into this city, nor shoot an arrow there, nor come before it with shields, nor cast a bank against it.

34 By the way that he came, by the same shall he return, and shall not come into this city, saith the LORD.

35 For I will defend this city to save it for mine own sake and for my servant David's sake.

36 ¶ Then the angel of the LORD went forth, and smote in the camp of the Assyrians an hundred and fourscore and five thousand: and when they arose early in the morning, behold, they were all dead corpses.

37 ¶ So Sennacherib king of Assyria departed, and went and returned, and dwelt at Nineveh.

38 And it came to pass, as he was worshipping in the house of Nisroch his god, that Adrammelech and Sharezer his sons smote him with the sword; and they escaped into the land of Armenia: and Esar-haddon his son reigned in his stead.

Here is (1) Hezekiah's sickness and sentence of death; 1. (2) His prayer for the lengthening of his life; 2, 3. (3) A promise of fifteen years' addition to his life, of deliverance from the Assyrians, and a public sign for confirming his faith; 4—8, 21, 22. (4) His memorial of thanksgiving for his recovery on the use of the means prescribed by God; in which he acknowledges his despondency and complaints, magnifies God's love, gracious pardon, and grant of further opportunities of service, and resolves to worship and commend God; 9—21.

IN those days was Hezekiah sick unto death. And Isaiah the prophet the son of Amoz came unto him, and said unto him, Thus saith the LORD, Set thine house in order; for thou shalt die, and not live.

2 Then Hezekiah turned his face toward the wall, and prayed unto the LORD,

3 And said, Remember now, O LORD, I beseech thee, how I have walked before thee in truth and with a perfect Earnestness and liberty in prayer is of infinite importance in a time of danger. And believing views of God's leading characters powerfully encourage distressed minds. If he give us inward satisfaction in his promise, we may bear with every possible abuse from men. All our fears of great destroyers ought to drive us to the great God our Saviour: and, when we plead his glory in our own behalf, he will quickly answer our prayers, and manifest that he takes all the injury done to us as done to himself. He will shew himself at once a kind benefactor and almighty protector, who takes notice of all the motions, projects, and speeches, of our enemies. And such as magnify themselves against him and his people do but render themselves contemptible. They will find that there is no standing before his judgments, when they come with his commission to destroy.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. XXXVII.—The best way to baffle the malicious designs of enemies is to be driven to God and our duty by them. And the greatest ought to engage the prayers of Christ's ministers and saints in their favour. The more pinching our distresses, the more earnest ought to be our supplications. The weakest hopes of mercy should encourage, and the fearful reduction of God's people should excite us to that duty. When we are ready to despair, God can eminently magnify his power and grace in our deliverance.—God's proud enemies may hiss against his people, but they cannot hurt them.—And they who attempt to terrify them from their holy profession will soon be made a terror to themselves. Those who delight in war shall have enough of it at last; and their terrors do but presage their ruin. Success ordinarily hardens men in their evil ways, and renders them more and more deliberate in blasphemy.

heart, and have done that which is good in thy sight. And Hezekiah wept sore.

4 ¶ Then came the word of the LORD to Isaiah, saying,

5 Go and say to Hezekiah, Thus saith the LORD, the God of David thy father, I have heard thy prayer, I have seen thy tears: behold, I will add unto thy days fifteen years.

6 And I will deliver thee and the city out of the hand of the king of Assyria: and I will defend this city.

7 And this shall be a sign unto thee from the LORD, that the LORD will do this thing that he hath spoken;

8 Behold, I will bring again the shadow of the degrees, which is gone down in the sun dial of Ahaz, ten degrees backward. So the sun returned ten degrees, by which degrees it was gone down.

9 ¶ The writing of Hezekiah king of Judah, when he had been sick, and was recovered of his sickness:

10 I said, in the cutting off of my days, I shall go to the gates of the grave: I am deprived of the residue of my years.

11 I said, I shall not see the LORD, even the LORD, in the land of the living: I shall behold man no more with the inhabitants of the world.

12 Mine age is departed, and is removed from me as a shepherd's tent: I have cut off like a weaver my life: he will cut me off with pining sickness: from day even to night wilt thou make an end of me.

13 I reckoned till morning, that as a lion, so will he break all my bones: from day even to night wilt thou make an end of me,

14 Like a crane or a swallow, so did I chatter: I did mourn as a dove: mine eyes fail with looking upward: O LORD, I am oppressed; undertake for me.

15 What shall I say? he hath both spoken unto me, and himself hath done it: I shall go softly all my years in the bitterness of my soul.

16 O LORD, by these things men live, and in all these things is the life of my spirit: so wilt thou recover me, and make me to live.

17 Behold, for peace I had great bitterness: but thou hast in love to my soul delivered it from the pit of corruption; for thou hast cast all my sins behind thy back.

18 For the grave cannot praise thee, death cannot celebrate thee: they that go down into the pit cannot hope for thy truth.

19 The living, the living, he shall praise thee, as I do this day: the father to the children shall make known thy truth.

20 The LORD was ready to save me: therefore we will sing my songs to the stringed instruments all the days of our life in the house of the LORD.

21 For Isaiah had said, Let them take a lump of figs, and lay it for a plaster upon the boil, and he shall recover.

22 Hezekiah also had said, What is the sign that I shall go up to the house of the LORD?

CHAP. XXXIX.

In the subsequent chapters we have manifold promises of the Jews' deliverance from Babylon. Here we have the first express prediction of their being carried thither. (1) Chaldean ambassadors coming to congratulate Hezekiah's miraculous recovery and deliverance from the Assyrians, he proudly shews them all his treasures; 1, 2. (2) Upon Isaiah's inquiry, he confesses the fact; 3, 4. (3) To punish his pride, God, by Isaiah, adjudges his treasures and children to be carried captive to Babylon; 5—7: to which he humbly submits; 8.

At that time Merodach-baladan, the son of Baladan, king of Babylon, sent letters and a present to Hezekiah: for he had heard that he had been sick, and was recovered.

2 And Hezekiah was glad of them, and shewed them the house of his precious things, the silver, and the gold, and the spices, and the precious ointment, and all the house of his armour, and all that was found in his treasures: there was nothing in his house, nor in all his dominion, that Hezekiah shewed them not.

3 ¶ Then came Isaiah the prophet unto king Hezekiah, and said unto him, What said these men? and from whence came they unto thee? And Hezekiah said, They are come from a far country unto me, even from Babylon.

4 Then said he, What have they seen in thine house? And Hezekiah answered, All that is in mine house have they seen: there is nothing among my treasures that I have not shewed them.

5 Then said Isaiah to Hezekiah, Hear the word of the LORD of hosts:

6 Behold, the days come that all that is in thine house, and that which thy fathers have laid up in store until this day, shall be carried to Babylon: nothing shall be left, saith the LORD.

7 And of thy sons that shall issue from thee, which thou shalt beget, shall they take away; and they shall be eunuchs in the palace of the king of Babylon.

8 Then said Hezekiah to Isaiah, Good is the word of the LORD which thou hast spoken. He said moreover, For there shall be peace and truth in my days.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. XXXVIII.—Death being the common fate of mankind, every one ought seriously to prepare for it. And nothing can be more seasonable than fervent prayer in a time of great trouble; nor any thing more pleasant than the testimony of a good conscience, washed in Jesus' blood. It is a relief to a distressed heart to unbosom itself to God, whose ears are open to its cry. Nor can pious souls take much pleasure in life, or personal comforts, unless God's church be revived and comforted along with them.—God takes pleasure in shewing his people the immutability of his counsels, that they may have strong consolation. And, if one miracle served to confirm Hezekiah's faith, why do not thousands confirm ours in the glorious Redeemer? And why are we so careless of keeping memorials of our afflictions and deliverances, and of the working of our hearts under them, for the benefit of ourselves and others?—It is hard to keep the heart from despondency under sore and complicated troubles.

God's providences indeed ought to affect our spirits with humility and constant fear; and in him alone should we hope for support and deliverance. Great is the kindness, the full forgiveness that he manifests in delivering from the utmost extremity of trouble. And the opportunity of living to his glory ought to be our principal reason for esteeming or desiring life. Blessed are those parents whose great care is to inform their children concerning Jesus and his truths! No means of relief ought to be used without dependance on the power and kindness of God. And we ought as eagerly to thank him for our deliverances as ever we prayed for them.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. XXXIX.—It highly becomes us to rejoice with them that rejoice, and weep with them that weep; and to honour them whom God delights to honour. They are often courted in prosperity who were con-

CHAP. XLI.

To evince the folly of fearing the Chaldean idols and their worshippers, and of cleaving to idolatry in opposition to the preached gospel of Christ, God here (1) Solemnly challenges the idols of the world to do what he had done; to match him in duration or power, or to foretell events, or execute purposes, as he did; 1—7, 21—29. (2) Graciously encourages his own people, assuring them of his relation to them, his constant presence with them, his help in distress, and his enabling them to conquer all opposition; his comforts in grief, liberal supplies in want, and protection in danger; 8—20.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. XL.—God's abundant consolations graciously follow his messages of terror and conviction: and he takes pleasure in the comfort and prosperity of his servants. How delightful is the real preaching of the gospel of Christ! It proclaims that forgiveness of sins, without which it is impossible to obtain any true comfort. God easily removes every bar out of his way in coming to us. And it is necessary that we lay aside every weight, and the sin which doth so easily beset us, in our approaches to him. It is a happy token of deliverance when our hearts are levelled by his grace and made to behold his glory! Human power is little to be feared when against us, or trusted to when on our side! But infinite is the power, the faithfulness, the duration, of the truths of Christ. Happy tidings are those which relate to him and his salvation! And happy is the period when he comes and performs all in all in and for his church; when he manifests his activity, care, and tenderness, in gathering sinners to himself, and in bearing and nourishing them up to eternal life! What 3 He pursued them, and passed safely; even by the way that he had not gone with his feet.

4 Who hath wrought and done it, calling the generations from the beginning? I the LORD, the first, and with the last; I am he.

5 The isles saw it, and feared; the ends of the earth were afraid, drew near, and came.

6 They helped every one his neighbour; and every one said to his brother, Be of good courage.

7 So the carpenter encouraged the goldsmith, and he that smoothed with the hammer him that smote the anvil, saying, It is ready for the soldering: and he fastened it with nails, that it should not be moved.

8 But thou, Israel, art my servant, Jacob whom I have chosen, the seed of Abraham my friend.

9 Thou whom I have taken from the ends of the earth, and called thee from the chief men thereof, and said unto thee, Thou art my servant; I have chosen thee, and not cast thee away.

10 Fear thou not, for I am with thee: be not dismayed, for I am thy God: I will strengthen thee; yea, I will help thee; yea, I will uphold thee with the right hand of my righteousness.

11 Behold, all they that were incensed against thee shall be ashamed and confounded: they shall be as nothing; and they that strive with thee shall perish.

12 Thou shalt seek them, and shalt not find them, even them that contended with thee: they that war against thee shall be as nothing, and as a thing of nought.

13 For I the LORD thy God will hold thy right hand, saying unto thee, Fear not, I will help thee.

14 Fear not, thou worm Jacob, and ye men of Israel; I will help thee, saith the LORD, and thy Redeemer, the Holy One of Israel.

empty nothings are all creatures in comparison of him? Why then should we not trust him in every difficulty, cleave to him under every discouragement, and revere him in the receipt of every favour! What image can ever truly represent the infinite JEHOVAH! What idol can deserve a competition with the almighty Maker of heaven and earth! It is weak and sinful to suspect that he has or can cast off his people. To them that wait on him his infinite power and grace are a never-failing and abundant source of strength, quickening, and comfort.

CHAP. XLI. Ver. 1, 2. Attentively hear my challenges, ye heathens; muster up all the arguments you can in your own defence. Who but myself called Abraham to his travels from his native country, enabled him to conquer the eastern kings, and his seed to conquer the Canaanites? Who, besides me, disposed and enabled Cyrus to execute my righteous judgments on the Chaldeans, and to grant deliverance to my people? Who raised up the all-conquering Immanuel, or enabled Saul the persecutor, and other apostles, irresistibly to conquer the nations to Christ by the preaching of the gospel? 4, 5. Who hath disposed of all the generations of mankind! Have not I, the eternal God? Observing, with dread, my wonderful works, the heathens have consulted together how to preserve themselves and their idols. 8—16. Ye Jews, being mine by special covenant, whom I originally brought from among your neighbours in Chaldea to Canaan, and, notwithstanding your repeated rebellions, have never rejected, ye must not worship idols. Indulge no slavish or desponding fears, for I am your infinite ALL IN ALL; and I will strengthen, help, and uphold, you by

When poor indigent sinners are reduced to the most wretched condition I will grant them comfort and relief; and will spread the gospel, and plant the ordinances thereof, and persons eminent for gifts and graces, among both Jews and Gentiles, in such a manner as will manifest my infinite power and holiness to every observer. 25-27. I foretell that Cyrus the Medo-Persian shall subdue the Chaldean and other empires. But which of your idols can manifest their true divinity by foretelling any thing? It is only I, the eternal God, who can represent things future as if they were present, and enable prophets to foretell temporal or spiritual deliverances to my church.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. XLI.—The enemies of Jesus and the gospel may do their worst, it will but issue in their own confusion. The truths of the Bible will bear the strictest scrutiny. And, since it is God who founds and protects the church, and assists her helpers, it is in vain for idolaters to unite in their efforts against her. But what fightings without, and fears within, have the people of God to encounter! Nothing but almighty power and grace can enable to conquer them, or can afford comfort under them. And seasonably does Jesus relieve his people in their extremity, and plant ordinances and true converts where he pleases. Be still then, my soul, and consider the insignificance of every idol which thou hast put in JEHOVAH's room. How late is their existence! how short-lived and uncertain their continuance! how limited their knowledge! how small their power, and unimportant their work! God forbid I should make that 27 The first shall say to Zion, Behold, behold them: and I will give to Jerusalem ^{one} that bringeth good tidings.

29 Behold, they ^{are} all vanity; their works ^{are} nothing: their molten images ^{are} wind and confusion.

CHAP. XLII.

Contains many expressions which cannot be applied to Cyrus, and his relief of the Jews from their bondage in Babylon, but are fully applicable to Jesus Christ and his redemption of sinners. Here is (1) JEHOVAH's invitation to behold him as his chosen Servant, qualified by his Spirit with great meekness, power, and courage, for his work, in purchasing and applying our redemption; 1-4. (2) His divine commission to his work solemnly opened; 5-9. (3) The tidings of this his fitness and commission are received with great joy, especially by the Gentiles; 10-12. (4) As God destroyed the Chaldean oppressors and idolaters, and removed every hindrance of the Jews' return from Babylon; so, by the powerful preaching of the gospel, shall the kingdom of Satan be overturned among the nations; 13-17. (5) As many Jews hurt themselves by disregard to Cyrus's proclamation of liberty, so the bulk of them in after-ages ruined themselves, soul and body, by rejecting Jesus' purchased and offered redemption; 18-25.

BEHOLD ^amy servant, whom I ^buphold; ^cmine elect, in whom my soul ^ddelighteth: ^eI have put my spirit upon him; he shall bring forth judgment to the Gentiles.

2 He shall not cry, nor lift up, nor cause his voice to be heard in the street.

3 A bruised reed shall he not break, and the ^{smoking} flax shall he not ^{quench}: he shall bring forth judgment unto truth.

4 He shall not fail nor be ^{discouraged} till he have set judgment in the earth: and ^{the} isles shall wait for his law.

5 ¶ Thus saith God the LORD, ^{he} that created the heavens, and stretched them out; he that spread forth the earth, and that which cometh out of it; he that giveth breath unto the people upon it, and spirit to them that walk therein:

my god which did not make me out of nothing; and which cannot warn me of every danger, protect me from every enemy, and through eternity be my all-sufficient portion.—But let Jesus, and JEHOVAH in him, be my ALL IN ALL: my Friend, to love me at all times; my Companion, to guide me to glory; my Helper, to assist me in every work; my Captain of salvation, to slay my foes, and make me in all things more than a conqueror: my Supplier and my Provision; my Comforter and my Consolation.—What have I to do any more with idols? Let me cast them to the moles and to the bats—cast them away as a menstruous cloth—as vanity and confusion.

CHAP. XLII. Ver. 1-4. With wonder and love, contemplate and believe on Jesus Christ, my eternal Son, whom I have appointed my Servant, as Mediator for the salvation of sinful men; whom I will assist in his work, and furnish with all gifts and graces without measure, that, in consequence of his finishing the undertaking, he may effectually spread the gospel tidings of his redemption among the Gentiles, and render them his peculiar people. Not with carnal contention or pompous ostentation, but in a meek, humble, and peaceful manner, shall he make his personal appearance and erect his kingdom on earth. He shall not discourage the broken-hearted, nor cast off such as have but very weak grace, but shall encourage, strengthen, and deal kindly with them: and, while he renders his word effectual, he shall judge every person uprightly and impartially. No difficulty shall in the least discourage him, nor hinder his finishing his purchase, or his spreading the gospel of men's salvation, erecting his spiritual kingdom among them, and subduing the opposers thereof. And all nations, particularly those along the coast of the Mediterranean, and in the islands, shall readily embrace his truths, and become his obedient subjects.—5-9. I, the eternal JEHOVAH and almighty Creator, have called him to his work, for the manifestation of my righteousness and faithfulness, and will cor-and will keep thee, and give thee for a covenant of the people, for a light of the Gentiles;

7 To open the blind eyes, to bring out the prisoners from the prison, and them that sit in darkness out of the prison house.

8 I am the LORD; that is my name; and my glory will I not give to another, neither my praise to graven images.

9 Behold, the former things are come to pass, and new things do I declare: before they spring forth I tell you of them.

10 ¶ Sing unto the LORD a new song, and his praise from the end of the earth: ye that go down to the sea, and all that is therein; the isles, and the inhabitants thereof.

11 Let the wilderness and the cities thereof lift up their voice, the villages that Kedar doth inhabit: let the inhabitants of the rock sing; let them shout from the top of the mountains.

12 Let them give glory unto the LORD, and declare his praise in the islands.

13 ¶ The LORD shall go forth as a mighty man, he shall stir up jealousy like a man of war: he shall cry, yea, roar; he shall prevail against his enemies.

14 I have long time holden my peace; I have been still, and refrained myself: now will I cry like a travailing woman; I will destroy and devour at once.

15 I will make waste mountains and hills, and dry up all their herbs; and I will make the rivers islands, and I will dry up the pools.

16 And I will bring the blind by a way that they knew not; I will lead them in paths that they have not known: I will make darkness light before them, and crooked things straight. These things will I do unto them, and not forsake them.

17 ¶ They shall be turned back, they shall be greatly ashamed, that trust in graven images, that say to the molten images, Ye are our gods.

18 ¶ Hear, ye deaf; and look, ye blind, that ye may see.

19 Who is blind but my servant? or deaf as my messenger that I sent? who is blind as he that is perfect, and blind as the LORD's servant?

20 Seeing many things, but thou observest not; opening the ears, but he heareth not.

21 The LORD is well pleased for his righteousness sake; he will magnify the law, and make it honourable.

22 But this is a people robbed and spoiled; they are all of them snared in holes, and they are hid in prison houses: they are for a prey, and none delivereth; for a spoil, and none saith, Restore.

23 Who among you will give ear to this? who will hearken and hear for the time to come?

24 Who gave Jacob for a spoil, and Israel to the robbers? did not the LORD, he against whom we have sinned? for they would not walk in his ways, neither were they obedient unto his law.

25 Therefore he hath poured upon him the fury of his anger, and the strength of battle: and it hath set him on fire round about, yet he knew not; and it burned him, yet he laid it not to heart.

CHAP. XLIII.

Still Isaiah looks through the deliverance of the Jews from Babylon to the redemption by Christ, and the erection of the gospel church. Here are (1) Precious promises of God's presence with his people in their manifold afflictions, to support under and deliver out of them, notwithstanding great opposition; 1—7. (2) God's defiance of idolaters to shew among their idols such a god of power and foreknowledge as his people could; 8—13. (3) His powerful encouragement to expect deliverance from Babylon and the erection of the gospel church, drawn from what he had done in their deliverance from Egypt; 14—21. (4) Heavy charges of guilt laid against the Jews, to make them repent the causes of their captivity and receive God's offered pardons; 22—28.

BUT now thus saith the LORD that created thee, O Jacob, and he that formed thee, O Israel, Fear not: for I have redeemed thee, I have called thee by thy name; thou art mine.

2 When thou passest through the waters I will be with thee; and through the rivers, they shall not overflow thee: when thou walkest through the fire thou shalt not be burned; neither shall the flame kindle upon thee.

3 For I am the LORD thy God, the Holy One of Israel, thy Saviour: I gave Egypt for thy ransom, Ethiopia and Seba for thee.

you, Jesus shall, by his finished righteousness, satisfy divine justice, and restore with advantage, to the holy law whatever honour it had lost by men's sin.—22. For the obstinate disobedience of most of you, ye shall be rendered inexpressibly miserable by the Romans and others, and yet shall be so stupified as never to search out, or repent of, the sinful causes of your trouble.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. XLIII.—Infinite is the excellency of Jesus Christ! How dear to his Father, and useful to men! How glorious the nature and end of his mediation! And with tenderness, fidelity, courage, and success, he executes it. Grand and irreversible is his commission; and his character is answerable to our infinite needs. What ground of gladness is this to sinners, the wildest Arabs and most distant islanders not excepted! And infinitely offensive to JEHOVAH, and ruinous to men, must be the rejection of him. By the most fearful shaking of nations does Jesus often introduce his kindest favours. And with earnestness, power, and grace, he calls and converts sinners to himself. But alas, how dreadful it is to have the god of this world blinding our minds and hardening our hearts, that the light of the gospel may not shine into them; nor the love of it captivate them to the obedience of faith! And fearful will be the issue, when they, who have the best means of grace, have them least blessed, and profit the least by them.

duct, assist, and preserve, him in it. I set him forth as the Mediator, Surety, and Administrator, of the covenant of grace to men, that he may endue with saving knowledge, and may conduct to everlasting happiness, poor ignorant sinners of mankind, and deliver them from their spiritual thralldom to Satan and their lusts.—As I am Being itself, and do give being to every creature, and fulfil every promise, I will, by him, through the gospel, abolish idolatry out of the world. I have already fulfilled multitudes of my promises, and now give you new promises of release from Babylon, and of redemption from sin, that, when they are accomplished, you may believe that I am the only true God.—13—17. After long forbearing to take vengeance, I will, in the most sudden and furious manner, destroy the Chaldeans, and other enemies of my church, and remove every hindrance of my glory and my people's salvation, and will enlighten, renew, and direct, them as their need requires. 18—20. Attend, ye careless, ignorant, and obstinate, sinners: for none are so blind and obstinate as you my professed people, who reckon yourselves the only enlightened and righteous persons. Notwithstanding all my revelations given to you, and the wonderful works which I have wrought for you, ye never duly consider any. Notwithstanding all your pretences to hearken, ye never regard what is said. 21. While I, in the honourable fulfilment of my promises, have continued my favours to you, or will magnify my word in accomplishing my threatenings upon

Or holy princes.

4 Since thou wast ^hprecious in my sight thou hast been honourable, and I have loved thee: therefore will I give men for thee, and people for thy ^{*}life.

5 ⁱFear not, for I am with thee: ^kI will bring thy seed from the east, and gather thee from the west:

6 I will say to the north, Give up; and to the south, Keep not back: bring my sons from far, and my daughters from the ends of the earth;

7 Even every one that is called by my name: for I have ⁱcreated him for my glory; I have formed him; yea, I have made him.

8 ¶ Bring forth ^mthe blind people that have eyes, and the deaf that have ears.

9 ⁿLet all the nations be gathered together, and let the people be assembled: who among them can declare this, and shew us former things? let them bring forth their witnesses, that they may be justified: or ^olet them hear, and say, It is truth.

10 Ye are my ^rwitnesses, saith the LORD, and ^smy servant whom I have chosen: that ^rye may know and believe me, and understand that I am he; ^tbefore me there was ^uno god formed, neither shall there be after me.

11 I, even I am the LORD, and beside me there is no saviour.

12 ^vI have declared, and have saved, and I have shewed, ^wwhen there was no strange god among you: ^xtherefore ye are my witnesses, saith the LORD, that I am God.

13 Yea, ^ybefore the day was I am he; and there is none that can deliver out of my hand: I will work, and who shall ^zlet it?

14 ¶ Thus saith the LORD, your Redeemer, the Holy One of Israel, ^aFor your sake I have sent to Babylon, and have brought down all their ^bnobles, and the Chaldeans, whose cry is in the ships.

15 ^cI am the LORD, your Holy One, the Creator of Israel, your king.

16 Thus saith the LORD, who ^dmaketh a way in the sea, and a path in the mighty waters;

17 ^eWho bringeth forth the chariot and horse, the army, and the power; They shall lie down together, they shall not rise: they are extinct, they are quenched as tow.

18 ¶ Remember ye not ^fthe former things, neither consider the things of old

19 Behold, I will do a ^gnew thing; now it shall spring forth; shall ye not know it? I ^hwill even make a way in the wilderness, and rivers in the desert.

20 ⁱThe beast of the field shall honour me, the dragons and the ^jowls; because ^kI give waters in the wilderness, and rivers in the desert, to give drink to my people, my chosen.

21 ^lThis people have I formed for myself; they shall shew forth my praise.

22 ¶ ^mBut thou hast not called upon me, O Jacob; but thou hast been weary of me, O Israel.

23 ⁿThou hast not brought me the ^osmall cattle of thy burnt-offerings, neither hast thou honoured me with thy sacrifices. I have not caused thee to serve with an offering, nor wearied thee with incense.

24 Thou hast bought me no ^psweet cane with money, neither hast thou ^qfilled me with the fat of thy sacrifices: but thou ^rhast made me to serve with thy sins, thou hast wearied me with thine iniquities.

25 I, even I am he that ^sblotteth out thy transgressions for mine own sake, and will not remember thy sins.

26 ^tPut me in remembrance: let us plead together: declare thou, that thou mayest be justified.

27 ^uThy first father hath sinned, and thy ^vteachers have transgressed against me.

28 Therefore I have ^wprofaned the ^xprinces of the sanctuary, and have ^ygiven Jacob to the curse, and Israel to reproaches.

CHAP. XLIII. Ver. 1. God formed the Israelites into a church and state, redeemed them from their Egyptian and other enemies, and made them his peculiar people. 2. Whatever great troubles churches or saints endure, they are not hurt nor destroyed by them. 3, 4. God destroyed the Egyptians and others to advance the glory and happiness of the Israelites; and has and will destroy nations for the preservation of his gospel church. 5—7. God gathered the captive Jews from the different places of the Chaldean empire, and brought them to Canaan, as his people; and, in like manner, gathers all elect sinners from all nations to Christ. 8—13. Let either the heathen idols, or their votaries, who are almost as stupid and senseless, produce proofs of their foretelling such events, or else own me to be the only true God.—The several events, which I have foretold concerning you Jews and my servant the Messiah, and which, by mighty power, I have performed, or will accomplish, are demonstrative evidences that I am the only true God. 14—17. In order to your deliverance from Babylon, I will send the Medes and Persians to destroy the Chaldean empire, and will remove all hindrances of your return. 19—21. Nay, the division of the Red sea, and drowning of Pharaoh and his army in it, and other things which I have done for you, shall not be comparable to what I will do, in safely conducting you from Babylon, and re-establishing you into a glorious church for myself; and especially in spreading the gospel and the gospel church, and converting multitudes of the most stupid and mischievous sinners to Christ, for the manifestation of my glory. 22—24. But, though I never required of you any services that were really burdensome, ye have neglected and been weary of my true worship; ye have not offered me sacrifices in obedience to my commands, or for my glory, but for some selfish respects; and have even grudged the expense of them, while ye were liberal in the service of idols; ye have abused my revelations, ordinances, and bounties of providence, to encourage you in wickedness, till I can no longer bear with you. 25. Nevertheless, merely for my own name's sake, I still offer you a full and free forgiveness of all your iniquities, through the blood of my Son. 26. Let this my gracious pardon and promise be pleaded by you; or, if you think you have a righteousness of your own to plead upon, which I have not observed, point it out if you can. 27, 28. Ye cannot plead the merits of your ancestors, or rulers in church or state, as all of them have been sinners, and most of them notorious transgressors. Yea, on that very account have I exposed your chief priests to contempt and ruin, and your whole nation to dreadful misery and ignominy.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. XLIII.—O how grace much more abounds where guilt and ignominy had abounded! Thrice happy are those troubles which occasion the peculiar presence, supports, and comforts, of a reconciled God! How important that relation which is the source and foundation of such divine favours! Happy are they whom God has chosen for himself! Neither opposition, guilt, nor distance, shall be able to prevent their access to and enjoyment of him. But unhappy are they who stand in the way of their mercy. Incomparably better is JEROME than any of his rivals, both enemies and friends being judges. And great and glorious things his people ought to attest concerning him in their profession and practice; for mighty are the things which he hath shewed or done, or will do, for them! Marvellous is the change which his grace in the gospel makes on hearts and nations. And every mercy received is but a pledge of another. Surely then we should, with the most ardent affections, shew forth his praise! But, alas by what fearful sins of omission and commission many professors provoke him to their own and their neighbours' destruction! Yet transcendently sovereign are his unlimited pardons. And hopeful is the case if under a deep sense of our own and our father's iniquities, we supplicate for and receive them.

CHAP. XLIV.

Still Isaiah looks through the deliverance from Babylon to the far more important redemption by Jesus Christ. Here are (1) Encouraging promises of a plentiful out-pouring of the Holy Ghost, for determining sinners to enter into covenant with God; 1—5. (2) God's solemn avowal of his own absolute eternity, sole divinity, infinite foreknowledge, and new covenant relation to his people; 6—8: and his derisive representation of the emptiness of idols, and folly of idolaters; 9—20. (3) His charge to his people, to consider his relation to them, and what he had done, did, and would do, for them, as an excitement to repentance and thanksgiving; 21—28. YET now hear, ^aO Jacob my servant, and Israel whom I have chosen:

2 Thus saith the LORD that ^bmade thee, and formed thee from the womb, who will help thee; ^cFear not, O Jacob my servant, and thou Jesurun whom I have chosen.

3 For I will ^dpour water upon him that is thirsty, and floods upon the dry ground; I will pour my spirit upon thy seed, and my blessing upon thine offspring:

4 And they shall ^espring up as among the grass, as willows by the water courses.

5 ^fOne shall say, I am the LORD's; and another shall call himself by the name of Jacob; and another shall subscribe with his hand unto the LORD, and sir-name himself by the name of Israel.

6 Thus saith the ^gLORD the king of Israel, and his Redeemer the LORD of hosts, ^hI am the first, and I am the last; and ⁱbeside me there is no God.

7 And ^kwho, as I, shall call, and shall declare it, and set it in order for me, since I appointed the ancient people? and the things that are coming, and shall come, let them shew unto them.

8 ^mFear ye not, neither be afraid: ⁿhave not I told thee from that time, and have declared it? ye are even ^omy witnesses. Is there a God beside me? yea, ^pthere is no ^qGod; I know not any.

9 ¶ They that make a graven image are all of them vanity; and their ^rdelectable things shall not profit; and they are their own witnesses; ^sthey see not, nor know; that they may be ashamed.

10 Who hath formed a god, or molten a graven image that is profitable for nothing?

11 Behold, all his fellows shall be ^tashamed; and the workmen, they are of men: let them all begathered together, let them stand up; yet they shall fear, and they shall be ashamed together.

12 ^xThe smith ^ywith the tongs both worketh in the coals, and fashioneth it with hammers, and worketh it with the strength of his arms: yea, ^zhe is hungry, and his strength faileth; he drinketh no water, and is faint.

13 The carpenter stretcheth out his rule: he marketh it out with a line: he fitteth it with planes; and he marketh it out with the compass, and maketh it after the figure of a man, according to the beauty of a man; that it ^zmay remain in the house.

14 He ^aheweth him down cedars, and taketh the cypress and the oak, which he ^bstrengtheneth for himself among the trees of the forest: he planteth an ash, and the rain doth nourish it.

15 Then shall it be for a man to burn: for he will take thereof and warm himself; yea, he kindleth it, and baketh bread; yea, ^bhe maketh a god, and worshippeth it: he maketh it a graven image, and falleth down thereto.

16 He burneth part thereof in the fire: with part thereof he eateth flesh: he roasteth roast, and is satisfied: yea, he warmeth himself, and saith, Aha, I am warm, I have seen the fire:

17 And the residue thereof he maketh a god, even his graven image: he ^cfalleth down unto it, and worshippeth it, and prayeth unto it, and saith, Deliver me, for thou art my god.

18 ^dThey have not known nor understood: for he hath ^eshut their eyes, that they cannot see; and their hearts, that they cannot understand.

19 And none ^fconsidereth in his heart, neither is there knowledge nor understanding to say, I have burned part of it in the fire; yea, also I have baked bread upon the coals thereof: I have roasted flesh and eaten it: and shall I make the residue thereof ^gan abomination? shall I fall down to the stock ^hof a tree?

20 He ⁱfeedeth on ashes: a deceived heart hath turned him aside, that he cannot deliver his soul, nor say, Is there not a lie in my right hand?

21 ¶ ^jRemember these, O Jacob and Israel; ^kfor thou art my servant: I have formed thee; thou art my servant: O Israel, thou shalt not be forgotten of me.

22 ^lI have blotted out, ^mas a thick cloud, thy transgressions, and, as a cloud, thy sins: ⁿreturn unto me, for I have redeemed thee.

23 ^oSing, O ye heavens; for the LORD hath done it: shout, ye lower parts of the earth: break forth into singing, ye mountains, O forest, and every tree therein: for the LORD hath redeemed Jacob, and glorified himself in Israel.

24 Thus saith the LORD thy Redeemer, and ^phe that formed thee from the womb, I am the LORD that maketh all things; that stretcheth forth the heavens alone; that spreadeth abroad the earth by myself:

CHAP. XLIV. Ver. 2. God formed the Jews into rational creatures, and into a church for himself; and forms believers, and renders them members of Christ's mystical body and gospel church. 3—5. I will publish my gospel, and pour out my Spirit in an abundant manner, upon corners and persons destitute of them; that, being rooted and grounded in Christ, they may quickly grow in grace and good works, and may be determined solemnly to devote themselves to the faith, profession, and obedience, of Christ, and the fellowship of his church. 7, 8. Which of the heathen idols can foretell, and in order accomplish, events as I have done, since the creation, or the taking of Israel into covenant with me?—And why then do you fear that any of them should hinder me from fulfilling my present promises, when they have never been able hitherto to hinder the predicted events which have befallen you. 21—28. 28 That saith of Cyrus, 'He is my shepherd, and shall perform all my pleasure; even saying to Jerusalem, 'Thou shalt be built; and to the temple, Thy foundation shall be laid.

CHAP. XLV.

Here (1) God, by rendering Cyrus, his appointed shepherd [chap. xlv. 26, 28.] victorious over the Chaldeans, Lydians, and others, and wealthy with their spoils, qualifies him for the free release of the captive Jews; 1—5, 13. (2) By manifesting his own eternal power and Godhead, he evinces his ability and right to deliver his people when he pleased, without being opposed by any; 5—10, 12. (3) By this, and by many precious promises, he encourages us to ask, for ourselves and his church, whatever is necessary; 11—19. (4) Both Jews and Gentiles are called to renounce their idolatries, and receive Jesus Christ for righteousness, strength, and salvation; and their compliance is secured by God's promise; 20—25.

THUS saith the LORD to his anointed, to Cyrus, whose right hand I have holden, to subdue nations before him; and I will loose the loins of kings to open before him the two-leaved gates, and the gates shall not be shut.

2 I will go before thee, and make the crooked places straight: I will break in pieces the gates of brass, and cut in sunder the bars of iron:

3 And I will give thee the treasures of darkness, and hidden riches of secret places, that thou mayest know that I the LORD, who call thee by thy name, am the God of Israel.

4 For Jacob my servant's sake, and Israel mine elect, I have even called thee by thy name: I have surnamed thee, though thou hast not known me.

5 I am the LORD, and there is none else, there is no God beside me: I girded thee, though thou hast not known me:

6 That they may know from the rising of the sun, and from the west, that there is none beside me. I am the LORD, and there is none else.

7 I form the light, and create darkness: I make peace, and create evil: I the LORD do all these things.

8 Drop down, ye heavens, from above, and let the skies pour down righteousness: let the earth open, and let them bring forth salvation, and let righteousness spring up together; I the LORD have created it.

9 Wo unto him that striveth with his Maker! Let the potsherd strive with the potsherds of the earth. Shall the clay say to him that fashioneth it, What makest thou? or thy work, He hath no hands?

10 Wo unto him that saith unto his father, What begetteth thou? or to the woman, What hast thou brought forth?

11 Thus saith the LORD, the Holy One of Israel, and his Maker, Ask me of things to come concerning my sons, and concerning the work of my hands command ye me.

12 I have made the earth, and created man upon it: I, even my hands, have stretched out the heavens, and all their host have I commanded.

13 I have raised him up in righteousness, and I will direct all his ways: he shall build my city, and he shall let go my captives, not for price nor reward, saith the LORD of hosts.

14 Thus saith the LORD, The labour of Egypt, and merchandise of Ethiopia and of the Sabeans, men of stature, shall come over unto thee, and they shall be thine: they shall come after thee; in chains they shall come over, and they shall fall down unto thee; they shall make supplication unto thee, saying, Surely God is in thee; and there is none else, there is no God.

15 Verily thou art a God that hidest thyself, O God of Israel the Saviour.

16 They shall be ashamed, and also confounded, all of them: they shall go to confusion together that are makers of idols.

17 But Israel shall be saved in the

I have chosen, called, regenerated, and will never forsake, the vanity of idols, and madness of their votaries, and the judicial blindness to which they are given up; and return to me, your Redeemer, by faith and repentance, in the view of my having graciously pardoned all your great and numerous transgressions.—And let all the inhabitants of heaven and earth, and particularly the Gentiles, praise God for the deliverance of the Jews from Babylon, and the redemption by Jesus, typified thereby. The God who hath promised is he who made and governs all things, who can easily frustrate the predictions of the Chaldean soothsayers, and blast all the political designs of their statesmen; and who takes pleasure to fulfil that which he has foretold by his prophets concerning the rebuilding of the Jewish cities and the removal of impediments out of his way; and drying up the Euphrates, that Babylon may be taken by Cyrus the Persian, whom he has appointed for releasing his people, and causing them to rebuild his temple at Jerusalem.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. XLV.—Thrice happy are the people saved by the Lord, in their manifold relations to him and blessings received from him! Happy are they who are, both themselves and their seed, interested in the new covenant! Infinite is the fulness of the Holy Ghost; and liberally God bestows him upon destitute, withered, and wretched men. His influences bring them effectually to God, and render holiness, and the most solemn dedication of themselves to God, as a Saviour, Husband, and Governor, their delight! What madness is it to forsake JEHOVAH, the fountain of living waters, whose unbounded excellencies are unnumbered, and to choose or form an idol in his room! When men are given up to their own heart's lusts they soon become sottish and diligent in sin! And unpardoned iniquities greatly interrupt our fellowship with God.—But it is pleasant to return to him, in the view of his full forgiveness and effectual redemption, and with thankful joys to contemplate what he is to us, and has done, and will do, for us! And even angels rejoice at the conversion of men.—What pleasure God takes to disgrace false teachers, and to honour his ministers of truth! Easily he can retrieve the most forlorn condition, and find proper instruments for his work. And it is an honour for the greatest of men to be his agents in doing good to his people.

CHAP. XLV. Ver. 1—3. I the Lord will assist Cyrus, and enable him to overthrow far greater armies than his own. I will dispirit and weaken his opposers; procure him entrance into Babylon and other fortified cities; remove all obstructions out of his way; and give him the wealth of the Lydians, Chaldeans, &c.—5, 6. I will make him strong and active, and will fit and dispose him for these great undertakings. 7. Comfort and calamity, prosperity and adversity, are all formed, in all their circumstances, by my power and wisdom. 8. I will bestow such plenty of favours upon you, through the righteousness of my Son, and in equity of procedure, as if they rained from heaven, or burst forth in floods, or grew in crops out of the earth. 9—11. Instead of presumptuously quarrelling with my procedure, humbly ask of me whatever information or blessings you or my church need, and you shall have your requests granted.—13. I have qualified Cyrus to manifest my righteousness, truth, and goodness, in the punishment of the Chaldeans, and the gratuitous deliverance of the Jews. 14. Part of the wealth of the Egyptians, Ethiopians, Arabians, &c. shall be bestowed upon the temple at Jerusalem; and multitudes of them shall humbly LORD with an everlasting salvation: ye shall not be ashamed nor confounded world without end.

18 For thus saith the LORD ^kthat created the heavens; God himself that formed the earth and made it; he hath established it, he created it not in vain, he formed it to be inhabited; I am the LORD, and there is none else.

19 I have not spoken ^lin secret, in a dark place of the earth: I said not unto the seed of Jacob, Seek ye me ^min vain: I the LORD speak righteousness, I declare things that are right.

20 ¶ Assemble yourselves and come; draw near together, ye that are ^oescaped of the nations: they ^phave no knowledge that set up the wood of their graven image, and pray unto a god that cannot save.

21 Tell ye, and ^qbring them near; yea, let them take counsel together: who ^rhath declared this from ancient time? who hath told it from that time? have not I the LORD? and there is no God else beside me; a just God and a Saviour; there is none beside me.

22 ^tLook unto me, and be ye saved, all the ends of the earth: for I am God, and there is none else.

23 ^uI have sworn by myself, the word is gone out of my mouth in righteousness, and shall not return. That unto me every ^vknee shall bow, every tongue shall swear.

24 ^wSurely, shall one say, ^yIn the LORD have I ^zrighteousness and strength: even to him shall men come; and ^aall that are incensed against him shall be ashamed.

25 ^aIn the LORD shall all the seed of Israel be justified, and shall ^bglory.

CHAP. XLVI.

In prosecution of the same subject as before, we are taught (1) How little reason the Jews had to regard the idols of Babylon, who could not move nor preserve themselves; and how much reason to trust in God, who had done, and would do, so much for them; 1—4. (2) How absurd it would be for the Jews to make images of their God, who had manifested such kindness, knowledge, and power, in their behalf; 5—11. (3) After reminding them of the predictions relative to Cyrus, stout-hearted Jews are admonished to share his deliverance, and return to their country, and stout-hearted sinners to receive the salvation of Christ; 9—13.

BEL ^aboweth down, Nebo stoopeth; their idols were upon the beasts, and upon the cattle: your carriages were heavy loaden; they are a burden to the weary beast.

2 They stoop, they bow down together; they could not deliver the burden, but ^{*}themselves are gone into captivity.

3 ¶ ^bHearken unto me, O house of Jacob, and all the remnant of the house of Israel, which are ^cborn by me from the belly, which are carried from the womb:

4 And ^deven to your old age I am he; and even to hoar hairs will I carry you: I have made, and I will bear; even I will carry and will deliver you.

5 ¶ ^eTo whom will ye liken me, and make me equal, and compare me, that we may be like?

6 ^fThey lavish gold out of the bag, and weigh silver in the balance, and hire a goldsmith, and he maketh it a god: they ^gfall down, yea, they worship.

7 They bear him upon the shoulder, they carry him, and set him in his place, and he standeth; from his place shall he not remove: yea, ^hone shall cry unto him, yet can he not answer, nor save him out of his trouble.

8 ⁱRemember this, and shew yourselves men: bring it again to mind, O ye transgressors.

9 ^kRemember the former things of old; for ^lI am God, and there is none else; I am God, and there is none like me;

10 ^mDeclaring the end from the beginning, and from ancient times the things that are not yet done, saying, ⁿMy counsel shall stand, and I will do all my pleasure:

11 ^oCalling a ^pravenous bird from the east, ^qthe man that executeth my counsel from a far country: yea, ^rI have spoken it, I will also bring it to pass; I have purposed it, I will also do it.

12 ¶ Hearken unto me, ye ^sstout hearted, that are far from righteousness.

13 ^tI bring near my righteousness: it shall not be far off, and my salvation shall not tarry; and I will place salvation in Zion for Israel ^umy glory.

CHAP. XLVII.

To pave the way for the deliverance of the Jews, Babylon must be ruined. Here are (1) The terrible, sudden, and unavoidable, miseries and debasement to which the Babylonians would be reduced by Israel's God; 1—5, 9, 11, 12, 14, 15. (2) The sinful causes of their downfall, i. e. cruelty to the Jews; 6: pride and carnal security; 7, 8: self-confidence and contempt of God; 10: magical arts and astrology; 9, 12, 13.

COME ^adown, and sit in the dust, O virgin daughter of Babylon, sit on the ground: there is no throne, O daugh-and through my righteousness, shall all the peculiar people of God have their sins pardoned, and their persons accepted; and in me shall they rejoice and boast.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. XLVI.—Desolating strokes clearly manifest the vanity of idols. In every period of the Jewish church and nation God was their Protector, Supporter, and Deliverer: in every period of life he is such to every particular saint; and his former kindness ought to make us hope for further favours. It is only necessary to make use of our reason to observe the absurdity of idol worship; and it becomes us to ponder how wickedly we have acted, if we have joined in it. It is absurd to doubt of God's existence, or to neglect revering his almighty power and Godhead, which are so manifest. Firmly fixed are his purposes, and exactly fulfilled in every dispensation of providence; the tumultuous capture of cities and overthrow of nations not excepted. But infinitely great is the mercy, that not the worst of plagues or wickedness can debar us from Jesus Christ and his offered salvation join themselves to the gospel church. 19. Not in the manner of the heathen oracles or idols, but in the most public and plain manner, and for your real advantage, I have promised what is true, and commanded what is just and good. 20—25. Ye who have escaped in the devastation of countries, inflicted to punish their abominable idolatries, and who can produce nothing to support the cause of your idols, know that I, the alone God and Saviour, have foretold these things. Renounce all your idols; believe in and acknowledge me as your only, almighty, and effectual, Saviour: thus shall ye be infallibly delivered from sin, and all the miseries which it entails, and advanced to everlasting happiness. I have sworn, and will most faithfully perform my promise, to manifest myself the true God, and make multitudes of all nations submit to my government and worship: and they shall, each one for himself, heartily receive, and solemnly acknowledge, that all their righteousness, for justification, was performed by me, and all their strength, for the performance of duties, is conveyed from me. Even to me shall all my chosen ones come; and all my implacable enemies shall be overwhelmed with misery and ignominy. In a state of union to my person, 2 Take the milstones, and grind meal; uncover thy locks, make bare the leg, uncover the thigh, pass over the rivers.

3 Thy nakedness shall be uncovered, yea, thy shame shall be seen: I will take vengeance, and I will not meet thee as a man.

4 As for our Redeemer, the LORD of hosts is his name, the Holy One of Israel.

5 Sit thou silent, and get thee into darkness, O daughter of the Chaldeans: for thou shalt no more be called The lady of kingdoms.

6 I was wroth with my people, I have polluted mine inheritance, and given them into thine hand: thou didst shew them no mercy; upon the ancient hast thou very heavily laid thy yoke.

7 And thou saidst, I shall be a lady for ever: so that thou didst not lay these things to thy heart, neither didst remember the latter end of it.

8 Therefore hear now this, thou that art given to pleasures, that dwellest carelessly, that sayest in thine heart, I am, and none else beside me; I shall not sit as a widow, neither shall I know the loss of children:

9 But these two things shall come to thee in a moment in one day; the loss of children, and widowhood: they shall come upon thee in their perfection, for the multitude of thy sorceries, and for the great abundance of thine enchantments.

10 For thou hast trusted in thy wickedness: thou hast said, None seeth me. Thy wisdom and thy knowledge it hath perverted thee; and thou hast said in thine heart, I am, and none else besides me.

11 Therefore shall evil come upon thee; thou shalt not know from whence it riseth: and mischief shall fall upon thee; thou shalt not be able to put it off: and desolation shall come upon thee suddenly, which thou shalt not know.

12 Stand now with thine enchantments, and with the multitude of thy sorceries, wherein thou hast laboured from thy youth; if so be thou shalt be able to profit, if so be thou mayest prevail.

13 Thou art wearied in the multitude of thy counsels. Let now the astrologers, the star-gazers, the monthly prognosticators, stand up, and save thee from these things that shall come upon thee.

14 Behold, they shall be as stubble; the fire shall burn them; they shall not deliver themselves from the power of the flame: there shall not be a coal to warm at, nor fire to sit before it.

15 Thus shall they be unto thee with whom thou hast laboured, even thy merchants, from thy youth: they shall wander every one to his quarter; none shall save thee.

CHAP. XLVIII.

Here the Jews are taught (1) That their sins of hypocrisy in well doing, obstinacy in evil courses, perverse idolatry, and covenant breaking, would issue in their captivity in Babylon; 1—8: while, by dutiful obedience, they might prevent it; 18, 19. (2) That their deliverance from it would not be owing to their merits, but, with their preparation for it, would be altogether owing to God's mercy, power, and promise; 9—17, 20, 21. (3) That, notwithstanding God's proclamation of their release, and ascertaining their safe return to their land, the wicked should still be miserable; 20—22.

HEAR ye this, O house of Jacob, who are called by the name of Israel, and are come forth out of the waters of Judah; who swear by the name of the LORD, and make mention of the God of Israel, but not in truth, nor in righteousness.

2 For they call themselves of the holy city, and stay themselves upon the God of Israel; the LORD of hosts is his name.

3 I have declared the former things from the beginning; and they went forth out of my mouth, and I shewed them; I did them suddenly, and they came to pass.

4 Because I knew that thou art obstinate, and thy neck is an iron sinew, and thy brow brass;

5 I have even from the beginning declared it to thee; before it came to pass I shewed it thee: lest thou shouldst say, Mine idol hath done them, and my graven image and my molten image hath commanded them.

6 Thou hast heard, see all this; and will not ye declare it? I have shewed thee new things from this time, even hidden things, and thou didst not know them.

7 They are created now, and not from the beginning; even before the day when thou heardest them not; lest thou shouldst say, Behold, I knew them.

8 Yea, thou heardest not; yea, thou knewest not; yea, from that time that thine ear was not opened: for I knew that thou wouldest deal very treacherously, deal in severity with the merciful. And, alas, the mightiest nations soon sink under the hand of an angry but righteous God, and the weight of their manifold sins. The very sins in which they had gloried or laboured, or by which they had hoped to save themselves, become the principal causes of their ruin. Yea, the mischiefs which sinners least dreaded often come fatally upon them. And false teachers, who are the instruments in deceiving others, shall themselves feel the heaviest strokes of vengeance.

11. & 28. 9—12. & 42. 19. 20. & 44. 18. Jer. 3. 1—20. Ezek. 16. 15—58. & xxii. xlii. ch. i. v. lix.

CHAP. XLVIII. Ver. 1, 2. Hear ye, who boast that you are descendants of Jacob and Judah his most honourable son, and are citizens of Jerusalem, and profess much, though feigned, confidence and dependance on God. 3—8. By foretelling and accomplishing events, I have given you the most undeniable proofs of my true Godhead, because I knew ye were so stubborn and untractable. I have even so timed my predictions, as to leave you no ground to pretend that either you or your idols then foresaw the events; for I knew ye were so long covenant of the people, to establish the earth, to cause to inherit the desolate heritages;

9 That thou mayest say to the prisoners, Go forth; to them that are in darkness, Shew yourselves. They shall feed in the ways, and their pastures shall be in all high places.

10 They shall not hunger nor thirst; neither shall the heat nor sun smite them: for he that hath mercy on them shall lead them, even by the springs of water shall he guide them.

11 And I will make all my mountains a way, and my highways shall be exalted.

12 Behold, these shall come from far: and, lo, these from the north and from the west; and these from the land of Sinim.

13 Sing, O heavens; and be joyful, O earth; and break forth into singing, O mountains: for the LORD hath comforted his people, and will have mercy upon his afflicted.

14 But Zion said, The LORD hath forsaken me, and my Lord hath forgotten me.

15 Can a woman forget her sucking child, that she should not have compassion on the son of her womb? yea, they may forget, yet will I not forget thee.

16 Behold, I have graven thee upon the palms of my hands; thy walls are continually before me.

17 Thy children shall make haste; thy destroyers, and they that made thee waste, shall go forth of thee.

18 Lift up thine eyes round about, and behold: all these gather themselves together, and come to thee. As I live, saith the LORD, thou shalt surely clothe thee with them all, as with an ornament, and bind them on thee as a bride doth.

19 For thy waste and thy desolate places, and the land of thy destruction, shall even now be too narrow by reason of the inhabitants, and they that swallowed thee up shall be far away.

20 The children which thou shalt have, after thou hast lost the other, shall say again in thine ears, The place is too strait for me: give place to me that I may dwell.

21 Then shalt thou say in thine heart, Who hath begotten me these, seeing I have lost my children, and am desolate, a captive, and removing to and fro? and who hath brought up these? Behold, I was left alone, these, where had they been?

22 Thus saith the Lord God, Behold, I will lift up mine hand to the Gentiles, and set up my standard to the people: and they shall bring thy sons in their farms, and thy daughters shall be carried upon their shoulders.

23 And kings shall be thy nursing fathers, and their queens thy nursing mothers: they shall bow down to thee with their face toward the earth, and lick up the dust of thy feet; and thou shalt know that I am the LORD: for they shall not be ashamed that wait for me.

24 Shall the prey be taken from the mighty, or the lawful captive delivered?

25 But thus saith the LORD, Even the captives of the mighty shall be taken away, and the prey of the terrible shall be delivered: for I will contend with him that contendeth with thee, and I will save thy children.

26 And I will feed them that oppress thee with their own flesh; and they shall be drunken with their own blood, as with sweet wine: and all flesh shall know that I the LORD am thy Saviour and thy Redeemer, the Mighty One of Jacob.

CHAP. L.

Here (1) the Jews' captivity in Babylon, and present dispersion are charged to the account of their own sins, not to any unkindness, unfaithfulness, or weakness, in God; 1-3. [These verses might have been joined to the preceding chapter.] (2) Through Isaiah, as a figure, Jesus Christ clears himself from promoting it by any unfitness for, or inactivity in, his suffering or work; 4-9. (3) Comfort is exhibited to desponding saints, and terrible ruin denounced to presumptuous sinners; 10, 11.

THUS saith the LORD, Where is the bill of your mother's divorcement, whom I have put away? or which of my creditors is it to whom I have sold you? Behold, for your iniquities have ye sold yourselves, and for your transgressions is your mother put away.

Ch. 52. 3. & 59. 1-14. & 5. 4-7. Ps. 44. 12. Hos. 2. 2. Deut. 29. 20-25. & 32. 19-25. 1 Thes. 2. 15. 16. Mat. 8. 12. & 21. 43. & 23. 35-39.

able to hinder their conversion and salvation, since God, as their Redeemer, will exert his almighty power for their deliverance, and the tremendous ruin of their enemies.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. XLIX.—What important truths are notified to men by the gospel of Christ! And great is the mercy that the Gentiles have so deep concern in it, and such abundant access to know and receive it. Enlarged gifts and grace are necessary to qualify men for the ministry. And exalted ought to be their ends, earnest their care, and assiduous their labour, in winning souls to Christ. Glorious and certain shall be the reward of their faithful service, even though it should not have the wished success with men. But infinite is the mercy of God, in calling his own Son to his mediatorial office, and qualifying him for it; in freely giving him for us as a Ransom, and to us as an effectual Saviour! By it JEHOVAH's declarative glory, and the everlasting happiness of men, are wonderfully advanced. Alas, that ever he should be rejected, and his grace received in vain; that his salvation, so extensive and suitable, should be so undervalued and refused!—In his days of power, God effectually enlightens the mind, looses the bonds, supplies the wants, protects the persons, comforts the hearts, and makes plain the paths, of his people. His work of redemption, his saving of multitudes, demands our highest praise: and the unmeasured endowment of his Spirit he has qualified me to speak for the conviction and conversion of men. He has protected and preserved me, and declared me the covenant head of his chosen people, in whose debased and exalted services he will glorify all his perfections to the highest. And, though my ministrations have little success in the conversion of the Jewish nation, God will honourably reward my faithful service, and give me for an Instructor and Saviour to the Gentile world.

7-13. In consequence of my excessive debasement and trouble among the Jews, JEHOVAH will highly exalt me, seasonably grant whatever assistance and protection I need for myself or members, and grant me a numerous seed through the whole world, saved from all their misery and bondage, and richly supplied with the precious and comfortable oracles, ordinances, and blessings, of the new covenant, while both angels and men shall rejoice in their happiness.

14-23. Nor shall the Jews in Babylon, or in their local dispersion, nor the church under Antichrist, have any just reason to doubt of God's continued kindness to and care for them. Delivered from their enemies, and returned to their own country, the Jews shall greatly increase in numbers, and abound in prosperity. During their infidelity and dispersion, the vast numbers of Gentiles who enter the church shall more than balance their loss; and at last both Jews and Gentiles shall, in countless multitudes all over the world, be converted to the Lord. 24-26. Nor shall the mightiest devils or persecutors be

CHAP. LI.

Provides comfort for the benighted captives in Babylon, and for distressed and persecuted saints in every after period; viz. (1) That God, who raised his church from nothing, will take care of her subsistence and comfort; 1—3. (2) That the righteousness and salvation designed for her, and offered in the gospel, are very near, stable, and lasting; 4—6. (3) That all her persecutors are but weak and dying; 7, 8. (4) That the same almighty power, which wrought miracles for her on former occasions, is still engaged and employed to protect her; 9—11. (5) That the almighty Creator of all things had undertaken to com-assurances of his constant and everlasting kindness, and his promises to remove every thing hurtful gives ground of encouragement to the most despondent. Thrice pleasant is it to behold the church extending her limits, and mightily increasing her members; and to discern how almighty power and grace protects and blesses it, notwithstanding all opposition!

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. L.—How common is it, but as absurd, for self-ruined, and even obstinate sinners, to lay the blame of their misery on God, who is infinitely able and ready to save!—Yea, infinite is the fitness of Jesus Christ to instruct, quicken, and comfort, our souls. Great was the cheerfulness and boldness with which he endured the suffering, and performed the obedience, necessary in the work of our redemption. Wonderful was the pleasure of JEHOVAH in assisting, supporting, and honouring, him in it: and infinite is his tenderness towards distressed and disconsolate souls, and his indignation against presumptuous sinners. Never let me pretend to teach others till God has taught myself. And, embracing every opportunity of fellowship with him, let me always act in his service under the influence of a gracious good will to it.

fort his people under, and deliver them from their distress; 12—16. (6) That however deplorable her case was, that of her persecutors should soon be worse; 17—23. [These seven verses might have stood in the beginning of the next chapter.]

HEARKEN to me, ye that follow after righteousness, ye that seek the LORD: look unto the rock whence ye are hewn, and to the hole of the pit whence ye are digged.

2 Look unto Abraham your father, and unto Sarah that bare you; for I called him alone, and blessed him, and increased him.

3 For the LORD shall comfort Zion: he will comfort all her waste places; and he will make her wilderness like Eden, and her desert like the garden of the LORD; joy and gladness shall be found therein, thanksgiving, and the voice of melody.

4 Hearken unto me, my people; and give ear unto me, O my nation: for a law shall proceed from me, and I will make my judgment to rest for a light of the people.

5 My righteousness is near; my salvation is gone forth, and mine arms shall judge the people; the isles shall wait upon me, and on mine arm shall they trust.

6 Lift up your eyes to the heavens, and look upon the earth beneath; for the heavens shall vanish away like smoke, and the earth shall wax old like a garment, and they that dwell therein shall die in like manner; but my salvation shall be for ever, and my righteousness shall not be abolished.

7 Hearken unto me, ye that know righteousness, the people in whose heart is my law; fear ye not the reproach of men, neither be ye afraid of their revilings.

8 For the moth shall eat them up like a garment, and the worm shall eat them like wool: but my righteousness shall be for ever, and my salvation from generation to generation.

9 Awake, awake, put on strength, O arm of the LORD; awake, as in the ancient days, in the generations of old. Art thou not it that hath cut Rahab, and wounded the dragon?

10 Art thou not it which hath dried the sea, the waters of the great deep; that hath made the depths of the sea a way for the ransomed to pass over?

Never let me shrink at doing or suffering for Jesus Christ, who has done and suffered so much for me. In every difficulty of work or warfare, let me firmly believe that he will do great things for me. In deeps, in nights of desertion, temptation, trouble, and grief, let me never fear, but only believe that, while I sit in darkness, the Lord will be a light unto me, and will bring me to the light. And let me stand in awe, lest confidence in my own wisdom and righteousness should entail upon me everlasting damnation.

CHAP. LI. Ver. 1—3. The God, who delivered Abraham from among his idolatrous friends, and contrary to every natural appearance made him and Sarah the parents of millions, can easily make you to flourish, after your captivity, in Canaan, and can easily form for himself a flourishing gospel church in the world. 4—8. The gospel, authorised by God, shall be published; and the ordinances of it, established and attended by his power, shall be effectual for converting multitudes to Christ, and for revealing and bestowing upon them his everlasting righteousness and salvation. 9—16. 11 Therefore ^bthe redeemed of the LORD shall return, and come with singing unto Zion; and everlasting joy shall be upon their head: they shall obtain gladness and joy, and sorrow and mourning shall flee away.

12 ¶ ^cI, even I, am he that comforteth you: who art thou, that thou ^dshouldst be afraid of a man that shall die, and of the son of man who shall be made ^eas grass;

13 And ^fforgettest the LORD ^gthy Maker, ^hthat hath stretched forth the heavens, and laid the foundations of the earth; and hast ⁱfeared continually every day because of the fury of the oppressor, as if he ^jwere ready to destroy? and ^kwhere is the fury of the oppressor?

14 The captive exile hasteneth that he may be loosed, and that he should not die ^lin the pit, nor that his bread should fail.

15 But I am the LORD thy God, that ^mdivided the sea, whose waves roared: the LORD of hosts is his name.

16 And ⁿI have put my words in thy mouth, and have covered thee in the shadow of mine hand, that ^oI may plant the heavens, and lay the foundations of the earth, and say unto Zion, Thou art my people.

17 ¶ ^pAwake, awake, stand up, O Jerusalem, which hast drunk at the hand of the LORD the ^qcup of his fury; thou hast drunken the dregs of the cup of trembling, and wrung them out.

18 ^rThere is none to guide her among all the sons whom she hath brought forth; neither is there any that taketh her by the hand of all the sons that she hath brought up.

19 ^sThese two things ^tare come unto thee; who shall be sorry for thee? desolation, and ^udestruction, and the famine, and the sword: by whom shall I comfort thee?

20 ^vThy sons have fainted, they lie at the head of all the streets as a wild bull in a net: ^wthey are full of the fury of the LORD, the rebuke of thy God.

21 ¶ Therefore hear now this, thou afflicted, and drunken, but not with wine:

22 Thus saith ^xthy Lord the LORD, and thy God that pleadeth the cause of his people, ^yBehold, I have taken out of thine hand the cup of trembling, even the dregs of the cup of my fury; thou shalt no more drink it again:

23 But ^zI will put it into the hand of them that afflict thee; who have said to thy soul, ^aBow down, that we may go over: and thou hast laid thy body as the ground, and as the street to them that went over.

CHAP. LII.

Still connects the deliverance of the Jews from Babylon with our redemption by Christ, and the erection and deliverances of the gospel church. Here (1) God assures the Jews of this salvation, and calls to a cheerful and composed reception thereof; 1—6, 11, 12. (2) Represents the great light, joy, and harmony, among ministers and others, to be thereby produced; 7—10. (3) Exhibits a brief view of Christ's commission, qualifications, offices, and states; 13—15. [This ought to have stood in the beginning of the next chapter.]

AWAKE, ^aawake; put on thy strength, O Zion; put on thy beautiful garments, O Jerusalem, the ^bholy city: for henceforth ^cthere shall no more come into thee the uncircumcised and the unclean.

2 ^dShake thyself from the dust; arise, and sit down, O Jerusalem: loose thyself from the bands of thy neck, O captive daughter of Zion.

3 For thus saith the LORD, ^eYe have sold yourselves for nought; and ye shall be redeemed without money.

4 For thus saith the Lord God, My people went down aforetime into ^fEgypt to sojourn there; and ^gthe Assyrian oppressed them without cause.

5 Now therefore ^hwhat have I here, saith the LORD, that my people is taken away for nought? they that rule over them make them to howl, saith the LORD; and my name continually every day is ⁱblasphemed

6 Therefore my people ^kshall know my name: therefore they shall know in that day that I am he that doth speak; behold, it is I.

7 ¶ ^lHow beautiful upon the mountains are the feet of him that bringeth good tidings, that publisheth peace; that bringeth good tidings of good, that publisheth salvation; that saith unto Zion, ^mThy God reigneth!

8 Thy ⁿwatchmen shall lift up the voice; with the voice together shall they sing: for they shall see ^oeye to eye when the LORD shall ^pbring again Zion.

their present dispersion with great joy, and deliver the church from heathenish or antichristian oppressors.—And, for your comfort against the threatened fury of oppressors, the almighty Creator has given you his promises, and has protected you, that he may re-establish you as his church and people; and has raised up and qualified Jesus Christ in order to the erection and establishment of his gospel church. 17—23. Let not therefore the Jews, or the Christian church, despair under the terrible and destructive, and even stupifying, judgments of God inflicted upon them: he will, in his proper time, deliver them, and pour out his vengeance upon the Chaldeans, Syro-grecians, Romans, Antichristians, and Turks, who cruelly oppressed them.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. LI.—The perfections, relations, covenant promises, and providences, of God are an infinite source of consolation to his saints. With ease he accomplishes the most remarkable events in mercy. And yet it is hard to make those, who are in anguish of spirit, to hearken to his words of comfort, or to review what he has done for them, either for their humiliation or encouragement, or for their excitement to holiness. How strangely God connects his mercies and his judgments! But there is little reason to regard either the reproaches or terrors of wicked men, when JEHOVAH and his blessings are ours and near to us. And quickly will our waiting, weeping, and working, for him, be graciously rewarded with unutterable and everlasting joys. How easily can JEHOVAH renew and restore souls, and form and re-establish churches, by the word of his power! But terrible are even his paternal chastisements. And unfaithfulness to him is often punished by the unfaithfulness of our relations to us. By sinfully quarrelling with his providences we but entangle and torment ourselves. None can comfort when God wounds us. But, though he cause grief, he will have compassion. Whom he loveth he will love unto the end. And, if judgments begin at the house of God, where shall the ungodly sinner and persecutor appear?

CHAP. LII. Ver. 1—6. Rejoice, ye Jews, in hopes of being graciously delivered from your heathen oppressors and corruptors, without any ransom, even as you have already been from the Egyptians and the Assyrians. And, as I get nothing by your misery but blasphemous reproaches, as if I could not or cared not to deliver you, I will make you quickly to experience the fulfilment of all my promises. And, in like manner, rejoice, thou gospel church, in hopes of thy extension, purification, and deliverance from every enemy, heathen, popish or Mahometan. 7—12. Great joy and harmony, hearty renunciation of idols, 9 ¶ Break forth into joy, sing together, ye waste places of Jerusalem: for the LORD hath comforted his people, he hath redeemed Jerusalem.

10 The LORD hath made bare his holy arm in the eyes of all the nations; and all the ends of the earth shall see the salvation of our God.

11 ¶ Depart ye, depart ye, go ye out from thence, touch no unclean thing; go ye out of the midst of her; be ye clean that bear the vessels of the LORD.

12 For ye shall not go out with haste, nor go by flight: for the LORD will go before you; and the God of Israel will be your rereward.

13 ¶ Behold, my servant shall deal prudently, he shall be exalted and extolled, and be very high.

14 As many were astonished at thee; his visage was so marred more than any man, and his form more than the sons of men:

15 So shall he sprinkle many nations: the kings shall shut their mouths at him: for that which had not been told them shall they see, and that which they had not heard shall they consider.

CHAP. LIII.

After a mournful complaint, that so few believed his gospel, or experienced his power; 1. We have here (1) The reproach of Jesus' sufferings, the meanness of his appearance, the greatness of his griefs and troubles, and the prejudice thence conceived against him; 2—4. (2) The distinguished honours of his sufferings—that he suffered for the sins of others, not for his own; 4—6, 8, 9, 11, 12: that he bore his sufferings with perfect, invincible, and exemplary, patience; 7: that, in making atonement for our sins, he obeyed and honoured his Father; 6, 10: and that his sufferings issued in his own high exaltation, and the eternal redemption of innumerable multitudes of mankind; 8, 10—12.

WHO hath believed our report? and to whom is the arm of the LORD revealed?

2 For he shall grow up before him as a tender plant, and as a root out of a dry ground: he hath no form nor comeliness; and, when we shall see him, there is no beauty that we should desire him.

3 He is despised and rejected of men; a man of sorrows, and acquainted with grief: and we hid as it were our faces from him; he was despised, and we esteemed him not.

4 Surely he hath borne our griefs, and carried our sorrows: yet we did esteem him stricken, smitten of God, and afflicted.

5 But he was wounded for our transgressions, he was bruised for our iniquities: the chastisement of our peace was upon him; and with his stripes we are healed.

6 All we like sheep have gone astray; we have turned every one to his own way; and the LORD hath laid on him the iniquity of us all.

7 He was oppressed, and he was afflicted, yet he opened not his mouth: he is brought as a lamb to the slaughter, and as a sheep before her shearers is dumb, so he openeth not his mouth.

8 He was taken from prison and from judgment; and who shall declare his generation? for he was cut off out of the land of the living: for the transgression of my people was he stricken.

9 And he made his grave with the wicked, and with the rich, in his death; because he had done no violence, neither was any deceit in his mouth.

10 Yet it pleased the LORD to bruise him; he hath put him to grief: when thou shalt make his soul an offering for sin, he shall see his seed, he shall prolong his days, and the pleasure of the LORD shall prosper in his hand.

11 He shall see of the travail of his soul, and shall be satisfied: by his knowledge shall my righteous servant justify many; for he shall bear their iniquities.

12 Therefore will I divide him a portion with the great, and he shall divide the spoil with the strong; because he hath poured out his soul unto death; and he was numbered with the transgressors; and he bare the sin of many, and made intercession for the transgressors.

CHAP. LIV.

Having beheld Jesus in his person, offices, states, and work, as the sure foundation, we have here the happiness of the Jewish church

CHAP. LIV. Ver. 1—3. How few truly believe the gospel record concerning Jesus Christ! How few experience his effectual power, or behold his heart-capitivating glory; who, in his humbled estate, under the special care and protection of JEHOVAH, sprung from the debased family of David, in the likeness of sinful flesh, without any external glory or pomp, and was all along oppressed with miseries and griefs, and quite contemned and hated by men, especially the Jewish rulers and people! 4—9. But, notwithstanding our reckoning him persecuted by God as a notorious criminal, he, as our Surety, to whom it had pleased the Lord to impute our iniquities, suffered, in the most patient manner, the punishment due to our sins, that he might expiate them and purchase our eternal salvation: to manifest which, JEHOVAH not only allotted him an honourable interment, but quickly released him from his grave, and made him the mediatorial Parent of multitudes of Jewish and Gentile converts, in that very age so remarkable for wickedness. 10—12. In consequence of bearing our iniquities, and the punishment thereof, which his Father, in love to us, inflicted upon him in his soul and body, that he might thereby make full atonement for our sin, he is rewarded with everlasting life and honour; and has, to his infinite satisfaction, a numerous seed of Jewish and Gentile converts, whom he instructs, and through his own righteousness, justifies and saves. And, while he is enthroned far above all principalities and powers, he erects, extends, and establishes, his spiritual kingdom on earth, and his kingdom of glory in heaven.

and a composed return of the Jews to their own land, shall be produced by the proclamation of Cyrus and the Lord's powerful appearance for their relief; and much more by the publication of the gospel by Jesus Christ and his apostles, and by the effectual redemption of multitudes from heathenism, popery, Satan, and their own lusts, by an ascended Redeemer. 13—15. The infinitely well-qualified Messiah, in consequence of his inexpressible ignominy, debasement, and suffering, shall be highly exalted, as Head over all things to his church; and shall, by his word, his Spirit, and blood, purify multitudes of sinful Gentiles from their iniquities; and even kings, and other great ones, shall with reverence hear his gospel truths, which had been hid from former generations, and shall submit to his laws.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. LII.—God's grace and our duty, his glory and our salvation, are marvellously connected. Both saints and sinners ought to bestir themselves when he offers deliverance. And thrice happy is the church when she is duly separated from the world, which lieth in wickedness. And yet how averse are many to partake of this blessedness: how averse to accept of an offered deliverance from corrupt lusts, or from corrupt societies and synagogues of Satan! But blessed are the effects of Jesus' gospel and government in the world, powerful the influence of his offices and states, and effectual the manifestation of his person, sufferings, and glory, for the conversion of the most hardened sinners.

and nation after their return from Babylon; and especially of the gospel church built upon him. It is promised (1) That, though her beginnings were small, she should be wonderfully enlarged, by the accession of multitudes of Gentiles, who had been long destitute of God's ordinances; 1—5. (2) That, however God should for a time suspend the tokens of his favour, he will never change his love, but will, in due time, return in mercy; 6—10. (3) That, though for a while his people be under manifold and great troubles, lasting honours, knowledge, righteousness, and peace, shall be the issue thereof: 11—14. (4) That all the malicious attempts of their enemies against them shall be baffled; 15—17.

SING, O barren, thou that didst not bear; break forth into singing, and cry aloud, thou that didst not travail with child: for more are the children of the desolate than the children of the married wife, saith the LORD.

2 ^bEnlarge the place of thy tent, and let them stretch forth the curtains of thine habitations: spare not, lengthen thy cords and strengthen thy stakes;

3 For ^cthou shalt break forth on the right hand and on the left; and thy seed shall inherit the Gentiles, and make the desolate cities to be inhabited.

4 ^dFear not, for thou shalt not be ashamed: neither be thou confounded, for thou shalt not be put to shame: for thou shalt forget the shame of thy youth, and shalt not remember the reproach of thy widowhood any more.

5 For ^ethy Maker is thine husband; the LORD of hosts is his name; and thy Redeemer the Holy One of Israel; ^fthe God of the whole earth shall he be called.

6 For ^gthe LORD hath called thee as a woman forsaken and grieved in spirit, and a wife of youth, when thou wast refused, saith thy God.

7 For ^ha small moment have I forsaken thee, but with great mercies will I gather thee.

8 In ^ka little wrath I hid my face from thee for a moment; but ^lwith everlasting kindness will I have mercy on thee, saith the LORD thy Redeemer.

9 For ^mthis is as the waters of Noah unto me: for, as I have sworn that the waters of Noah should no more go over the earth, so have I sworn that I would not be wroth with thee, nor rebuke thee.

10 For ⁿthe mountains shall depart, and the hills be removed; but my kindness shall not depart from thee, neither shall the covenant of my peace be removed, saith the LORD that hath mercy on thee.

11 ^oThou afflicted, tossed with tempest, and not comforted, behold, ⁱI will lay thy stones with fair colours, and lay thy foundations with sapphires.

12 And I will make thy windows of agates, and thy gates of carbuncles, and all thy borders of pleasant stones.

13 And ^rall thy children shall be taught of the LORD; and ^sgreat shall be the peace of thy children.

14 In righteousness shalt thou be established: thou shalt be far from oppression, for ^tthou shalt not fear; and from terror, for it shall not come near thee.

15 ^uBehold, they shall surely gather together, but not by me: whosoever shall gather together against thee shall fall for thy sake.

16 ^vBehold, I have created the smith that bloweth the coals in the fire, and that bringeth forth an instrument for his work; and I have created the waster to destroy.

17 ^wNo weapon that is formed against thee shall prosper; and ^xevery tongue that shall rise against thee in judgment, thou shalt condemn. This is the heritage of the servants of the LORD, and ^ytheir righteousness is of me, saith the LORD.

The door of faith being opened to the Gentiles, here are (1) Earnest invitations to sinners in general to come and receive the blessings of the new covenant; 1—3, 6, 7. (2) Strong encouragements, enforcing these invitations; viz. the freeness, excellency, everlasting duration, and manifold and inexhaustible fulness, of the blessings offered; God's free grant of Christ to men; his promise to him, and to his church, that they should embrace him; the transcendent nature of God's gracious purposes, certain fulfilment of his promises, and marvellous efficacy of his power and grace, in the deliverance of the Jews from Babylon, and in the erection and re-establishment of the gospel church; 1—5, 7—13.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. LIII.—Alas! that Jesus Christ, and his gospel, should be so little known to the hearers of it! But nothing less than almighty grace can make us either know or believe in him. God exactly verified his predictions and promises in the whole debasement and exaltation of our Redeemer. Though carnal apprehensions of him lead men to condemn, reject, and blaspheme him, infinite was his love in undertaking, obeying, and suffering, the just for the unjust, that he might bring us to God! How great was his Father's love in transferring our sins, and with pleasure punishing them, on his infinitely well-beloved, his only begotten, Son! And sweet, full, firm, and lasting, is that forgiveness, that redemption, which comes through the blood, the intercession, of God in our nature, and from JEHOVAH's infinite and unchangeable love. In the ratified promises of the new covenant an extensive and firm foundation is laid for that faith, by which we do and must receive Jesus Christ, as made of God to us wisdom, righteousness, sanctification, and redemption. And the rewards of our obedience of faith are all gloriously wrapped up in the purchased rewards of Jesus Christ!

CHAP. LIV. Ver. 1—5. Rejoice greatly, ye Gentiles, who have hitherto produced few converts to Christ; for now greater multitudes of you shall be born again than ever were in the Jewish church: greater multitudes shall be converted to Christ, after his departure to heaven, than while his church enjoyed his bodily presence. The gospel church, that tabernacle of God, shall be greatly enlarged by the conversion of Gentile nations on every side. No more shall they be reproached, as rejected by and strangers to God: for now shall the divine Jesus, and his Father, espouse to himself a peculiar people in all places of the world. 6—10. And, however destitute and wretched in themselves, despicable in their first appearances, or distressed and persecuted in after ages, as the Jewish church was during the captivity at Babylon and the Syro-grecian persecution, yet will I never cast them off, nor withdraw my affectionate regard, but, after occasional frowns, still manifest new tokens of my favour. 11—17. Notwithstanding her terrible distress, persecution, and inward perplexities, I will render her glorious in oracles, ordinances, gifts, and graces, officers, and members, and in spiritual knowledge, peace, and holiness; and, in due time, will grant full deliverance, and destroy all her enemies, spiritual and temporal, heathen, popish, or Mahometan; and that graciously, through my own righteousness imputed or displayed on them.

4 Behold, I have given him for a witness to the people, a leader and commander to the people.

5 Behold, thou shalt call a nation that thou knowest not, and nations that knew not thee shall run unto thee, because of the LORD thy God, and for the Holy One of Israel; for he hath glorified thee.

6 ¶ Seek ye the LORD while he may be found, call ye upon him while he is near:

7 Let the wicked forsake his way, and the unrighteous man his thoughts; and let him return unto the LORD, and he will have mercy upon him: and to our God, for he will abundantly pardon.

8 ¶ For my thoughts are not your thoughts, neither are your ways my ways, saith the LORD.

9 For as the heavens are higher than the earth, so are my ways higher than your ways, and my thoughts than your thoughts.

10 For as the rain cometh down, and the snow from heaven, and returneth not thither, but watereth the earth, and maketh it bring forth and bud, that it may give seed to the sower, and bread to the eater:

11 So shall my word be that goeth forth out of my mouth: it shall not return unto me void, but it shall accomplish that which I please, and it shall prosper in the thing whereto I sent it.

world, for many ages, before Christianity was established. And great power in God, and care in men, are necessary for spreading the gospel and enlarging the church. But surely it is much to be lamented that some, who have most of the means, have least of the power, of grace. It is great matter of joy to the long-rejected Gentiles, that Jesus, our Maker, is now our God and our Husband, able to save us to the uttermost. May we ever walk as his bride, loving, cleaving to, and trusting in, him! He condescends to our wretchedness in dealing with our souls. And wisely he mingles his favours and frowns, that we may neither be proud under the one, nor despair under the other. But there is great matter of joy, and sure ground of faith, in the absolute unchangeableness of his love and covenant of peace. Graciously he remarks his people's distresses, and balances them with his mercies unnumbered. His instructions effectually render us pious and peaceful. And safe are those, amidst millions of enemies, who have Jesus' righteousness imputed to their conscience, and JEHOVAH, the Manager of the world, in him, their Protector, and the Revenger of the injuries done to them.

CHAP. LV. Ver. 1—5. Ye sinners of mankind, who are not, but wish to be, happy, come ye, however guilty or polluted, to the ordinances of the gospel, and by faith freely receive all the blessings and privileges graciously offered in it.—Why do you lay out your gifts, parts, and opportunities, in pursuit of worldly enjoyments, superstitious devotions, or self-righteousness, which can afford you no solid satisfaction? Carefully listen to and believe my gospel offers and invitations; and let your souls with pleasure receive and live on the substantial, satisfying, strengthening, and sanctifying, blessings therein conferred. By faith embrace these offers as the means of your spiritual and eternal life; and I will establish with you the everlasting covenant of grace, which contains, bequeaths, and insures, all the free blessings promised to David; but purchased by and

CHAP. LVI.

Calls Jews and Gentiles to improve the promises of their salvation, temporal or spiritual, in piety and virtue; 1, 2. (2) Encourages the Gentiles to join the Jewish, and especially the gospel church, by assuring them of blessings from God, and of his exerting his influences for their conversion; 3—8. (3) Exhibits a high charge against the Jewish rulers of church or state in the days of Isaiah or Christ, and of Christian rulers under Antichrist, as ignorant, unfaithful, lazy, covetous, luxurious, and profane; and warns the Chaldeans, Syro-grecians, Romans, Goths, and Turks, to destroy them; 9—12. [These last verses should have stood in the beginning of the next chapter.]

THUS saith the LORD, Keep ye judgment, and do justice: for my salvation is near to come, and my righteousness to be revealed.

2 Blessed is the man that doth this, and the son of man that layeth hold on it: that keepeth the sabbath from polluting it, and keepeth his hand from doing any evil.

3 Neither let the son of the stranger, that hath joined himself to the LORD, speak, saying, The LORD hath utterly separated me from his people: neither let the eunuch say, Behold, I am a dry tree.

4 For thus saith the LORD unto the eunuchs that keep my sabbaths, and choose the things that please me, and take hold of my covenant;

5 Even unto them will I give in mine house, and within my walls, a place and a name better than of sons and of daughters: I will give them an everlasting name, that shall not be cut off.

6 Also the sons of the stranger, that join themselves to the LORD, to serve him, and to love the name of the LORD, to be his servants, every one that keepeth the sabbath from polluting it, and taketh hold of my covenant;

7 Even them will I bring to my holy mountain, and make them joyful in my house of prayer: their burnt-offerings and their sacrifices shall be accepted upon lodged in Jesus Christ for the salvation of miserable sinners! Behold with faith, love, and admiration, I have freely granted him to publish and attest every gospel truth to ignorant and unbelieving men, to instruct and guide them to salvation, to rule and defend them, and to restrain and conquer their enemies. And at his invitation, through the influence of the Holy Ghost, and in order to glorify him, shall multitudes of Gentiles, who had neither been acknowledged by him nor known him, receive and submit to him. 6—13. Importunately seek after and heartily embrace him as your Saviour and portion, while he earnestly offers himself to you in his word and ordinances. Let even the greatest sinner detest, and turn from, his self-contrived methods of relief, as well as from his courses and purposes of wickedness, in the assured faith of the unbounded mercy and pardoning grace of God: for, in riches of mercy, his purposes, words, and works, infinitely transcend every thing similar, and every conception, among men; and his promises cannot be defeated, but always issue in blessings to mankind. And as, with great joy, the Jews shall be divinely conducted from Babylon, and their present dispersion, to their own country, and shall plant, multiply, and flourish, in the same, so shall multitudes, to the public and lasting honour of God, be delivered from their spiritual bondage of heathenism, popery, Satan, or their lusts; and while themselves are converted from mischievous sinners into agreeable and useful saints, they shall be delivered from whatever is hurtful and offensive.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. LV.—Think now, my soul, how all the blessings of salvation are framed to answer our need! The most trifling cumberers of God's vineyard, nay, the most notorious sinners, are expressly, are earnestly, invited by him to receive the same, without any conditions. Infinite is his grace, who, at infinite expense, provides these favours for his enemies, his betrayers, and wicked parents, have abandoned yourselves to witchcraft, adultery, and idolatry. Why do ye contemptuously deride me and my prophets, abandon yourselves to vices, and yet hypocritically pretend to serve me? Ye are violent and eager upon your idolatrous worship, and sacrifice your children to Moloch. Ye can hardly see a smooth stone in a river, but ye fancy it to be a god, and offer oblations to it. Can this fail to provoke me? Ye build temples and altars on every high place, and toil yourselves to go up and sacrifice there. Every corner of your houses is stored with memorials of your idols: and, by coveting whatever you have seen among heathens, ye have exceedingly multiplied them. By court- ing alliances with heathen princes, even on the basest terms, ye have partook with them in their idolatrous worship. Without ever being convinced by your disappointments, ye have wearied yourselves in foreign embassies and wicked- ness; and, obtaining present ease, have never repented of your conduct. With- out any proper ground of fear, ye have thus acted treacherously towards me never regarding my relation to you or the great things which I have done for you; and my patience exercised and forbearing, has but tempted you to disregard me the more. Therefore, by my fearful judgments executed upon you, will I mani- fest how criminal and ruinous your conduct has been. Nor shall your idols, or heathen allies, be able to protect either themselves or you. 13—21. But such as believe my word, and trust in my perfections, shall return from their and ruins men! But infinite is that grace which heaps mercies on the richest deservers of hell. Delightful is the new covenant connection betwixt pardon, conversion, comfort, peace, and holy gratitude. But fearful is the guilt, and tremendous the misery, of such as perish in their sins amidst the offers and influences of God's GRACE.

CHAP. LVIII. Ver. 1—7. Why complain ye so loudly that I do not reward your fasting, while therein you but gratify your own inclinations, oppress your poor servants, promote contention and oppression of the innocent, reproach your debtors, servants, or neighbours, or content yourselves with mere outward noise and show!—whereas the fasting which I delight in is to repent of, and reform from, your wickedness; particularly your usurious exactions and cruel oppressions, and to bestow necessary supplies upon your poor brethren. 8—12. If you forbear and restrain oppression of your neighbours, threatening and derisive contempt, hypocritical dissimulation, and do kindly pity and relieve the destitute and afflicted, great shall be your gracious reward; great shall be your comfort, prosperity, and glory. God shall, by his presence and providence, protect you; he shall readily accept and grant your requests; he shall direct you in all your ways; and, while others are distressed with want, ye shall be plentifully provided for, and rendered the honoured instruments of re-establishing your nation, repairing your long desolate cities, and of the erection and re-establishment of the gospel church. 13, 14. And, if ye carefully abstain from all carnal labour and recreations on the sabbath, and with pleasure observe it in the spiritual exercises of my worship, ye shall enjoy unbounded comforts in me, as your God, in my ordinances; and, with safety, honour and pleasure, continue in the possession of Canaan till at last ye be exalted to the felicities of the heavenly inheritance.

captivity to Canaan by my providence; and Cyrus, by his proclamation, shall remove every hindrance in their way. For, however high and lofty I am as the holy One who inhabits eternity, yet am I infinitely condescending towards persons destitute, distressed, and broken in spirit: nor will I continue my judgments till such be utterly ruined or discouraged.—For their injustice, and other abominations, I have indeed punished them by the Chaldeans, Syro-grecians, Romans, and others; and yet, under their affliction, they have become worse and worse. I will therefore, by an extension of sovereign grace, forgive and reform them, lead them back to their duty and their country, and restore comforts to them; and, by my prophets, publish peace and prosperity to them, that their lips may be filled with my praise. But, by their own lusts, guilt, and fears, and the judgments which I inflict, the wicked shall always remain in a restless, shameful, and loathsome condition.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. LVIII.—God kindly hides his people in heaven from his terrible judgments on earth. And, great is the folly and ignorance of men that such alarming warnings are often so little regarded. Dreadful indeed must be our inward corruption, which can thus push us to the utmost wickedness in every form, notwithstanding all the laws, mercies, and judgments, which God lays in our way to hinder it. And, when God himself is thus contemned and insulted, his faithful ministers must not hope to escape. But he will not always suffer our sins to pass unpunished. When he is wroth, not any created helper can in the least avail us. But an abiding faith will secure a blessed portion, both in time and eternity: and God himself will undoubtedly pity and relieve us in our depths of distress. Great is the happiness of those hearts in which he dwells. No evil can approach, no good be absent.—Alas, how covetousness provokes God

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. LVIII.—There is great need that ministers should deal closely with the consciences of their hearers, particularly nominal professors. And that all should seek, by a thorough self-examination, the evident marks of grace. For what alarming lengths in religious appearances do hypocrites sometimes go, and that merely to gratify their own legality and pride! Many flatter themselves that God will reward the services which, in fact, he abhors. And such are often greatly exasperated to have the vanity of their self-confidence exposed. There is much need of great brokenness of heart for, and of reformation from, sin, in our humiliation for it; otherwise our demure looks will but provoke God to abhor us. Nor can we have a deep sense of Jesus' grace without having our hearts and hands opened towards our poor and distressed brethren: and what is lent to the Lord, by relieving his people, he repays with usury. Let us likewise be careful that our hearts are sanctified and divinely influenced, in order to a proper sanctification of the Lord's day. Multitudes undergo the most alarming miseries, in time and eternity, as the just punishment of their profanation of it; while in keeping his commandments there is a great reward.

CHAP. LIX. Ver. 5, 6. With the utmost labour and care they frame villainous schemes of doctrine or practice, by which their neighbours and partners are destroyed, and themselves nothing profited. 9—11. To punish our iniquity, upon the high places of the earth, and feed thee with ^ethe heritage of Jacob thy father; for ^bthe mouth of the LORD hath spoken it.

CHAP. LIX.

Here (1) The Jews and Antichristians are charged with obstructing God's favours to themselves by their iniquities; their vain and mischievous devices; their lying and deceit; their activity in murder, dishonesty, and other wickedness; 1—8. (2) In the name of his people and the church, Isaiah recounts their judgments, and the sinful causes thereof; 9—15. (3) Notwithstanding their general corruption, God promises to work deliverance for them for his own sake; 16—19: and to entail mercy upon them and their posterity; 20, 21. [This chiefly relates to the apostolic, and especially the millennial, period.]

BEHOLD, the LORD's hand is not ^ashortened, that it cannot save; neither his ear heavy, that it cannot hear:

2 But ^byour iniquities have separated between you and your God, and your sins ^{*}have hid his face from you, that he will not hear.

3 For ^cyour hands are defiled with blood, and your fingers with iniquity; ^dyour lips have spoken lies, your tongue hath muttered perverseness.

4 ^eNone calleth for justice, nor ^{any} pleadeth for truth: they trust in vanity, and speak lies; ^fthey conceive mischief, and bring forth iniquity.

5 ^gThey hatch [†]cockatrice' eggs, and weave the spider's web: he that eateth of their eggs dieth, and [‡]that which is crushed breaketh out into a viper.

6 ^hTheir webs shall not become garments, neither shall they cover themselves with their works: ⁱtheir works ^{are} works of iniquity, and the act of violence is in their hands.

7 ^kTheir feet run to evil, and they make haste to shed innocent blood: their thoughts ^{are} thoughts of iniquity; wasting and ^ldestruction ^{are} in their paths.

8 ^mThe way of peace they know not, and ⁿthere is no ^{judgment} in their goings: ^othey have made them crooked paths; whosoever goeth therein ^pshall not know peace.

9 ^qTherefore is judgment far from us, neither doth justice overtake us: we wait for light, but behold obscurity; for brightness, ^{but} we walk in darkness.

10 ^rWe grope for the wall like the blind, and we grope as if ^{we had} no eyes: we stumble at noon day as in the night; ^{we are} in desolate places as dead men.

11 ^sWe roar all like bears, and mourn sore like doves: we look for judgment, but ^{there is} none: for salvation, ^{but} it is far off from us.

12 ^tFor our transgressions are multiplied before thee, and our sins testify against us: for our transgressions ^{are} with us; and, ^{as for} our iniquities, we know them;

13 ^uIn transgressing and lying against the LORD, and departing away from our God, speaking oppression and revolt, conceiving and uttering from the heart words of falsehood.

14 And ^vjudgment is turned away backward, and justice standeth afar off: for truth is fallen in the street, and equity cannot enter.

15 Yea, ^wtruth faileth; and he ^{that} ^{departeth} from evil ^bmaketh himself a prey: and the LORD saw it, and ^{||}it displeased him that ^{there was} no judgment.

16 ¶ And he saw that ^{there was} no man, and wondered that ^{there was} no intercessor: ^dtherefore his arm brought salvation unto him; and his righteousness, it sustained him.

17 ^eFor he put on righteousness as a breast-plate, and an helmet of salvation upon his head; and he put on the garments of vengeance ^{for} clothing, and was clad with zeal as a cloke.

18 ^fAccording to ^{their} ^{*}deeds, accordingly he will repay, fury to his adversaries, recompence to his enemies; to the islands he will repay recompence.

19 ^gSo shall they fear the name of the LORD from the west, and his glory from the rising of the sun. ^hWhen the enemy shall come in like a flood, the spirit of the LORD shall [†]lift up a standard against him.

20 ¶ And ⁱthe Redeemer shall come to Zion, and unto them that turn from transgression in Jacob, saith the LORD.

21 As for me, ^kthis is my covenant with them, saith the LORD, My spirit that is upon thee, and my words which I have put in thy mouth, shall not depart out of thy mouth, nor out of the mouth of thy seed's seed, saith the LORD, from henceforth and for ever.

men deny us justice, and God refuses to plead our cause. When we expect deliverance and prosperity our miseries are increased, our spirits are overwhelmed with despair, and our anguish and grief inexpressible. 16—21. Finding that there is scarcely any left to stand up for injured honesty and truth, or even to plead for mercy, God will exert his immediate power in the righteous and faithful salvation of his people, and the destruction of their enemies, Chaldeans, Syro-grecians, Romans, Papists, or Mahometans; and thus shall the nations around be awed by, or turned to, the Lord. Whenever Satan, or his instruments, make any assault, God, by the preaching of the gospel, and by his providence, shall effectually and suddenly repress their attempts. Jesus the almighty Redeemer, shall not only appear in his debased estate in the Jewish church and temple, but shall dwell in his gospel church, and at last convert to himself the remnant of the Hebrew nation along with the fulness of the Gentiles. And the Spirit and oracles of God, granted to him and his church, shall always, especially in the happy millennium, abide with his ministers and people, to direct and instruct them in every thing necessary.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. LIX.—It is vain to expect favours from God while we indulge ourselves in sin: and absurd to love that which separates us from our God, and entails his vengeance on our heads. Dreadful is that root of original CHAP. LX.

Contains some leading articles of God's covenant, (chap. lix. 21.) which relates to the Jews after their return from Babylon; but chiefly to the gospel church in her apostolic and millennial periods, and to the glories of the heavenly state. It is promised that (1) The church should quickly be marvellously enlightened by the instructions, knowledge, favour, and image, of God; 1, 2, 22. (2) That it should be wonderfully enlarged by the accession of Gentile converts, wild Arabs not excepted; 3—8, 22. (3) That these converts should be very serviceable to it; 9—13. (4) That it should be in great honour and repute among men; 14—16. (5) That great should be the reformation, safety, peace, and joy, of it; 17, 18. (6) That God, being their everlasting ALL IN ALL, remarkable holiness, and everlasting happiness, should prevail; 19—22. [See Introduction, sect. xviii. xix.]

ARISE, *shine; for thy light is come, and the glory of the LORD is risen upon thee.

2 For, behold, the darkness shall cover the earth, and gross darkness the people: but the LORD shall arise upon thee, and his glory shall be seen upon thee.

3 And the Gentiles shall come to thy light, and kings to the brightness of thy rising.

4 Lift up thine eyes round about, and see: all they gather themselves together, they come to thee: thy sons shall come from far; and thy daughters shall be nursed at thy side.

5 Then shalt thou see, and flow together, and thine heart shall fear, and be enlarged; because the abundance of the sea shall be converted unto thee, the forces of the Gentiles shall come unto thee.

6 The multitudes of camels shall cover thee, the dromedaries of Midian and Ephah; all they from Sheba shall come: they shall bring gold and incense: and they shall shew forth the praises of the LORD.

7 All the flocks of Kedar shall be gathered together unto thee; the rams of Nebaioth shall minister unto thee: they shall come up with acceptance on mine altar, and I will glorify the house of my glory.

8 Who are these that fly as a cloud, and as the doves to their windows?

9 Surely the isles shall wait for me, and the ships of Tarshish first, to bring thy sons from far, their silver and their gold with them, unto the name of the LORD thy God, and to the Holy One of Israel, because he hath glorified thee.

10 And the sons of strangers shall build up thy walls, and their kings shall minister unto thee: for in my wrath I smote thee, but in my favour have I had mercy on thee.

11 And the sons of strangers shall build up thy walls, and their kings shall minister unto thee: for in my wrath I smote thee, but in my favour have I had mercy on thee.

12 And the sons of strangers shall build up thy walls, and their kings shall minister unto thee: for in my wrath I smote thee, but in my favour have I had mercy on thee.

13 And the sons of strangers shall build up thy walls, and their kings shall minister unto thee: for in my wrath I smote thee, but in my favour have I had mercy on thee.

14 And the sons of strangers shall build up thy walls, and their kings shall minister unto thee: for in my wrath I smote thee, but in my favour have I had mercy on thee.

15 And the sons of strangers shall build up thy walls, and their kings shall minister unto thee: for in my wrath I smote thee, but in my favour have I had mercy on thee.

16 And the sons of strangers shall build up thy walls, and their kings shall minister unto thee: for in my wrath I smote thee, but in my favour have I had mercy on thee.

17 And the sons of strangers shall build up thy walls, and their kings shall minister unto thee: for in my wrath I smote thee, but in my favour have I had mercy on thee.

18 And the sons of strangers shall build up thy walls, and their kings shall minister unto thee: for in my wrath I smote thee, but in my favour have I had mercy on thee.

19 And the sons of strangers shall build up thy walls, and their kings shall minister unto thee: for in my wrath I smote thee, but in my favour have I had mercy on thee.

20 And the sons of strangers shall build up thy walls, and their kings shall minister unto thee: for in my wrath I smote thee, but in my favour have I had mercy on thee.

21 And the sons of strangers shall build up thy walls, and their kings shall minister unto thee: for in my wrath I smote thee, but in my favour have I had mercy on thee.

22 And the sons of strangers shall build up thy walls, and their kings shall minister unto thee: for in my wrath I smote thee, but in my favour have I had mercy on thee.

11 Therefore thy gates shall be open continually; they shall not be shut day nor night; that men may bring unto thee the forces of the Gentiles, and that their kings may be brought.

12 For the nation and kingdom that will not serve thee shall perish; yea, those nations shall be utterly wasted.

13 The glory of Lebanon shall come unto thee, the fir tree, the pine tree, and the box together, to beautify the place of my sanctuary; and I will make the place of my feet glorious.

14 The sons also of them that afflicted thee shall come bending unto thee; and all they that despised thee shall bow themselves down at the soles of thy feet; and they shall call thee, The city of the LORD, the Zion of the Holy One of Israel.

15 Whereas thou hast been forsaken and hated, so that no man went through thee, I will make thee an eternal excellency, a joy of many generations.

16 Thou shalt also suck the milk of the Gentiles, and shalt suck the breast of kings; and thou shalt know that I the LORD am thy Saviour and thy Redeemer, the Mighty One of Jacob.

17 For brass I will bring gold, and for iron I will bring silver, and for wood brass, and for stones iron: I will also make thy officers peace, and thine exactors righteousness.

18 Violence shall no more be heard in thy land, wasting nor destruction within thy borders; but thou shalt call thy walls salvation, and thy gates praise.

19 The sun shall be no more thy light by day, neither for brightness shall the moon give light unto thee; but the LORD shall be unto thee an everlasting light, and thy God thy glory.

20 Thy sun shall no more go down, neither shall thy moon withdraw itself; for the LORD shall be thine everlasting light, and the days of thy mourning shall be ended.

21 Thy people also shall be all righteous: they shall inherit the land for ever, the branch of my planting, the work of my hands, that I may be glorified.

22 A little one shall become a thousand, and a small one a strong nation: I the LORD will hasten it in his time.

23 And the sons of strangers shall build up thy walls, and their kings shall minister unto thee: for in my wrath I smote thee, but in my favour have I had mercy on thee.

24 And the sons of strangers shall build up thy walls, and their kings shall minister unto thee: for in my wrath I smote thee, but in my favour have I had mercy on thee.

25 And the sons of strangers shall build up thy walls, and their kings shall minister unto thee: for in my wrath I smote thee, but in my favour have I had mercy on thee.

26 And the sons of strangers shall build up thy walls, and their kings shall minister unto thee: for in my wrath I smote thee, but in my favour have I had mercy on thee.

27 And the sons of strangers shall build up thy walls, and their kings shall minister unto thee: for in my wrath I smote thee, but in my favour have I had mercy on thee.

28 And the sons of strangers shall build up thy walls, and their kings shall minister unto thee: for in my wrath I smote thee, but in my favour have I had mercy on thee.

29 And the sons of strangers shall build up thy walls, and their kings shall minister unto thee: for in my wrath I smote thee, but in my favour have I had mercy on thee.

30 And the sons of strangers shall build up thy walls, and their kings shall minister unto thee: for in my wrath I smote thee, but in my favour have I had mercy on thee.

31 And the sons of strangers shall build up thy walls, and their kings shall minister unto thee: for in my wrath I smote thee, but in my favour have I had mercy on thee.

32 And the sons of strangers shall build up thy walls, and their kings shall minister unto thee: for in my wrath I smote thee, but in my favour have I had mercy on thee.

33 And the sons of strangers shall build up thy walls, and their kings shall minister unto thee: for in my wrath I smote thee, but in my favour have I had mercy on thee.

corruption which springs up in so many abominable courses; miserable their condition; who have their own conscience upbraiding them while JEHOVAH and his instruments are punishing them: and awful the situation when the universal prevalence of wickedness is attended with general wretchedness, perplexity, and anguish! Thrice happy is it to reflect, that where sin abounded grace doth much more abound; and that our whole salvation, and the destruction of our enemies, depend on God himself, and not on us: that Jesus Christ and his Spirit are appointed to accomplish the whole work of our conversion and conversation, nothing being left to the prudent care and good management of our own free will.

CHAP. LX. Ver. 1, 2. Be enlightened, comforted, and glorious, O church, for not only is thy deliverance out of Babylon effected, but the Son of God is come in our nature, to enlighten the world, and glorify God in the salvation of men.—And, though multitudes were lying, or are left to remain, in depths of ignorance, wickedness, and misery, Jesus shall shew his glory, through the gospel among you.

3—14. The accession of proselytes, and bounty of kings and princes, to the Jewish church after their return from Babylon, shall be no more than an earnest of the multitudes of princes and others, even of the most savage nations, that shall heartily accede to the gospel church, and devote their substance to, and labours in, the service of it. 14—22. And great shall be her honour, stable and lasting her joys, abundant her prosperity, excellent her ordinances, gifts, and graces, upright and peaceful her officers, complete her safety, lasting and divine her glory, eminently pure, holy, happy, and numerous, her members, and quick her enlargement:—all seasonably effected by JEHOVAH himself.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. LX.—Where sin had abounded, grace much more abounds; and, through Jesus' righteousness, reigns unto eternal life where sin had reigned unto death. But they who live destitute of the gospel are plunged CHAP. LXI.

(1) Perhaps, under the qualifications and work of Isaiah as a type, describes the furniture and work of Jesus Christ, our great Prophet and Saviour; 1—3. (2) By the figure of the Jews repairing their cities, assisted by the Gentiles, their peculiar relation to God, their distinguished and durable honour and prosperity, and their direction by God, are represented the similar glories and blessings of the gospel church; 4—9. (3) The triumph of Jews and Christians in God, and his bestowal of righteousness, salvation, holiness, and comfort, are represented; 10, 11.

THE "Spirit of the Lord God is upon me; because the LORD hath anointed me to preach good tidings unto the meek: he hath sent me to bind up the broken-hearted; to proclaim liberty to the captives, and the opening of the prison to them that are bound;

2 To proclaim the acceptable year of the LORD, and the day of vengeance of our God; to comfort all that mourn;

3 To appoint unto them that mourn in Zion, to give unto them beauty for ashes, the oil of joy for mourning, the garment of praise for the spirit of heaviness; that they might be called Trees of righteousness, the planting of the LORD, that he might be glorified.

4 ¶ And they shall build the old wastes, they shall raise up the former desolations, and they shall repair the waste cities, the desolations of many generations.

5 And strangers shall stand and feed your flocks, and the sons of the alien shall be your plowmen and your vine dressers.

6 But ye shall be named the priests of the LORD: men shall call you the ministers of our God: ye shall eat the riches of the Gentiles, and in their glory shall ye boast yourselves.

7 For your shame ye shall have double; and for confusion they shall rejoice in their portion: therefore in their land they shall possess the double: everlasting joy shall be unto them.

8 For I the LORD love judgment, I hate robbery for burnt-offering; and I will direct their work in truth, and I will make an everlasting covenant with them.

9 And their seed shall be known among the Gentiles, and their offspring among the people: all that see them shall acknowledge them, that they are the seed which the LORD hath blessed.

10 I will greatly rejoice in the LORD, my soul shall be joyful in my God; for he hath clothed me with the garments of salvation, he hath covered me with the robe of righteousness, as a bridegroom decketh himself with ornaments, and as a bride adorneth herself with her jewels.

11 For, as the earth bringeth forth her bud, and as the garden causeth the things that are sown in it to spring forth, so the LORD God will cause righteousness and praise to spring forth before all the nations.

CHAP. LXII.

Through the typical intercession of Isaiah and his fellow prophets, for the glories of the Jews after their captivity in Babylon, represents the glories of the Christian church, procured by the intercession of Jesus Christ. Here are (1) Earnest intercessions for the church's vindication, enlargement, and prosperity, intended or required; 1, 6, 7. (2) In answer to these it is promised that the church should be rendered honourable before men; 2: highly prized, dearly loved, closely united with, and delightful to God; 3—5: happily furnished with faithful ministers, and with means of grace, and other necessary comforts; 6, 8, 9: redeemed from captivity, privileged with the enjoyment of Jesus Christ and his salvation, and renowned as the saved, sanctified, and never-forsaken people of God; 10—12.

FOR Zion's sake will I not hold my peace, and for Jerusalem's sake I will not rest, until the righteousness thereof go forth as brightness, and the salvation thereof as a lamp that burneth.

2 And the Gentiles shall see thy righteousness, and all kings thy glory: and thou shalt be called by a new name, which the mouth of the LORD shall name.

3 Thou shalt also be a crown of glory in the hand of the LORD, and a royal diadem in the hand of thy God.

4 Thou shalt no more be termed Forsaken; neither shall thy land any more be termed Desolate: but thou shalt be called Hephzi-bah, and thy land Beulah: for the LORD delighteth in thee, and thy land shall be married.

5 For as a young man marrieth a virgin, so shall thy sons marry thee: and as the bridegroom rejoiceth over the bride, so shall thy God rejoice over thee.

6 ¶ I have set watchmen upon thy walls, O Jerusalem, which shall never hold their peace day nor night: ye that make mention of the LORD, keep not silence, into the greatest misery and darkness. And infinite is the mercy when Jesus Christ, the light of life, and the glory of his people, manifests himself in his incarnation and ordinances. The remarkable favour of God, the clear light of the gospel, and the shining lives of professors, powerfully attract members to the church. And, with inexpressible pleasure and wonder, do the lovers of Christ behold multitudes crowding to him as their refuge, and to the ordinances of his grace. And if we truly give him our heart, we shall liberally employ our wealth, honour, and influence, for promoting his cause. How abundant and constant is the access of sinful men to Jesus and his gospel church! Quickly and unexpectedly can he turn her corruption, contempt, poverty, oppression, and misery, into holiness, comfort, honour, wealth, happiness, and safety. What then must heaven be, where no evil can enter, and where God himself shall be our everlasting light, our everlasting glory, and our ALL IN ALL!

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. LXI.—Clear is the call, and unbounded the spiritual furniture, of our Lord Jesus for his saving work; and wonderful the instruction, healing, deliverance, protection, and comfort, which he gives us by the gospel. He effectually roots and grounds sinners of mankind in himself, and in a new covenant state; raises temples to God out of the ruined lodgings of lusts; makes the bond-slaves of Satan free indeed; the servants of sin priests and ministers to God; and fraudulent wanderers upright followers of truth.—Thrice happy are they whom he delivers from redoubled misery and shame; whom he enriches with his grace, and gives full contentment and joy in himself; and to whom he is a God and guide, even unto death. And sweet and honourable to exercised souls are Jesus' imputed righteousness and applied salvation, with all the holiness and comfort which proceed therefrom.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. LXII.—Great fervour and perseverance, particularly in preaching and prayer, are necessary in the ministers of Christ. How near to their's, and especially to Jesus' heart, lie the important concerns of the church! And great and numerous are the blessed fruits of their intercessions. Thrice happy is it when not only churches are vindicated, but Jesus' righteousness and salvation are clearly exhibited and distinctly perceived; when church members are spiritually joined to the Lord, and to one another in him; are an honour and pleasure to him; and bring forth the fruits of righteousness, to the praise of his glory; and when divine oracles, ordinances, officers, gifts, and practical holiness, meet together! Thrice happy is it that in the work of our salvation, and of rearing, reforming, and ruling, the church, Jesus Christ, and JEHOSHUAH in him, are ALL and in ALL. Infinite is the condescension, mercy, power, wisdom, care, and faithfulness, which he manifests in his work. And such as he has once redeemed and sanctified shall never be lost nor forsaken.

CHAP. LXIII.

Here (1) By JEHOVAH's victory and triumph over the enemies of the Jews, whether before or after the captivity, is figured our mighty Jesus destroying and triumphing over sin, Satan, the world, and death; and over obstinate Jews, Heathens, Papists, and Mahometans; 1—6. (2) Both Jews and Christians rejoice in God's amazing love, his near relation, tender sympathy, former preservation and favours, notwithstanding their great provocations; 7—14. (3) They mournfully bewail their condition, supplicate deliverance, pleading upon God's care, power, and mercy, his paternal relation to, and his property in, them; and on their desire after him, and the insolence of his and their enemies; 15—19.

CHAP. LXIII. Ver. 1—6. Who is this that cometh from the slaughter and destruction of his people's enemies, temporal or spiritual, having almighty power to perform his will whithersoever he goes? It is I, the Messiah, who promise nothing but what I faithfully perform, and who, through my own finished righteousness, am able to save to the uttermost.—I, by myself alone, without needing any created assistance, have utterly subdued and destroyed mine enemies: and I will quickly honour myself in the tremendous ruin of such as still remain: for the seasons appointed for the destruction of mine enemies, and the deliverance of my people, are fixed in my purpose and view. And, though none be found able or willing to espouse their quarrel, or attempt their deliverance, my power and zeal shall save them, shall wrathfully destroy their opposers, and even render them astonished at the greatness of their calamities.—8. They will not

7 And give him no rest, till he establish, and till he make Jerusalem a praise in the earth.

8 ¶ The LORD hath sworn by his right hand, and by the arm of his strength, Surely I will no more give thy corn to be meat for thine enemies; and the sons of the stranger shall not drink thy wine, for the which thou hast laboured:

9 But they that have gathered it shall eat it, and praise the LORD; and they that have brought it together shall drink it in the courts of my holiness.

10 ¶ Go through, go through the gates; prepare ye the way of the people; cast up, cast up the highway; gather out the stones; lift up a standard for the people.

11 Behold, the LORD hath proclaimed unto the end of the world, Say ye to the daughter of Zion, Behold, thy salvation cometh; behold, his reward is with him, and his work before him.

12 And they shall call them, The holy people, The Redeemed of the LORD: and thou shalt be called, Sought out, A city not forsaken.

13 And they shall call them, The holy people, The Redeemed of the LORD: and thou shalt be called, Sought out, A city not forsaken.

14 And they shall call them, The holy people, The Redeemed of the LORD: and thou shalt be called, Sought out, A city not forsaken.

15 And they shall call them, The holy people, The Redeemed of the LORD: and thou shalt be called, Sought out, A city not forsaken.

16 And they shall call them, The holy people, The Redeemed of the LORD: and thou shalt be called, Sought out, A city not forsaken.

17 And they shall call them, The holy people, The Redeemed of the LORD: and thou shalt be called, Sought out, A city not forsaken.

18 And they shall call them, The holy people, The Redeemed of the LORD: and thou shalt be called, Sought out, A city not forsaken.

19 And they shall call them, The holy people, The Redeemed of the LORD: and thou shalt be called, Sought out, A city not forsaken.

20 And they shall call them, The holy people, The Redeemed of the LORD: and thou shalt be called, Sought out, A city not forsaken.

21 And they shall call them, The holy people, The Redeemed of the LORD: and thou shalt be called, Sought out, A city not forsaken.

22 And they shall call them, The holy people, The Redeemed of the LORD: and thou shalt be called, Sought out, A city not forsaken.

23 And they shall call them, The holy people, The Redeemed of the LORD: and thou shalt be called, Sought out, A city not forsaken.

24 And they shall call them, The holy people, The Redeemed of the LORD: and thou shalt be called, Sought out, A city not forsaken.

25 And they shall call them, The holy people, The Redeemed of the LORD: and thou shalt be called, Sought out, A city not forsaken.

26 And they shall call them, The holy people, The Redeemed of the LORD: and thou shalt be called, Sought out, A city not forsaken.

27 And they shall call them, The holy people, The Redeemed of the LORD: and thou shalt be called, Sought out, A city not forsaken.

28 And they shall call them, The holy people, The Redeemed of the LORD: and thou shalt be called, Sought out, A city not forsaken.

29 And they shall call them, The holy people, The Redeemed of the LORD: and thou shalt be called, Sought out, A city not forsaken.

30 And they shall call them, The holy people, The Redeemed of the LORD: and thou shalt be called, Sought out, A city not forsaken.

31 And they shall call them, The holy people, The Redeemed of the LORD: and thou shalt be called, Sought out, A city not forsaken.

32 And they shall call them, The holy people, The Redeemed of the LORD: and thou shalt be called, Sought out, A city not forsaken.

33 And they shall call them, The holy people, The Redeemed of the LORD: and thou shalt be called, Sought out, A city not forsaken.

34 And they shall call them, The holy people, The Redeemed of the LORD: and thou shalt be called, Sought out, A city not forsaken.

35 And they shall call them, The holy people, The Redeemed of the LORD: and thou shalt be called, Sought out, A city not forsaken.

6 And I will tread down the people in mine anger, and make them drunk in my fury, and I will bring down their strength to the earth.

7 ¶ I will mention the loving-kindnesses of the LORD, and the praises of the LORD, according to all that the LORD hath bestowed on us, and the great goodness toward the house of Israel, which he hath bestowed on them according to his mercies, and according to the multitude of his loving-kindnesses.

8 For he said, Surely they are my people, children that will not lie: so he was their Saviour.

9 In all their affliction he was afflicted, and the angel of his presence saved them: in his love and in his pity he redeemed them; and he bare them and carried them all the days of old.

10 But they rebelled, and vexed his holy spirit; therefore he was turned to be their enemy, and he fought against them.

11 Then he remembered the days of old, Moses and his people, saying, Where is he that brought them up out of the sea with the shepherd of his flock? where is he that put his holy spirit within him?

12 That led them by the right hand of Moses with his glorious arm, dividing the water before them, to make himself an everlasting name?

13 That led them through the deep, as an horse in the wilderness, that they should not stumble?

14 As a beast goeth down into the valley, the spirit of the LORD caused him to rest: so didst thou lead thy people, to make thyself a glorious name.

15 ¶ Look down from heaven, and behold from the habitation of thy holiness and of thy glory: where is thy zeal and thy strength, the sounding of thy bowels and of thy mercies toward me? are they restrained?

16 Doubtless thou art our Father, though Abraham be ignorant of us and Israel acknowledge us not: thou, O LORD, art our Father, our Redeemer; thy name is from everlasting.

17 O LORD, why hast thou made us to err from thy ways, and hardened our heart from thy fear? Return for thy servants' sake, the tribes of thine inheritance.

18 The people of thy holiness have possessed it but a little while: our deal falsely and deceitfully in their covenant with me.—14. The Lord carried them gently and surely, as on plain ground, through the Red sea and the wilderness, till, to render himself famous in the earth, he brought them into the quiet possession of Canaan. 16—19. Abraham cannot either take notice of our troubles, or afford us any relief.—Why hast thou given us up to a spirit of error and obstinacy, and left us to the bent and bias of our own corrupt hearts, that we cannot fear thee in a filial and reverential manner? O be reconciled, and shew thyself favourable to us. Instead of possessing Canaan for ever, as was promised to the patriarchs, we, thy peculiar people, have enjoyed it but a little while; and our adversaries, who were never in such covenant relation to thee, have destroyed thy temple and thy land.

Ought to have been connected with the preceding, being a continuation of the church's prayer. We have the Jewish and Christian church (1) Earnestly requesting God's sudden and surprising appearance for their relief against their ravaging enemies, as he had formerly done, and was ever ready to do; 1—5. (2) Confessing their sinfulness and ill deserving, but referring themselves to his fatherly kindness and gracious sovereignty; 5—9. REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. LXIII.—Wonderful is Jesus Christ in the view of all that know him. And yet he indulges his servants and people in the most familiar inquiries and requests. Blessed are the periods which God hath fixed for shewing mercy to his elect, and distributing vengeance to their enemies. And with the greatest zeal, fervent affection, and care, he accomplishes every promise or threatening. Nor can the inability or unconcern of others in the least discourage our almighty Saviour, or hinder his success: but thrice dreadful is their destruction in which his glory must be exalted!—Never ought we to remember God's mercies but with minds lost in love, in wonder, and in praise. And every blessing of providence, grace, or glory, in time or eternity, ought to be viewed as having its sole rise in his infinitely rich and sovereign mercy. Alas! how base is it to lie, to deal treacherously, to rebel and vex the Holy Ghost, in opposition to that infinite pity and manifold salvation of God's dear Son! But wonderfully God mingles his sharpest corrections of his people with his gracious comforts. And it is comely when recounting of mercies, confession of iniquities, and pleading of promises, are rightly connected; and when supplicants complain chiefly of spiritual judgments, and fill their mouths with arguments before him.

CHAP. LXIV. Ver. 1—5. Oh that thou wouldest in some awful manner appear for the ruin of thine enemies and the relief of thy people, as in the destruction of the Egyptians and Canaanites, or as at mount Sinai!—For, whatever great things thou hast done, we believe that thou wilt still do greater, in the incarnation of thy Son, the spread of thy gospel, and the erection, preservation, and perfection, of the New Testament church.—Thou preventest, with thine unsearchable blessings, them who with pleasure receive thy favours, obey thy laws, and hold fellowship with thee in thy ordinances. And, though our sins have long provoked thee to anger, thy ways of mercy are perpetual, and there-

9 ¶Be not ^awroth very sore, O LORD, neither remember iniquity for ever: behold, see, we beseech thee, we are all thy people.

10 ^rThy holy cities are a wilderness, Zion is a wilderness, Jerusalem a desolation.

11 ^oOur holy and our beautiful house, where our fathers praised thee, is burned up with fire; and all our pleasant things are laid waste.

12 ^tWilt thou refrain thyself for these things, O LORD? wilt thou hold thy peace, and afflict us very sore?

Represents the difference which God would make between the returned Jews, who should fear him, and those who should not; sharply rebukes their sins, and intimates what blessings he had, in mercy, reserved for their nation; but chiefly relates to the rejection of the Jews, and the establishment and glory of the Christian church; and exhibits (1) God's sovereignly gracious prevention of the Gentiles, with his gospel calls and influences; 1. (2) His tremendous, but just, rejection of the Jews for their ancient idolatries, their pride, hypocrisy, and obstinate unbelief; 2—7. (3) The terrible judgments to be inflicted on them, by the Romans and others, while true Christians should enjoy safety, comfort, and honour; 11—16. (4) The conversion of some Jews to Christ in the apostolic, and multitudes in the millennial, periods; 8—10. (5) The happiness, joy, life, comfortable residence, honourable succession, intimate fellowship with God, and peace with one another, which Christians should enjoy in the apostolic, and especially the millennial, period; 17—25.

fore we hope for thy salvation. 6—12. We are indeed wholly corrupted, and our best works abominable in thy sight. Our sins have brought on these wasting and captivating judgments. And very few, with fervent importunity, labour to prevent thy departure, or plead for the removal of thy consuming judgments. But, notwithstanding our unworthy carriage towards thee, do thou, our Father and Creator, sovereignly remember and spare us; moderate and shorten thy corrections, since we are thy covenant people. When Jerusalem and our other cities are laid desolate, and thy temple, in which our Fathers long worshipped thee, is burnt, and all our pleasant palaces and structures are destroyed, let thy bowels of compassion make thee hasten to our relief.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. LXIV.—In trouble the almighty God must be implored for our relief: and he will make himself known to all; to his people in mercy, and to his enemies in judgment. There is infinite need of his gracious descents to awaken, enlighten, pardon, purify, protect, regulate, direct, and comfort, his church. What mercy he keeps, and what stores of blessedness he has laid up, for such as cheerfully wait on him, and walk with him, in all his ordinances, laws, and dispensations of providence! He bears with unnumbered provocations, and graciously forgives them, in the best of his people. But shameful are our sinful pollutions, and greatly criminal our want of earnestness in dealing with God: nor is there a surer token of a graceless heart than neglect of, and even indulged carelessness in, prayer. But, while we are pining away in our iniquities, nothing is more fit than by faith to throw ourselves entirely upon the sovereign mercy of God. And, if the disorders and desolations of churches lie so heavy on the heart of saints, how near must they go to the heart of the Saviour.

I will not keep silence, but will recompense, even recompense into their bosom, 7 ^mYour iniquities, and the iniquities of your fathers together, saith the LORD, who ⁿhave burned incense upon the mountains, and blasphemed me upon the hills: therefore ^owill I measure their former work into their bosom.

8 ¶ Thus saith the LORD, ^pAs the new wine is found in the cluster, and one saith, Destroy it not, for a blessing is in it: so will I do for my servants' sakes, that I may not destroy them all.

9 And ^qI will bring forth a seed out of Jacob, and out of Judah an inheritor of my mountains: and mine elect shall inherit it, and my servants shall dwell there.

10 And ^rSharon shall be a fold of flocks, and the valley of Achor a place for the herds to lie down in, for my people that have sought me.

11 ¶ But ye are they that ^sforsake the LORD, that forget my ^tholy mountain, that prepare a table for that ^utroop, and that furnish the drink-offering unto that ^vnumber.

12 ^xTherefore will I number you to the sword, and ye shall all bow down to the slaughter: ^ybecause when I called ye did not answer; when I spake ye did not hear; but did evil before mine eyes, and did choose that wherein I delighted not.

13 Therefore thus saith the Lord God, ^zBehold, my servants shall eat, but ye shall be hungry: behold, my servants shall drink, but ye shall be thirsty: behold, my servants shall rejoice, but ye shall be ashamed:

14 Behold, my servants shall sing for joy of heart, but ye shall cry for sorrow of heart, and shall howl for ^{||}vexation of spirit.

15 And ^aye shall leave your name for a curse unto my chosen: for the Lord God shall ^bslay thee, and call his servants by ^canother name:

16 ^dThat he who blesseth himself in the earth shall bless himself in the ^eGod of truth; and he that sweareth in the earth shall swear by the God of truth; because ^fthe former troubles are forgotten, and because they are hid from mine eyes.

17 ¶ For, behold, I create ^gnew heavens and a new earth: and the former shall not be remembered, nor ^hcome into mind.

18 But ⁱbe ye glad and rejoice for ever in that which I create: for, behold, I create Jerusalem a rejoicing, and her people a joy.

19 And ^jI will rejoice in Jerusalem, and joy in my people: and the ^kvoice of weeping shall be no more heard in her, nor the voice of crying.

20 ^lThere shall be no more thence an infant of days, nor an old man that hath not filled his days: for the child shall die an hundred years old; ^mbut the sinner, being an hundred years old, shall be accursed.

21 And they ⁿshall build houses, and inhabit them; and they shall plant vineyards, and eat the fruit of them.

22 They shall not build, and another inhabit; they shall not plant, and another eat: for ^oas the days of a tree are the days of my people, and mine elect ^pshall long enjoy the work of their hands.

23 They ^qshall not labour in vain, nor bring forth for trouble; for ^rthey are the seed of the blessed of the LORD, and their offspring with them.

24 And it shall come to pass, that ^sbefore they call I will answer; and while they are yet speaking I will hear.

25 ^tThe wolf and the lamb shall feed together, and the lion shall eat straw like the bullock: and ^udust shall be the serpent's meat. They shall not hurt nor destroy in all my ^vholy mountain, saith the LORD.

CHAP. LXVI.

Perhaps also represents God's kindness to the godly Jews after their captivity in Babylon, and his judgments against the wicked; but chiefly relates to the rejection of the Jews, the conversion of the Gentiles, the erection of the gospel church, and her restoration in the happy millennium. Here is (1) God marking his contempt of ceremonial services, when put into competition with his Christ and holy obedience; and his design to destroy the and delightful fellowship with him, remarkable change of men's dispositions and tempers, happy peacefulness, mutual affection, and freedom from persecution, shall amazingly abound.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. LXV.—Sovereign is JEHOVAH in the disposal of his favours; and graciously he prevents sinful men by the offers and communications of his saving graces and comforts. But rebellious dissemblers with God, and rejectors of his Son, provoke him to give them up at last to the most terrible rejection and ruin. Though he bear long, he will not bear always; and nothing is more odious in his sight than a sinner vaunting of his holiness, and looking down with contempt on others. Yet how loth is he utterly to abandon a people who have been once devoted to his honour! And how liberally sinners expend their substance to gratify their lusts! Awful and lasting are the proofs we have of Jesus' Messiahship, and of the truth of the Christian religion, in the tremendous miseries, and still continued dispersion and disgrace, of his Jewish rejectors. But O what unspeakable blessings, for Jews and Gentiles, are still wrapt up in God's promises! If I must die without seeing their fulfilment, let me live and die in the firm faith of it. If I am dispirited by the remarkable dishonours of God and ruin of souls which now prevail, let me hope for that happy period, in which the kingdoms of this world, Jews and Gentiles, shall become the kingdoms of my Lord and of his Christ.

by, the Gentiles, who for many ages have continued ignorant of and careless about me, and stood in no saving relation to me. But since, notwithstanding my long-continued offers of grace, vouchsafement of oracles and ordinances, and the strivings of my Spirit and providence, the Jews continue in their obstinate rejection and blasphemous contempt of me, since they still approve the sins of their fathers, or do what is equally horrid, and yet boast, to my high provocation, of themselves, as if they were the only holy people on earth; I will now, in the most tremendous and lasting manner, punish on them their own and their fathers' iniquities. 8—10. Nevertheless I will not utterly destroy the nation, as there is among them, and in their loins a number of elect persons, who, in the apostolic and millennial periods, shall be converted to Christ and his church, and become very useful to others. 11—16. But, as for the body of that nation, since they have apostatized from my truths and service, and have, at least, in approbation of their fathers' conduct, offered sacrifices to multitudes of idols, and have obstinately rejected the Messiah, I will most terribly destroy them by the Romans and others, and by famine, while the Christians shall be protected and nourished. They shall be miserable, detested, and infamous, while the Christians shall be joyful, respected, and happy, in the worship of their Redeemer; and idolatry, carnal ceremonies, and vexing miseries, shall be abolished. 17—25. For, to the inexpressible comfort of my people, whether Jews or Gentiles, I will, in the apostolic, and especially in the millennial, period, and still more gloriously in the heavenly state, establish my church in a new form; in which spiritual joys, noted advances in holiness, happy continuance in life, sanctified enjoyment of the blessings of providence, remarkable blessings from God, 12 For thus saith the LORD, Behold, I will extend peace to her like a river, and the glory of the Gentiles like a flowing stream: then shall ye suck, ye shall be borne upon her sides, and be dandled upon her knees.

13 As one whom his mother comforteth, so will I comfort you; and ye shall be comforted in Jerusalem.

14 And when ye see this your heart shall rejoice, and your bones shall flourish like an herb: and the hand of the LORD shall be known toward his servants, and his indignation toward his enemies.

15 ¶ For, behold, the LORD will come with fire, and with his chariots like a whirlwind, to render his anger with fury, and his rebuke with flames of fire.

16 For by fire and by his sword will the LORD plead with all flesh: and the slain of the LORD shall be many.

17 They that sanctify themselves, and purify themselves in the gardens behind one tree in the midst, eating swine's flesh, and the abomination, and the mouse, shall be consumed together, saith the LORD.

18 ¶ For I know their works and their thoughts: it shall come that I will gather all nations and tongues; and they shall come and see my glory.

19 And I will set a sign among them, and I will send those that escape of them unto the nations, to Tarshish, Pul, and Lud, that draw the bow, to Tubal, and Javan, to the isles afar off, that have not heard my fame, neither have seen my glory; and they shall declare my glory among the Gentiles.

20 And they shall bring all your brethren for an offering unto the LORD out of all nations, upon horses, and in chariots, and in litters, and upon mules, and upon swift beasts, to my holy mountain Jerusalem, saith the LORD, as the children of Israel bring an offering in a clean vessel into the house of the LORD.

21 And I will also take of them for priests and for Levites, saith the LORD.

22 For as the new heavens, and the new earth, which I will make, shall remain before me, saith the LORD, so shall your seed and your name remain.

23 And it shall come to pass, that from one new moon to another, and from one sabbath to another, shall all flesh come to worship before me, saith the LORD.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. LXVI.—Let my care be to have my heart right with God, and a meet habitation for him through the Spirit. And, making Jesus my pattern, let me, with a contrite heart, tremble at his word. God forbid that I should ever value myself on account of external performances in religion, which may be so detestable to him; or that ever he should abandon me to the power and rage of my own lusts, and the fearful vengeance attending the same. Hypocrites and church rulers are frequently the most cruel persecutors. But saints may bear injuries with patience when God will so quickly overbalance them with deliverance and comfort. And the church's remarkable deliverances, enlargements, and joys, are ordinarily introduced, or attended, by the most tremendous judgments on hypocritical professors and open enemies. All labour and suffering are well bestowed that issue in the conversion of multitudes to Christ. And, notwithstanding all that his enemies can do, the word of the Lord hath had, and will have, free course, and be glorified. The ends of the earth shall be made to remember and turn to the Lord. And the grace of God, which bringeth salvation, shall teach men to deny ungodliness and worldly lusts, and to live soberly, righteously, and godly, in this world. But what dreadful spectacles of divine vengeance have been the Jewish and Roman, and shall be the Popish and Turkish, persecutors of the church! Let therefore the British nations stand in awe and tremble!

THE BOOK OF THE PROPHET JEREMIAH.

Jeremiah was a priest descended from Aaron, very early called to the prophetic office, (chap. i.) and continued forty or fifty years faithfully discharging it. Living in a period of great dissimulation with God, and of notorious rebellion against him, the miseries which he foresaw, and the persecutions which he endured, rendered his condition extremely afflicted and sorrowful; chap. ix. 1; xi. 18, 19; xv. 10, 15; xvii. 14—18; xviii. 18—23; and xx. 7—18: and, excepting some promises of deliverance from Babylon, or redemption through Jesus Christ, and happiness to his church, in chap. iii. xxx—xxxiii. xxiii. 3—8; xxiv. 4—7; xxix. 10—14; and l. 4—8, 19, 20, 33, 34; he is continually engaged in charging men's sins upon them, or denouncing the judgments of God against them; as the ruin of the Jewish nation, Egyptians, Philistines, Tyrians, Moabites, Ammonites, Edomites, Syrians, Arabians, and Persians, by the Chaldeans; and then of the Chaldeans themselves; chap. xxv. xxvii. xlv—li. &c. Nor do I remember one judgment denounced by him, except the destruction of Babylon, which he did not live to see accomplished; chap. xxxviii—xliv. His first four sermons are generally plain; chap. ii—xii. The following sixteen are generally introduced by some typical emblem, or expressed in figurative language; xiii—xxxv.

THE words of Jeremiah the son of Hilkiah, of the priests that were in Anathoth in the land of Benjamin:

2 To whom the word of the LORD came in the days of Josiah the son of Amon king of Judah, in the thirteenth year of his reign.

3 It came also in the days of Jehoiakim the son of Josiah king of Judah, unto the end of the eleventh year of Zedekiah the son of Josiah king of Judah, unto the carrying away of Jerusalem captive in the fifth month.

4 ¶ Then the word of the LORD came unto me, saying,

5 Before I formed thee in the belly I knew thee; and before thou camest forth out of the womb I sanctified thee, and I ordained thee a prophet unto the nations.

6 Then said I, Ah, Lord God, behold, I cannot speak, for I am a child!

7 But the LORD said unto me, Say not, I am a child; for thou shalt go to all that I shall send thee, and whatsoever I command thee thou shalt speak.

8 Be not afraid of their faces; for I am with thee to deliver thee, saith the LORD.

9 Then the LORD put forth his hand, and touched my mouth: and the LORD said unto me, Behold, I have put my words in thy mouth.

10 See, I have this day set thee over the nations and over the kingdoms, to root out, and to pull down, and to destroy, and to throw down, to build, and to plant.

11 ¶ Moreover, the word of the LORD came unto me, saying, Jeremiah, what seest thou? and I said, I see a rod of an almond tree.

12 Then said the LORD unto me, Thou hast well seen; for I will hasten my word to perform it.

13 And the word of the LORD came unto me the second time, saying, What seest thou? and I said, I see a seething pot, and the face thereof is towards the north.

14 Then the LORD said unto me, Out of the north an evil shall break forth upon all the inhabitants of the land.

15 For, lo, I will call all the families of the kingdoms of the north, saith the LORD; and they shall come, and they shall set every one his throne at the entering of the gates of Jerusalem, and against all the ripe for destruction, and it would speedily come upon them. And the boiling pot, with its face toward the north, signified that the Chaldeans would come from the north-east, and burn, and render miserable, Jerusalem, and other cities walls thereof round about, and against all the cities of Judah.

16 And ^aI will utter my judgments against them touching all their wickedness, who have forsaken me, and have burned incense unto other gods, and worshipped the works of their own hands.

17 ¶ Thou therefore ^bgird up thy loins, and arise, and speak unto them all that I command thee: be not dismayed at their faces, lest I ^cconfound thee before them.

18 For, behold, I have made thee this day ^aa defenced city, and an iron pillar, and brazen walls, against the whole land, against the kings of Judah, against the princes thereof, against the priests thereof, and against the people of the land.

19 ^dAnd they shall fight against thee; but they shall not prevail against thee: for I am with thee, saith the LORD, to deliver thee.

CHAP. II.

And the four following, contain a solemn remonstrance against the wickedness of the Jews, calls to repentance, and threatenings of ruin, if obstinate. Here they are charged with their idolatries, and the aggravations of them. (1) That their conduct was extremely ungrateful to God, who had been so kind to their nation; 1—8. (2) That it was without a precedent, even among heathens, who had only idols for their gods; 9—13. (3) That, by their alliances with the Egyptians and Assyrians, and imitation of their idolatries, they had disparaged and ruined themselves; 14—19. (4) That hereby they had broken their covenant engagements, and degenerated from their good beginnings; 19—21. (5) That their wickedness was too manifest to be concealed, and too bad to be excused; 22, 23, 25, 34, 35. (6) That they had wilfully, obstinately, and indefatigably, persisted in it; 24, 25, 33, 36. (7) That they shamed themselves, by trusting to idols, who could not help them; 26—29, 37. (8) That they contemned the rebukes of providence, and even God himself; 30—32. (9) That with their idolatry they had mingled the most unnatural murder of their children; &c. 34.

MOREOVER, ^athe word of the LORD came to me, saying,

2 Go and ^bcry in the ears of Jerusalem, saying, Thus saith the LORD, I remember ^cthee, ^dthe kindness of thy youth, the love of thine ^despousals, when thou ^ewentest after me in the wilderness, in a land that was not sown.

3 Israel was ^fholiness unto the LORD, and the first-fruits of his increase; ^gall that devour him shall offend; evil shall come upon them, saith the LORD.

4 ^hHear ye the word of the LORD, O house of Jacob, and all the families of the house of Israel:

5 Thus saith the LORD, ⁱWhat iniquity have your fathers found in me, that they are gone far from me, and have walked after ^kvanity, and are ^lbecome vain?

6 Neither said they, ^mWhere is the LORD that ⁿbrought us up out of the land of Egypt, ^othat led us through the wilderness, through a land of deserts and of pits, through a land of drought and of the shadow of death, through a land that no man passeth through, and where no man dwelt?

7 And ^pI brought you into a plentiful country, to eat the fruit thereof and the goodness thereof; but when ye entered ye ^qdefiled my land, and made mine heritage an abomination.

8 ^rThe priests said not, Where is the LORD? and they that handle the law knew me not: the pastors also transgressed against me, and the prophets prophesied by Baal, and walked after things that do not profit.

9 Wherefore I ^swill yet plead with you, saith the LORD, and ^twith your children's children will I plead.

10 For pass ^uthover ^vthe isles of Chittim, and see; and send unto Kedar, and consider diligently, and see if there be such a thing.

11 ^xHath a nation changed their gods, which are yet no gods? but my people ^yhave changed their glory for that which doth not profit.

12 ^zBe astonished, O ye heavens, at this, and be horribly afraid, be ye ^avery desolate, saith the LORD.

13 For my people have committed two evils; they have forsaken me the ^bfoundation of living waters, and hewed them out ^ccisterns, broken cisterns, that can hold no water.

14 ¶ ^dIs Israel a servant? is he a homeborn slave? why is he spoiled?

15 ^eThe young lions roared upon him, and ^fyelled, and they made his land waste: his cities are burned without inhabitant.

16 ^fAlso the children of Noph and Tahapanes ^ghave broken the crown of thy head.

17 ^hHast thou not procured this unto thyself, in that thou hast forsaken the LORD thy God, when he ⁱled thee by the way?

18 ¶ And now ^kwhat hast thou to do in the way of Egypt, to drink the waters of Sihor? or what hast thou to do in the way of Assyria, to drink the waters of the river?

19 Thine own ^lwickedness shall correct thee, and thy backslidings shall reprove thee: know therefore and see that it is an evil thing and bitter, that thou hast forsaken the LORD thy God, and that my fear is not in thee, saith the Lord God of hosts.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. I.—Great are the pains and patience that God exercises to prevent the destruction of his professed people. And it is honourable to be early chosen, sanctified, and prepared, for the ministerial service of God. How fixed are all his purposes relative to men's persons and offices! He can easily qualify men for his service, and enable them to speak intelligibly and powerfully, notwithstanding all weakness or opposition, and though their message issue in the ruin of some and deliverance of others. And with great care doth God render his mind plain to his servants and people, and condescendingly vouchsafe them his presence in their work. In what different forms he warns men before he inflicts his remarkable judgments! And ministers had need to consider the infinite importance of their charge, the great danger of unfaithfulness in it, and CHAP. II. Ver. 2, 3. I remember the kindness which I shewed to your nation when it was but forming, and when in the Arabian wilderness, by solemn covenant, I espoused you first of all the nations of the world to be my holy and peculiar people, and the affectionate regard which your fathers professed for me. And then I severely punished the Egyptians and others, who attempted to do them wrong. 13—18. They have rejected me in my oracles, ordinances, and fulness, who am the freely bestowed, everlasting, and unbounded, source of all grace, consolations, and blessings, and have, with inexpressible fatigue, procured to themselves idols, which can give them not the smallest relief. No wonder that they are basely enslaved, and cruelly spoiled. The Assyrians, like outrageous lions, have wasted the country of the ten tribes, and murdered and carried captive the inhabitants. And the Egyptians have treacherously disap-21 Yet I had ^pplanted thee a noble vine, wholly a right seed: how then art thou ^qturned into the degenerate plant of a strange vine unto me?

22 For ^rthough thou wash thee with nitre, and take thee much sope, yet thine iniquity is marked before me, saith the Lord God.

23 ^sHow canst thou say, I am not polluted? I have not gone after Baalim? ^tSee thy way in the valley, know what thou hast done: [†]thou art a swift dromedary traversing her ways;

25 ^vWithhold thy foot from being unshod, and thy throat from thirst: but thou saidst ^zThere is no hope: No; for I have loved strangers, and after them will I go.

CHAP. III.

Here God shews these wicked Jews (1) How bad they had been, how richly they deserved utter destruction, but how ready he was still to shew mercy; and kindly invites them to faith and repentance; 1-5. (2) How their obstinate wickedness was aggravated, being committed after they had seen the ten tribes fearfully punished for the like sins; 6-11. (3) The Jews, as if already in Babylon, and the ten tribes, are encouraged to faith and repentance, by God's mercifulness, his relation to them, and his promise to do them good; 12-19. (4) They are again charged with their sins, and earnestly invited to, and directed in, the exercise of faith and repentance; 20-25.

THEY ^{*}say, If a man put away his wife, and she go from him, and become another man's, ^ashall he return unto her again? shall not that land be ^bgreatly polluted? but ^cthou hast played the harlot with many lovers; ^dyet return again to me, saith the LORD.

teachers to the very heathens in wickedness? Why, in every corner of your land publicly sacrifice your children to idols, and murder the innocent, and yet hope to pass unpunished? Why thus change your idols and heathen allies? The Egyptians shall no more help you than the Assyrians did; but ye shall be led forth into a mournful and miserable captivity; and the curse of God shall render all your projected methods of relief unprofitable and ruinous to you.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. II.—It is honourable for nations, families, and persons, to be early beloved by God, and addicted to his service: and safe to be followers of him through every difficulty. But very absurd is it for those who have shared his distinguished favours, to apostatize from him to idols, and render him hatred for love; for church officers to be ringleaders in guilt; and for men at once to belie their profession, affront their God, and cheat themselves out of happiness. Alas, in what slavery, poverty, and disappointment, and endless wandering after idols, do unbelief and forsaking of God issue! With denial of guilt, eagerness, obstinacy, and impudence, do men, abandoned by God, proceed from evil to worse. And it is common for sinners to supplicate relief from God when their idols cannot help them. But dreadful is their case, who under his word, rod, or favours, grow insolent and imperious in wickedness; and when, forgetting God, notwithstanding checks unnumbered, they abound in impiety.

CHAP. III. As the Jewish nation were espoused to God by special covenant apostasy and idolatry, or dependence on heathen allies instead of God, are often represented as whoredom, adultery, or fornication, by the prophets. 1-5 pointed you, or shall murder Josiah, depose Jehoahaz, and impose a tribute. And will you, nevertheless, still send messengers to Egypt or Assyria, to form new alliances, or to borrow new idols? 20-28. When I formerly delivered you from the Egyptians, and other oppressors, ye engaged to keep my commandments, yet ye commit idolatry every where. I originally formed you a nation of pious patriarchs, and established among you my pure oracles, ordinances, and worship; how then are ye become superstitious, idolatrous, and every way corrupt, in both church and state? Nor can all your excuses, evasions, or pretences to reformation, conceal the manifest tokens of your wickedness from me. How can ye deny it, when the valley of Hinnom, where ye have burnt your children to Moloch, and other valleys, where ye have worshipped your idols, manifest it! Ye have, even with madness and fury, run after idols, empty as wind, one after another; and, till fearful distress restrain you, ye appear quite irreclaimable. I have warned you to repent of your lewd, idolatrous, and foolish courses, and of hunting after alliances with heathens, which will bring you to captivity and misery; but ye desperately cleave to your strange gods. Yet all of you at last shall be ashamed of your idols, when ye find that, notwithstanding their multitudes, they can do nothing to save you from disgrace or punishment. 29-37. No excuse can be offered for your conduct; and all of you are guilty. Warnings and judgments have not in the least reclaimed you; nay, ye have cruelly murdered the prophets who admonished you. Did not I plentifully provide for and comfort you, while ye continued obedient; why then do ye reject me, as if now, self-sufficient, ye have no need of me? Why thus so long forget me, who have been your chief glory and ornament? Why take such tedious journeys in pursuance of idolatrous courses, and become patterns and 4 ^k Wilt thou not from this time cry unto me, My Father, thou art the guide of my youth?

5 ⁱ Will he reserve his anger for ever? will he keep it to the end? Behold, ^m thou hast spoken and done evil things as thou couldst.

6 ¶ The LORD said also unto me in the days of Josiah the king, Hast thou seen that which backsliding Israel hath done? she is ⁿ gone up upon every high mountain and under every green tree, and there hath played the harlot.

7 ^o And I said, after she had done all these things, Turn thou unto me. But she returned not. And her treacherous sister Judah saw it.

8 And I saw, ^p when for all the causes whereby backsliding Israel committed adultery I had put her away, and given her a bill of divorce; yet her ^q treacherous sister Judah feared not, but went and played the harlot also.

9 And it came to pass, through the ^r lightness of her whoredom, that ^s she defiled the land, and committed adultery with stones and with stocks.

10 And yet for all this her treacherous sister Judah ^t hath not turned unto me with her whole heart, but ^u feignedly, saith the LORD.

11 And the LORD said unto me, The ^v backsliding Israel hath ^w justified herself more than treacherous Judah.

12 ¶ Go and proclaim these words toward the ^x north, and say, ^y Return, thou backsliding Israel, saith the LORD; and I will not cause mine anger to fall upon you: for I am ^z merciful, saith the LORD, and I will not keep anger for ever.

13 ^a Only acknowledge thine iniquity, that thou hast transgressed against the LORD thy God, and ^b hast scattered thy ways to the strangers under every green tree, and ye have not obeyed my voice, saith the LORD.

14 ^c Turn, O backsliding children, saith the LORD; for I am ^d married unto you: and ^e I will take you one of a city, and two of a family, and I will bring you to Zion:

15 And I will give you ^f pastors according to mine heart, which shall feed you with knowledge and understanding.

16 And it shall come to pass, when ye be ^g multiplied and increased in the land, in those days, saith the LORD, ^h they shall say no more, The ark of the covenant of the LORD: neither shall it ⁱ come to mind; neither shall they remember it; neither shall they visit it; neither shall ^j that be done any more.

17 At that time they shall call ^k Jerusalem the throne of the LORD; and ^l all the nations shall be gathered unto it, to the name of the LORD, to Jerusalem: neither ^m shall they walk any more after the ⁿ imagination of their evil heart.

18 In those days the house of Judah ^o shall walk ^p with the house of Israel, and they shall come together out of the land of the north to the land that I have ^q given for an inheritance unto your fathers.

19 But I said, ^r How shall I put thee among the children, and give thee a ^s pleasant land, a goodly heritage of the ^t hosts of nations? and I said, Thou shalt call me ^u My father, and shalt not turn away ^v from me.

20 ¶ Surely, ^w as a wife treacherously departeth from her ^x husband, so ^y have ye dealt treacherously with me, O house of Israel, saith the LORD.

21 ^z A voice was heard upon the high places, weeping and supplications of the children of Israel: for they have perverted their way, and they have forgotten the LORD their God.

22 ^a Return, ye backsliding children, and I will heal your backslidings. Behold, ^b we come unto thee; for thou art the LORD our God.

23 Truly ^c in vain is salvation hoped for from the hills, and from the multitude of mountains: ^d truly in the LORD our God is the salvation of Israel.

24 For ^e shame hath devoured the labour of our fathers from our youth; their flocks and their herds, their sons and their daughters, 25 ^f We lie down in our shame, and our confusion covereth us: ^g for we have sinned against the LORD our God, we and our fathers, from our ^h youth even unto this day, and have not obeyed the voice of the LORD our God.

CHAP. IV.

The two first verses might have been joined to the preceding chapter, as an encouragement and a direction to perseverance in their penitent resolutions: or we have here (1) Earnest calls to present, hearty, and gospel repentance, as a mean of preventing fearful judgments; 1—4, 14. (2) Warnings that Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon and his army would come against them, as devouring lions, as a blasting east wind, flying clouds, whirlwinds, and eagles, and as keepers of fields, besiege their cities, and dispirit their governors, to punish them for their sins; 5—18. (3) Pathetic and afflicting lamentations over their folly and wickedness; and the dreadful ravage, confusion, desolation, and despair, occasioned by the Chaldean invasion; 19—31.

Unbounded is the mercy of that God of grace with whom we have to do: he is averse to punish with severity; and opens his arms and heart to receive the most enormous transgressors, who attempt returning to him by faith. But sad is the case when God's judgments upon our neighbours do not awaken us to detest and avoid their sins. And that, when God bestows reformatory magistrates and ministers, many, who join in reformation, do but dissemble with him. Few backsliders from God are ever recovered. And obstinacy in sin lays bars in the way of our mercies, that nothing less than uncommon stretches of mercy can remove. Earnest are JEHOVAH's calls to faith and repentance; and strong and moving his gracious encouragements: and it is the assured faith of his special mercy that will most effectually produce a true and gracious repentance. Peaceful, harmonious, well governed, conspicuous, and pure, is the gospel church when every thing in her is according to God's word. And, when his Spirit draws men to himself, deep is their sense of their guilt and folly in departing from and rebelling against him: and coraol their dependence on him, and justification of his judgments.

Notwithstanding ye have, under the judgments of famine, &c. multiplied your idols and idolatry, and eagerly hunted after companions in it, and opportunities of committing it, in all the corners of your land, and have impudently gone to your very uttermost in speaking and acting the most horrid abominations; yet, without a moment's delay, return unto me as your infinitely gracious Husband and Father.

11. The sins of the ten tribes, who had been long ruined or in a miserable captivity, were far less aggravated than those of Judah, being committed against fewer warnings, mercies, judgments, vows, &c. 12—25. These predictions began to be accomplished in and after the deliverance from Babylon; but will be much more fully accomplished in the future return of the twelve tribes to Canaan, and in the glories of the Christian church; especially in the millennium, when converts shall be numerous, ministers and magistrates faithful, ceremonies laid aside, and peace, harmony, faith, and godly sorrow, prevail.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. III.—How base, eager, active, abounding, and impudent, in wickedness, apostates from God become! And, if we would seriously repent, we must take a particular view of our sins and their aggravations.

Ch. 2. 16. & 6. 1. ver. 6. The Chaldeans come from the north.

IF thou wilt return, O ^aIsrael, saith the LORD, ^breturn unto me: and if thou wilt put away thine ^cabominations out of my sight, then shalt thou not ^dremove.

2 And thou shalt swear, The LORD liveth, in truth, in judgment, and in righteousness; and ^ethe nations shall bless themselves in him, and in him shall they glory.

3 ¶ For thus saith the LORD to the men of Judah and Jerusalem, ^fBreak up your fallow ground, and sow not among thorns.

4 ^gCircumcise yourselves to the LORD, and take away the foreskins of your heart, ye men of Judah and inhabitants of Jerusalem: ^hlest my fury come forth like fire, and burn that none can quench it, because of the evil of your doings.

5 ⁱDeclare ye in Judah, and publish in Jerusalem; and say, Blow ye the trumpet in the land: cry, gather together, and say, Assemble yourselves, and let us go into the defenced cities.

6 Set up the standard towards Zion: ^kretire, stay not: for ^lI will bring evil from the north, and a great [†]destruction.

7 ¹The lion is come up from his thicket, and the destroyer of the Gentiles is on his way; he is gone forth from his place to make thy land desolate; and thy cities shall be laid waste, without an inhabitant.

8 For this ^mgird you with sackcloth, lament and howl: for the fierce anger of the LORD ⁿis not turned back from us.

9 And it shall come to pass at that day, saith the LORD, ^othat the heart of the king shall perish, and the heart of the princes; and ^pthe priests shall be astonished, and the prophets shall wonder.

10 Then said I, Ah, Lord God, surely thou ^qhast greatly deceived this people and Jerusalem, saying, Ye shall have peace; whereas the sword ^rreacheth unto the soul!

11 At that time shall it be said to this people and to Jerusalem, ^sA dry wind of the high places in the wilderness toward the daughter of my people, ^tnot to fan, nor to cleanse, 12 ^uEven [†]a full wind from those places shall come unto me: now also will I ^vgive sentence against them.

13 Behold, ^whe shall come up as clouds, and his chariots shall be as a whirlwind: ^xhis horses are swifter than eagles. Wo unto us! for we are spoiled.

14 O Jerusalem, ^ywash thine heart from wickedness, that thou mayest be saved. How long shall thy vain thoughts lodge within thee?

15 ^zFor a voice declareth from Dan, and publisheth affliction from mount Ephraim.

16 Make ye mention to the nations; behold, publish against Jerusalem, ^{aa}that ^{ab}watchers come from a far country, and ^{ac}give out their voice against the cities of Judah.

17 ^{ad}As keepers of a field are they against her round about; because ^{ae}she hath been rebellious against me, saith the LORD.

18 ^{af}Thy way and thy doings have procured these ^{ag}things unto thee; this is thy wickedness, because it is bitter, because it reacheth unto thine heart.

19 ¶ My ^{ah}bowels, my bowels! I am pained at ^{ai}my very heart; my heart maketh a noise in me; I cannot hold my peace, because ^{aj}thou hast heard, O my soul, the sound of the trumpet, the alarm of war.

20 ^{ak}Destruction upon destruction is cried; for the whole land is spoiled: suddenly are my ^{al}tents spoiled, and my curtains in a moment.

21 ^{am}How long shall I see the standard, and hear the sound of the trumpet?

22 ^{an}For my people is foolish, they have not known me; they ^{ao}are sottish children, and they have none understanding: ^{ap}they are wise to do evil, but to do good they have no knowledge.

23 ^{aq}I beheld the earth, and, lo, ^{ar}it was without form and void; and the heavens, and they ^{as}had no light.

24 ^{at}I beheld the mountains, and, lo, they trembled, and all the hills moved lightly.

25 I beheld, and, lo, ^{au}there was no man, and all the birds of the heavens were fled.

26 I beheld, and, lo, ^{av}the fruitful place was a wilderness, and all the cities thereof were broken down at ^{aw}the presence of the LORD, and by his fierce anger.

27 For thus hath the LORD said, The whole land shall be desolate; ^{ax}yet will I not make a full end.

28 ^{ay}For this shall the earth mourn, and the heavens above be black: because ^{az}I have spoken it, I have purposed it, and will not repent, neither will I turn back from it.

29 The ^{ba}whole city shall flee for the noise of the horsemen and bowmen; they shall go into thickets, and climb up upon the rocks: every city shall be forsaken, and not a man dwell therein.

30 And, ^{bb}when thou art spoiled, ^{bc}what wilt thou do? though thou clothest thyself with crimson, though thou deckest thee with ornaments of gold, though thou rentest thy ^{bd}face with painting, ^{be}in vain shalt thou make thyself fair; ^{bf}thy lovers will despise thee, they will seek thy life.

31 For I have heard a voice ^{bg}as of a woman in travail, and the anguish as of her that bringeth forth her first child, the voice of ^{bh}the daughter of Zion, ^{bi}that

CHAP. IV. Ver. 1—4. If you truly return to me by faith and repentance, and reform from your idolatries, and in a candid and upright manner devote yourselves to and serve me, in whom even the Gentile nations shall in a little time be blessed and glory, your captivity may be prevented. Yet not a mere outward reformation, but deep convictions of conscience, and a thorough renovation of your hearts, and purgation from the sinful corruptions thereof, are necessary to the preventing of my approaching and justly deserved judgments. 30, 31. No devices which ye can use shall avail you; the Egyptians and Chaldeans, whose friendship ye have courted, will forsake or murder you, which will occasion terrible anguish and despair all over the country, but especially at Jerusalem.

CHAP. V.

Mingles awful threatenings with sharp reproofs, to render them the more affecting. Here is (1) A list of the Jews' most notorious sins; injustice and falsehood; 1: hypocrisy and perjury; 2: incorrigibility; 3: ignorance and profligacy; 4, 5: idolatry and adultery; 7, 8: treacherous apostasy from, and impudent defiance of, God; 11—13: want of his fear, notwithstanding repeated calls to it; 20—24: violence and oppression; 25—28: combination of priests and prophets, who ought to have been reformers, to debauch the nation; 30, 31. (2) A list of terrible judgments, that God could not but certainly and fearfully inflict; 9, 29: that, according to Jeremiah's predictions, the Chaldeans should waste the country; 14—17: besiege and destroy their cities; 6, 10: murder or carry the people into captivity, but not utterly destroy them; 10—18.

RUN ye to and fro through the streets of Jerusalem, and see now, and know, and seek in the broad places thereof, ^aif ye can find a man, if there be any that executeth judgment, that seeketh the truth; and I will pardon it.

2 ^bAnd, though they say, The LORD liveth, surely they swear falsely.

3 O LORD, ^care not thine eyes upon the truth? thou hast ^dstricken them, but they have not grieved; thou hast consumed them, but they have refused to receive correction: they have made their faces harder than a rock; they have refused to return.

4 Therefore I said, ^eSurely these are poor; they are foolish; for they know not the way of the LORD, nor the judgment of their God.

5 I will get me unto ^fthe great men, and will speak unto them; for they have known the way of the LORD, and the judgment of their God: but these ^ghave altogether broken the yoke, and burst the bonds.

6 Wherefore ^ha lion out of the forest shall slay them, and a wolf of the ⁱevenings shall spoil them; a leopard shall watch over their cities: every one that goeth out thence shall be torn in pieces: ^jbecause their transgressions are many, and their backslidings ^kfare increased.

7 ¶ ^kHow shall I pardon thee for this? thy children have forsaken me, and ^lsworn by them that are no gods: when ^mI had fed them to the full, they then committed adultery, and assembled themselves by troops in the harlots' houses.

8 ⁿThey were as fed horses in the morning: every one neighed after his neighbour's wife.

9 ° Shall I not visit for these things? saith the LORD: and shall not my soul be avenged on such a nation as this?

10 ¶ ^pGo ye up upon her walls, and destroy; but ^qmake not a full end: take away her battlements; for they are ^rnot the LORD's.

11 For the house of Israel and the house of Judah have ^sdealt very treacherously against me, saith the LORD.

12 They ^thave belied the LORD, and said, It is not he, neither shall evil come upon us, neither shall we see sword nor famine:

13 ^uAnd the prophets shall become wind, and the word is not in them: thus shall it be done unto them.

14 Wherefore thus saith the Lord God of hosts, Because ye speak this word, ^vbehold, I will make my words in thy mouth fire, and this people wood, and it shall devour them.

15 ¶ Lo, ^wI will bring a nation upon you from far, O ^xhouse of Israel, saith the LORD: it is a mighty nation, it is an ancient nation, a nation whose language thou knowest not, neither understandest what they say.

16 ^yTheir quiver is as an open sepulchre, they are all mighty men.

17 ^zAnd they shall eat up thine harvest, and thy bread, which thy sons and thy daughters should eat: they shall eat up thy flocks and thine herds: they shall eat up thy vines and thy fig trees: they shall impoverish thy fenced cities, wherein thou trustedst, with the sword.

18 Nevertheless in those days, saith the LORD, I ^{aa}will not make a full end with you.

19 And it shall come to pass, when ye shall say, ^{ab}Wherefore doth the LORD our God all these things unto us? then shalt thou answer them, ^{ac}Like as ye have forsaken me, and served strange gods in your land, so shall ye serve strangers in a land that is not yours.

20 ¶ Declare this in the house of Jacob, and publish it in Judah, saying,

21 Hear now this, ^{ad}O foolish people, ^{ae}and without ^{af}understanding; who have eyes and see not, who have ears and hear not:

22 ^{ag}Fear ye not me? saith the LORD: will ye not tremble at my presence, who ^{ah}have placed the sand ^{ai}for the bound of the sea, by a perpetual decree that it cannot pass it: and, though the waves thereof toss themselves, yet can they not prevail; though they roar, yet can they not pass over it?

23 But ^{aj}this people hath a revolting and a rebellious heart: they are revolted and gone.

24 Neither ^{ak}say they in their heart, ^{al}Let us now fear the LORD our God, ^{am}that giveth rain, both the former and the latter in his season: he reserveth unto us the ^{an}appointed weeks of the harvest.

25 ° Your iniquities have turned away these things, and your sins have withholden good things from you.

26 For among my people are found wicked men: ^{ao}¶ they lay wait as he that

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. IV.—Thrice blessed are the fruits of true and gospel repentance! But great accuracy is requisite in turning to the Lord, in dedicating ourselves to him, or swearing by his name. And deep convictions, and an effectual change of heart, is necessary to the extirpation of indwelling lusts. How great is JEHOVAH's love to Gentile sinners! But dreadful is his wrath; and it is mad to kindle it upon ourselves by our sins! For furious, swift, terrible, and ruinous, are the miseries, the effects of his vengeance upon impenitent sinners. It is vain to flee into fenced cities, or to attempt being courageous, under a sense of guilt. And those prophets, who flatter men with vain hopes, will most certainly perish along with those whom they have seduced and hardened in wickedness. Our ruin is wholly of ourselves. And it is criminal and absurd to be obstinate in wickedness when God's judgments are just falling on our heads. Hard is the heart which is not affected when destructive calamities befall the nation or church, and all created confidences concur to their ruin. And, if such anguish and despair take place in the overthrow of nations, what must take place among the wicked in the last judgment, and in the eternal damnation of hell?

CHAP. V. Ver. 3. Thou requirest and regardest upright dealing; but they, under all thy lesser judgments, have stupified themselves, and become more and more stubborn and rebellious. 12—14. They have contradicted the faithful messages of God by his prophets, and pretended that they spoke of themselves, in foretelling calamities; and that their words were but a mere puff of noisy wind, which should neither profit nor hurt any body, unless they should be ful-

30 ¶ A wonderful and horrible thing is committed in the land.

31 The prophets prophesy falsely, and the priests bear rule by their means; and my people love to have it so: and what will ye do in the end thereof?

CHAP. VI.

Represents (1) The Chaldeans invading Judea, and besieging Jerusalem to ruin it; 1—6: spoiling the country, and murdering the inhabitants; 9, 11, 12: and spreading terror and consternation among them; 21, 26. (2) A list of the sinful causes of these calamities; general corruption and oppression; 6, 7: contempt of God's word; 10: universal covetousness; treacherous villany of priests and prophets; 13, 14: impudent sinning, and obstinate refusal of reproofs, while they hypocritically, but in vain, multiplied their sacrifices; 15—20. (3) Earnest admonitions to reformation given them, but without success; 8, 16, 17: by which faithful warnings God tries them for a time, and at last gives them up as irreclaimable; 27—30.

O YE children of Benjamin, gather yourselves to flee out of the midst of Jerusalem, and blow the trumpet in Tekoa, and set up a sign of fire in Beth-hacerem: for evil appeareth out of the north, and great destruction.

2 I have likened the daughter of Zion to a comely and delicate woman.

3 The shepherds with their flocks shall come unto her; they shall pitch their tents against her round about; they shall feed every one in his place.

4 Prepare ye war against her; arise, and let us go up at noon. Wo unto us, for the day goeth away, for the shadows of the evening are stretched out!

5 Arise, and let us go by night, and let us destroy her palaces.

6 ¶ For thus hath the LORD of hosts said, Hew ye down trees, and cast a mount against Jerusalem: this is the city to be visited; she is wholly oppression in the midst of her.

filled on themselves. Therefore God's words by Jeremiah shall be accomplished in the fearful destruction of them and their country. 31. The prophets fit their predictions to the ambitious humours of the priests and princes; the people delight to be flattered with promises of prosperity: and what can these things end in, but ruin to you all?

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. V.—Terrible and manifold are the corruptions of apostate nations and churches. One sin introduces another, till all ranks become absolute monsters in guilt. And alas! great men, fattened by prosperity or power, are often the most active patterns in, or promoters of, wickedness. Very grating to multitudes of hearers are the faithful messages of God's ministers. But God will make them to know at last whose words shall stand, whether his or theirs. When professors of the true religion live destitute of the fear of God, nothing is so horrible or unnatural but they will commit it. And it is dreadful when men have carried their sins to such a height that God cannot longer forbear punishing them without violating the honour of his perfections. Nothing more hastens things to this crisis than combinations of ministers and 8 Be thou instructed, O Jerusalem, lest my soul depart from thee; lest I make thee desolate, a land not inhabited.

9 ¶ Thus saith the LORD of hosts, They shall thoroughly glean the remnant of Israel as a vine: turn back thine hand as a grape gatherer into the baskets.

10 To whom shall I speak and give warning, that they may hear? behold, their ear is uncircumcised, and they cannot hearken: behold, the word of the LORD is unto them a reproach; they have no delight in it.

11 Therefore I am full of the fury of the LORD; I am weary with holding in: I will pour it out upon the children abroad, and upon the assembly of young men together: for even the husband with the wife shall be taken, the aged with him that is full of days.

12 And their houses shall be turned unto others, with their fields and wives together: for I will stretch out my hand upon the inhabitants of the land, saith the LORD.

13 For, from the least of them even unto the greatest of them, every one is given to covetousness; and, from the prophet even unto the priest, every one dealeth falsely.

14 They have healed also the hurt of the daughter of my people slightly, saying, Peace, peace, when there is no peace.

15 Were they ashamed when they had committed abomination? nay, they were not at all ashamed, neither could they blush: therefore they shall fall among them that fall: at the time that I visit them they shall be cast down, saith the LORD.

16 Thus saith the LORD, Stand ye in the ways, and see, and ask for the old paths, where is the good way; and walk therein, and ye shall find rest for your souls. But they said, We will not walk therein.

17 Also I set watchmen over you, saying, Harken to the sound of the trumpet. But they said, We will not hearken.

18 ¶ Therefore hear, ye nations, and know, O congregation, what is among them.

19 Hear, O earth; behold, I will CHAP. VI. Ver. 1—6. Flee out of your cities, particularly Jerusalem, for the Chaldeans are at hand to besiege it. And, while the inhabitants are quite helpless, weak, and terrified, the enemies shall surround the city, and encourage one another, day and night, to give the assault, and destroy it. 9—11. By repeated murders and captivities, they shall desolate the country. But to what purpose shall I warn this careless, ignorant, and hardened generation, who detest every message that comes from God, and reckon reproofs slanderous reproaches? Therefore my mind is so full of prophetic threatenings, and of zeal to utter them, that I cannot any longer forbear, but I must denounce destruction to persons of all ages, ranks, and relations. 14. The priests and prophets, instead of faithful reproofs for sin, and denunciation of approaching judgments, do by their flattering and false predictions of peace, lull the people into a fatal security. 16, 17. Inquire after, and walk in, the good old way of faith and holiness, prescribed in paradise, and walked in by your pious ancestors; and thus shall you find both temporal and eternal happiness.—Hearken to the voice of

CHAP. VII.

Begins a new sermon, for the conviction and humiliation of these obdurate Jews, in which the Lord (1) Shews them that, while they continued in their dishonesty, oppression, murder, perjury, and idolatry, their having God's temple and ordinances among them would do them no service, but hurt; 1—11. (2) Warns them that, for their obstinacy, he would quickly render Jerusalem and Judea as desolate as Shiloh was, where the tabernacle long continued, and as the land of Israel; 12—15. (3) Forbids Jeremiah to pray for them, because they were so set on idolatry; 16—20. (4) Declares that none of their sacrifices would be regarded while they continued disobedient to the common laws of morality; 21—28. (5) Denounces utter desolation, on account of their idolatries and impieties; and threatens to multiply their slain as they had multiplied their sins; 29—34.

God's ministers, charging you with your sins, and warning you of approaching judgments. 18. Let therefore the heathen nations around observe to what height of wickedness and ripeness for judgments they are arrived! 27—30. I have therefore, under my own infallible protection, set up Jeremiah to observe and reprove their conduct. But they are obstinately wicked, abandoned to lying, slander, and every other base and abominable thing, corrupting themselves and one another. The instructions and admonitions of prophets, and the rebukes of providence, are of no avail to reform them. Therefore they must be utterly rejected of God and men, as useless and abominable.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. VI.—Sinners must often be alarmed before they will awaken. But fixed is the connection between national sins and national judgments. And the more luxurious and delicate people have lived, their cala-

THE ^{word} that came to Jeremiah from the LORD, saying,

2 Stand in the ^{gate} of the LORD's house, and proclaim there this word, and say, ^{Hear} the word of the LORD, all ye of Judah, that enter in at these gates to worship the LORD.

3 Thus saith the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel, ^{Amend} your ways and your doings, and I will cause you to dwell in this place.

4 ^{Trust} ye not in lying words, saying, ^{The} temple of the LORD, the temple of the LORD, the temple of the LORD, are these.

5 For ^{if} ye thoroughly amend your ways and your doings; if ye thoroughly execute judgment between a man and his neighbour;

6 ^{If} ye oppress not the stranger, the fatherless, and the widow, and shed not innocent blood in this place, neither walk after other gods to your hurt;

7 ^{Then} will I cause you to dwell in this place, in the land that I gave to your fathers, for ever and ever.

8 ¶ Behold, ^{ye} trust in lying words that cannot profit.

9 ^{Will} ye steal, murder, and commit adultery, and swear falsely, and burn incense unto Baal, and walk after other gods ^{whom} ye know not;

10 ^{And} come and stand before me in this house, ^{which} is called by my name, and say, We are delivered to do all these abominations?

11 ^{Is} this house, which is called by my name, become a den of robbers in your eyes? ^{Behold}, even I have seen it, saith the LORD.

12 But go ye now unto my place ^{which} was in Shiloh, where I set my name at the first, and see ^{what} I did to it, for the wickedness of my people Israel.

13 And now, because ye have done all these works, saith the LORD, and I spake unto you, ^{rising} up early, and speaking, but ye heard not; and ^I called you, but ye answered not;

14 Therefore ^{will} I do unto this house, which is called by my name, wherein ye trust, and unto the place which I gave to you, and to your fathers, as I have done to ^{Shiloh}.

15 And I will cast you out of my sight, ^{as} I have cast out all your brethren, even the whole seed of Ephraim.

16 Therefore ^{pray} not thou for this mity is the more insupportable. When an angry God is the leader, eager and alert to follow are the instruments of his wrath. But O, how he multiplies his kind, though severe, admonitions before he strikes the fatal blow that desolates the country! Yet no direction, no warning, no good pattern, will prevail with hardened despisers of Christ—the way, the truth, and the life. His judgments on such must therefore appear righteous to every rational beholder. Nor can any pretences to devotion or reformation avail while men continue abandoned to wickedness. Yea, dreadful and desperate must be the issue with those, upon whom not all the repeated pains of prophets and providences make any suitable impression.

17 ¶ ^aSeest thou not what they do in the cities of Judah and in the streets of Jerusalem?

18 ^bThe children gather wood, and the fathers kindle the fire, and the women knead their dough, to make cakes to the [†]queen of heaven, and to pour out drink-offerings unto other gods, that ^cthey may provoke me to anger.

19 ^dDo they provoke me to anger? saith the LORD: do they not provoke themselves to the confusion of their own faces?

21 ¶ Thus saith the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel, ^fPut your burnt-offerings unto your sacrifices, and eat flesh.

22 For ^gI spake not unto your fathers, nor commanded them in the day that I brought them out of the land of Egypt, [‡]concerning burnt-offerings or sacrifices:

27 Therefore thou shalt speak all these words unto them, ^pbut they will not hearken to thee: thou shalt also call unto them, but they will not answer thee.

28 But thou shalt say unto them, ^qThis is a nation that obeyeth not the voice of the LORD their God, nor receiveth ^{*}correction: truth is perished, and is cut off from their mouth.

a new indulgence in sin? Is my temple become a refuge for such notorious criminals? 21. You may eat, or do what you please with, all your offerings, for I detest them.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. VII.—God's ministers have need of great boldness in facing multitudes of obstinate sinners. And it is common for the most profligate hypocrites to hope that their external privileges will recommend them to the favour of God, and even to use them as encouragements to the most horrid impieties. One public judgment of God is ordinarily a presage of another, as well as a warning to avoid the causes of it. But, alas, hopeless is their case for whom God's favourites must not pray! And yet how readily children confirm the denunciations of God against their parents, by following their evil courses! Ceremonies and forms of devotion do but provoke God more and more against and cast it away, and take up a lamentation on high places; for the LORD ^thath rejected and forsaken the ^ugeneration of his wrath.

30 For the children of Judah have done evil in my sight, saith the LORD: they have set ^vtheir abominations in the house which is called by my name, to pollute it.

31 And they have built the ^xhigh places of Tophet, which is in the valley of the son of Hinnom, to burn their sons and their daughters in the fire; which I ^ycommanded them not, neither [†]came it into my heart.

32 ¶ Therefore, behold, the days come, saith the LORD, ^zthat it shall no more be called Tophet, nor the valley of the son of Hinnom, but the valley of slaughter: for they shall bury in Tophet till there be no place.

33 And the ^acarcasses of this people shall be meat for the fowls of the heaven, and for the beasts of the earth; and none shall fray them away.

34 Then ^bwill I cause to cease from the cities of Judah, and from the streets of Jerusalem, the voice of mirth, and the voice of gladness, the voice of the bridegroom, and the voice of the bride: for the land shall be desolate.

CHAP. VIII.

Continues the sermon, and represents (1) That, notwithstanding the infamy of their dead bodies being given to the fowls and beasts, the dreadful calamities would make many prefer death to life; 1—3. (2) The astonishing stupidity and obstinacy of the Jews, that they neither regarded God's oracles, prophets, providences, nor their own consciences; but, in the face of desolating judgments, went on, without blushing, in their wickedness, and flattered themselves in their sinful courses; 4—12. (3) The consternation which the invasion by the Chaldeans would put them into; 13—17. (4) Jeremiah bitterly bewailing their miserable and hopeless state; 18—22.

AT ^athat time, saith the LORD, they shall bring out the bones of the kings of Judah, and the bones of his princes, and the bones of the priests, and the bones of the prophets, and the bones of the inhabitants of Jerusalem, out of their graves:

2 And they shall spread them before the sun, and the moon, and all the host of heaven, ^bwhom they have loved, and whom they have served, and after whom they have walked, and whom they have sought, and whom they have worshipped: ^cthey shall not be gathered, nor be buried; they shall be for dung upon the face of the earth.

3 And ^ddeath shall be chosen rather than life by all the residue of them that remain of this evil family, which remain in all the places whither I have driven them, saith the LORD of hosts.

4 ¶ Moreover, thou shalt say unto men, who prefer them to the standing duties of morality. Slow and gradual, but at last most certain, are his judgments upon obstinate transgressors. And hardened and barbarous sinners have their crimes fearfully marked in their punishment, and are made to change their sinful mirth into everlasting anguish.

CHAP. VIII. Ver. 4—9. Though they are fallen into grievous calamities, they will hearken to no counsel that will tend to their recovery; but, persevering in their wickedness, they continue firmly trusting to the flattering delusions of their false prophets. Scarcely one of them seriously thinks what he has done; but in general they rush forward into abominable practices, quite thoughtless and regardless of danger. More brutish than the fowls of heaven, they have no proper discernment either of God's mercies or judgments.—Though God has given them his law, and it has been copied out and expounded to them, and they even them, Thus saith the LORD, 'Shall they fall, and not arise? shall he turn away, and not return?

5 Why then is this people of Jerusalem 'slidden back by a perpetual backsliding? they hold fast deceit, they refuse to return.

6 I hearkened and heard, but they spake not aright: no man repented him of his wickedness, saying, What have I done? every one turned to his course, as the horse rusheth into the battle.

7 Yea, the stork in the heaven knoweth her appointed times; and the turtle, and the crane, and the swallow, observe the time of their coming; but my people know not the judgment of the LORD.

8 How do ye say, We are wise, and the law of the LORD is with us? Lo, certainly in vain made he it; the pen of the scribes is in vain.

9 The wise men are ashamed, they are dismayed and taken; lo, they have rejected the word of the LORD; and what wisdom is in them?

10 Therefore will I give their wives unto others, and their fields to them that shall inherit them: for every one, from the least even unto the greatest, is given to covetousness; from the prophet even unto the priest, every one dealeth falsely.

11 For they have healed the hurt of the daughter of my people slightly, saying, Peace, peace, when there is no peace.

12 Were they ashamed when they had committed abomination? nay, they were not at all ashamed, neither could they blush: therefore shall they fall among them that fall; in the time of their visitation they shall be cast down, saith the LORD.

13 I will surely consume them, saith the LORD: there shall be no grapes on the vine, nor figs on the fig tree; and the leaf shall fade; and the things that I have given them shall pass away from them.

14 Why do we sit still? assemble yourselves, and let us enter into the fenced cities, and let us be silent there: for the LORD our God hath put us to silence, and given us water of gall to drink, because we have sinned against the LORD.

15 We looked for peace, but no good came; and for a time of health, and behold trouble!

16 The snorting of his horses was heard from Dan: the whole land trembled at the sound of the neighing of his strong ones; for they are come, and have devoured the land, and all that is in it; the city, and those that dwell therein.

17 For, behold, I will send serpents, cockatrices, among you, which will not be charmed, and they shall bite you, saith the LORD.

18 When I would comfort myself against sorrow my heart is faint in me.

19 Behold the voice of the cry of the daughter of my people because of them that dwell in a far country: Is not the LORD in Zion? is not her king in her? why have they provoked me to anger with their graven images, and with strange vanities?

20 The harvest is past, the summer is ended, and we are not saved.

21 For the hurt of the daughter of my people am I hurt; I am black; astonishment hath taken hold on me.

22 Is there no balm in Gilead? is there no physician there? why then is not the health of the daughter of my people recovered.

CHAP. IX.

Jeremiah continues his lamentation; and (1) expresses his extremity of grief for the miseries impending over the Jews; his detestation of their idolatry, whoredom, treachery, lying, &c. and their progress therein; 1—11. (2) Justifies God in the greatness of their destruction; 9, 12—16. (3) Calls others to lament their miserable condition; 17—22. (4) Warns them how foolish it was to trust in strength, wisdom, circumcision, or any thing but God himself; 23—26.

Oh that my head were waters, and mine eyes a fountain of tears, that I might weep day and night for the slain of the daughter of my people!

2 Oh that I had in the wilderness a lodging place of wayfaring men; that I might leave my people, and go from them! for they be all adulterers, an assembly of treacherous men.

3 And they bend their tongues like their bow for lies: but they are not valiant for the truth upon the earth: for they proceed from evil to evil, and they know not me, saith the LORD.

4 Take ye heed every one of his neighbour, and trust ye not in any brother: for every brother will utterly supplant, and every neighbour will walk with slanders.

5 And they will deceive every one his neighbour, and will not speak the truth: they have taught their tongue to speak lies, and weary themselves to commit iniquity.

6 Thine habitation is in the midst of deceit: through deceit they refuse to know me, saith the LORD.

7 Therefore thus saith the LORD of boast of it, yet they make no good use of it. Their politicians can advise nothing for their relief, and indeed shew themselves arrant fools by their rejection of God's word. 18—20. I am almost overcome with grief to hear the cries of the people, occasioned by the ravage of the Chaldeans. How comes it that we, who are God's people and have his temple among us, are thus destroyed by profane heathens? It is because of our idolatries; and, after all our looking for assistance from the Egyptians or others, the season is past, and no help is come. 22. All means of help fail, because we continue obstinate in our sin.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. VIII.—Barbarous is the outrage of bloody conquerors, in sporting with the remains of the dead. But it is a fearful thing to fall into the hands of an angry God, who can stretch out his hand to death and damnation to devour us. Just is his vengeance in exposing idolaters, even when dead, before the idols which they had loved and worshipped in life: and fearful is the state when life becomes a burden, and men prefer to it a random leap into eternity. How obstinate against God, how attached to apostasy and self-imposition, how heedless of their own conduct, and how regardless of God's word, do most men live! But none are more distinguished plagues to nations than evil, flattering, and impudent, clergy. Nor shall any in hell have a deeper share of damnation. To their running unsent of God, preaching another gospel, and slight dealing with the consciences of sinners, is owing the ruin of nations and churches, and the everlasting misery of millions. But, when God arms himself to judgment against a people, what multitudes of calamities beset them! what deprivation of comforts! what disappointments, terrors, and despair! And it is greatly affecting to faithful ministers to see ruin, inevitable ruin, coming on their congregation, church, or nation.

hosts, "Behold, I will melt them, and try them; for how shall I do for the daughter of my people?"

8^p Their tongue is as an arrow shot out; it speaketh deceit: one speaketh peaceably to his neighbour with his mouth, but in heart he layeth his wait.

9 ¶ Shall I not visit them for these things? saith the LORD: shall not my soul be avenged on such a nation as this?

10 For the mountains will I take up a weeping and wailing, and for the habitations of the wilderness a lamentation, because they are burned up, so that none can pass through them; neither can men hear the voice of the cattle; both the fowl of the heavens and the beast are fled; they are gone.

11 And I will make Jerusalem heaps and a den of dragons: and I will make the cities of Judah desolate, without an inhabitant.

12 ¶ Who is the wise man that may understand this? and who is he to whom the mouth of the LORD hath spoken, that he may declare it, for what the land perisheth and is burned up like a wilderness, that none passeth through?

13 And the LORD saith, Because they have forsaken my law which I set before them, and have not obeyed my voice, neither walked therein;

14 But have walked after the imagination of their own heart, and after Baalim, which their fathers taught them:

15 Therefore thus saith the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel, Behold, I will feed them, even this people, with wormwood, and give them water of gall to drink.

16 I will scatter them also among the heathen, whom neither they nor their fathers have known: and I will send a sword after them, till I have consumed them.

17 ¶ Thus saith the LORD of hosts, Consider ye, and call for the mourning women, that they may come; and send for cunning women, that they may come:

18 And let them make haste, and take up a wailing for us, that our eyes may run down with tears, and our eyelids gush out with waters.

19 For a voice of wailing is heard out of Zion, How are we spoiled! we are greatly confounded, because we have forsaken the land, because our dwellings have cast us out.

20 Yet hear the word of the LORD, O ye women, and let your ear receive the word of his mouth, and teach your daughters wailing, and every one her neighbour lamentation.

21 For death is come up into our windows, and is entered into our palaces, to cut off the children from without, and the young men from the streets.

22 Speak, Thus saith the LORD, Even the carcases of men shall fall as dung upon the open field, and as the handful after the harvest man, and none shall gather them.

23 ¶ Thus saith the LORD, Let not the wise man glory in his wisdom, neither let the mighty man glory in his might; let not the rich man glory in his riches:

24 But let him that glorieth glory in this, that he understandeth and knoweth me, that I am the LORD who exercise loving-kindness, judgment, and righteousness, in the earth: for in these things I delight, saith the LORD.

25 ¶ Behold, the days come, saith the LORD, that I will punish all them, which are circumcised with the uncircumcised;

26 Egypt, and Judah, and Edom, and the children of Ammon, and Moab, and all that are in the utmost corners, that dwell in the wilderness: for all these nations are uncircumcised, and all the house of Israel are uncircumcised in the heart.

CHAP. X.

In view of the Jews' captivity in Babylon, the Lord here (1) Warns them against the astrology and brutish idolatry of the Chaldeans; as these idols were so unlike the true God, and would prove useless in their distress; 1—5, 8, 9, 14, 15. (2) Requires them to adhere stedfastly to the faith and worship of himself, as the true, the tremendous, and eternal, God of nature, and the gracious God of Israel; 6, 7, 10—13, 16. (3) Again warns them that, on account of their sins, they should certainly be carried out of their own land by the Chaldeans; and Jeremiah bewails their calamities; 17—22. (4) In the firm assurance of God's sovereign disposal of all things, he begs that he would moderate the Jews' distress, and severely punish their Chaldean destroyers; 23—25.

HEAR ye the word which the LORD speaketh unto you, O house of Israel:

2 Thus saith the LORD, Learn not the way of the heathen, and be not dismayed at the signs of heaven; for the heathen are dismayed at them.

3 For the customs of the people are vain: for one cutteth a tree out of the forest, the work of the hands of the workman, with the ax.

4 They deck it with silver and with gold; they fasten it with nails and with hammers, that it move not.

5 They are upright as the palm tree, but speak not: they must needs be borne, because they cannot go. Be not afraid of them; for they cannot do evil, neither also is it in them to do good.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. IX.—Manifold causes of weeping have faithful ministers in this world. And it is a fearful token of approaching judgments when they are so vexed with their people's abominations as to become weary of dwelling among them. Alas! sinful lusts transform even professors into very devils in crimes. Many are at great pains to secure their own damnation: and one sin opens the door for another. But terrible are the judgments of God upon obstinate sinners. And in a wonderful manner, by the same fire which consumes the wicked, he refines his own people. But every step of departure from him tends only to misery. And, let sinners flee where they will, his curse attends them. Death closely follows sin. And very foolish are they who lament losses and death, but never lament sin as the cause of them, nor stand in awe of damnation. But it is very difficult to wean hardened sinners, especially gospel despisers, from every false confidence. Line must be upon line, and precept upon precept, and perhaps after all they will cleave thereto, and perish with heathens.

11 Thus shall ye say unto them, The gods that have not made the heavens and the earth, even they shall perish from the earth, and from under these heavens.

12 He hath made the earth by his power, he hath established the world by his wisdom, and hath stretched out the heavens by his discretion.

13 When he uttereth his voice, there is a multitude of waters in the heavens; and he causeth the vapours to ascend from the ends of the earth: he maketh lightnings with rain, and bringeth forth the wind out of his treasures.

14 Every man ^{*}is ^abrutish in his knowledge: every founder is confounded by the graven image: ^bfor his molten image is falsehood, and there is no breath in them.

15^c They are vanity, and the work of errors: in the time of their visitation they shall perish.

Bring all your goods out of the country, where they are exposed to plunder, into the strong holds; for quickly will I, in a furious manner, drive out the inhabitants of this land by death and captivity. The rulers of both are ignorant and wicked; therefore shall they and their people be ruined or dispersed. For, behold, the Chaldean army cometh, with great noise and fury, to render Judea utterly desolate!

CHAP. XI.

In this sermon God (1) Reminds the Jews of the covenant which he had made with their fathers, and in which obedience to his laws had been enforced, as the evidence of their peculiar relation to God, and the ground of their possession of Canaan, and had been enjoined under a curse, and inculcated by all the prophets; 1—7. (2) Charges the Jews that, by joint combination, they and their fathers had refused to obey him; 8—10. (3) Threatens punishment for their idolatry and other wilful wickedness, from which neither their idols, nor their own, nor Jeremiah's prayers, should protect them; 11—17. (4) Discovers to Jeremiah a plot against his life, laid by his fellow priests at Anathoth; on account of which Jeremiah prays against them, and predicts their ruin; 18—23.

THE word that came to Jeremiah from the LORD, saying,

2^a Hear ye the words of this covenant, and speak unto the men of Judah, and to the inhabitants of Jerusalem;

3 And say thou unto them, ^b Thus saith the Lord God of Israel, Cursed be the man that obeyeth not the words of this ^dcovenant,

4 Which I commanded your fathers in the day that I brought them forth out of the land of Egypt, from the iron furnace, saying, Obey my voice, and do them, according to all which I command you: so shall ye be my people, and I will be your God:

5 That I may perform the oath which I have sworn unto your fathers, to give them a land flowing with milk and honey, as it is this day. Then answered I, and said, So be it, O LORD.

6 Then the LORD said unto me, Proclaim all these words in the cities of Judah, and in the streets of Jerusalem, saying, Hear ye the words of this covenant, and do them.

7 For I earnestly protested unto your fathers, in the day that I brought them up out of the land of Egypt, even unto the most stupid idolaters without excuse; and, the more we contemplate his unsearchable greatness and glory, the more we shall be filled with reverence and godly fear, and lost in admiration. If he be our King, let us shew ourselves faithful subjects, dependent on his protection, and devoted to his service. If he be our Portion, we can wish nothing beyond him. But often men remain ignorant of his excellency, and of the vanity of idols, till it be too late, and till his word be verified in their irrevocable and tremendous destruction. Terrible is the prospect when both rulers and ruled are plunged in ignorance, and abandoned to atheistical neglect of prayer. Neglect of God's worship in families ranks men with heathens, and entails his curse upon them. But great is the mercy that, though God correct, yet he will not destroy his people; and that, though we may not pray against corrections, we may pray for the mitigation of them, and hope that the rod will be quickly turned against our enemies.

this day, rising early and protesting, saying, Obey my voice.

8^m Yet they obeyed not, nor inclined their ear, but walked every one in the imagination of their evil heart: therefore I will bring upon them all the words of this covenant, which I commanded them to do; but they did them not.

9 And the LORD said unto me, A conspiracy is found among the men of Judah, and among the inhabitants of Jerusalem.

10 They are turned back to the iniquities of their forefathers, who refused to hear my words; and they went after other gods to serve them: the house of Israel and the house of Judah have broken my covenant which I made with their fathers.

11 ¶ Therefore thus saith the LORD, Behold, I will bring evil upon them, which they shall not be able to escape; and, though they shall cry unto me, I will not hearken unto them.

12 Then shall the cities of Judah and inhabitants of Jerusalem go, and cry unto the gods unto whom they offer incense: but they shall not save them at all in the time of their trouble.

13 For according to the number of thy cities were thy gods, O Judah; and according to the number of the streets of Jerusalem have ye set up altars to that shameful thing, even altars to burn incense unto Baal.

14 Therefore pray not thou for this people, neither lift up a cry or prayer for them; for I will not hear them in the time that they cry unto me for their trouble.

15 What hath my beloved to do in mine house, seeing she hath wrought lewdness with many, and the holy flesh is passed from thee? when thou dost evil, then thou rejoicest.

16 The LORD called thy name, A green olive tree, fair, and of goodly fruit: with the noise of a great tumult he hath kindled fire upon it, and the branches of it are broken.

17 For the LORD of hosts, that planted thee, hath pronounced evil against thee, for the evil of the house of Israel and of the house of Judah, which they have done against themselves to provoke me to anger in offering incense unto Baal.

18 ¶ And the LORD hath given me knowledge of it, and I know it: then thou shewedst me their doings.

19 But I was like a lamb or an ox that is brought to the slaughter; and I knew not that they had devised devices against me, saying, Let us destroy the tree with the fruit thereof, and let us cut him off from the land of the living, that his name may be no more remembered.

20 But, O LORD of hosts, that judgest righteously, that triest the reins and the heart, let me see thy vengeance on them; for unto thee have I revealed my cause.

21 Therefore thus saith the LORD of the men of Anathoth, that seek thy life, saying, Prophecy not in the name of the LORD, that thou die not by our hand:

22 Therefore thus saith the LORD of hosts, Behold, I will punish them: the young men shall die by the sword; their sons and their daughters shall die by famine:

23 And there shall be no remnant of them: for I will bring evil upon the men of Anathoth, even the year of their visitation.

CHAP. XII.

Here (1) Jeremiah frets at the prosperity of the wicked, asserts his own integrity, and prays for the speedy destruction of those ringleaders in impiety and carnal security who had drawn famine and ruin on the country; 1—4. (2) God rebukes him for his impatience under present troubles, and warns him to prepare for greater; 5, 6. (3) In an affectionate lamentation, God represents the deplorable, desolate, and disappointed, condition to which the sins of the Jews would quickly reduce them; 7—13. (4) He foretells the ruin of their heathen neighbours and enemies, and their restoration; in which, especially in gospel times, the heathens should share with them; 14—17.

RIGHTEOUS art thou, O LORD, when I plead with thee: yet let me talk with thee of thy judgments: Wherefore doth the way of the wicked prosper? wherefore are all they happy that deal very treacherously?

2 Thou hast planted them, yea, they have taken root: they grow, yea, they bring forth fruit: thou art near in their mouth, and far from their reins.

3 But thou, O LORD, knowest me; thou hast seen me, and tried mine heart toward thee: pull them out like sheep for the slaughter, and prepare them for the day of slaughter.

4 How long shall the land mourn, and the herbs of every field wither, for the wickedness of them that dwell therein? the beasts are consumed, and the birds; because they said, He shall not see our last end.

5 ¶ If thou hast run with the footmen, and they have wearied thee, then how canst thou contend with horses? and if, in the land of peace wherein thou trustedst, they wearied thee, then how wilt thou do in the swelling of Jordan?

CHAP. XI. Ver. 15, 16. What have the Jewish nation, whom I once so dearly loved and cherished, now to do in my temple, when they are so abandoned to idolatries, and when their sacrifices, which were once holy, are rendered detestable because of their obstinacy and joy in wickedness! I once made them outwardly flourishing and prosperous, and put them into a capacity to do much good: but now I intend to destroy them by the furious Chaldeans.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. XI.—God greatly loves true holiness; and abundant, but gracious, are his rewards of it. The saints of God delightfully consent to his transactions of grace, but especially to the better covenant made with men in Christ, and established upon better promises than the national covenant which God made with Israel. But it is hard to make unregenerate men have so much as a semblance of holiness; on the contrary, they are ready deliberately and obstinately to combine against the Lord their God. But, if they will not be ruled by his law, they must be destroyed by his curse. And dreadful is their case for whom prayer cannot avail: God will not, and idols cannot, help. Neither present devotions nor the past favours of God can profit them. Faithful ministers are often barbarously rewarded by those who should be their protectors. And none have been more malicious persecutors than profane clergymen. But, if God preserve and vindicate his servants, they may possess their souls in patience, and continue their faithfulness. And, alas! wretched will be the condition of those who have injured them when God rises up to punish.

house of thy father, even they have dealt treacherously with thee; yea, ||they have called a multitude after thee: believe them not, though they speak *fair words unto thee.

7 ¶ I have forsaken mine house, I have left mine heritage; I have given †the dearly beloved of my soul into the hands of her enemies.

8 Mine heritage is unto me as a lion in the forest; it †crieth out against me: †therefore have I hated it.

9 Mine heritage is unto me as a *speckled bird; the birds round about are against her: come ye, †assemble all the beasts of the field, †come to devour.

10 †Many pastors have destroyed my vineyard; they have trodden my portion under foot; they have made my †pleasant portion a desolate wilderness.

11 They †have made it desolate; and, being desolate, it mourneth unto me: the whole land is made desolate, because no man layeth it to heart.

12 †The spoilers are come upon all high places through the wilderness: for the sword of the LORD shall devour from the one end of the land even to the other end of the land: no flesh shall have peace.

13 †They have sown wheat, but shall reap thorns: they have put themselves to pain, but shall not profit: and they shall be ashamed of your revenues, because of the fierce anger of the LORD.

14 ¶ Thus saith the LORD †against all mine evil neighbours, that †touch the inheritance which I have caused my people Israel to inherit, Behold, †I will pluck them out of their land, and †pluck out the house of Judah from among them.

15 And it shall come to pass, after that I have plucked them out, †I will return, and have compassion on them, and will bring them again every man to his heritage, and every man to his land.

16 And it shall come to pass, if they will diligently learn the ways of my people, †to swear by my name, The LORD liveth; as †they taught my people to swear by Baal; then shall they †be built in the midst of my people.

17 But, †if they will not obey, I will utterly pluck up and destroy that nation, saith the LORD.

CHAP. XIII.

Now the prophet begins to annex symbolic representations to his sermons, to render them the more affecting. Here, (1) By the sign of a linen girdle, spoiled by lying among the clay near the river Euphrates, he warns the Jews that their pomp, bravery, pride, and glory, would be reduced by their captivity in Babylon; 1—11. (2) By the sign of bottles filled with wine, he warns them that their counsels should be blasted, and that they should, like drunken men, destroy one another; 12—14. (3) In the prospect of fearful consternation, debasement, desolation, and anguish, caused by the Chaldeans, he calls the people and princes to deep repentance and humiliation; 15—21. (4) He labours to convince them that their obstinacy and incorrigibility had brought these fearful and lasting judgments upon them; 22—27.

THUS saith the LORD unto me, Go and get thee a †linen girdle, and put it upon thy loins, and put it †not in water.

2 So I got a girdle, †according to the word of the LORD, and put it on my loins.

3 And the word of the LORD came unto me the second time, saying,

4 Take the girdle that thou hast got, which is upon thy loins, and arise, go †to Euphrates, and hide it there in a hole of the rock.

5 So †I went and hid it by Euphrates, as the LORD commanded me.

6 And it came to pass, after many days, that the LORD said unto me, Arise, go to Euphrates, and take the girdle from thence, which I commanded thee to hide there.

7 Then I went to Euphrates, and digged, and took the girdle from the place where I had hid it; and, behold, the girdle was marred, it was †profitable for nothing.

8 Then the word of the LORD came unto me, saying,

9 Thus saith the LORD, †After this manner will I mar the pride of Judah, and the great pride of Jerusalem.

10 †This evil people, who refuse to hear my words, who walk in the †imagination of their heart, and walk after other gods, to serve them, and to worship them, †shall even be as this girdle, which is good for nothing.

11 For, as the girdle cleaveth to the loins of a man, so have †I caused to cleave unto me the whole house of Israel and the whole house of Judah, saith the LORD; that they might be unto me for a people, and †for a name, and for a praise, and for a glory: †but they would not hear.

12 ¶ Therefore thou shalt speak unto them this word, Thus saith the LORD God of Israel, †Every bottle shall be filled with wine: and they shall say unto thee, †Do we not certainly know that every bottle shall be filled with wine?

13 Then shalt thou say unto them, Thus saith the LORD, Behold, I will fill all the inhabitants of this land, even the you, and even your own relations and fellow priests stir up the common people to destroy you! 7—13. I will quickly abandon my temple, and my people, which I once so dearly loved, into the hand of the Chaldean destroyers. Instead of hearkening to my voice, as sheep to their shepherd, they blasphemously contradict my words, reject my government, abuse my messengers, and abandon themselves to rapine and oppression; therefore their heathen neighbours shall assemble in armies to destroy them; Nebuchadnezzar, and his princes, shall unhinge their constitution in church and state, and lay their whole country terribly desolate. While the crops shall be ruined, all their expensive attempts to save themselves by the help of the Egyptians shall but increase their misery. 14—17. I will also destroy, and carry captive out of their own countries, the Moabites, Ammonites, Edomites, Egyptians, Philistines, Phenicians, Syrians, and Northern Arabs, who have injured my people; and will afterwards bring back my people, and even part of these nations, to their respective countries; and will even unite them into the same true church, especially in the apostolic and millennial periods. See Introduction; chap. iv. sect. 18, 19.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. XII.—The prosperity of wicked men has often been a stumbling-block to the godly. But, let God do as he will, it is certain he will never do what is unrighteous. His providences may be dark, but never unjust; nay, nor unkind to the upright. We may sit easy under men's revilings, if we be conscious of God's approbation of us. Yea, there is no reason to covet that prosperity which fattens men, particularly hypocritical professors, for the fearful slaughter of God's wrath. Atheistical and prophet-murdering sinners are a great plague to their country. And yet, if ministers will be faithful, they must expect more and more opposition, especially from evil brethren. And very justly the Lord metes out heavier trials to such as rage and fret at lesser ones, even when the lesser kindly prepare for the greater. Dreadful are those sins which make God desert and detest those ordinances and persons for which he has professed the greatest regard. But men's furious rage against him and his ways must be punished with fearful judgments. And yet no judgments fail to harden and exasperate sinners when God has withdrawn his Spirit from them. They, who have tempted us to sin, ordinarily become our tormentors in punishing it. And, if judgment begin at the house of God, the wicked corrupters and abusers of it need not think long to escape. But the bitterest enemies may be reconciled by the gospel. And such as diligently learn the Lord's ways shall share the blessings of his people; while ruin, dreadful ruin, in every age, shall await obstinate sinners.

CHAP. XIV.

Now, about the end of Josiah's reign, the threatened judgments begin. Here (1) A terrible famine, occasioned by a drought, afflicts the common people, nobility, husbandmen, and even the wild beasts; 1—6. (2) Jeremiah humbly confesses their sins, and begs that God, as their God, would grant them relief; 7—9. (3) On account of their continuance in sin, God refuses to hear his or their prayers for them; but threatens with manifold plagues; 10—12. (4) While Jeremiah lays the blame of their wickedness on their false prophets, God condemns these deceivers, and the people deceived by them, to ruin; 13—16. (5) Directed by God to lament their case, Jeremiah mingles therewith intercessions for relief; 17—22.

THE ^aword of the LORD that came to ^aJeremiah concerning ^athe dearth.

2 ^bJudah mourneth, and the gates thereof languish; they are black unto the ground; and the cry of Jerusalem is gone up.

3 And their nobles have sent their [†]little ones to the waters: they ^ccame to the ^dpits, ^aand found no water; they returned with their vessels empty; ^ethey were ashamed and confounded, and ^fcovered their heads.

4 ^gBecause the ground is chapt, for there was no rain in the earth, ^bthe plowmen were ashamed, they covered their heads.

5 Yea, ⁱthe hind also calved in the field, and forsook ^ait, because there was grass.

6 ^kAnd the wild asses did stand in the high places, they snuffed up the wind like dragons; ^ltheir eyes did fail because ^athere was no grass.

7 ¶ ^mO LORD, though our iniquities ⁿtestify against us, ^odo thou ^ait for thy name's sake: for ^pour backslidings are many; we have sinned against thee.

8 O ^qthe Hope of Israel, ^rthe Saviour thereof in time of trouble, ^awhy shouldest thou be as a stranger in the land, and ^aas a wayfaring man ^athat turneth aside to tarry for a night?

9 ^aWhy shouldest thou be as a man astonished, as a mighty man ^athat cannot save? yet thou, O LORD, art ^ain the midst of us, and ^awe are called by thy name; ^aleave us not.

CHAP. XIII. Ver. 16. Glorify your own God, by confession and repentance of your sins, before he brings the most perplexing, scattering, deathful, and ruinous judgments upon you. 20—23. Behold, O Jews, the Chaldeans shall invade your country, and shall destroy, and carry captive, your once flourishing multitudes of God's covenant people; and when they, whom you formerly invited to your assistance, (and thus shewed them the way to subdue you), shall destroy you, how dreadful shall be your misery and anguish!—For your great iniquities shall ye be reduced to extreme disgrace and the basest of servitude; since ye are so hardened in a long course of sinning, that all attempts to remove your spotted practices, or your universal corruptions, are in vain.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. XIII.—God's ministers are often strangely tried for the instruction of their hearers; and it will require all the arts that can be used to make men understand what concerns their eternal welfare. But infinite is the kindness of God in making any of them his peculiar people, to the praise of his glory. Fearfully does he disgrace and ruin such as had behaved unfaithfully in his honourable service: and self-compunction, in parts, gifts, station, wealth, or power, God rejects with abhorrence. Alas, how stupified, and what mutual destroyers, do nations become when God leaves them! Their very managers and protectors do but ruin instead of relieving them; and vain hopes will but aggravate their misery and increase their confusion. Nothing but self-humiliation and repentance can avail, when God lifts up his hand to destroy. Nor are the highest too great to sit in the dust when he calls to weeping and mourning for the sins of the land. Those ministers or others, who know the terrors of the Lord, cannot but tremble and weep for those who, insensible of danger, refuse to amend. Disgraceful miseries shall at last overtake the obstinate: and frequently the persons or things with which they sinned become the instruments of their punishment. Proud and ignorant sinners readily quarrel with the justice of their calamities. But, alas, how extensive and dreadful is God's charge against them when he sets before them their great iniquities, their fixedness and obstinacy therein, their forgetfulness of and treacherous departure from him, and their mad propensity to whoredom and idolatry! Nothing less than the infinitely precious blood of Jesus, and the infinitely powerful grace of JEHOVAH, can renew and purify a sinner thus spotted and deformed both in nature and practice. And, alas, dreadful is the guilt and folly that, while God waits to cleanse us, we should so refuse and evade his kindness!

people, ^aThus have they loved to wander, they have not refrained their feet, ^btherefore the LORD doth not accept them; ^che will now remember their iniquity, and visit their sins.

^d11 Then said the LORD unto me, Pray not for this people for their good.

^e12 When they fast, I will not hear their cry; and, when they offer burnt-offering and an oblation, I will not accept them; but ^fI will consume them by the sword, and by the famine, and by the pestilence.

^g13 ¶ Then said I, Ah, Lord God! behold, the prophets say unto them, Ye shall not see the sword, neither shall ye have famine; but I will give you ^hassured peace in this place.

ⁱ14 Then the LORD said unto me, The prophets prophesy lies in my name: ^jI sent them not, neither have I commanded them, neither spake unto them: they prophesy unto you a false vision and divination, and a thing of nought, and the deceit of their heart.

^k15 Therefore thus saith the LORD concerning the prophets that prophesy in my name, and I sent them not, yet they say, Sword and famine shall not be in this land; ^lby sword and famine shall those prophets be consumed.

^m16 And the people to whom they prophesy ⁿshall be cast out in the streets of Jerusalem, because of the famine and the sword; and they shall have none to bury them; them, their wives, nor their sons, nor their daughters: for I will pour ^otheir wickedness upon them.

^p17 ¶ Therefore thou shalt say this word unto them, ^qLet mine eyes run down with tears night and day, and let them not cease: for ^rthe virgin daughter of my people ^sis broken with a great breach, with a very grievous blow.

^t18 If ^uI go forth into the field, then behold the slain with the sword! and, if I enter into the city, then behold them that are sick with famine! yea, both the prophet and the priest ^vgo about into a land that they know not.

^w19 Hast thou utterly rejected Judah? hath thy soul lothed Zion? why hast thou smitten us, and ^xthere is ^yno healing for us? ^zwe looked for peace, and ^{aa}there is no good; and for the time of healing, and behold trouble!

^{ab}20 We acknowledge, O LORD, our wickedness, and the iniquity of our fathers: for ^{ac}we have sinned against thee.

^{ad}21 Do not abhor us, for thy name's sake; do not disgrace ^{ae}the throne of thy glory: ^{af}remember, break not thy covenant with us.

^{ag}22 Are there any among the ^{ah}vanities of the Gentiles that can cause rain? or can the heavens give showers? ^{ai}art not thou he, O LORD our God? therefore we will wait upon thee: for thou hast made all these things.

CHAP. XV.

(1) Notwithstanding all intercession, God abandons the Jews to manifold ruin, pestilence, sword, famine, and captivity, till husbands and young men are destroyed; 1—9. (2) Jeremiah complains to God of his continued struggle with his persecutors, and is assured of special protection, while his enemies should be ruined; 10—14. (3) He complains that, notwithstanding his sincerity, delight, and diligence, in his work, he had very little comfort in it; and is assured that, if he would keep his temper and continue faithful, he should be continued in office, and strengthened and protected in the discharge thereof; 15—21.

^{al}THEN said the LORD unto me, ^{am}Though Moses and Samuel stood before me, yet my mind could not be toward this people: ^{an}cast them out of my sight, and let them go forth.

^{ao}2 And it shall come to pass, if they say unto thee, Whither shall we go forth? then thou shalt tell them, Thus saith the LORD, ^{ap}Such as are for ^{aq}death to death; and such as are for the sword to the sword; and such as are for the famine to the famine; and such as are for the captivity to the captivity.

^{ar}3 And I will ^{as}appoint over them four ^{at}kind, saith the LORD; the sword to slay, and the dogs to tear, and the fowls of the heaven, and the beasts of the earth, ^{au}to devour and destroy.

^{av}4 And ^{aw}I will cause them to be ^{ax}removed into all kingdoms of the earth, because of ^{ay}Manasseh the son of Hezekiah king of Judah, for that which he did in Jerusalem.

^{az}5 For ^{ba}who shall have pity upon thee, O Jerusalem? or who shall bemoan thee? or who shall go aside ^{bb}to ask how thou dost?

^{bc}6 ^{bd}Thou hast forsaken me, saith the LORD; thou art gone backward: therefore will I ^{be}stretch out my hand against thee, and destroy thee: ^{bf}I am weary with repenting.

^{bg}7 And ^{bh}I will fan them with a fan in the gates of the land: I ^{bi}will bereave them of ^{bj}children, I will destroy my people, ^{bk}since they ^{bl}return not from their ways.

^{bm}8 ^{bn}Their widows are increased to me above the sand of the seas: I have brought upon them ^{bo}against the mother of the young men ^{bp}a spoiler at noon-day: I have caused ^{bq}him to fall upon it suddenly, and terrors upon the city.

Hope and Saviour he has long been. And great is his condescension to indulge his people in the most familiar expostulations, and in the improving of his own excellencies, as arguments to enforce their requests. But no prayers can prevail when he is determined to ruin men obstinate in wickedness: no sacrifice can be accepted, no excuse admitted. What plagues to themselves, and all around, are flattering, unfaithful, and erroneous, ministers! But they who are faithful cannot forbear intercessions for their people's welfare and salvation. With unutterable groans and expostulations they deprecate their ruin; and encourage themselves therein by the views of God's honour, ~~may~~ power, and covenant relation.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. XIV.—With the greatest ease even by withholding drops of rain, God can render his enemies miserable, and make the inhabitants of the wealthiest cities pale, faint, and dying. At his nod fields deny their crops, and fountains their water, and cause even the richest to die by hunger and thirst: and not only sinners, but the irrational creatures for our sakes, share in the punishment. Those who take no shame for their sins provoke God to confound them with disappointments: and many mourn over their miseries who never mourn over the sinful causes of them. Yea both sins and judgments ~~then~~ lie heaviest on their hearts who had the least hand in procuring them. ~~Alarmingly~~ dreadful, but just, is God's departure from a church or nation whose

9^a She that hath borne seven languisheth: she hath given up the ghost; her sun is gone down while it was yet day:
she hath been ashamed and confounded:
and 'the residue of them will I deliver to the sword before their enemies, saith the LORD.

10 ¶ 'Wo is me, my mother, that thou hast borne me a man of strife, and a man of contention to the whole earth!
I have 'neither lent on usury, nor men have lent to me on usury, yet every one of them doth curse me.

11 The LORD said, 'Verily it shall be well with thy remnant; verily 'I will cause the enemy to entreat thee well in the time of evil and in the time of affliction.

12 'Shall iron break the northern iron and the steel?

13 'Thy substance and thy treasures will I give to the spoil without price, and that for all thy sins, even in all thy borders.

14 'And I will make thee to pass with thine enemies into a land which thou knowest not: for a 'fire is kindled in mine anger, which shall burn upon you.

15 ¶ O LORD, 'thou knowest: remember me, and visit me, and revenge me of my persecutors; take me not away in thy long-suffering: know that 'for thy sake I have suffered rebuke.

16 Thy words were found, and I did 'eat them; and thy word was unto me the joy and rejoicing of mine heart; for 'I am called by thy name, O LORD God of hosts.

17 'I sat not in the assembly of the mockers, nor rejoiced: 'I sat alone because of thy hand: for thou hast 'filled me with indignation.

18 Why is my 'pain perpetual, and my wound incurable, which refuseth to be healed? 'wilt thou be altogether unto me as a liar, and as waters that †fail.

19 ¶ Therefore thus saith the LORD,
If thou 'return, then will I bring thee again, and thou shalt 'stand before me:
and, 'if thou take forth the precious from the vile, thou shalt be as my mouth: 'let them return unto thee, but return not thou unto them.

20 'And I will make thee unto this people a fenced brazen wall: and they shall fight against thee, but 'they shall not prevail against thee: for I am with thee to save thee, and to deliver thee, saith the LORD.

21 'And I will deliver thee out of the hand of the wicked, and I will redeem thee out of the hand of the terrible.

21 And 'I will deliver thee out of the hand of the wicked, and I will redeem thee out of the hand of the terrible.

CHAP. XVI.

Here (1) To represent the greatness of the impending calamities and desolations of the Jews, Jeremiah, as a sign, must neither take a wife, nor lament the dead, nor attend at a feast; 1—9. (2) The Lord's severe procedure is justified from the greatness of their wickedness, idolatry, &c. 10—13. (3) He threatens that, by the Chaldeans, Romans, &c. he would terribly hunt out and destroy them, on account of their sins; 16—18, 21. (4) Promises after all, to grant them a marvellous deliverance from Babylon and their present dispersion, attended with the conversion of multitudes of Gentiles from their idolatries; 15, 19—21.

THE 'word of the LORD came also unto me, saying,

2^b Thou shalt not take thee a wife, neither shalt thou have sons or daughters^b in this place.

3 For thus saith the LORD concerning the sons and concerning the daughters that are born in this place, and concerning their mothers that bare them, and concerning their fathers that begat them in this land;

4^c They shall die of grievous deaths;
they shall not be lamented, neither shall they be buried; but they shall be as dung upon the face of the earth; and they shall be consumed by the sword, and by famine; and their carcasses shall be meat for the fowls of heaven, and for the beasts of the earth.

5 For thus saith the LORD, 'Enter not^a into the house of * mourning, neither go to lament nor bemoan them: 'for I have taken away my peace from this people, saith the LORD, even loving-kindness and mercies.

6 Both the great and the small shall die in this land: they shall not be buried, neither shall men lament for them, nor 'cut themselves, nor make themselves^b bald for them:

7 Neither shall men 'tear themselves^c for them in mourning, to comfort them for the dead; neither shall men give them the 'cup of consolation to drink for their father or for their mother.

8 'Thou shalt not also go into the house of feasting, to sit with them to eat and to drink.

9 For thus saith the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel, Behold, 'I will cause to cease out of this place in your eyes, and in your days, the voice of mirth, and the voice of gladness, the voice of the bridegroom, and the voice of the bride.

10 ¶ And it shall come to pass, when thou shalt shew this people all these words, and they shall say unto thee, 'Wherefore hath the LORD pronounced all this great

CHAP. XV. Ver. 9. Jerusalem, or Judea, which was once so populous, is bereaved of her inhabitants: destruction hath come upon her in the height of her prosperity, when it was altogether unexpected. 12—14. The hard-hearted and self-conceited Jews shall never be able to grapple with the Chaldean forces, to whom I will give all their wealth, without any possibility of redemption; and who, in execution of my kindled wrath, shall carry them away captives. 15—18. Lord, thou knowest my circumstances; protect, favour, and comfort me, and punish my persecutors. While they are spared, let me not be destroyed, but manifest thy regard to me as one persecuted for thy sake. I very cheerfully received my commission from thee to be thy prophet, and with pleasure declared thy messages to this people, expecting that they might be moved to repent: but the repeated messages of wrath which I have been appointed to deliver, and the persecution which I have endured on their account, have inexpressibly burdened and sunk my spirits. And must my troubles be perpetual? Wilt thou never deliver me according to thy promise? 19—21. If thou repent of this sinful distrust, and cheerfully and diligently discharge thine office, I will continue thee in it; and, if thou faithfully endeavour to convince and reclaim wicked hypocrites, and to comfort upright saints, thou shalt be honoured as a true prophet. But remember by faithful reproofs to reduce them to that course in which thou walkest, and never comply with or flatter them in their sinful courses; and then will I constantly protect thee against, and at last deliver thee from, all thy furious and powerful persecutors.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. XV.—Dreadful is the case of nations when chargeable with sins which God will not pardon, and when the prayers of the choicest saints avail nothing for their relief. For in diversified and dreadful forms God can, even on earth, avenge himself on his enemies. Ministers, if faithful, must expect the most ungrateful returns from the world. And, however earnestly they should follow after peace with all men, it must never be purchased by base and flattering compliances in sin; nor ought they to entangle themselves with the affairs of this world. But it is hard for the best to keep their temper in an evil day. It is astonishing that God should be so condescending and kind to his peevish saints. And they, who distinguish themselves in piety, taintfulness, and diligence, may expect his distinguished favours and protections. If hypocrites evil against us? or what is our iniquity?

or what is our sin that we have committed against the LORD our God?

11 Then shalt thou say unto them,
"Because your fathers have forsaken me, saith the LORD, and have walked after other gods, and have served them, and have worshipped them, and have forsaken me, and have not kept my law;

12 And ye have done "worse than your fathers: for, behold, ye walk every one after the "imagination of his evil heart, that they may not hearken unto me:

13 "Therefore will I cast you out of this land into a land that ye know not, neither ye nor your fathers; and there shall ye serve other gods day and night;
where I will not shew you favour.

14 ¶ "Therefore, behold, "the days come, saith the LORD, that it shall no more be said, The LORD liveth that brought up the children of Israel out of the land of Egypt;

15 But, the LORD liveth "that brought up the children of Israel from the land of the north, and from all the lands whither he had driven them: and I will bring them again into their land that I gave unto their fathers.

16 ¶ Behold, "I will send for many fishers, saith the LORD, and they shall fish them; and after will I send for many hunters, and they shall hunt them from every mountain, and from every hill, and out of the holes of the rocks.

17 For mine "eyes are upon all their ways: they are not hid from my face, neither is their iniquity hid from mine eyes

18 And "first I will recompense their iniquity and their sin double, because "they have defiled my land, they have filled mine inheritance with the "carcases of their detestable and abominable things.

19 O LORD, "my strength and my fortress, and my refuge in the day of affliction, "the Gentiles shall come unto thee from the ends of the earth, and shall say, "Surely our fathers have inherited lies, vanity, and things wherein there is no profit.

20 Shall a man make gods unto himself, and they are no gods?

21 Therefore, behold, "I will this once cause them to know, I will cause them to know mine hand and my might; and they shall know that my name is the LORD.

CHAP. XVII.

Here (1) God convicts the Jews of obstinate, notorious, and long-continued, idolatry and other wickedness, and condemns them to lasting captivity and bondage; 1—4. (2) He shews them the ruinous tendency of their trusting in allies, human help, their wicked hearts, or ill-gotten wealth, and the advantage of trusting in himself alone; 5—11. (3) In the view of God's kindness, residence among, and relation to, Israel, and of the misery of such as apostatize from him, Jeremiah complains of the malice of his enemies, and pleads that the Lord would comfort and protect him and punish his enemies; 12—18. (4) God admonishes the Jews to observe his sabbaths as a mean of lengthening out their tranquillity, and threatens to punish their profanation of them with desolating judgments; 19—27.

reception of his favours. And marvellous are all his ways: he makes both the miseries and the deliverances of the Jewish nation to promote the gathering of the Gentiles to Christ.

CHAP. XVII. Ver. 1, 2. Their proneness to idolatry is deeply rooted in their hearts, and marked on the multitudes of their altars; and they continue in it from generation to generation. 5—8. They, who, instead of depending upon God, depend upon human powers for help, shall not only be disappointed of that safety and prosperity which they expected, but shall bring upon themselves the lasting miseries which they thought to have escaped; but they who trust in the Lord shall prosper in their undertakings, and be safe and happy when all around them are in distress. 12—18. O Lord, who hast long dwelt with us in thy tabernacle and temple, and in whom we hope for all necessary blessings, they that apostatize from thee, the infinite source of pure and lasting consolations.

will persecute them, heathens shall shew them kindness. And, however our frames change, we ought never to doubt of his faithfulness, and fulfilment of all his promises.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. XVI.—In evil days, a concern for our church and nation ought to swallow up our care for natural relations; for then our families, and other created comforts, become occasional additions to our trouble. Carnal feasting and mirth are very unseasonable when God's destructive judgments are hanging over and ravaging around us. God is exact in marking men's iniquities, and unavoidable is his punishment of them: but it is very hard to convince obdurate sinners of their guilt, or of the equity of God's judgments. And yet how infinite is his mercy in connecting the most awful judgments with the most gracious deliverances, and in making his strokes of wrath to prepare men for the ten in the earth, because they have forsaken the LORD, the fountain of living waters.

14 ^aHeal me, O LORD, and I shall be healed; save me, and I shall be saved: for thou art my praise.

15 ¶ Behold, they say unto me, ^aWhere is the word of the LORD? let it come now.

16 As for me, ^aI have not hastened from being a pastor to follow thee; neither have I desired the woful day; thou knowest: that which came out of my lips was right before thee.

17 ^bBe not a terror unto me: thou art my hope in the day of evil.

18 ^dLet them be confounded that persecute me, but let not me be confounded: let them be dismayed, but let not me be dismayed: bring upon them the day of evil, and destroy them with double destruction.

19 ¶ Thus saith the LORD unto me, Go and stand in the gate of the children of the people, whereby the kings of Judah come in, and by the which they go out, and in all the gates of Jerusalem;

20 And say unto them, ^eHear ye the word of the LORD, ye kings of Judah, and all the inhabitants of Jerusalem, that enter in by these gates:

21 Thus saith the LORD, ^hTake heed to yourselves, and bear no burden on the sabbath day, nor bring it in by the gates of Jerusalem;

22 Neither carry forth a burden out of your houses on the sabbath day, neither do ye any work, ^kbut hallow ye the sabbath day, as I commanded your fathers.

23 ⁱBut they obeyed not, neither inclined their ear, but made their neck stiff, that they might not hear nor receive instruction.

24 And it shall come to pass, if ^mye diligently hearken unto me, saith the LORD, to bring in no burden through the gates of this city on the sabbath day, but hallow the sabbath day, to do no work therein;

25 ⁿThen shall there enter into the gates of this city kings and princes sitting upon the throne of David, riding in chariots, and on horses, they and their princes, the men of Judah, and the inhabitants of Jerusalem: and this city shall remain for ever.

26 And they shall come ^pfrom the cities of Judah, and from the places about Jerusalem, and from the land of Benjamin, and from the plain, and from the mountains, and from the south, ^qbringing burnt-offerings, and sacrifices, and meat-offerings, and incense, and bringing sacrifices of praise unto the house of the LORD.

27 ^rBut if ye will not hearken unto me to hallow the sabbath day, and not to bear a burden, even entering in at the gates of Jerusalem on the sabbath day; then ^swill I kindle a fire in the gates thereof, and it shall devour the palaces of Jerusalem, and it shall not be quenched.

CHAP. XVIII.

(1) By the symbol of a potter's forming his clay into what manner of vessel he pleases, God suggests that he could deal with Jews or others as he pleased, and that he never unjustly afflicts or destroys nations; 1-10. (2) He demonstrates the folly of the Jews, in departing from himself to idols, and ruining themselves, notwithstanding his fair warnings and offered favours; 11-17. (3) Jeremiah bitterly complains of the base ingratitude and unreasonable malice of his enemies, persecutors, and slanderers, and imprecates the just and ruinous vengeance of God upon them; 18-23.

THE word which came to Jeremiah from the LORD, saying,

2 ^bArise, and go down to the potter's house, and there will I cause thee to hear my words.

3 ^cThen I went down to the potter's house, and, behold, he wrought a work on the ^{*}wheels.

4 ^dAnd the vessel that he made of clay was marred in the hand of the potter; so he made it again another vessel, as seemed good to the potter to make it.

5 Then the word of the LORD came to me, saying,

6 O house of Israel, ^ecannot I do with you as this potter? saith the LORD. Behold, as the clay is in the potter's hand, so are ye in mine hand, O house of Israel.

7 At what instant I shall speak concerning a nation, and concerning a kingdom, to pluck up, and to pull down, and to destroy it;

8 ^fIf that nation, against whom I have pronounced, turn from their evil, ^hI will repent of the evil that I thought to do unto them.

9 And at what instant I shall speak concerning a nation, and concerning a kingdom, to build, and to plant it;

10 ^kIf it do evil in my sight, that it obey not my voice, then I will repent of the good wherewith I said I would benefit them.

11 ¶ Now therefore go to, speak to the men of Judah, and to the inhabitants of Jerusalem, saying, Thus saith the LORD, tions, shall be disgraced, contemned, and destroyed. But do thou, the object of all my praises, deliver me from the injuries which I suffer from this malicious people, and effectually grant me comfort. They insolently deride me, as if the threatenings which I denounce would never be fulfilled. But I have patiently persevered in delivering thy messages to them, without ever desiring to bear one message of destruction, or to see it executed; and I have never spoken but as directed by thee. Do thou therefore acknowledge, protect, and comfort me, while they malign, terrify, and persecute me. And let these my persecutors be disgraced, perplexed, terrified, and fearfully destroyed.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. XVII.—Sinful corruptions are deeply rooted in men's hearts, and fixed in their practice, though sin effectually robs us of every thing valuable. There is great malignity and hurt in trusting to creatures. It draws our heart from God, the blessed ALL and IN ALL. But much satisfaction and success attend a solid dependence upon him alone as our God. Alas! what an unsearchable fund of all manner of deceiving and desperate wickedness is an unrenewed heart! But all is naked and open before the righteous Judge of all, and punisher of the wicked. And dreadful is the curse annexed to ill-gotten riches, as well as to resting on self-righteousness. Great is the esteem which saints have for the temple, the ordinances, the Christ of God. And, while he is the hope, the praise, the healer, and the Saviour of his people, he is the awful, but just, punisher of his and their enemies. A fearful portion of debasement, terror, and ruin, shall earthly men, and apostates from God, receive at the last. When they become incorrigible, their damnation slumbereth not. And O the strength of indwelling corruption, that makes even precious prophets sinfully fret when they meet with much opposition in the execution of their office. Great is the mercy that God does not always employ them in the displeasing messages of wrath. Alas, the folly and wickedness of nations—of Britain—in disregarding God's sabbaths, when such important blessings to courts, kingdoms, and churches, attend the careful sanctification, and such fearful miseries attend the profanation, of it!

Behold, I frame evil against you, and devise a device against you: return ye now every one from his evil way, and make your ways and your doings good.

12 And they said, There is no hope; but we will walk after our own devices, and we will every one do the imagination of his evil heart.

13 Therefore thus saith the LORD, Ask ye now among the heathen who hath heard such things? the virgin of Israel hath done a very horrible thing.

14 Will a man leave the snow of Lebanon which cometh from the rock of the field? or shall the cold flowing waters that come from another place be forsaken?

15 Because my people hath forgotten me, they have burned incense to vanity, and they have caused them to stumble in their ways from the ancient paths, to walk in paths in a way not cast up;

16 To make their land desolate, and a perpetual hissing: every one that passeth thereby shall be astonished, and wag his head.

17 I will scatter them as with an east wind before the enemy; I will shew them the back, and not the face, in the day of their calamity.

18 ¶ Then said they, Come, and let us devise devices against Jeremiah; for the law shall not perish from the priest, nor counsel from the wise, nor the word from the prophet: come, and let us smite him with the tongue, and let us not give heed to any of his words.

19 Give heed to me, O LORD, and hearken to the voice of them that contend with me.

20 Shall evil be recompensed for good? for they have digged a pit for my soul. Remember that I stood before thee to speak good for them, and to turn away thy wrath from them.

21 Therefore deliver up their children to the famine, and pour out their blood by the force of the sword; and let their wives be bereaved of their children, and be widows; and let their men be put to death; let their young men be slain by the sword in battle.

22 Let a cry be heard from their houses, when thou shalt bring a troop suddenly upon them: for they have digged a pit to take me, and hid snares for my feet.

23 Yet, LORD, thou knowest all their counsel against me to slay me: forgive not their iniquity, neither blot out their sin from thy sight, but let them be overthrown before thee: deal thus with them in the time of thine anger

CHAP. XIX.

Often had Jeremiah denounced the approaching ruin of the Jews for their sins; but he must do it again more solemnly. (1) Convening the elders of the people in the valley of Tophet, where the children had been sacrificed to Moloch, he must denounce that, for their idolatry, &c. their city and land shall be laid desolate, and multitudes be slain in that very spot; 2—9. (2) For a confirming sign of the ease, certainly, inevitable accomplishment, and irreparable nature, of their destruction, he must break an earthen bottle before their eyes; 1, 10—13. (3) He must repair to the multitudes assembled in the courts of the temple, and repeat the denunciation of the desolating judgments; 14, 15.

THUS saith the LORD, Go and get a potter's earthen bottle, and take of the ancients of the people, and of the ancients of the priests;

2 And go forth unto the valley of the son of Hinnom, which is by the entry of the east gate, and proclaim there the words that I shall tell thee;

3 And say, Hear ye the word of the LORD, O kings of Judah and inhabitants of Jerusalem; Thus saith the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel, Behold, I will bring evil upon this place, the which whosoever heareth, his ears shall tingle.

4 Because they have forsaken me, and have estranged this place, and have burned incense in it unto other gods, whom neither they nor their fathers have known, nor the kings of Judah, and have filled this place with the blood of innocents;

5 They have built also the high places of Baal, to burn their sons with fire for burnt-offerings unto Baal, which I commanded not, nor spake it, neither came it into my mind:

6 Therefore, behold, the days come, saith the LORD, that this place shall no more be called Tophet, nor the valley of the son of Hinnom, but the valley of slaughter.

7 And I will make void the counsel of Judah and Jerusalem in this place; and I will cause them to fall by the sword before their enemies, and by the hands of them that seek their lives: and their carcasses will I give to be meat for the fowls of the heaven, and for the beasts of the earth.

8 And I will make this city desolate, and an hissing: every one that passeth thereby shall be astonished and hiss, because of all the plagues thereof.

9 And I will cause them to eat the flesh of their sons, and the flesh of their daughters; and they shall eat every one the flesh of his friend in the siege and straitness wherewith their enemies, and they that seek their lives, shall straiten them.

10 Then shalt thou break the bottle in the sight of the men that go with thee,

11 And shalt say unto them, Thus

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. XVIII.—It is proper that God should exercise an absolute sovereignty over men: and highly presumptuous is it in them to complain of his providence. Yet, notwithstanding he is careful to shew them the equity, as well as the sovereignty, of his procedure: and he will at last make his glory to appear, and shew that all our miseries, public and private, may be traced from our sins. How absurd and dangerous is apostasy from God to idols! and, if men will persevere in their sins, they must expect no mercy at last. The wicked maliciously persecute, slander, and condemn, the faithful servants of Christ. But fearfully shall God resent the injuries done to them as done to himself: and he that despises them must be held as one that hates and despises him that sent them.

saith the LORD of hosts, ^aEven so will I break this people, and this city, as one breaketh a potter's vessel that cannot be made whole again; and they shall bury them in Tophet, till there be no place to bury.

12 Thus will I do unto this place, saith the LORD, and to the inhabitants thereof; and even make this city as Tophet:

13 And the houses of Jerusalem, and the houses of the kings of Judah, shall be *u*defiled as the place of Tophet, because of all the houses *x*upon whose roofs they have burned incense unto all the host of heaven, and have poured out drink-offerings unto other gods.

14 Then came Jeremiah from Tophet, whither the LORD had sent him to prophesy; and he stood *y*in the court of the LORD's house, and said to all the people, 15 Thus saith the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel, Behold, *z*I will bring upon this city, and upon all her towns, all the evil that I have pronounced against it, because they have hardened their necks, that they might not hear my words.

16 Then came Jeremiah from Tophet, whither the LORD had sent him to prophesy; and he stood *y*in the court of the LORD's house, and said to all the people,

CHAP. XX.

(1) Scarcely had Jeremiah finished his solemn warning when Pashur a priest smites him, and puts him in the stocks on account of it; for which God condemns him to behold the desolations threatened, and, together with his family and friends, to take a miserable share therein; 1—6. (2) Jeremiah bitterly complains that the cruelty, derision, reproach, and persecution, which he had met with, had tempted him to wish that he had never been a prophet, or to quit the office, if his conscience had allowed; 7—10. (3) In the faith of God's being with him, regarding his kindness and faithfulness in his promises, and avenging him of his enemies, he offers thanksgiving to him; 11—13: and yet (4) He curses the day of his birth, wishes ill to the messenger who bare the tidings of his birth, and that he had been killed in that moment, rather than preserved for a spectacle of persecution, sorrow, and shame; 14—18.

NOW ^aPashur the son of Immer the priest, who was also chief governor in the house of the LORD, heard that Jeremiah prophesied these things.

2 Then Pashur ^bsmote Jeremiah the prophet, and put him in the stocks that were in the high gate of Benjamin, which was by the house of the LORD.

3 And it came to pass on the morrow that Pashur brought forth Jeremiah out of the stocks. Then said Jeremiah unto him, The LORD hath not ^ccalled thy name Pashur, but ^dMagor-missabib.

4 For thus saith the LORD, Behold, I will make thee ^ea terror to thyself, and to all thy friends; and they shall fall by the sword of their enemies, and ^fthine eyes shall behold it: and ^gI will give all Judah into the hand of the king of Babylon, and he shall carry them captive into Babylon, and shall slay them with the sword.

5 Moreover, I ^hwill deliver all the strength of this city, and all the labours thereof, and all the precious things thereof, and all the treasures of the kings of Judah will I give into the hand of their enemies, which shall spoil them, and take them, and carry them to Babylon.

6 ^kAnd thou, Pashur, and all that dwell in thine house, shall go into captivity; and thou shalt come to Babylon, and there thou shalt die, and shalt be buried there, thou, and all thy friends, ^lto whom thou hast prophesied lies.

7 ¶ O LORD, thou hast ^mdeceived me, and I was deceived: thou art stronger than I, and hast prevailed: ⁿI am in derision daily, every one mocketh me.

8 For since I spake I cried out, ^oI cried violence and spoil; ^pbecause the word of the LORD ^qwas made a reproach unto me, and a derision daily.

9 Then I said, I will not make mention of him, nor speak any more in his name. But ^rhis word was in mine heart as a burning fire shut up in my bones, and I was weary with forbearing, and I could not stay.

10 ¶ For ^sI heard the defaming of many, fear on every side. ^tReport, say they, and we will report it. ^uAll my familiars ^vwatched for my halting, ^wsaying, Peradventure he will be enticed, and we shall prevail against him, and we shall take our revenge on him.

11 But ^xthe LORD is with me as a mighty terrible one: therefore ^ymy persecutors shall stumble, and they shall not ^zprevail: they shall be greatly ashamed; for they shall not prosper: their ^{aa}everlasting confusion shall never be forgotten.

12 But, O LORD of hosts, that triest the righteous, and seest the reins and the heart, ^{ab}let me see thy vengeance on them: for unto thee have I opened my cause.

13 ^bSing unto the LORD, praise ye the LORD: for he hath delivered the soul of the poor from the hand of evil-doers.

14 ¶ ^cCursed be the day wherein I was born: let not the day wherein my mother bare me be blessed.

15 Cursed be the man who brought tidings to my father, saying, ^dA man child is born unto thee; making him very glad.

16 And let that man be ^eas the cities which the LORD overthrew, and repented not: and let him hear ^fthe cry in the morning, and the shouting at noon tide; expected in it. By thy powerful arguments and authority thou didst overrule me in it; yet have I met with nothing but derision and persecution. For, since I began to deliver thy messages, I have prophesied of nothing but miseries to befall my people; and on that account all my messages have been made matter of derision and reproach to me; I therefore resolved to prophesy no more: but I found myself inwardly tormented with challenges of conscience and frowns from God, till I again delivered his messages. Though, with fear, I knew that I was every where calumniated, as seditious, false, and dangerous to the state; and mine enemies were ready to spread the most malignant aspersions, in order to procure my disgrace or death; and even my relations and intimates did all they could to ensnare me.

17 ^gBecause he slew me not from the womb; or that my mother might have been my grave, and her womb to be always great with me.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. XIX.—By methods unnumbered the Lord tries to awaken ignorant, stupified, and self-hardened, sinners to repentance, that their ruin may be prevented, or at least appear wholly owing to themselves. And it is proper that rulers in church and state should be warned with peculiar faithfulness and solemnity: and warnings had need to be again and again repeated. Dreadful are the effects of sin upon nations and churches: and often those who have been noted for sinning are made no less noted for suffering; and all attempts to avoid God's ruinous strokes prove fruitless, or worse.

CHAP. XX. Ver 7—10. Contrary to my own inclination, thou hast persuaded me to undertake this office, and hast disappointed me of the comforts which I

CHAP. XXI.

And several that follow, are not placed in the order in which they were preached. Here, in answer to king Zedekiah's request, that he would entreat the Lord's assistance, and procure his direction, when the Chaldeans had begun the war, Jeremiah (1) Foretells the inevitable ruin of Jerusalem and its inhabitants, Zedekiah and his courtiers included; 1—7. (2) Advises the people to make the best they could of their situation, by surrendering themselves to Nebuchadnezzar in due time; 8—10. (3) Warns Zedekiah and his court to repent of their wickedness, and execute just judgment, and not to trust to the strength of Jerusalem, which should certainly be destroyed; 11—14.

THE word which came unto Jeremiah from the LORD, when king Zedekiah sent unto him Pashur the son of Melchiah, and Zephaniah the son of Maaseiah the priest, saying,

2 Inquire, I pray thee, of the LORD for us; for Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon maketh war against us; if so be that the LORD will deal with us according to all his wondrous works, that he may go up from us.

3 ¶ Then said Jeremiah unto them, Thus shall ye say to Zedekiah;

4 Thus saith the LORD God of Israel, Behold, I will turn back the weapons of war that are in your hands, wherewith ye fight against the king of Babylon, and against the Chaldeans, which besiege you without the walls, and I will assemble them into the midst of this city.

5 ^hAnd I myself will fight against you with an outstretched hand and with a strong arm, even in anger, and in fury, and in great wrath.

6 And I will smite the inhabitants of this city, both man and beast: they shall die of a great pestilence.

7 And afterward, saith the LORD, I will deliver Zedekiah king of Judah, and his servants, and the people, and such as are left in this city from the pestilence, from the sword, and from the famine, into the hand of Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon, and into the hand of their enemies, and into the hand of those that seek their life: and he shall smite them with the edge of the sword; he shall not spare them, neither have pity, nor have mercy.

8 ¶ And unto this people thou shalt say, Thus saith the LORD, Behold, I set before you the way of life and the way of death.

9 He that abideth in this city shall die by the sword, and by the famine, and by the pestilence: but he that goeth out, and falleth to the Chaldeans that besiege you, he shall live, and his life shall be unto him for a prey.

10 For I have set my face against this city for evil, and not for good, saith the LORD: it shall be given into the hand of the king of Babylon, and he shall burn it with fire.

11 ¶ And, touching the house of the king of Judah, say, Hear ye the word of the LORD;

12 O house of David, Thus saith the LORD, Execute judgment in the morning, and deliver him that is spoiled out of the hand of the oppressor, lest my fury go out like fire, and burn that none can quench it, because of the evil of your doings.

13 Behold, I am against thee, O inhabitant of the valley, and rock of the plain, saith the LORD; who say, Who shall come down against us? or who shall enter into our habitations?

14 But I will punish you according to the fruit of your doings, saith the LORD: and I will kindle a fire in the forest thereof, and it shall devour all things round about it.

CHAP. XXII.

Here we have (1) A message from God to the court of king Jehoiakim; in which 1. He, his princes, and subjects, are admonished to execute judgment and justice if they desired to be happy, and threatened with desolating judgments if they did not; 1—9. 2. They are advised to lament the fate of king Jehoiakim, who was carried prisoner to Egypt never to return, rather than of Josiah who was slain; 10—12. 3. Jehoiakim is reproved, because, contrary to the pious and encouraging pattern of Josiah his father, he had abandoned himself to vain glory, carnal security, sacrilege, oppression, and murder; and is threatened with a disgraceful end; 13—19. (2) We have a second message to king Jehoiachin his son, threatening 1. That the Jews, however haughty in their prosperity, should be very timorous and abject in their troubles; 20—23. 2. That Jehoiachin himself should be abandoned by God, and apprehended by the Chaldeans; and that none of his seed should prosper, at least as kings of Judah; 24—30.

THUS saith the LORD, Go down to the house of the king of Judah, and speak there this word,

2 And say, Hear the word of the LORD, O king of Judah, that sittest upon the throne of David, thou, and thy servants, and thy people that enter in by these gates:

3 Thus saith the LORD, Execute ye judgment and righteousness, and deliver the spoiled out of the hand of the oppressor; and do no wrong, do no violence, to the stranger, the fatherless, nor the widow, neither shed innocent blood in this place.

4 For, if ye do this thing indeed, then shall there enter in by the gates of this house kings sitting upon the throne of David, riding in chariots and on depths of weakness and guilt. Alas, what vanity and vexation of spirit fill up human life! But absurd is sinful passion when allowed to ramble. And it is dangerous to have an unbridled tongue while our passions are strong.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. XXI.—God often honours his ministers when they think their days are consumed in shame. And they, who would not take God's direction for deliverance from sin, would often gladly take it for escaping from trouble. But it is vain to hope that God will do that for us in our sin which he did for others in their integrity; or that any thing will help us when he is our determined adversary; or that men will pity us when we have forfeited his compassion. An ignominious slavery, or a miserable death, is but a dreadful alternative. But it is best to give up the defence of our country when we can do nothing for its relief. It is but a disgrace for men to be descended of godly ancestors when they indulge themselves in impiety. When nations are in danger princes ought without delay to reform themselves and their subjects: and ministers, who faithfully admonish them to it, had need to be well furnished with faith and courage.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. XX.—How heartily the wicked, especially among the clergy, hate the faithful ministers of Christ! They, who boldly remonstrate against the wickedness of an abandoned generation, must scarcely expect the common formalities of justice. But God can soon make those, who would frighten his prophets, a terror to themselves. And they who attempt to stop their mouth do but hasten their own doom. It is never safe for ministers to promise themselves much comfort on earth. Neither the wisdom of the serpent, nor the harmlessness of the dove, will be able to preserve them from reproach and derision. Nay, ridicule and contempt are the common weapons of the ungodly against the preachers of truth. And it is no small pain to a faithful soul to hear God's messages treated with levity and contempt. To faint in the Lord's way, or to wish that we had never entered into it, because we meet with difficulties, is extremely weak and foolish. But it is an ease for burdened souls to pour out their complaints before the Lord: even that which is terrible in him turns out to their comfort. And, when they avenge not themselves, but commit their cause to him, he will compass them about with songs of expected, and afterwards enjoyed, deliverance. But, alas, how inconstant are the frames of the best on earth! Now they mount up to heaven in excellency; but soon descend to the horses, he, and his servants, and his people.

5 But, 'if ye will not hear these words, I swear ^g by himself, saith the LORD, that ^hthis house shall become a desolation.

6 For thus saith the LORD unto the king's house of Judah, Thou art ⁱGilead unto me, and the head of Lebanon: yet surely ^kI will make thee a wilderness, and cities which are not inhabited.

7 And ^lI will prepare destroyers against thee, every one with his weapons; and they shall cut down thy choice cedars, and cast ^mthem into the fire.

8 And ⁿmany nations shall pass by this city, and they shall say every man to his neighbour, Wherefore hath the LORD done thus unto this great city?

9 Then they shall answer, Because they have forsaken the covenant of the LORD their God, and worshipped other gods, and served them.

10 ¶ Weep ye not for the dead, neither bemoan him: but weep sore for ^ohim that goeth away; for he shall return no more, nor see his native country.

11 For thus saith the LORD touching ^pShallum, the son of Josiah, king of Judah, who reigned instead of Josiah his father, who went forth out of this place, He shall not return thither any more:

12 But he shall die in the place whither they have led him captive, and shall see this land no more.

13 ¶ Wo unto ^qhim that buildeth his house by unrighteousness, and his chambers by wrong; ^rthat useth his neighbour's service without wages, and giveth him not for his work;

14 That saith, 'I will build me a wide house and ^slarge chambers, and cutteth him out ^tlarge windows; and ^uit is ceiled with cedar, and painted with vermilion.

15 Shalt thou reign because thou closest ^vthyself in cedar? did not thy ^wfather eat and drink, and ^xdo judgment and justice, and then ^yit was well with him?

16 He judged the cause of the poor and needy; then ^zit was well with him: ^{aa}was not this to know me? saith the LORD.

17 ^{ab}But thine eyes and thine heart are not but for thy covetousness, and for to shed innocent blood, and for oppression, and for ^{ac}violence to do it.

18 Therefore thus saith the LORD concerning Jehoiakim the son of Josiah king of Judah, ^{ad}They shall not lament for him, ^{ae}saying, Ah my brother! or, Ah sister! they shall not lament for him, ^{af}saying, Ah lord! or, Ah his glory!

19 ^{ag}He shall be buried with the burial of an ass, drawn and cast forth beyond the gates of Jerusalem.

20 ¶ ^{ah}Go up to Lebanon, and cry, and lift up thy voice in Bashan, and cry from the passages: for all thy lovers are destroyed.

21 I spake unto thee in thy ^{ai}prosperity; but ^{aj}thou saidst, I will not hear. ^{ak}This hath been thy manner from thy youth, that thou obeyedst not my voice.

22 ^{al}The wind shall eat up all thy pastors, and thy lovers shall go into captivity: surely then ^{am}shalt thou be ashamed and confounded for all thy wickedness.

23 O ^{an}inhabitant of Lebanon, that ^{ao}makest thy nest in the cedars, ^{ap}how gracious shalt thou be when pangs come upon thee, the pain as of a woman in travail!

24 ^{aq}As I live, saith the LORD, though ^{ar}Coniah the son of Jehoiakim king of Judah were ^{as}the signet upon my right hand, yet would I pluck thee thence;

25 And I ^{at}will give thee into the hand of them that seek thy life, and into the hand of ^{au}them whose face thou fearest, even into the hand of Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon, and into the hand of the Chaldeans.

26 And I will ^{av}cast thee out, and thy mother that bare thee, into another country, where ye were not born, and there shall ye die.

27 But to the land whereunto they ^{aw}desire to return, ^{ax}thither shall they not return.

28 ^{ay}Is this man Coniah ^{az}a despised broken idol? ^{ba}is he a vessel wherein is no pleasure? wherefore are they cast out, ^{bb}he and his seed, and are cast into a land which they know not?

29 ^{bc}O earth, earth, earth, hear the word of the LORD.

30 Thus saith the LORD, ^{bd}Write ye this man childless, a man ^{be}that shall not prosper in his days: for ^{bf}'no man of his seed shall prosper, sitting upon the throne of David, and ruling any more in Judah.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. XXII.—Ministers must be faithful and bold, and tell kings and courtiers of their sins, dangers, and duties, as well as others. It is only in keeping God's commandments that we can expect a great reward. He has always instruments duly prepared for destructive work as well as for building up. And men's sins are sometimes so plainly marked in their judgments that even heathens can justify his procedure, for he never casts them off till they first cast off him. Dying saints may be justly envied, whilst living sinners are to be pitied. No education or example can change men's hearts: but it is a terrible aggravation of men's wickedness that it is contrary to their pious education. Proud and mischievous rebellion against God entails upon multitudes the most lasting shame and disgrace; nay, distinguished pride is generally followed by distinguished dishonour and misery, either in life or in death. It is extremely foolish to set our hearts upon that which can be easily taken from us, or made a curse to us. And none are more apt to appear mean, or to pretend piety under adversity, than those who boast highly amidst prosperity. It were well if what we suffer would bring us to a serious repentance. Sometimes persons are exalted even to thrones, that God may pour the more public and lasting disgrace upon them and theirs. Nor need the greatest to be confident, since they know not what debasement and misery await them and their seed. But it is hard to awaken sinners, lost in sensuality and earthly mindedness. And how sovereign is God in making men fruitful or childless, honoured or dishonoured, as he thinks fit!

CHAP. XXIII. Ver. 5, 6. Behold, in the fulness of time the Son of God shall appear in a holy, but debased, human nature; who, as God's King set up in his church, shall, with astonishing success, reform the world, and destroy the wicked out of it. By him shall his spiritual Israel be delivered from their sin and misery, and blessed with all spiritual and eternal blessings. In his holiness of nature, obedience of life, and satisfactory sufferings, he shall fulfil for us a complete and everlasting righteousness; by the imputation of which to us for our justification, he shall render us perfectly righteous in law before God as our Judge, and thus secure the gradual sanctification of our nature and practice.
9, 10. I am grieved to see the false prophets deluding the people into wickedness; and I tremble at the fearful judgments which God, in his infinite holiness, hath denounced against them. For, though the wrath of God has already begun to destroy the country for the abounding wickedness of its inhabitants, they continue to employ their whole power and labour in promoting and encouraging it. 17—20. They encourage the wicked and profane to hope that the Lord will prosper and protect them in their sins; and pretend that themselves alone know his mind, and that no message of reproof or threatening deserves any credit. But a sudden and dreadful storm of judgments shall overtake and ruin them, which shall force them to regard and believe such threatenings.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. XXIII.—At their own infinite hazard, rulers neglect to execute their office to the honour of God and the welfare of his people. But, though they should not, he will, at last, see to these ends. And often he mercifully gathers his people after he has wrathfully cut off their rulers. The church's peace, happiness, and honour, are not founded in the external pomp of her rulers, but in having Jesus Christ as her Prophet, Priest, and King. And his spiritual deliverances are more remarkable than the temporal

CHAP. XXIV.

Now Jeconiah king of Judah, and many of his subjects, were prisoners, and slaves in Babylon. Here, by a vision of two baskets, one of very good, and the other of very bad figs, God informs Jeremiah that he would remarkably preserve, protect, and reform, many of those that were already captives in Babylon, and bring part of them back to Canaan; but would fearfully plague, scatter, and destroy, Zedekiah and his subjects, who still remained in Judea; 1—10

THE LORD shewed me, and, behold, two baskets of figs were set before the temple of the LORD, after that Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon had carried away captive Jeconiah, the son of Jehoiakim king of Judah, and the princes of Judah, with the carpenters and smiths, from Jerusalem, and had brought them to Babylon.

2 'One basket had very good figs, even like the figs that are first ripe: and the other basket had very naughty figs, which could not be eaten *they were so bad.

3 Then said the LORD unto me, 'What seest thou, Jeremiah? And I said, Figs; the good figs very good; and the evil very evil, that cannot be eaten, they are so evil.

4 ¶ Again the word of the LORD came unto me, saying,

5 Thus saith the LORD the God of Israel, Like these good figs, 'so will I acknowledge †them that are carried away captive of Judah, whom I have sent out of this place into the land of the Chaldeans 'for their good.

6 For 'I will set mine eyes upon them for good, and 'I will bring them again to this land; and I will build them, and not pull them down; and I will plant them, and not pluck them up.

7 And 'I will give them an heart to know me, that I am the LORD; and 'they shall be my people, and I will be their God: for they shall return unto me with their 'whole heart.

8 ¶ And as the evil 'figs, which cannot be eaten they are so evil, surely thus saith the LORD, so will I give Zedekiah the king of Judah, and his princes, and the residue of Jerusalem, that remain in this land, and them that 'dwell in the land of Egypt:

9 And I will deliver them †to 'be removed into all the kingdoms of the earth for their hurt, to be a reproach and a proverb, a taunt and a curse, in all places whither I shall drive them.

10 And 'I will send the sword, the famine, and the pestilence, among them, till they be consumed from off the land that I gave unto them and to their fathers.

ones granted to the Jewish nation. That sinners dishonour God, and ruin themselves, are very grievous considerations to gracious souls. But no guilt is so aggravated as that of profane clergymen. And nothing so emboldens and hardens sinners, as when teachers, by their example or doctrine, encourage them in wickedness. No plague is more dangerous than clergymen, who intrude into their office by the influence of patrons or church rulers, without any commission from Christ, or who preach another gospel, as if men's own works, however insignificant, could recommend them to the favour of God. It tends to render men quite irreligious and atheistical. And no preachers are so confident of their own abilities as evil and erroneous ones. If God call men to the ministry, he will not only qualify them for it, but give them some success in it. And, while profane ministers ought to be detested by all, as the very offscourings of mankind, it is infinitely dangerous to sport with, or make bywords of, any part of the scripture. God will honour and magnify his own word in the ruin of the mockers and perverters of it.

CHAP. XXV.

After the date of this prophecy, from that year in which the sword of the Lord, by the Chaldeans, began to be drawn against the nations; 1. We have (1) A review of the divine messages delivered to the Jews, particularly for the three and twenty years preceding, and of their contempt of them; 2—7. (2) A very express threatening of the destruction of Judah and Jerusalem, and the desolation of their country for seventy years, till the Chaldean empire should be ruined by the Medes and Persians; 8—14. (3) A prediction of the devastation of all the nations around Babylon by Nebuchadnezzar, and then of Babylon itself, represented by an intoxicating cup of God's wrath put into their hands, beginning at Jerusalem; 9, 10, 15—28: by a sword sent among them; 29—33: and by a desolation from lions among shepherds and their flocks and pastures; 34—38.

THE word that came to Jeremiah concerning all the people of Judah in the fourth year of Jehoiakim the son of Josiah king of Judah, that was the first year of Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon;

2 The which Jeremiah the prophet spake unto all the people of Judah, and to all the inhabitants of Jerusalem, saying,

3 From the thirteenth year of Josiah the son of Amon king of Judah, even unto this day, (that is, the three and twentieth year), *the word of the LORD hath come unto me, and I have spoken unto you, rising early and speaking; but ye have not hearkened.

4 And the LORD hath sent unto you all his servants the prophets, rising early and sending them; but ye have not hearkened, nor inclined your ear to hear.

5 They said, Turn ye again now every one from his evil way, and from the evil of your doings, and dwell in the land that the LORD hath given unto you and to your fathers for ever and ever:

6 And go not after other gods to serve them, and to worship them, and provoke me not to anger with the works of your hands, and I will do you no hurt.

7 Yet ye have not hearkened unto me, saith the LORD; that ye might provoke me to anger with the works of your hands to your own hurt.

8 ¶ Therefore thus saith the LORD of hosts, Because ye have not heard my words, 9 Behold, I will send and take all the families of the north, saith the LORD, and Nebuchadnezzar the king of Babylon my servant, and will bring them against this land, and against the inhabitants thereof, and against all these nations round about, and will utterly destroy them, and make them an astonishment, and an hissing, and perpetual desolations.

10 Moreover † I will take from them the voice of mirth, and the voice of gladness, the voice of the bridegroom, and the voice of the bride, the sound of the millstones, and the light of the candle.

11 And this whole land shall be a desolation, and an astonishment; and these nations shall serve the king of Babylon seventy years.

12 ¶ And it shall come to pass, when seventy years are accomplished, that I will † punish the king of Babylon, and that nation, saith the LORD, for their iniquity, and the land of the Chaldeans, and will make it perpetual desolations.

13 And I will bring upon that land all my words which I have pronounced against it, even all that is written in this book, which Jeremiah hath prophesied against all the nations.

14 For many nations and great kings shall serve themselves of them also: and I will recompense them according to their deeds, and according to the works of their own hands.

15 ¶ For thus saith the Lord God of Israel unto me, Take the wine cup of this fury at my hand, and cause all the nations, to whom I send thee, to drink it.

16 And they shall drink, and be moved, and be mad, because of the sword that I will send among them.

17 Then took I the cup at the LORD's hand, and made all the nations to drink, unto whom the LORD had sent me:

18 To wit, Jerusalem, and the cities of Judah, and the kings thereof, and the princes thereof, to make them a desolation, an astonishment, an hissing, and a curse; as it is this day;

19 Pharaoh king of Egypt, and his servants, and his princes, and all his people;

20 And all the mingled people, and all the kings of the land of Uz, and all the kings of the land of the Philistines, and Ashkelon, and Azzah, and Ekron, and the remnant of Ashdod,

21 Edom, and Moab, and the children of Ammon,

22 And all the kings of Tyrus, and all the kings of Zidon, and the kings of the isles which are beyond the sea,

23 Dedan, and Tema, and Buz, and all that are in the utmost corners,

24 And all the kings of Arabia, and all the kings of the mingled people that dwell in the desert,

25 And all the kings of Zimri, and all the kings of Elam, and all the kings of the Medes, 26 And all the kings of the north, far and near, one with another, and all the kingdoms of the world, which are upon the face of the earth: and the king of Sheshach shall drink after them.

27 Therefore thou shalt say unto them, Thus saith the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel, Drink ye and be drunken, and REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. XXIV.—Greatly mysterious are the ways of God's providence. The most afflictive are often the most useful. The same dispensation is to some a blessing, and to others a ruinous plague. And all ought to be taken as out of God's own hand. Exact is his knowledge of, and care for, his people in the worst of times. It is he who, by his almighty grace, must renew our heart, and draw us to himself, as well as receive us with open arms to his favour, and to the enjoyment of all the privileges of his people. But, alas, what vengeance, in time and eternity, must await impenitent transgressors? And spue, and fall, and rise no more, because of the sword which I will send among you.

28 And it shall be, if they refuse to take the cup at thine hand to drink, then shalt thou say unto them, 'Thus saith the LORD of hosts, Ye shall certainly drink.

29 For, lo, I begin to bring evil on the city *which is called by my name; and 'should ye be utterly unpunished? Ye shall not be unpunished: for I will call for a sword upon all the inhabitants of the earth, saith the LORD of hosts.

30 Therefore prophesy thou against them all these words, and say unto them, The LORD shall "roar from on high, and utter his voice from his holy habitation; he shall mightily roar upon his habitation; 'he shall give a shout, as they that tread the grapes, against all the inhabitants of the earth.

31 A noise shall come, even to the ends of the earth; 'for the LORD hath a controversy with the nations; he will plead with all flesh; he will give them that are wicked to the sword, saith the LORD.

32 Thus saith the LORD of hosts, Behold, 'evil shall go forth from nation to nation, and a great whirlwind shall be raised up from the coasts of the earth.

33 And the slain of the LORD shall be at that day from one end of the earth even unto the other end of the earth: they shall not be lamented, neither gathered, nor buried; they shall be dung upon the ground.

34 ¶ Howl, ye 'shepherds, and cry; and wallow yourselves in the ashes, ye principal of the flock: for 'the days of your slaughter and of your dispersions are accomplished: and ye shall fall like 'a pleasant vessel.

35 And 'the shepherds 'shall have no way to flee, nor the principal of the flock to escape.

36 A voice of the cry of the shepherds, and an howling of the principal of the flock, shall be heard; for the LORD hath spoiled their *pasture.

37 And the peaceable habitations are cut down, 'because of the fierce anger of the LORD.

38 He hath forsaken his covert, as the lion: for their land is 'desolate, because of the fierceness of the oppressor, and because of his fierce anger.

CHAP. XXVI.

Here (1) By God's direction, Jeremiah faithfully warns the assembled Jews that, if they did not speedily repent and reform, their city and temple should be destroyed; 1—7. (2) Being, on this account, prosecuted for his life by the priests and false prophets, he boldly avows his divine authority for what he had done, and his good intent in doing it, and warns them that, if they murdered him, it would be at their peril; 7—15. (3) By the prudence of the civil rulers he is protected (as Micah had been by Hezekiah), even while king Jehoiakim murdered Urijah, who was less bold; 16—24.

Before Christ
cir. 607.

IN the beginning of the reign of Jehoiakim the son of Josiah king of Judah came this word from the LORD, saying,

2 Thus saith the LORD, Stand 'in the court of the LORD's house, and speak unto all the cities of Judah, which 'come to worship in the LORD's house, 'all the words that I command thee to speak unto them; diminish not a word:

3 'If so be they will hearken, and turn every man from his evil way, that I may repent me of the evil which I purpose to do unto them, because of the evil of their doings.

4 And thou shalt say unto them, Thus saith the LORD, 'If ye will not hearken to me to walk in my law, which I have set before you,

5 'To hearken to the words of my servants the prophets, whom I sent unto you, both rising up early, and sending them; (but ye have not hearkened);

6 Then will I make this house 'like Shiloh, and will make this city 'a curse to all the nations of the earth.

7 So 'the priests, and the prophets, and all the people, heard Jeremiah speaking these words in the house of the LORD.

8 ¶ Now it came to pass, when Jeremiah had made an end of speaking all that the LORD had commanded him to speak unto all the people, that 'the priests, and the prophets, and all the people, took him, saying, Thou shalt surely die.

9 'Why hast thou prophesied in the name of the LORD, saying, This house shall be like Shiloh, and this city shall be desolate without an inhabitant? 'and all the people were gathered against Jeremiah 'in the house of the LORD.

10 When 'the princes of Judah heard these things, then they came up from the king's house unto the house of the LORD, and sat down 'in the entry of the 'new gate of the LORD's house.

11 Then 'spake the priests and the prophets unto the princes, and to all the people, saying, 'This man is worthy to die; 'for he hath prophesied against this city, as ye have heard with your ears.

12 ¶ Then spake Jeremiah unto all the princes, and to all the people, saying, 'The LORD sent me to prophesy against this house, and against this city, all the words that ye have heard.

13 Therefore now 'amend your ways, and your doings, and obey the voice of the LORD your God; and the LORD will powerful, or secure. And they who have plagued their neighbours, and especially the people of God, shall have their fill of vexation and misery at last.—Men, who are ambitious of power, generally become troublers and destroyers to the world around. But great earthly pomp and power are of very uncertain, and often of very short, continuance. And no sinners can either withstand or outrun the judgments of God. When wars are once kindled, the higher men are, the more is their danger; and even many, who had lived harmlessly, share in the hardships. But, if the ravages of war be so tremendous, what infinitely more fearful work must the unrestrained fury of the Almighty God make in hell for ever and ever! Let then wars and troubles, however distant, make me to hear and fear, and embrace his new covenant of peace offered in the gospel, that I may at last enter into that peaceable habitation, into which no fire or sword, no violence or destruction, can ever enter.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. XXV.—God's words, which concern all, ought to be publicly proclaimed. He keeps an exact account of every circumstance relative to our enjoyment and improvement of the means of grace. And they who declare his messages ought to be earnest and diligent in delivering them, that they may at least be free from the blood of all men; and all of them should insist upon the same leading truths of the gospel. But, if God's messengers of peace be contemned, his messengers of wrath will soon follow, and make dreadful work. God does not usually strike without warning; but, if we will not hear, we must perish. When judgment begins at the house of God, it ordinarily makes fearful and overturning work among all, even the mightiest nations around, before it cease. That God, to whom all nations are accountable, can easily, by a small sip of his unbounded wrath, by a stroke of his sword, or the roaring of his voice, terrify, perplex, and destroy them, however numerous, repent him of the evil that he hath pronounced against you.

14 As for me, behold, ^aI am in your hand: do with me ^aas seemeth good and meet unto you.

15 But know ye for certain, that, if ye put me to death, ^aye shall surely bring innocent blood upon yourselves, and upon this city, and upon the inhabitants thereof: for of a truth the LORD hath sent me unto you, to speak all these words in your ears.

15 ¶ ^aThen said ^bthe princes, and all the people, unto the priests, and to the prophets, This man is not worthy to die; for he hath spoken to us in the name of the LORD our God.

17 Then rose up certain of ^cthe elders of the land, and spake to all the assembly of the people, saying,

18 ^dMicah the Morasthite prophesied in the days of Hezekiah king of Judah, and spake to all the people of Judah, saying, Thus saith the LORD of hosts, ^eZion shall be plowed like a field, and Jerusalem shall become heaps, and ^fthe mountain of the house as ^gthe high places of a forest.

19 Did Hezekiah king of Judah and all Judah put him at all to death? ^hdid he not fear the LORD, and besought ⁱthe LORD, and the LORD repented him of the evil which he had pronounced against them? ^jThus might we procure great evil against our souls.

20 ¶ And there was also a man that prophesied in the name of the LORD, Urijah the son of Shemaiah of ^kKirjath-jearim, who prophesied against this city, and against this land, according to all the words of Jeremiah:

21 And when Jehoiakim the king, with all his mighty men, and all the princes, heard his words, ^lthe king sought to put him to death: but when Urijah heard it he was afraid, and ^mfled, and went into Egypt:

22 And Jehoiakim the king sent ⁿmen into Egypt, ^onamely, Elnathan the son of ^pAchbor, and ^qcertain men with him into Egypt.

23 And they fetched forth Urijah out of Egypt, and brought him unto Jehoiakim the king, who ^rslew him with the sword, and cast his dead body into the graves of the ^scommon people.

24 Nevertheless, the hand of ^tAhikam the son of Shaphan was with Jeremiah, that they should not give him into the hand of the people, to put him to death.

CHAP. XXVII.

Since Jeremiah could not persuade men by repentance to avert their destruction by the Chaldeans, he here, directed by God, (1) Along with yokes representing their bondage, sends advice to REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. XXVI.—God patiently waits, and earnestly calls men to repentance. The dispensations of his providence are just, and even similar. And, if men will not be subject to his command, they must be subjected to his curse and the execution of it. If they will not be warned they must be condemned. Profane clergymen never fail to hate and persecute such as are faithful, for their kind warnings. But to be bold in preaching, and patient in suffering, is truly worthy of a minister of Christ. And no damage or death ought to make them in the least recede from God's truth. If they be faithful, it is at their infinite peril who persecute or murder them. It is proper that men should deter themselves, or others from sin, by the irreparable mischief it will do to our souls. And it is the wisdom of the greatest to regard the admonitions of JEHOVAH. More justice may be expected from profligate civil judges than from abandoned clergy. And yet many wicked princes eagerly draw down the the kings of the nations, whose ruin he had foretold, to mitigate their calamities, and preserve their and their subjects' lives, by a ready submission to the Chaldeans, while the seventy years of their monarchy should continue, and to beware of hearkening to their diviners, who might flatter them with vain hopes of otherwise escaping; 1—11. (2) Gives the same advice to Zedekiah and his Jewish subjects, as the only means of preventing the destruction of their capital and temple, and the captivity of the poor remains of the people; and admonishes them to beware of hearkening to the false prophets, who flattered them to their ruin; 12—22.

IN the beginning of the reign of ^aJehoiakim the son of Josiah king of Judah ^bcame this word unto Jeremiah from the LORD, saying, vengeance of God upon their heads, by the persecution of their faithful admonishers. But it is beyond their power to cut off God's ministers or worshippers till their testimony be finished: and, whenever it please God, he can, in the very worst of times, raise up protectors to his servants. Let us then always attend to our duty, and commit our safety to God, who has the hearts of all men in his hand, and can raise up friends in the day of trial where we least expected to find them.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. XXVII.—The whole earth is the Lord's, and he may dispose of it as he pleases. And, since he puts little value upon it, he often gives most of it to the wicked; and soon he will call them to account for their use of his gifts. Civil dominion is far from being founded on either the reality or the appearance of saving grace. And they, who have no shadow of a right to eternal life, may have a justifiable right to temporal enjoyments. They, who in any respect serve God, never lose by his service: and, if we will not serve our Maker and Preserver, it is but just that we be forced to serve our enemies. It is very unsafe to struggle against his providence; for when he judges he will

(2) Jeremiah wishes his words may prove true; but appeals to the event predicted, well knowing it would disprove them; 5—9. (3) He foretells that such as believed Hananiah's predictions should thereby increase their own misery; and that Hananiah should be quickly punished with death.—This happened accordingly about two months after; 12—17.

And, if his judgments are begun, it is better to alleviate the burden by submission than to make it heavier by perverseness. Yea, though we should never see the deliverance of God's church, we ought never to despair of it: he will at last, in wrath, remember mercy. Meanwhile, let us detest flattering clergy. Incapable of interceding for their welfare, these hurry nations and churches into utter destruction, and perish in misery, along with those whom they have deceived.

CHAP. XXIX.

In the preceding chapter we had Jeremiah's contest with a false prophet face to face: here is another carried on by letters. In the letter which Jeremiah wrote to the captives in Babylon; 1—3.

(1) He directs them how to make their captivity as easy as they could; 4—7. (2) He cautions them to give no credit to their false prophets, who promised them a speedy relief; 8, 9.

(3) He assures them that, after seventy years, the Lord would mercifully restore them to their own land; 10—14. (4) He foretells that those Jews who remained in Canaan should, after manifold grievous disasters, be brought captives to Babylon; 15—19. (5) He foretells the ruin of two false prophets at Babylon, who, by their bad example and flattering seductions, encouraged them to wickedness; 20—23. In resentment, She-maiah, a false prophet at Babylon, wrote to the priests at Jerusalem, to persecute Jeremiah as a villain or madman; 22—29: and thereby drew upon himself and family a prediction of ruin by Jeremiah; 30—32.

NOW these are the words of the letter that Jeremiah the prophet sent from Jerusalem unto the residue of the elders which were carried away captives, and to the priests, and to the prophets, and to all the people whom Nebuchadnezzar had carried away captive from Jerusalem to Babylon;

2 (After that Jeconiah the king, and the queen, and the eunuchs, the princes of Judah and Jerusalem, and the carpenters, and the smiths, were departed from Jerusalem);

3 By the hand of Elasah the son of Shaphan, and Gemariah the son of Hilkiyah, (whom Zedekiah king of Judah sent unto Babylon to Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon), saying,

4 Thus saith the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel, unto all that are carried away captives, whom I have caused to be carried away from Jerusalem unto Babylon;

5 Build ye houses, and dwell in them; and plant gardens, and eat the fruit of them.

6 Take ye wives, and beget sons and daughters; and take wives for your sons, and give your daughters to husbands, that they may bear sons and daughters; that ye may be increased there, and not diminished.

7 And seek the peace of the city, whither I have caused you to be carried away captives; and pray unto the LORD for it: for in the peace thereof shall ye have peace.

8 ¶ For thus saith the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel, Let not your prophets and your diviners, that be in the midst of you, deceive you, neither hearken to your dreams which ye cause to be dreamed.

9 For they prophesy falsely unto you in my name; I have not sent them, saith the LORD.

10 ¶ For thus saith the LORD, that after seventy years be accomplished at Babylon I will visit you, and perform my good word toward you, in causing you to return to this place.

11 For I know the thoughts that I think toward you, saith the LORD, thoughts of peace, and not of evil, to give you an expected end.

12 Then shall ye call upon me, and ye shall go and pray unto me, and I will hearken unto you.

13 And ye shall seek me, and find me, when ye shall search for me with all your heart.

14 And I will be found of you, saith the LORD: and I will turn away your captivity, and I will gather you from all the nations, and from all the places whither I have driven you, saith the LORD; and I will bring you again into the place whence I caused you to be carried away captive.

15 ¶ Because ye have said, The LORD hath raised us up prophets in Babylon;

16 Know that thus saith the LORD, of the king that sitteth upon the throne of David, and of all the people that dwell in this city, and of your brethren that are not gone forth with you into captivity;

17 Thus saith the LORD of hosts, Behold I will send upon them the sword, the famine, and the pestilence, and will make them like vile figs, that cannot be eaten they are so evil.

18 And I will persecute them with the sword, with the famine, and with the pestilence, and will deliver them to be removed to all the kingdoms of the earth, to be a curse, and an astonishment, and an hissing, and a reproach, among all the nations whither I have driven them:

19 Because they have not hearkened to my words, saith the LORD, which I sent unto them by my servants the prophets, rising up early, and sending them; but ye would not hear, saith the LORD.

the faithful servants of God must not strive; and, if they are reviled, they must not revile again. God will, in his due time, vindicate their honour, and disgrace and punish their opposers. And none may expect heavier judgments than they who hinder the success of God's word, and seek to prejudice men's minds against the faithful ministers of it. At last every one who ran into sacred offices unseemly, or who preached his own inventions instead of the truths of Christ, shall reap the due reward of his wickedness.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. XXVIII.—False teachers impudently dare to preach their other gospel, and speak lies in God's name. But what is the chaff to the wheat? Not majesty of style, not the inculcating of faith or repentance, but flattering hints of prosperity in sin, mark their discourses. Alas, how strangely were the Jews besotted, who, contrary to manifold warnings, believed such impostors as flattered them to their ruin! But falsehood, advanced with solemnity and confidence, often gains regard. And many dare to affirm that to be God's truth, which shortly will be found a lie, to their own damnation. But 20 ¶ ^aHear ye therefore the word of the LORD, all ye of the captivity, whom ^bI have sent from Jerusalem to Babylon:

21 Thus saith the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel, of Ahab the son of Ko-laiiah, and of Zedekiah the son of Maaseiah, ^cwho prophesy a lie unto you in my name, Behold, I will deliver them into the hand of Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon, and he shall slay them before your eyes;

22 And of them shall be taken up ^da curse by all the captivity of Judah which are in Babylon, saying, The LORD make thee like Zedekiah, and like Ahab, whom the king of Babylon ^eroasted in the fire;

23 Because they ^fhave committed villany in Israel, and have committed adultery with their neighbours' wives, and have spoken lying words in my name, which I have not commanded them; ^geven I know, and am a witness, saith the LORD.

24 ¶ Thus shalt thou also speak to Shemaiah the ^hNehelamite, saying,

25 Thus speaketh the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel, saying, Because thou hast ⁱsent letters in thy name unto all the people that are at Jerusalem, and to Zephaniah the son of Maaseiah the priest, and to all the priests, saying,

26 The LORD hath made thee priest in the stead of ^jJehoiada the priest, that ye should be officers in the house of the LORD, for every man that is ^kmad, and maketh himself a prophet, that thou shouldest put him in prison and in the stocks:

27 Now therefore why hast thou not ^lreproved ^mJeremiah of Anathoth, who ⁿmaketh himself a prophet to you?

28 For therefore he sent unto us in Babylon, saying, ^oThis captivity is long: build ye houses, and dwell in them; and plant gardens, and eat the fruit of them.

29 And Zephaniah the priest read this letter in the ears of Jeremiah the prophet.

30 ¶ Then came the word of the LORD unto Jeremiah, saying,

31 Send to all them of the captivity, saying, Thus saith the LORD concerning Shemaiah the Nehelamite, ^pBecause that Shemaiah hath prophesied unto you, and I sent him not, and he caused you to trust in a lie;

32 Therefore thus saith the LORD, Behold, I will punish Shemaiah the Nehelamite, and his seed: he shall not have a man to dwell among this people, neither shall he behold the good that I will do for my people, saith the LORD; ^qbecause he hath taught ^rrebellion against the LORD.

CHAP. XXX.

Hitherto we have had almost nothing but reproofs and threatenings. In this, and the xxxi. xxxiii. and part of xxxii. we have exceeding great and precious promises of the Jews' deliverance from Babylon, and from their present dispersion, as typical of the erection and deliverances of the gospel church. Here it is promised (1) That they should be comfortably delivered from captivity, though they were now in great pain and terror; 1—7: though their enemies were very strong; 8—10: though other nations should be utterly destroyed; 11: though all means of relief should long appear as cut off; though God had justly punished them; 15, 16: and though their case seemed utterly desperate; 17. (2) That, after their restoration, they should have a happy settlement; their cities and temple should be rebuilt; 8: their numbers increased; their religious ordinances observed; 19, 20: their government established, especially in the hands of Christ; God's covenant with them renewed; 22: and their enemies destroyed: 20, 23, 24.

THE ^aword that came to Jeremiah from the LORD, saying,

2 Thus speaketh the Lord God of Israel, saying, ^bWrite thee all the words that I have spoken unto thee in a book.

3 For, lo, the days come, saith the LORD, ^cthat I will bring again the captivity of my people Israel and Judah, saith the LORD; and I will cause them to return to the land that I gave to their fathers, and they shall possess it.

4 ¶ And these are the words that the LORD spake concerning Israel and concerning Judah.

5 For thus saith the LORD, We have heard ^da voice of trembling, ^eof fear, and not of peace.

6 Ask ye now, and see whether ^fa man doth travail with child? wherefore do I see every man with his hands on his loins, ^gas a woman in travail, and all faces are turned into paleness?

7 Alas! for that day is great, so that none is like it: it is even the time of Jacob's trouble; but ^hhe shall be saved out of it.

8 For it shall come to pass in that day, saith the LORD of hosts, ⁱthat I will break his yoke from off thy neck, and will burst thy bonds; and strangers shall no more serve themselves of him:

9 But they shall serve the LORD their God, and David their king, whom I will raise up unto them.

10 ¶ Therefore ^kfear thou not, O my servant Jacob, saith the LORD; neither be dismayed, O Israel: for, lo, I will save thee from afar, and thy seed from the land of their captivity; and Jacob shall return, and ^lshall be in rest, and be quiet, and none shall make him afraid.

11 For ^mI am with thee, saith the gracious returns. Alas, how often men mistake the messengers, the preachers, and prophets, of Satan, for those of Jesus Christ, and credit them as such! But they who flatter men in sin are undoubtedly false prophets. And, if men make themselves vile by their sins, God, in just judgment, will render them vile in their sufferings. If evil clergymen indulge themselves in secret wickedness, let them not wonder if God render them base before all the people on earth, and eternally damned in hell. They, who would be faithful to souls, may expect to be treated by their unfaithful brethren as deceivers or madmen: persecuting zeal, under pretence of regard to the honour of God, will extend its murderous influence to the utmost; and very often church power is employed in tormenting her best friends. But God often renders those friendly to his faithful servants, of whom it could scarcely have been expected; while their persecutors are quickly overwhelmed with ruin; and they that would not wait the due season of God's favours lose their share in them.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. XXIX.—Letters of seasonable comfort or advice, are a service to God and his church. Though God correct his people, he never breaks his covenant with them. And the view of God as our God, and the appointer of our troubles, tends greatly to render us patient under them. In every condition we ought to make the best of what we have, though we should be far from having all we wish. They who behave meekly and quietly often meet with better treatment from strangers than they expected. And, whatever hardships we have to endure in a country, we should pray for its welfare. When people love to be deceived they readily find flatterers to their ruin. But they who trust the promises of God shall never be disappointed. No difficulties can hinder the execution of his purposes, or fulfilment of his promises, beyond the due time. And his promises should excite, not supersede, our earnest prayers. By prayer we go forth to meet the accomplishment of promises. And it is when our applications are fervent, cordial, and persevering, that we may expect LORD, to save thee: though I make a full end of all nations whither I have scattered thee, yet will I not make a full end of thee: but I will correct thee in measure, and will not leave thee altogether unpunished.

12 For thus saith the LORD, Thy bruise is incurable, and thy wound is grievous.

13 There is none to plead thy cause, that thou mayest be bound up: thou hast no healing medicines.

14 All thy lovers have forgotten thee; they seek thee not; for I have wounded thee with the wound of an enemy, with the chastisement of a cruel one, for the multitude of thine iniquity; because thy sins were increased.

15 Why criest thou for thine affliction? thy sorrow is incurable, for the multitude of thine iniquity: because thy sins were increased, I have done these things unto thee.

16 Therefore all they that devour thee shall be devoured; and all thine adversaries, every one of them shall go into captivity; and they that spoil thee shall be a spoil; and all that prey upon thee will I give for a prey.

17 For I will restore health unto thee, and I will heal thee of thy wounds, saith the LORD; because they called thee an outcast, saying, This is Zion, whom no man seeketh after.

18 Thus saith the LORD, Behold, I will bring again the captivity of Jacob's tents, and have mercy on his dwelling places; and the city shall be builded upon her own heap, and the palace shall remain after the manner thereof.

19 And out of them shall proceed thanksgiving, and the voice of them that make merry: and I will multiply them, and they shall not be few; I will also glorify them, and they shall not be small.

20 Their children also shall be as aforetime, and their congregation shall be established before me: and I will punish all that oppress them.

21 And their nobles shall be of themselves, and their governor shall proceed from the midst of them: and I will cause him to draw near, and he shall approach unto me: for who is this that engaged his heart to approach unto me? saith the LORD.

22 And ye shall be my people, and I will be your God.

23 Behold, the whirlwind of the LORD goeth forth with fury, a continuing whirlwind: it shall fall with pain upon the head of the wicked.

24 The fierce anger of the LORD shall not return until he have done it, and until he have performed the intents of his heart: in the latter days ye shall consider it.

CHAP. XXXI.

Continues the Lord's good and comfortable words to the Jews in their Chaldean captivity and present dispersion, which indeed have their principal accomplishment in the gospel kingdom of Jesus Christ. It is promised that (1) God's relation and kindness to them should issue in their restoration to great peace, honour, joy, and plenty; 1—14. (2) By that restoration their grief for the slaughter of their people should be removed; 15—17. (3) That they should evangelically repent of their sins, and God graciously accept them; 18—20. (4) That, in virtue of the Messiah's marvellous incarnation, they should be safely conducted to their country; and great should be their reformation and honour, and their increase of children and cattle, without such diminutions as they had formerly experienced; 21—30. (5) That God should renew his covenant with them, and enrich it with spiritual blessings; 31—34. (6) That these blessings should be secured to their seed, especially to the spiritual Israel, for ever; 34—37. (7) That, as an earnest of these blessings, Jerusalem should be rebuilt, dedicated, and long continue; 38—40.

At the same time, saith the LORD, will I be the God of all the families of Israel, and they shall be my people.

2 Thus saith the LORD, The people which were left of the sword found grace in the wilderness; even Israel, when I went to cause him to rest.

3 The LORD hath appeared of old unto me, saying, Yea, I have loved thee with an everlasting love; therefore with loving-kindness have I drawn thee.

4 Again, I will build thee, and thou shalt be built, O virgin of Israel: thou shalt again be adorned with thy tabrets, and shalt go forth in the dances of them that make merry.

5 Thou shalt yet plant vines upon the mountains of Samaria: the planters shall plant, and shall eat them as common things.

6 For there shall be a day that the watchmen upon the mount Ephraim shall cry, Arise ye, and let us go up to Zion unto the LORD our God.

7 For thus saith the LORD, Sing with gladness for Jacob, and shout among the chief of the nations: publish ye, praise ye, and say, O LORD, save thy people, the remnant of Israel.

8 Behold, I will bring them from the north country, and gather them from the coasts of the earth, and with them the blind and the lame, the woman with child, and her that travaileth with child, REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. XXX.—God's promises ought to be carefully preserved, propagated, considered, and improved. Sin often makes for men a hell upon earth. Very sore trials and miseries often precede the most remarkable deliverances. And diligence in God's service is the proper fruit of his salvations. But there is no true serving of him, but in receiving and serving his Son Jesus Christ, our mystical David. No profession, however plausible, can secure impunity in sin. Nay, though our heaviest afflictions are far lighter than our sins deserved, yet the sins of professors, and even of saints, are often most sharply corrected. But it is only incurable lusts that make incurable troubles. Let God's church be ever so fearfully deserted and despised, he will in due time deliver her. Let therefore her true children give no way to disquieting fears or hopeless sorrows. Never is her deliverance nearer than when all refuges but God have entirely failed her, and all her allies and friends appear disposed to hurt her. If Jesus rise up to the prey, he will work great things for her deliverance.

And to his person, incarnation, covenant engagements, and fulfilment of them, ought we to look through all temporal or spiritual blessings. And, while he destroys his and our enemies, his kindness and relations to, or work for us, ought to engage our hearts in his worship and service.

CHAP. XXXI. Ver. 1—6. I will manifest myself to the Hebrew tribes and gospel church as their God, and will cause them to acknowledge, worship, and serve, me, as my people; as I formerly did in the Arabian desert, on the way to Canaan, when first I espoused the Israelites to myself as my peculiar people, and bestowed on them my ordinances and miraculous favours, after I had delivered them from the murderous cruelty of Pharaoh and of the Amalekites: for that ancient love manifested to them is neither ceased nor weakened. I will yet establish your government in both church and state; and ye shall have great ground of rejoicing, on account of both temporal and spiritual benefits. And ministers thither.

9 They shall come with weeping;
and with supplications will I lead them:
I will cause them to walk by the rivers of waters, in a straight way wherein they shall not stumble: for I am a Father to Israel, and Ephraim is my first-born.

10 Hear the word of the LORD, O ye nations, and declare it in the isles afar off, and say, He that scattered Israel will gather him, and keep him, as a shepherd doth his flock.

11 For the LORD hath redeemed
Jacob, and ransomed him from the hand of him that was stronger than he.

12 Therefore they shall come and sing in the height of Zion, and shall flow together to the godness of the LORD, for wheat, and for wine, and for oil, and for the young of the flock and of the herd: and their soul shall be as a watered garden; and they shall not sorrow any more at all.

13 Then shall the virgin rejoice in the dance, both young men and old together:
for I will turn their mourning into joy, and will comfort them, and make them rejoice from their sorrow.

14 And I will satiate the soul of the priests with fatness, and my people shall be satisfied with my goodness, saith the LORD.

15 ¶ Thus saith the LORD, A voice was heard in Ramah, lamentation, and bitter weeping; Rachel weeping for her children, refused to be comforted for her children, because they were not.

16 Thus saith the LORD, Refrain thy voice from weeping, and thine eyes from tears: for thy work shall be rewarded, saith the LORD; and they shall come again from the land of the enemy.

17 And there is hope in thine end, saith the LORD, that thy children shall come again to their own border.

18 ¶ I have surely heard Ephraim bemoaning himself thus, Thou hast chastised me, and I was chastised, as a bullock unaccustomed to the yoke: turn thou me, and I shall be turned; for thou art the LORD my God.

19 Surely after that I was turned I repented; and after that I was instructed I smote upon my thigh: I was ashamed, yea, even confounded, because I did bear the reproach of my youth.

20 Is Ephraim my dear son? is he a pleasing child? for since I spake against him I do earnestly remember him still:

therefore my bowels are troubled for him; I will surely have mercy upon him, saith the LORD.

21 Set thee up way-marks; make thee high heaps: set thine heart toward the highway, even the way which thou wentest: turn again, O virgin of Israel, turn again to these thy cities.

22 ¶ How long wilt thou go about,
O thou backsliding daughter; for the LORD hath created a new thing in the earth, A woman shall compass a man.

23 Thus saith the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel, As yet they shall use this speech in the land of Judah, and in the cities thereof, when I shall bring again their captivity, The LORD bless thee, O habitation of justice, and mountain of holiness.

24 And there shall dwell in Judah itself, and in all the cities thereof together, husbandmen, and they that go forth with flocks.

25 For I have satiated the weary soul, and I have replenished every sorrowful soul.

26 Upon this I awaked, and beheld; and my sleep was sweet unto me.

27 ¶ Behold, the days come, saith the LORD, that I will sow the house of Israel and the house of Judah with the seed of man, and with the seed of beast.

28 And it shall come to pass, that, like as I have watched over them to pluck up, and to break down, and to throw down, and to destroy, and to afflict, so will I watch over them to build, and to plant, saith the LORD.

29 ¶ In those days they shall say no more, The fathers have eaten a sour grape, and the children's teeth are set on edge:

30 But every one shall die for his own iniquity; every man that eateth the sour grape, his teeth shall be set on edge.

31 ¶ Behold, the days come, saith the LORD, that I will make a new covenant with the house of Israel and with the house of Judah:

32 Not according to the covenant that I made with their fathers in the day that I took them by the hand to bring them out of the land of Egypt; which my covenant they brake, although I was an husband unto them, saith the LORD:

33 But this shall be the covenant that I will make with the house of Israel;
After those days, saith the LORD, I will put my law in their inward parts, and and others shall stir up their companions to join the church and attend the ordiof the Jews, or of the gospel church, I will marvellously deliver them, and conduct them, however unfit in themselves, to their own land, or to the new covenant state; render them penitent and prayerful, and in the most affectionate manner supply them with every thing necessary. 10—14. All the nations around shall know and be affected with the marvellous salvation, temporal and spiritual, which I will work for them: they themselves shall, with great joy, repair to the temple and the ordinances of the gospel, in order to praise me for my diversified kindness. Universal shall be the joy and prosperity of all ranks: ministers and people shall be plentifully supplied, and be mutual blessings one to another. 15—17. The terrible mourning occasioned by the captivity in Babylon, the slaughter of the infants at Bethlehem, or rejection of the Jewish nation, shall be turned into joy, by the restoration of the Benjamites and other Jews, and by the accession of multitudes to the gospel church. 18—20. Deeply penitent for their sins, and earnestly desirous of spiritual blessings, shall the Jews return from Babylon and especially from their present dispersion; and graciously will I receive them into favour, and abundantly bless them. 21—26. Return with the utmost care and dispatch to your country, and erect marks by the way to direct such as may follow you; yea, though for your sinful apostasies ye have been long tossed to and fro, prepare for a return to your country, where the Messiah shall be born: and, after your return, great shall be your reformation in righteousness and holiness; numerous shall be your flocks of cattle, and as numerous your worshippers of God; for I will refresh and supply you with every good thing.—Upon this Jeremiah awaked, and was delighted with the comfortable revelations which had been made to him in his dream or vision. 27—30. I will exceedingly multiply themselves and their cattle; and will manifest myself as eager to restore and bless them as ever I seemed to destroy them. Nor shall they have any more reason to complain that they are punished for their fathers' iniquities, but every one shall suffer for his own. 31—34. And I will renew my

CHAP. XXXII.

Here we have Jeremiah (1) Imprisoned for predicting the destruction of Jerusalem and captivity of king Zedekiah: 1—5. (2) Buying land, by divine appointment, as a sign that the present invasion and impending captivity should be ended in due time; 6—15. (3) In prayer, adoring God's excellencies, acknowledging his favours, bewailing the Jews' iniquities, and begging more knowledge of their deliverance; 16—25. (4) Foretelling the great destruction of Judah and Jerusalem for their sins; 26—35: and the glorious deliverance, reformation, and prosperity, which should take place after the captivity and present dispersion, as typical of the happiness of the gospel church; 36—40.

THE word that came to Jeremiah from the LORD in the tenth year of Zedekiah king of Judah, which was the eighteenth year of Nebuchadrezzar.

covenant with them in a more abundantly gracious form than I did at Sinai, and which they have so often transgressed by their idolatry and other wickedness, notwithstanding my kindness to them. But, freely bestowing myself upon them as their God, adopting them as my people, and forgiving all their iniquities, I will clearly enlighten the minds of multitudes in the knowledge of the gospel, and renew their hearts, and dispose them to an holy and cheerful obedience to all my commandments.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. XXXI.—Thrice happy are the families which have God for their God! Remembrance of our own and the church's former deliverances is of great use to prevent despondency under long and sore troubles. But all our comfort and holiness must flow from God's everlasting love, fixed on and exercised towards us. It is pleasant when those that were chief rebels against God become his most zealous subjects and servants. But, if he build up his church, and restore to us the ordinances of his grace, all must issue to the praise of his glory. And praises to him for mercies bestowed must be attended with supplications for what he has promised. When he intends to deliver, no distance, no weakness, no paucity, no grief, no perilous passage, can stop, or even retard, his designs. If he call us to follow him, he will either find or make us a plain way; nor will he allow us to want any necessary supply. Great is the goodness of God observable in common providences, but especially in new covenant blessings. Thrice happy are they whose souls are richly supplied by

3 For Zedekiah king of Judah had shut him up, saying, Wherefore dost thou prophesy, and say, Thus saith the LORD, Behold, I will give this city into the hand of the king of Babylon, and he shall take it;

4 And Zedekiah king of Judah shall not escape out of the hand of the Chaldeans, but shall surely be delivered into the hand of the king of Babylon, and shall speak with him mouth to mouth, and his eyes shall behold his eyes;

5 And he shall lead Zedekiah to Babylon, and there shall he be until I visit him, saith the LORD: though ye fight with the Chaldeans, ye shall not prosper.

6 ¶ And Jeremiah said, The word of the LORD came unto me, saying,

7 Behold, Hanameel the son of Shalum thine uncle, shall come unto thee, saying, Buy thee my field that is in Anathoth: for the right of redemption is thine to buy it.

8 So Hanameel mine uncle's son came to me in the court of the prison, according to the word of the LORD, and said unto me, Buy my field, I pray thee, that is in Anathoth, which is in the country of Benjamin: for the right of inheritance is thine, and the redemption is thine; buy it for thyself. Then I knew that this was the word of the LORD.

9 And I bought the field of Hanameel my uncle's son, that was in Anathoth, and weighed him the money, even seventeen shekels of silver.

10 And I subscribed the evidence, and sealed it, and took witnesses, and weighed him the money in the balances.

11 So I took the evidence of the purchase, both that which was sealed according to the law and custom, and that which was open:

12 And I gave the evidence of the purchase unto Baruch the son of Neriah, the son of Maaseiah, in the sight of Hanameel mine uncle's son, and in the presence of the witnesses that subscribed the book of the purchase, before all the Jews that sat in the court of the prison.

13 ¶ And I charged Baruch before them, saying, the Holy Ghost from the all-containing fulness of God, and who taste his goodness in every thing they receive. It is not the death, but the justly apprehended damnation, of our relations, that should disquiet us: and solid hopes of the happy issue of troubles will make us bear them patiently. True repentance is a deep and thorough work; and renders a sinner very loathsome and wicked in his own view. Nor do sins of youth appear small under its influence. But all turning to God must be produced by his own Spirit in us; who introduces his grace, by making us to perceive gospel truths. And God is ever ready to give his most rebellious children a kind reception when penitent. His mercy cannot forbear working for them while he frowns; and at last it must break forth in unnumbered and everlasting blessings. But what an encouragement to faith and repentance is the incarnation and work of our Redeemer!—Thrice happy are societies and souls, where righteousness towards men, and piety towards God, are closely connected! Refreshing is that sleep in which men are entertained with comfortable promises from God. And no prospect is more pleasant to gracious souls than the spiritual flourishing of God's church.—How delightful is it to have JEHOVAH rejoicing over us to do us good! And no wonder sin against him be bitterness in its latter end. But infinitely gracious is his covenant, and suited in form, in matter, in order, and in firmness, to our every need. And, while all things in nature are pregnant with important instructions and comforts, it is holiness, connected with outward privileges, that renders them truly steadfast and durable.

14 Thus saith the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel, Take these evidences, this evidence of the purchase, both which is sealed, and this evidence which is open; and put them in an earthen vessel, that they may continue many days.

15 For thus saith the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel, 'Houses, and fields, and vineyards, shall be possessed again in this land.

16 ¶ Now, when I had delivered the evidence of the purchase unto Baruch the son of Neriah, 'I prayed unto the LORD, saying,

17 Ah Lord God! behold, 'thou hast made the heaven and the earth by thy great power and stretched-out arm, and 'there is nothing †too hard for thee:

18 Thou shewest 'loving-kindness unto thousands, and recompensest the iniquity of the fathers into the bosom of their children after them: 'the great, the mighty God, the LORD of hosts, is his name,

19 Great in counsel, and mighty in ||work; for thine 'eyes are open upon all the ways of the sons of men; 'to give every one according to his ways, and according to the fruit of his doings;

20 'Who hast set signs and wonders in the land of Egypt, even unto this day, and in Israel, and among other men, and hast made thee a name, as at this day;

21 'And hast brought forth thy people Israel out of the land of Egypt with signs and with wonders, and with a strong hand, and with a stretched-out arm, and with great terror;

22 'And hast given them this land, which thou didst swear to their fathers to give them, a land flowing with milk and honey:

23 And they came in and possessed it; 'but they obeyed not thy voice, neither walked in thy law: they have done nothing of all that thou commandedst them to do: 'therefore thou hast caused all this evil to come upon them.

24 Behold, the *mounts, they are come unto the city to take it; and 'the city is given into the hand of the Chaldeans that fight against it, because of the sword, and of the famine, and of the pestilence: and what thou hast spoken is come to pass; and, behold, thou seest it.

25 And thou hast said unto me, O Lord God, Buy thee the field for money, and take witnesses; 'for the city is given into the hand of the Chaldeans.

26 ¶ 'Then came the word of the LORD unto Jeremiah, saying, 27 Behold, I am the LORD, the 'God of all flesh; 'Is there any thing too hard for me?

28 Therefore thus saith the LORD, 'Behold, I will give this city into the hand of the Chaldeans, and into the hand of Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon, and he shall take it:

29 And the Chaldeans, that fight against this city, shall come 'and set fire on this city, and burn it, with the houses upon whose roofs they have offered incense unto Baal, and poured out drink-offerings unto other gods, to provoke me to anger.

30 'For the children of Israel and the children of Judah have only done evil before me from their youth: for the children of Israel have only provoked me to anger with the work of their hands, saith the LORD.

31 'For this city hath been to me as †a provocation of mine anger and of my fury, from the day that they built it even unto this day; that I should 'remove it from before my face,

32 'Because of all the evil of the children of Israel and of the children of Judah, which they have done to provoke me to anger, 'they, their kings, their princes, their priests, and their prophets, and the men of Judah, and the inhabitants of Jerusalem.

33 And they have turned unto me the †'back, and not the face: 'though I taught them, rising up early, and teaching them, yet they have not hearkened to receive instruction.

34 But they 'set their abominations in the house, which is called by my name, to defile it.

35 And 'they built the high places of Baal, which are in the valley of the son of Hinnom, to cause their sons and their daughters to pass through the fire unto Molech, which I commanded them not, neither came it into my mind that they should do this abomination to cause Judah to sin.

36 ¶ And now 'therefore thus saith the LORD, the God of Israel, concerning this city, whereof 'ye say, It shall be delivered into the hand of the king of Babylon, by the sword, and by the famine, and by the pestilence;

37 Behold, 'I will gather them out of all countries, whither I have driven them in mine anger, and in my fury, and in great wrath; and I will bring them again unto this place, and I will cause them to dwell safely:

38 'And they shall be my people, and I will be their God:

39 And I will 'give them one heart and one way, that they may fear me ||for ever, 'for the good of them and of their children after them:

40 And I will make an 'everlasting covenant with them, that 'I will not turn away *from them to do them good; but 'I will put my fear in their hearts, that they shall not depart from me.

41 Yea, 'I will rejoice over them to do them good, and I 'will plant them in this land 'assuredly with my whole heart and with my whole soul.

42 For thus saith the LORD, 'Like as I have brought all this great evil upon this people, so will I bring upon them all the good that I have promised them.

43 And fields shall be bought in this land, whereof 'ye say, It is desolate without man or beast; it is given into the hand of the Chaldeans.

44 'Men shall buy fields for money, and subscribe evidences, and seal them, and take witnesses 'in the land of Benjamin, and in the places about Jerusalem, and in the cities of Judah, and in the cities of the mountains, and in the cities of the valley, and in the cities of the south: for I will cause their captivity to return, saith the LORD.

CHAP. XXXIII.

Has much the same scope as the xxx. xxxi. and latter part of the xxxii. In answer to Jeremiah's prayer, it is promised (1) That Jerusalem should be rebuilt after the captivity, and filled with peace and truth; 1-6. (2) That the Hebrew captives should be instructed, restored to their land, have their sins forgiven, and be rendered worshippers of God, and an honour to him; 6-9. (3) That great should be the joy and plenty of their country; 10-14. (4) That the Messiah should appear among them, as their Saviour, sanctifier, and righteousness; 15, 16. (5) That the families of David, Levi, and Israel, should again flourish, and be established as figures of a permanent gospel ministry and church; 17-26.

MOREOVER, the word of the LORD came unto Jeremiah the second time, while he was yet shut up in the court of the prison, saying,

2 Thus saith the LORD, the Maker thereof, the LORD that formed it, to establish it; the LORD is his name;

3 Call unto me, and I will answer thee, and shew thee great and mighty things, which thou knowest not.

4 For thus saith the LORD, the God of Israel, concerning the houses of this city, and concerning the houses of the kings of Judah, which are thrown down by the mounts, and by the sword;

5 They come to fight with the Chaldeans, but it is to fill them with the dead bodies of men, whom I have slain in mine anger, and in my fury, and for all whose wickedness I have hid my face from this city.

6 Behold, I will bring it health and cure, and I will cure them, and will reveal unto them the abundance of peace and truth.

7 And I will cause the captivity of Judah and the captivity of Israel to return, and will build them as at the first.

8 And I will cleanse them from all their iniquity, whereby they have sinned against me; and I will pardon all their iniquities whereby they have sinned, and whereby they have transgressed against me.

9 And it shall be to me a name of joy, a praise and an honour before all the nations of the earth, which shall hear all the good that I do unto them: and they shall fear and tremble for all the goodness and for all the prosperity that I procure unto it.

10 Thus saith the LORD, Again there shall be heard in this place, which ye say shall be desolate without man and without beast, even in the cities of Judah, and in the streets of Jerusalem, that are desolate without man, and without inhabitant, and without beast,

11 The voice of joy, and the voice of gladness, the voice of the bridegroom, and the voice of the bride, the voice of them that shall say, 'Praise the LORD of hosts; for the LORD is good; for his mercy endureth for ever; and of them that shall bring the sacrifice of praise into the house of the LORD: for I will cause to return the captivity of the land as at the first, saith the LORD.

12 Thus saith the LORD of hosts, Again in this place, which is desolate without man and without beast, and in all the cities thereof, shall be an habitation of shepherds causing their flocks to lie down.

13 In the cities of the mountains, in the cities of the vale, and in the cities of the south, and in the land of Benjamin, and in the places about Jerusalem, and in the cities of Judah, shall the flocks pass again under the hands of him that telleth them, saith the LORD.

14 Behold, the days come, saith the LORD, that I will perform that good thing which I have promised unto the house of Israel and to the house of Judah.

15 In those days, and at that time, will I cause the Branch of righteousness to grow up unto David, and he shall execute judgment and righteousness in the land.

16 In those days shall Judah be saved, and Jerusalem shall dwell safely; and this is the name wherewith she shall be called, The LORD our righteousness.

17 For thus saith the LORD, David shall never want a man to sit upon the throne of the house of Israel:

18 Neither shall the priests the Levites want a man before me to offer burnt-offerings, and to kindle meat-offerings, and to do sacrifice continually.

19 And the word of the LORD came unto Jeremiah, saying,

20 Thus saith the LORD, If ye can break my covenant of the day, and my covenant of the night, and that there should not be day and night in their season;

21 Then may also my covenant be broken with David my servant, that he should not have a son to reign upon his throne, and with the Levites the priests, my ministers.

22 As the host of heaven cannot be numbered, neither the sand of the sea measured; so will I multiply the seed of David my servant, and the Levites that minister unto me.

23 Moreover, the word of the LORD came to Jeremiah, saying,

24 Considerest thou not what this people have spoken, saying, The two families which the LORD hath chosen, he hath even cast them off? Thus they

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. XXXII.—How obstinately men persist in persecution, and other wickedness, even when the Lord is punishing them for it! No afflictions can drag men from their lusts. By what strange tokens God confirms his own oracles! An exact honesty, prudent discretion, and a firm dependance on the promise and providence of God, ought to meet together in all our civil transactions. The more honourable views we have of God and his mercies, the more humble and penitent will be our views of our own and others' rebellion against him. And the former experiences of God's people ought to encourage us, even when his providence seems to contradict his promises. When we have God's orders, we have nothing to do but obey, and trust him with the issue. And, if we are in the dark concerning his dispensations, we may humbly beg his instructions. No crimes are too horrid for apostate professors to commit; and no judgments too severe to punish them. Deep carnal security ordinarily ends in deep despair: but blessed mornings of deliverance, conversion, and reformation, frequently succeed long and dark nights of trouble. And unchangeable is their state, stable and permanent their holiness and happiness, and cordial their harmony, who have God for their God, and the performer of all things in and for them.

have despised my people, that they should be no more a nation before them.

25 Thus saith the LORD, "If my covenant be not with day and night, and if I have not appointed the ordinances of heaven and earth ;

26 Then will I cast away the seed of Jacob, and David my servant, so that I will not take any of his seed to be rulers over the seed of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob : for I will cause their captivity to return, and have mercy on them.

CHAP. XXXIV.

Contains two messages from God ; (1) One foretelling the fate of king Zedekiah, that he should fall into the hands of Nebuchadnezzar, who was besieging Jerusalem, Lachish, and Azekah, live a captive, die a natural death, and be honourably interred ; 1—7. (2) Another denouncing destruction against the Jews of all ranks, for obliging their servants to return to their bondage after they had solemnly covenanted to give them their liberty, according to law ; 8—22.

THE word which came unto Jeremiah from the LORD, "when Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon and all his army, and all the kingdoms of the earth *of his dominion, and all the people, fought against Jerusalem and against all the cities thereof, saying,

2 Thus saith the LORD, the God of Israel, Go and speak to Zedekiah king of Judah, and tell him, Thus saith the LORD, "Behold, I will give this city into the hand of the king of Babylon, and he shall burn it with fire :

3 And "thou shalt not escape out of his hand, but shalt surely be taken and delivered into his hand ; and thine eyes shall behold the eyes of the king of Babylon, and †he shall speak with thee mouth to mouth, and thou shalt go to Babylon.

4 Yet hear the word of the LORD, O Zedekiah king of Judah, Thus saith the LORD of thee, "Thou shalt not die by the sword ;

5 But thou shalt die in peace : and "with the burnings of thy fathers the former kings which were before thee, so shall they burn odours for thee ; and "they will lament thee, saying, Ah lord ! for I have pronounced the word, saith the LORD.

6 Then Jeremiah the prophet "spake all these words unto Zedekiah king of Judah and Jerusalem.

7 When the king of Babylon's army fought "against Jerusalem, and against all the cities of Judah that were left, against "Lachish, and against Azekah : for these defenced cities remained of the cities of Judah.

8 ¶ This is the word that came unto Jeremiah from the LORD, after that the king Zedekiah had made a covenant with all the people which were at Jerusalem, to proclaim "liberty unto them ;

9 That every man should let his man servant, and every man his maid servant, being an Hebrew or an Hebrewess, go free, that none should "serve himself of them, to wit, of a Jew his brother.

10 Now when all the "princes, and all the people, who had entered into the covenant, heard that every one should let his man servant, and every one his maid servant, go free, that none should serve themselves of them any more, then they obeyed, and let them go.

11 But "afterward they turned, and caused the servants and the handmaids, whom they had let go free, to return, and brought them into subjection for servants and for handmaids.

12 ¶ Therefore the word of the LORD came to Jeremiah from the LORD, saying,

13 Thus saith the LORD, the God of Israel, I made a covenant with your fathers "in the day that I brought them forth out of the land of Egypt, out of the house of bond-men, saying,

14 "At the end of seven years let ye go every man his brother an Hebrew, who †hath been sold unto thee ; and when he hath served thee six years thou shalt let him go free from thee : but "your fathers hearkened not unto me, neither inclined their ear.

15 And "ye were ||now turned, and had done right in my sight in proclaiming liberty every man to his neighbour ; and "ye had made a covenant before me in the house "which is called by my name :

16 But ye turned and "polluted my name, and caused every man his servant, and every man his handmaid, whom he had set at liberty at their pleasure, to return, and brought them into subjection, to be unto you for servants and for handmaids.

17 Therefore thus saith the LORD, Ye have not hearkened unto me in proclaiming liberty every one to his brother, and every man to his neighbour : behold, "I proclaim a liberty for you, saith the LORD, to the sword, to the pestilence, and to the famine ; and I will make you "to be removed into all the kingdoms of the earth.

18 "And I will give the men that have transgressed my covenant, who have not performed the words of the covenant which they had made before me when they "cut the calf in twain, and passed between the parts thereof,

19 "The princes of Judah, and the princes of Jerusalem, the "eunuchs, and the priests, and all the people of the land, which passed between the parts of the calf ;

20 I will even give them into the hand of their enemies and into the hand of them that seek their life ; and "their dead bodies shall be for meat unto the fowls of the heaven, and to the beasts of the earth.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. XXXIII.—God's power and goodness in creation and providence should encourage us to believe his promises : And fervent prayer is an excellent means of obtaining divine and marvellous instructions. Dreadful is the ruin procured by sin ! but, where sin abounded, grace can much more abound. Saving instructions and gracious forgiveness must introduce all other new covenant favours. No case on this side hell is so deplorable but God's mercy can relieve from it. And the greater the salvation which he works, the more will he be glorified in it. Yea all the abundant joys of his people, after their nights of grief, will tend to his praise. But it is Jesus Christ alone that is the substance of all divine favours, that communicates sweetness, value, and usefulness, to them : and, notwithstanding all opposition and contempt, his kingdom shall be established and flourish. Not only while Judea lies in desolations, but when the earth, and all the works therein, shall be burnt up, it shall stand and flourish in its perfect and everlasting glory.

CHAP. XXXV.

Having already, by God's direction, tried to deter the Jews from their wickedness by tremendous threatenings, and to allure them from it by gracious promises, Jeremiah here tries to shame them from it. (1) He sets before them the permanent and exact obedience of the Rechabites to their father Jonadab's command, forbidding them to drink wine or to build cities; 1—11. (2) From hence he aggravates the Jews' disobedience to, and contempt of, God's law, and denounces his judgments against them; 12—17. (3) He assures the Rechabites of God's peculiar favour and preservation, for their pious regard to their father's command, given to them about 300 years before.

THE word which came unto Jeremiah from the LORD, "in the days of Jehoiakim the son of Josiah king of Judah, saying,

2 Go unto the house of the Rechabites, and speak unto them, and bring them into the house of the LORD, into one of the chambers, and give them wine to drink.

3 Then I took Jaazaniah the son of Jeremiah, the son of Habaziniah, and his brethren, and all his sons, and the whole house of the Rechabites:

4 And I brought them into the house of the LORD, into the chamber of the sons of Hanan the son of Igdaiah a man of God, which was by the chamber of the princes, which was above the chamber of Maaseiah the son of Shalum the keeper of the door:

5 And I set before the sons of the house of the Rechabites pots full of wine, and cups; and I said unto them, Drink ye wine.

6 But they said, We will drink no wine: for Jonadab the son of Rechab our father commanded us, saying, Ye shall drink no wine, neither ye nor your sons for ever.

7 Neither shall ye build house, nor sow seed, nor plant vineyard, nor have any: but all your days ye shall dwell in tents, that ye may live many days in the land where ye be strangers.

8 Thus have we obeyed the voice of Jonadab the son of Rechab our father in all that he hath charged us, to drink no wine all our days, we, our wives, our sons, nor our daughters;

9 Nor to build houses for us to dwell in: neither have we vineyard, nor field, nor seed:

10 But we have dwelt in tents, and have obeyed, and done according to all that Jonadab our father commanded us.

11 But it came to pass, when Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon came up into the land, that we said, Come, and let us go to Jerusalem, for fear of the army of the Chaldeans, and for fear of the army of the Syrians: so we dwell at Jerusalem.

12 ¶ Then came the word of the LORD unto Jeremiah, saying,

13 Thus saith the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel, Go and tell the men of Judah, and the inhabitants of Jerusalem, Will ye not receive instruction to hearken to my words? saith the LORD.

14 The words of Jonadab the son of Rechab, that he commanded his sons not to drink wine, are performed; for unto this day they drink none, but obey their father's commandment: notwithstanding I have spoken unto you, rising early, and speaking, but ye hearkened not unto me.

15 I have sent also unto you all my servants the prophets, rising up early and sending them, saying, Return ye now every man from his evil way, and amend your doings, and go not after other gods to serve them, and ye shall dwell in the land which I have given to you and to your fathers: but ye have not inclined your ear nor hearkened unto me.

16 Because the sons of Jonadab the son of Rechab have performed the commandment of their father, which he commanded them; but this people hath not hearkened unto me:

17 Therefore thus saith the Lord God of hosts, the God of Israel, Behold, I will bring upon Judah, and upon all the inhabitants of Jerusalem, all the evil that I have pronounced against them: because I have spoken unto them, but they have not heard; and I have called unto them, but they have not answered.

18 ¶ And Jeremiah said unto the house of the Rechabites, Thus saith the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel, Because ye have obeyed the commandment of Jonadab your father, and kept all his precepts, and done according unto all that he hath commanded you;

19 Therefore thus saith the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel, Jonadab the son of Rechab shall not want a man to stand before me for ever.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. XXXIV.—God mixes his judgments here with mercy, even to the wicked. It is a great advantage for kings and others to have faithful ministers to tell them the fatal consequences of their sins, that they may repent and live. And it is well if captivity and imprisonment lead to true reformation. God's compassion towards us ought to influence our compassion towards our inferiors and neighbours. But reformations occasioned by fear and danger are seldom sincere and lasting. The most solemn vows will not long restrain them whose hearts are not right with God. But, if his reprieves from vengeance be abused, he will quickly proceed to execution. None ever hardened their hearts against him and prospered. And broken vows especially hasten his fearful judgments. If men will not subject themselves to his law, he must subject them to his wrath and curse. If judgments depart from us before we are humbled, they will return with redoubled force. And promising beginnings, to which the end does not correspond, only produce more aggravated guilt and surer destruction.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. XXXV.—Never let us be ashamed of the honest employment of our ancestors, however mean. And let us prudently accommodate ourselves to our place, rank, and condition; but never live above it. Humility and contentment in obscurity are often the best policy and surest protection. If we be strangers in this world, we should abstain from fleshly lusts, and treat the objects of sense with a gracious and generous disdain. The more we are confirmed in so doing, temptation will have the less force. The more mortified we are to this world, the more meet we are for the next, and the more willing shall we be to go to it; nay, we are the more meet for suffering here. But no rules of external discipline ought to exclude a dispensation when necessity requires. To neglect proper means of safety is to tempt God. It is superlatively absurd and wicked to refuse doing as much in obedience to God as we would be ready to do in obedience to a progenitor who is long since dead and can never remind us of our obligation: and such as are guilty may expect vengeance, sure, however slow. But, while sinners are ruined, the temperate and Another expedient is tried, without success, for awakening the heedless and froward Jews. A roll is provided, containing an abridgement of all that Jeremiah had preached for the twenty-three years preceding, that they might the better understand, and be the more affected with it, when they had it all before them at once. Here is (1) The writing of the roll by Baruch, while Jeremiah dictates; 1—4. (2) The reading of it by Baruch publicly to the people on a fast-day; 5—10: and privately to the princes; 11—19: and by Jehudi to king Jehoiakim; 20, 21. (3) The burning of it by Jehoiakim, with orders to prosecute Jeremiah and Baruch as traitors; 22—26. (4) The writing of another roll, with large additions; particularly of Jehoiakim's dreadful doom for burning the former; 27—32.

AND it came to pass, ^ain the fourth year of Jehoiakim the son of Josiah king of Judah, ^bthat this word came unto Jeremiah from the LORD, saying,

2 ^bTake thee a roll of a book, and write therein ^call the words that I have spoken unto thee ^dagainst Israel, and against Judah, and ^eagainst all the nations, from the day I spake unto thee, ^ffrom the days of Josiah, even unto this day.

3 ^eIt may be that the house of Judah will hear all the evil which I purpose to do unto them; that they may return every man from his evil way, that I may forgive their iniquity and their sin.

4 Then Jeremiah called ^bBaruch the son of Neriah: and Baruch ⁱwrote from the mouth of Jeremiah all the words of the LORD, which he had spoken unto him, upon a roll of a book.

5 And Jeremiah commanded Baruch, saying, ^kI am shut up, I cannot go into the house of the LORD:

6 Therefore go thou and read in the roll, which thou hast written from my mouth, the words of the LORD, ⁱin the ears of the people, in the LORD's house, upon the ^mfasting day: and also thou shalt read them in the ears of all Judah that ⁿcome out of their cities.

7 It may be ^othey will present their supplication before the LORD, and will return every one from his evil way; for ^pgreat is the anger and the fury that the LORD hath pronounced against this people.

8 And Baruch the son of Neriah ^qdid according to all that Jeremiah the prophet commanded him, reading in the book the words of the LORD in the LORD's house.

9 And it came to pass in the fifth year of Jehoiakim the son of Josiah king of Judah, in the ninth month, ^rthat they proclaimed a fast before the LORD to all the people in Jerusalem, and to all the people that came from the cities of Judah unto Jerusalem.

10 Then read Baruch in the book the words of Jeremiah in the house of the LORD, ^sin the chamber of Gemariah the son of Shaphan the ^tscribe, in the higher court, at the ^uentry of the new gate of the LORD's house, in the ears of all the people.

11 ¶ When Michaiah the son of Gemariah the son of Shaphan had heard out of the book all the words of the LORD,

12 Then he went down into the king's house into the ^vscribe's chamber; and, lo, ^wall the princes sat there, ^xeven Elishama the scribe, and Delaiah the son of She-maiah, and Elnathan the son of Achbor, and Gemariah the son of Shaphan, and Zedekiah the son of Hananiah, and all the princes.

13 Then Michaiah ^ydeclared unto them all the words that he had heard when Baruch read the book in the ears of the people.

14 Therefore all the princes sent Jehudi the son of Nethaniah, the son of Shelemiah, the son of Cushi, unto Baruch, saying, Take in thine hand the roll wherein thou hast read in the ears of the people, and come. So Baruch the son of Neriah ^ztook the roll in his hand, and came unto them.

15 And they said unto him, Sit down now, and read it in our ears. So Baruch read ^{aa}it in their ears.

16 Now it came to pass, when they had heard all the words, ^{ab}they were afraid both one and other, and said unto Baruch, We will surely tell the king of all these words.

17 And they asked Baruch, saying, Tell us now, how didst thou write all these words at his mouth?

18 Then Baruch answered them, ^{ac}He pronounced all these words unto me with his mouth, and I wrote ^{ad}them with ink in the book.

19 Then said the princes unto Baruch, ^{ae}Go hide thee, thou and Jeremiah, and let no man know where ye ^{af}be.

20 ¶ And they went in to the king into the court, but they laid up the roll in the chamber of Elishama the scribe, and told all the words in the ears of the king.

21 So the king sent Jehudi to fetch the roll: and he took it out of Elishama the scribe's chamber. And Jehudi read it in the ears of the king, and in the ears of all the princes who stood before the king.

22 Now the king sat in the ^{ag}winter house, in the ninth month: and ^{ah}there was a fire on the hearth burning before him.

23 And it came to pass ^{ai}that, when Jehudi had read three or four leaves, he ^{aj}cut it with the penknife, and cast ^{ak}it into the fire that ^{al}was on the hearth, until all the roll was consumed in the fire that ^{am}was on the hearth.

24 Yet they were not afraid, nor ^{an}rent their garments, ^{ao}neither the king nor any of his servants that heard all these words.

25 Nevertheless, Elnathan and Delaiah and Gemariah ^{ap}had made intercession to the king, that he would not burn the roll; but he would not hear them.

26 But the king commanded Jerahmeel the son ^{aq}of Hammelech, and Seraiah the son of Azriel, and Shelemiah the son of Abdeel, ^{ar}to take Baruch the scribe and Jeremiah the prophet: ^{as}but the LORD hid them.

CHAP. XXXVII.

Here, (1) Notwithstanding his own and his subjects' wickedness, king Zedekiah, a little before the destruction of Jerusalem, sends a message to Jeremiah, to request his prayers for them; 1—3. (2) God warns the Jews that the Chaldeans, who had raised the siege of Jerusalem in order to fight the Egyptian auxiliaries, would quickly renew the siege, and destroy the city; 4—10. (3) Being apprehended as a deserter, Jeremiah is cruelly beaten and imprisoned by the princes; 11—15. AND king "Zedekiah the son of Josiah reigned instead of Coniah the son of Jehoiakim, whom Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon "made king in the land of Judah.

2 But "neither he, nor his servants, nor the people of the land, did hearken unto the words of the LORD which he spake *by the prophet Jeremiah.

3 And "Zedekiah the king sent Jehucal the son of Shelemiah, and Zephaniah the son of Maaseiah the priest, to the prophet Jeremiah, saying, Pray now unto the LORD our God for us.

4 Now Jeremiah came in and went out among the people: for "they had not put him into prison.

5 Then "Pharaoh's army was come forth out of Egypt: and, when the Chal-deans that besieged Jerusalem heard tidings of them, they "departed from Jerusalem.

6 ¶ Then came the word of the LORD unto the prophet Jeremiah, saying,

7 Thus saith the LORD, the God of Israel, Thus shall ye say to the king of Judah, that sent you unto me to inquire of me, "Behold, Pharaoh's army, which is come forth to help you, †shall return to Egypt into their own land.

8 And "the Chaldeans shall come again and fight against this city, and take it, and burn it with fire.

9 Thus saith the LORD, "Deceive not ‡yourselves, saying, The Chaldeans shall surely depart from us: for they shall not depart.

10 For, though ye had smitten the whole army of the Chaldeans that fight against you, and there remained but ||wounded men among them, "yet should they rise up every man in his tent, and burn this city with fire.

11 ¶ And it came to pass that, when the army of the Chaldeans was "broken up from Jerusalem, for fear of Pharaoh's army, 12 Then Jeremiah went forth out of Jerusalem to go into the land of "Benjamin, "to separate himself thence in the midst of the people.

13 And when he was in the gate of Benjamin a captain of the ward was there, whose name was Irijah, the son of Shelemiah, the son of Hananiah; and he took Jeremiah the prophet, saying, "Thou fallest away to the Chaldeans.

14 Then said Jeremiah, It is "false; I fall not away to the Chaldeans. But he hearkened not to him: so Irijah took Jeremiah, and brought him to the princes.

15 "Wherefore the princes were wroth with Jeremiah, and smote him, and put him in prison "in the house of Jonathan the scribe: for they had made that the prison.

16 ¶ When Jeremiah was entered into the dungeon, and into the "cabins, and Jeremiah had remained there many days, 17 Then Zedekiah the king sent, and took him out: and the king asked him "secretly in his house, and said, "Is there any word from the LORD? And Jeremiah said, There is: for, said he, "thou shalt be delivered into the hand of the king of Babylon.

18 Moreover, Jeremiah said unto king Zedekiah, "What have I offended against thee, or against thy servants, or against this people, that ye have put me in prison?

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. XXXVI.—A serious and believing consideration of the certain and fatal consequences of our sin promotes a cordial repentance: and, in all their work, ministers ought to endeavour at the conversion of sinners from their evil ways. For this the writing of God's word is designed; and all the writing or repeating of sermons must be directed to the same. Such as truly discern the need of repentance will supplicate God for it. But there may be great pretences, even to extraordinary devotion, while men continue enemies to the power of it. And national fasts, without national reformation, will never turn away national judgments. When we profess to be supplicating for mercy, it is very useful to be faithfully told of our sins and our duty: and we ought to communicate to others those divine truths which have been peculiarly affecting to ourselves. God's ministers should lay hold on every opportunity, private or public, for teaching and warning their hearers. And there is need of very close dealing, as, by delay or otherwise, sinners will do all they can to evade convictions, or to shake them off. Nay, hardened sinners, especially in high stations, stick at nothing to disgrace the oracles of God, to destroy his messengers, and discover their own determinate resolution to continue in sin. And, while they, who for God's cause boldly put their life in their hands, are wonderfully protected, they who contend with God, and obstinately resist his counsels, do only treasure up for themselves wrath against the day of wrath. By contending with his curses, they but prepare heavier ones for themselves: and silent accomplices in guilt may look for a share in the punishment.

CHAP. XXXVIII.

Here the princes treat Jeremiah as the vilest of malefactors; and Zedekiah treats him as the wisest of counsellors. (1) For warning the Jews to save themselves, by a necessary surrender of themselves to the Chaldeans, he is, by the princes, imprisoned in a dungeon, that he might die; 1—6. (2) At the intercession of Ebed-melech an Ethiopian, by special order from the king, he is taken out of it, and confined to the court of the prison; 7—13. (3) In a private interview with king Zedekiah, he assures him of saving himself, family, and capital, by a surrender, and of reproach and destruction, by standing out against the Chaldeans; 14—23. (4) They agree to conceal from the princes the chief matter of their conference; 24—28.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. XXXVII.—Hard are their hearts who can both see and feel the judgments of God without being humbled. And often they, who in health and prosperity despised Christ's ministers, entreat their counsels and prayers in a day of distress. Many would gladly be rid of their sufferings who have no heart to part with their sins. And often they use the intermissions or slow progress of God's judgments to harden themselves, while they easily credit the flatteries and lies which their corrupt inclinations wish to be true. Even Satan could not deceive men if they deceived not themselves. No created help can avail but as God pleases: and no created power can withstand the weakest instruments in his hand. When we have no call from God to stay, it is prudent to retire into privacy, and shun the evils which we foresee. But the purest characters and conduct may be blackened with the vilest aspersions; and every lie, however improbable, is easily believed against a man obnoxious for his piety and reproofs. And, if passion and prejudice ascend the chair of the magistrate, we need not expect any justice. It is the best of men that have to suffer most for conscience sake. But God can provide them relief from whence they little expected it. If men will cheerfully, but prudently, expose their life for God, he will take care that they shall be no losers, but their very affliction be the mean of substantial blessing. But they, who will not regard God's calls to repentance, need not expect messages of peace. And they, who have wilfully shut their eyes to their danger, deserve to be upbraided with their folly.

CHAP. XXXIX.

Contains a verification of Jeremiah's predictions, and a confutation of the false prophets' flatteries, in the destruction of Jerusalem. (1) After a siege of perhaps 430 days in all, Jerusalem is taken by the Chaldeans, and burned; 1—3, 8. (2) King Zedekiah is apprehended in his flight, and rendered a miserable prisoner; 4—7. (3) The people, who had escaped the sword, famine, and pestilence, are carried prisoners to Babylon, except a few poor; 9, 10. (4) Jeremiah is liberated from prison by Nebuchadnezzar's special orders, and great care taken of him; 11—14. (5) For his late kindness to Jeremiah, Ebed-melech has a protection from God in this day of destruction; 15—18.

IN the ninth year of Zedekiah, king of Judah, in the tenth month, came Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon and all his army against Jerusalem, and they besieged it.

2 And in the eleventh year of Zedekiah, in the fourth month, the ninth day of the month, the city was broken up.

3 And all the princes of the king of Babylon came in, and sat in the middle gate, even Nergal-sharezer, Samgar-nebo, Sarsechim, Rab-saris, Nergal-sharezer, Rab-mag, with all the residue of the princes of the king of Babylon.

4 ¶ And it came to pass that, when Zedekiah the king of Judah saw them, and all the men of war, then they fled, and went forth out of the city by night, by the way of the king's garden, by the gate betwixt the two walls: and he went out the way of the plain.

5 But the Chaldeans' army pursued after them, and overtook Zedekiah in the plains of Jericho: and, when they had taken him, they brought him up to Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon to Riblah in the land of Hamath, where he gave judgment upon him.

6 Then the king of Babylon slew the sons of Zedekiah in Riblah before his eyes: also the king of Babylon slew all the nobles of Judah.

7 Moreover, he put out Zedekiah's eyes, and bound him with chains to carry him to Babylon.

8 ¶ And the Chaldeans burned the king's house, and the houses of the people, with fire, and brake down the walls of Jerusalem.

9 Then Nebuzar-adan the captain of the guard carried away captive into Babylon the remnant of the people that remained in the city, and those that fell away, that fell to him, with the rest of the people that remained.

10 But Nebuzar-adan the captain of the guard left of the poor of the people which had nothing, in the land of Judah, and gave them vineyards and fields at the same time.

11 ¶ Now Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon gave charge concerning Jeremiah to Nebuzar-adan the captain of the guard, saying, 12 Take him, and look well to him, and do him no harm, but do unto him even as he shall say unto thee.

13 So Nebuzar-adan the captain of the guard sent, and Nebushasban, Rab-saris, and Nergal-sharezer, Rab-mag, and all the king of Babylon's princes;

14 Even they sent, and took Jeremiah out of the court of the prison, and committed him unto Gedaliah the son of Ahikam, the son of Shaphan, that he should carry him home: so he dwelt among the people.

Nor is a readiness to die in the cause of truth inconsistent with every prudent precaution to preserve ourselves. Sinners fondly desire that God would alter his purposes or threatenings for their sake, even when they continue deaf to his admonitions, and refuse submission, the only real means of deliverance. They often deter themselves from duty by fears trifling and groundless; and that which they seek to avoid by sin is brought on them by the justice of God; and by sinning to avoid shame they often bring both shame and ruin upon themselves and their subjects. To avoid shame, they will not avow before men the regard which their conscience obliges them to have for the faithful servants of God: nay, to preserve their reputation before wicked men, they will risk their eternal salvation. We had need then to be wise as serpents as well as harmless like doves. And, though we must never tell a lie, yet we must not tell all that we know to every impertinent inquirer.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. XXXVIII.—It is better to submit to the rebukes of providence than to contend with them. If we cannot have our liberties, let us never throw away our lives. And let God's ministers act faithfully and friendly, though impenitent sinners should reward them with hatred and murder. It forebodes ill when magistrates are daily growing worse; [compare ch. xxvi. xxxiv. xxxvi.] when great men weakly yield to their inferiors in the cause of God and truth; and when they, who have a friendship for his faithful servants, will not own it as they might in time of need, when perhaps their enemies attempt privately to murder them. But, lo, how God cares for them, and raises up and emboldens friends beyond expectation! How early Ethiopia stretches out her hands to God! And what sense of justice and piety is found in a Gentile, living amidst the most degenerate professors! With speed and compassion we ought to relieve the distressed; and with great meekness and earnestness should ministers instruct such as oppose themselves, and render good for evil.

CHAP. XL.

In this, and the four following chapters, we read of the mournful fate of the few Jews that were left in Canaan. Here is (1) A more particular discharge of Jeremiah, and his settlement with Gedaliah, whom Nebuchadnezzar had made governor of the poor Jews; 1—6. (2) Great resort of the fugitive Jews from the neighbouring countries to Gedaliah, and agreeable condition under him; 7—12. (3) A plot against Gedaliah's life by Ishmael a Jewish prince, instigated by the king of the Ammonites, discovered, but not credited; 13—16.

THE ^aword that came to Jeremiah from the LORD, after that ^bNebuzar-adan the captain of the guard had let him go from ^cRamah, when he had taken him being bound in ^{*}chains among all that were carried away captive of Jerusalem and Judah, who were carried away captive unto Babylon.

2 And the captain of the guard took Jeremiah, and said unto him, ^dThe LORD thy God hath pronounced this evil upon this place.

3 Now the LORD hath brought it, and done according as he hath said: because ye have sinned against the LORD, and have not obeyed his voice, therefore this thing is come upon you.

4 And now, behold, I loose thee this day from the chains which were upon thine hand. If it seem good unto thee to come with me into Babylon, come, and ^eI will look well unto thee: but, if it seem ill unto thee to come with me into Babylon, forbear: behold, ^fall the land is before thee: whither it seemeth good and convenient for thee to go, thither go.

5 Now, while he was not yet gone back, he said, Go back also to ^gGedaliah the son of Ahikam the son of Shaphan, whom the king of Babylon hath made governor over the cities of Judah, and dwell with him among the people: or ^hgo wheresoever it seemeth convenient unto thee to go. So the captain of the guard gave him victuals and a reward, and let him go.

6 Then went Jeremiah unto Gedaliah

the son of Ahikam to ^kMizpah, and dwelt with him among the people that were left in the land.

7 ¶ Now when all the captains of the forces who were in the fields, even they and their men, heard that the king of Babylon had made Gedaliah the son of Ahikam governor in the land, and had committed unto him men, and women, and children, and of the poor of the land, of them that were not carried away captive to Babylon;

8 Then they came to Gedaliah to ^mMizpah, ⁿeven Ishmael the son of Nethaniah, and Johanan and Jonathan the sons of Kareah, and Seraiah the son of Tanhumeth, and the sons of Ephai the ^oNetophathite, and Jezaniah the son of a ^pMaachathite, they and their men.

9 And Gedaliah, the son of Ahikam, the son of Shaphan, ^qswore unto them and to their men, saying, Fear not to serve the Chaldeans: dwell in the land, and serve the king of Babylon, and it shall be well with you.

10 As for me, behold, I will dwell at Mizpah, ^rto serve the Chaldeans, which will come unto us: but ye, ^sgather ye wine, and summer fruits, and oil, and put them in your vessels, and dwell in your cities that ye have taken.

11 Likewise when all the Jews that were in Moab, and among the Ammonites, and in Edom, and that were in all the countries, heard that the king of Babylon had left a remnant of Judah, and that he had set over them Gedaliah the son of Ahikam the son of Shaphan;

12 Even ^tall the Jews returned out of all places whither they were driven, and came to the land of Judah, to Gedaliah unto Mizpah, and gathered wine and summer fruits very much.

13 ¶ Moreover, Johanan the son of Kareah, and all the captains of the forces that were in the fields, came to Gedaliah to Mizpah, 14 And said unto him, Dost thou certainly know that Baalis the king of the Ammonites ^uhath sent Ishmael the son of Nethaniah ^vto slay thee? But Gedaliah the son of Ahikam believed them not.

15 Then Johanan the son of Kareah spake to Gedaliah in Mizpah secretly, saying, Let me go, I pray thee, and I will slay Ishmael the son of Nethaniah, and no man shall know it: wherefore should he slay thee, that all the Jews who are gathered unto thee should be scattered, and the remnant in Judah perish?

16 But Gedaliah the son of Ahikam said unto Johanan the son of Kareah, ^wThou shalt not do this thing; for thou speakest falsely of Ishmael.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. XXXIX.—Alas, how the families of the north sit in the gates of Jerusalem, and the lords of the heathen where their gods had been worshipped! God's judgments fearfully convince such as would not believe his threatenings. And fruitless are all attempts to flee from his vengeance. But it will be awfully piercing to see our children murdered or damned through our obstinacy in sinning; and shut up at last in spiritual and eternal darkness through our obstinate ignorance of God's will! Marvellous, but just, are the changes and retributions of providence; and the ruin of oppressors is the rise of the oppressed. God comforts his people while their enemies are tormented: and heathens deliver them when hypocrites persecute them: yea, even prisons protect and mark them out for particular favours. Nor shall a cordial kindness to God's servants in trouble ever pass without distinguished honour and reward: and he will suit his comforts to the fears and griefs of his people. None that trust in him shall ever perish or be confounded REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. XL.—Heathens sometimes honour God and his ministers more than many professors. It will at last appear that God is faithful and sin ruinous. And all loss sustained for God will be made up in the end. If his servants have hardships when sinners have liberty, they will obtain liberty when sinners shall be in misery. What honour God puts on the son of Jeremiah's late protector! [chap. xxvi. 24.] But short glimmerings of prosperity often introduce fearful strokes of adversity. It is only the deputies and servants of

CHAP. XLI.

Here (1) Gedaliah, and those with him in arms, and seventy devout men, going to bewail the ruins of Jerusalem and the temple are murdered by Ishmael and ten assistants, and cast into a pit; and the rest of the people carried captives towards the land of the Ammonites; 1—10. (2) By the bravery of Johanan, the prisoners are recovered; and he, becoming commander in chief, contrives to carry the people to Egypt, to avoid the resentment of the Chaldeans; 11—16.

NOW it came to pass, in the seventh month, that Ishmael the son of Nethaniah the son of Elishama, of the seed royal, and the princes of the king, even ten men with him, came unto Gedaliah the son of Ahikam to Mizpah; and there they did eat bread together in Mizpah.

2 Then arose Ishmael the son of Nethaniah, and the ten men that were with him, and smote Gedaliah the son of Ahikam the son of Shaphan with the sword, and slew him, whom the king of Babylon had made governor over the land.

3 Ishmael also slew all the Jews that were with him, even with Gedaliah, at Mizpah, and the Chaldeans that were found there, and the men of war.

4 And it came to pass the second day after he had slain Gedaliah, and no man knew it,

5 That there came certain men from Shechem, from Shiloh, and from Samaria, even fourscore men, having their beards shaven and their clothes rent, and having cut themselves, with offerings and incense in their hand, to bring them to the house of the LORD.

6 And Ishmael the son of Nethaniah went forth from Mizpah to meet them, weeping all along as he went: and it came to pass as he met them he said unto them, Come to Gedaliah the son of Ahikam.

7 And it was so, when they came into the midst of the city, that Ishmael the son of Nethaniah slew them, and cast them into the midst of the pit, he and the men that were with him.

8 But ten men were found among them that said unto Ishmael, Slay us not: for we have treasures in the field, of wheat, and of barley, and of oil, and of honey. So he forbore, and slew them not among their brethren.

9 Now the pit wherein Ishmael had cast all the dead bodies of the men, whom he had slain because of Gedaliah, was it which Asa the king had made for fear of Baasha king of Israel: and Ishmael the son of Nethaniah filled it with them that were slain.

10 Then Ishmael carried away captive all the residue of the people that were in Mizpah, even the king's daughters, and all the people that remained in Mizpah, whom Nebuzar-adan the captain of the guard had committed to Gedaliah the son of Ahikam: and Ishmael the son of Nethaniah carried them away captive, and departed to go over to the Ammonites.

11 ¶ But when Johanan the son of Kareah, and all the captains of the forces that were with him, heard of all the evil that Ishmael the son of Nethaniah had done, 12 Then they took all the men, and went to fight with Ishmael the son of Nethaniah, and found him by the great waters that are in Gibeon.

13 Now it came to pass that, when all the people who were with Ishmael saw Johanan the son of Kareah, and all the captains of the forces that were with him, then they were glad.

14 So all the people that Ishmael had carried away captive from Mizpah cast about and returned, and went unto Johanan the son of Kareah.

15 But Ishmael the son of Nethaniah escaped from Johanan with eight men, and went to the Ammonites.

16 Then took Johanan the son of Kareah, and all the captains of the forces that were with him, all the remnant of the people whom he had recovered from Ishmael the son of Nethaniah, from Mizpah, after that he had slain Gedaliah the son of Ahikam, even mighty men of war, and the women, and the children, and the eunuchs whom he had brought again from Gibeon:

17 And they departed, and dwelt in the habitation of Chimham, which is by Bethlehem, to go to enter into Egypt, 18 Because of the Chaldeans: for they were afraid of them, because Ishmael the son of Nethaniah had slain Gedaliah the son of Ahikam, whom the king of Babylon made governor in the land.

CHAP. XLII.

(1) Determined, by their carnal inclinations or expectations, to retire into Egypt, Johanan, and his fellow captains of the poor Jews in Canaan, by Jeremiah, solicit God's direction, and solemnly engage to follow it; 1—6. (2) By God's direction, Jeremiah encourages them to remain in Judea, as there only they would be safe; 7—12: dissuades them from going to Egypt, as that would ruin them; 13—18: and admonishes them that their dissimulation in this consulting of God would issue to their hurt; 19—22.

THEN all the captains of the forces, and Johanan the son of Kareah, and Jezaniah the son of Hoshaiah, and all the people from the least even unto the greatest, came near,

2 And said unto Jeremiah the prophet, *Let, we beseech thee, our supplication be accepted before thee, and pray for us unto the LORD thy God, even for all this remnant; (for we are left but a few of many, as thine eyes do behold us);

3 That the LORD thy God may shew us the way wherein we may walk, and the thing that we may do.

4 Then Jeremiah the prophet said unto them, I have heard you; behold, I a righteous God can make the malice, the baseness, the barbarity, of the most hardened monsters in iniquity to glorify himself and ruin his enemies. Misery, death, and damnation, often meet men when, where, and whence, they least expected. And not the laws of God or men, but covetousness, frequently makes sinners to abstain from crimes. The most unnatural criminals may for a time escape punishment from men. And groundless fear, real or pretended, often leads men into ruinous guilt.

heaven's great Monarch who are secured in complete and lasting protection. O what baseness and barbarity can human minds contrive and perpetrate! Great men have need to be cautious of their own preservation, as well as charitable concerning their neighbours. But of little worth are earthly honours, which but tempt miscreants to murder us.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. XLI.—By the most unexpected and unnatural means God can punish men, who have ripened themselves in wickedness. And will pray unto the LORD your God according to your words; and it shall come to pass that, ⁵whatsoever thing the LORD shall answer you, I will declare it unto you; I will keep nothing back from you.

5 Then they said to Jeremiah, The LORD be ^aa true and faithful witness between us, if we do not even according to all things for the which the LORD thy God shall send thee to us.

6 Whether it be good, or whether it be evil, we will obey the voice of the LORD our God, to whom we send thee; ^bthat it may be well with us when we obey the voice of the LORD our God.

7 ¶ And it came to pass after ten days that the word of the LORD came unto Jeremiah.

8 Then called he ^cJohanan the son of Kareah, and all the captains of the forces which were with him, and all the people, from the least even to the greatest.

9 And said unto them, ^mThus saith the LORD, the God of Israel, unto whom ye sent me to present your supplication before him;

10 If ye will still abide in this land, then ⁿwill I build you, and not pull you down; and I will plant you, and not pluck you up: for ^oI repent me of the evil that I have done unto you.

11 ^pBe not afraid of the king of Babylon, of whom ye are afraid; be not afraid of him, saith the LORD; for I am with you to save you, and to deliver you from his hand.

12 And I will shew mercies ^qunto you, ^qthat he may have mercy upon you, and cause you to return to your own land.

13 But if ye say, We will not dwell in this land, ^rneither obey the voice of the LORD your God.

14 Saying, No, ^sbut we will go into the land of Egypt, where we shall see no war, nor hear the sound of the trumpet, nor have hunger of bread; and there will we dwell:

15 And now therefore hear the word of the LORD, ye remnant of Judah, Thus saith the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel, If ye ^twholly set your faces to enter into Egypt, and go to sojourn there;

16 Then it shall come to pass, that ^uthe sword which ye feared shall overtake you there in the land of Egypt, and the famine whereof ye were afraid ^vshall follow close after you there in Egypt; and there ye shall die.

17 ^wSo shall it be with all the men that set their faces to go into Egypt, to sojourn there; they shall die by the sword, by the famine, and by the pestilence: and none of them shall remain or escape from the evil that I will bring upon them.

18 For thus saith the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel, As mine anger and my fury ^xhath been poured forth upon the inhabitants of Jerusalem, so shall my fury be poured forth upon you when ye shall enter into Egypt: and ^yye shall be an execration, and an astonishment, and a curse, and a reproach; and ye shall see this place no more.

19 ¶ The LORD hath said concerning you, O ye remnant of Judah, ^aGo ye not into Egypt: know certainly ^bthat I have ^cadmonished you this day.

20 For ^dye ^edissembled in your hearts, when ye sent me unto the LORD your God, saying, Pray for us unto the LORD our God; and, according unto all that the LORD our God shall say, so declare unto us, and we will do it.

21 And now ^fI have this day declared it to you; ^gbut ye have not obeyed the voice of the LORD your God, nor any thing for the which he hath sent me unto you.

22 Now therefore know certainly ^hthat ye shall die by the sword, by the famine, and by the pestilence, in the place whether ye desire to go and to sojourn.

CHAP. XLIII.

Here (1) Johanan and his companions, pretending that Jeremiah's faithful admonitions were not of God, but of Baruch, disregard them, and go to Egypt, taking him along with them; 1—7. (2) God sends them another message, importing that the Chaldeans should quickly pursue them into Egypt, and ravage that country; 8—13.

AND it came to pass that, when Jeremiah had made an end of speaking unto all the people all the words of the LORD their God, for which the LORD their God had sent him to them, even all these words,

2 Then spake ^aAzariah the son of Hoshaiah, and Johanan the son of Kareah, and all ^bthe proud men, saying unto Jeremiah, Thou speakest ^cfalsely: the LORD our God hath not sent thee to say, Go not into Egypt to sojourn there:

3 But ^dBaruch the son of Neriah setteth thee on against us, for to deliver us into the hand of the Chaldeans, that ^ethey might put us to death, and carry us away captives into Babylon.

4 So Johanan the son of Kareah, and all the captains of the forces, and all the people, ^fobeyed not the voice of the LORD, ^gto dwell in the land of Judah.

5 But ^hJohanan the son of Kareah, and all the captains of the forces, took all the remnant of Judah, that were returned from all nations whither they had been driven, to dwell in the land of Judah;

6 Even men, and women, and children, and the king's daughters, and every person that Nebuzar-adan the captain of the guard had left with Gedaliah the son of Ahikam the son of Shaphan, and ⁱJeremiah the prophet, and Baruch the son of Neriah.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. XLIII.—Ministers have need to be men of fervent prayer, faithfulness, and intimacy with God. And, if people would profit by their ministers' prayers, they should seriously attend to their preaching. We can never be sincere with God if we do not obey his will so far as it is known to us. But what a cloak of religion will hypocrites put on to serve a particular turn! They will avouch God as their God; and make great pretences to unreserved readiness to obey his will in all things. How strange it is that he should return such dissemblers so plain, so gracious, an answer! But his mercy is the foundation of all our hopes and happiness. He can turn the hearts of kings to favour or to hate us, as he pleases. And they, who carefully obey his will, may humbly expect his blessing. But it is madness to dissemble with a God of truth, who searches our hearts; or to quit our station, especially in his holy land; because we find trouble in it. If we think to escape suffering by sinning, we only rush upon the thick bosses of his buckler. If we make him our enemy, we shall find him a consuming fire wherever we go; and that upon which we most set our hearts will prove most fatal to us. If we make ourselves vile by our sins, he will make us viler by his judgments.

13 He shall break also the images of Beth-shemesh, that is in the land of Egypt; and the houses of the gods of the Egyptians shall he burn with fire.

CHAP. XLIV.

Here we have (1) A most awakening sermon by Jeremiah to the Jews in Egypt, calculated to reprove and threaten them for their obstinate continuance in idolatry, notwithstanding God's word and rod; 1—14. (2) The impudent and impious contempt which they put upon it, and their declared resolution to persist in their idolatry, in despite of him and his God; 15—19. (3) God's condemnation of them to be mostly destroyed for their obstinacy; as a token of which, the king of Egypt should be quickly rendered unable to protect either them or himself; 20—30.

THE words that came to Jeremiah concerning all the Jews who dwell in the land of Egypt, who dwell at Migdol, and at Tahpanhes, and at Noph, and in the country of Pathros, saying,

2 Thus saith the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel, Ye have seen all the evil that I have brought upon Jerusalem, and upon all the cities of Judah; and, behold, this day they are a desolation, and no man dwelleth therein,

3 Because of their wickedness which they have committed to provoke me to anger in that they went to burn incense, and to serve other gods whom they knew not, neither they, you, nor your fathers.

4 Howbeit I sent unto you all my servants the prophets, rising early and sending them, saying, Oh do not this abominable thing that I hate!

5 But they hearkened not, nor inclined their ear to turn from their wickedness, to burn no incense unto other gods.

6 Wherefore my fury and mine anger was poured forth, and was kindled in the cities of Judah, and in the streets of Jerusalem, and they are wasted and desolate, as at this day.

7 Therefore now thus saith the LORD, the God of hosts, the God of Israel, Wherefore commit ye this great evil against your souls, to cut off from you man and woman, child and suckling, out of Judah, to leave you none to remain;

8 In that ye provoke me unto wrath with the works of your hands, burning incense unto other gods in the land of Egypt, whither ye be gone to dwell, that ye might cut yourselves off, and that ye might be a curse and a reproach among all the nations of the earth?

9 Have ye forgotten the wickedness of your fathers, and the wickedness of the kings of Judah, and the wickedness of their wives, and your own wickedness, and the wickedness of your wives, which they have committed in the land of Judah and in the streets of Jerusalem?

10 They are not humbled, even unto this day, neither have they feared nor walked in my law, nor in my statutes that I set before you and before your fathers.

11 ¶ Therefore thus saith the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel, Behold, I will set my face against you for evil, and to cut off all Judah.

12 And I will take the remnant of Judah, that have set their faces to go into the land of Egypt to sojourn there, and they shall all be consumed, and fall in the land of Egypt; they shall even be consumed by the sword, and by the famine: they shall die, from the least even unto the greatest, by the sword and by the famine: and they shall be an execration, and an astonishment, and a curse, and a reproach.

13 For I will punish them that dwell in the land of Egypt, as I have punished Jerusalem, by the sword, by the famine, and by the pestilence:

14 So that none of the remnant of Judah, who are gone into the land of Egypt to sojourn there, shall escape or remain, that they should return into the land of Judah, to the which they have a desire to return to dwell there: for none shall return but such as shall escape.

15 ¶ Then all the men who knew that their wives had burned incense unto other gods, and all the women that stood by, a great multitude, even all the people that dwelt in the land of Egypt, in Pathros, answered Jeremiah, saying,

16 As for the word that thou hast spoken unto us in the name of the LORD, we will not hearken unto thee.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. XLIII.—Pride is among the most damning sins,—a root of infidelity, and a sure road to hell. They, who are full of ill designs themselves, ordinarily reproach the true friends of their church and nation as traitors: They, who hate to conform themselves to the scripture, are ready to deny the divinity of it. And they, who wish to contradict the ends of a gospel ministry, study to put it under an ill name. Proud men hate contradiction; and, if they cannot obtain consent, they will force compliance; and even drag those who fear God along with them. But a sinful flight from God's judgments only hastens them upon us, and renders them heavier; and even draws down his wrath upon such as receive us into their friendship. And, very contrary to their intentions, he makes one nation a scourge to another.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. XLIV.—Dreadful is the malignity of sin; infinitely God hates it, and earnestly should his ministers warn against it. It is a dreadful token of a reprobate mind when, with judgments upon us or around us, we harden ourselves in sin: and a certain sign that almighty vengeance is at hand to destroy us. They, who will not be ruled by God's word, must be broken by his rod. And, if men will prefer their own projects to God's promises and providence, it is just that they should meet with disappointments. No antiquity, authority, custom, or prosperity, can ever warrant what God forbids. And it is dreadful when the means which God uses to draw or drive us from our sins are perverted to harden us in them! or when those, who should assist one another in the way to heaven, are mutual tempters to, and hardeners in, sin. But God will effectually reprove his obstinate opponents by the ruinous strokes of his wrath. Nor can a greater curse light upon sinners, than to be given up to the devices of their own heart. Quickly will God ruin the created comforts and confidences name shall no more be named in the mouth of any man of Judah, in all the land of Egypt, saying, The Lord God liveth.

27 Behold, I will watch over them for evil, and not for good: and all the men of Judah that are in the land of Egypt shall be consumed by the sword, and by the famine, until there be an end of them.

28 Yet a small number that escape the sword shall return out of the land of Egypt into the land of Judah; and all the remnant of Judah that are gone into the land of Egypt to sojourn there shall know whose words shall stand, mine or theirs.

29 ¶ And this shall be a sign unto you, saith the LORD, that I will punish you in this place, that ye may know that my words shall surely stand against you for evil:

30 Thus saith the LORD, Behold, I will give Pharaoh-hophra king of Egypt into the hand of his enemies, and into the hand of them that seek his life; as I gave Zedekiah king of Judah into the hand of Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon his enemy, and that sought his life.

CHAP. XLV.

In this, and the six subsequent chapters, we have a number of predictions, delivered a considerable time before the destruction of Jerusalem; and which may serve as an explication of chap. xxv. Here is (1) Baruch terrified, lest he should be brought to trouble for writing and reading Jeremiah's roll; 1—3. [chap. xxxvi.] (2) The Lord reproving his extensive carnal expectations, and silencing his fears, by a promise of special preservation; 4, 5.

THE word that Jeremiah the prophet spake unto Baruch the son of Neriah, when he had written these words in a book at the mouth of Jeremiah, in the fourth year of Jehoiakim the son of Josiah king of Judah, saying,

2 Thus saith the LORD, the God of Israel, unto thee, O Baruch;

3 Thou didst say, Wo is me now! for the LORD hath added grief to my sorrow; I fainted in my sighing, and I find no rest.

4 Thus shalt thou say unto him, The LORD saith thus, Behold, that which I have built will I break down, and that which I have planted I will pluck up, even this whole land.

5 And seekest thou great things for thyself? seek them not: for, behold, I will bring evil upon all flesh, saith the LORD: but thy life will I give unto thee for a prey in all places whither thou goest.

CHAP. XLVI.

Already the nations, known to the Hebrews, had tasted the Lord's indignation by the Assyrians; now they must take a second draught by the Chaldeans. Here are two prophetic burdens laid which we put in his room. And indeed nothing is to us what we fancy it, but what he makes it.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. XLV.—Alas, how unwilling our hearts are to take up our cross and follow Christ! Very small difficulties are apt to discourage young beginners in the service of God. And often it is more their unbelieving fears than their real dangers that make them to complain. If we had less desire after, and less expectation from, creatures, and more faith in Christ's word and views of the spiritual nature of his kingdom, external events would trouble us less. While therefore God so exactly observes me, let me never seek my own more than the public welfare. Let me never seek great things here, where every thing is less than nothing, and vanity, and as uncertain as a shadow or a vapour. If God preserve and protect me in evil times, it is more than I deserve, or perhaps could expect.

upon the Egyptians, the ancient opposers, and late deceivers, of the Hebrews. (1) A prophecy that their forces at Carchemish on the Euphrates should in the fourth year of Jehoiakim's reign, notwithstanding their pompous preparations and big expectations, be terribly and irretrievably routed and scattered; 1—12. (2) A prophecy that, about thirty-four years after, the Chaldeans should invade Egypt, fill it with terror and confusion, murder the inhabitants, and render the country desolate about forty years; 13—26. (3) Comfortable assurance to the Jews that they should not be utterly destroyed, but delivered from captivity; 27, 28. [See Introduction, chap. iv. sect. iii.]

THE word of the LORD which came to Jeremiah the prophet against the Gentiles.

2 ^bAgainst Egypt, against the army of Pharaoh-necho king of Egypt, which was by the river Euphrates in Carchemish, which Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon smote in the fourth year of Jehoiakim the son of Josiah king of Judah.

3 ^dOrder ye the buckler and shield, and draw near to battle.

4 Harness the horses, and get up, ye horsemen, and stand forth with your helmets: furbish the spears, and put on the ^{*}brigandines.

5 [†]Wherefore have I seen them dismayed, and turned away back? and their mighty ones are [‡]beaten down, and are fled apace, and look not back: for ^efear was round about, saith the LORD.

6 ^fLet not the swift flee away, nor the mighty man escape; they shall stumble, and fall ^gtoward the north by the river Euphrates.

7 ^hWho is this that cometh up as a flood, whose waters are moved as the rivers?

8 Egypt riseth up like a flood, and his waters are moved like the rivers; and he saith, I will go up, and will cover the earth; I will destroy the city and the inhabitants thereof.

9 Come up, ye horses; and rage, ye chariots; and let the mighty men come forth; ^{*}the Ethiopians and [†]the Libyans, that handle the shield; and the Lydians, that handle and bend the bow.

10 For this is the day of the Lord God of hosts, a day of vengeance, that he may avenge him of his adversaries: and the sword shall devour, and it shall be satiated and made drunk with their blood: for the Lord God of hosts hath a sacrifice in the north country by the river Euphrates.

11 ⁱGo up into Gilead, and take balm, O ^mvirgin, the daughter of Egypt: in vain shalt thou use many medicines; for [‡]thou shalt not be cured.

12 The nations have heard of thy shame, and ^othy cry hath filled the land: for the mighty man ^phath stumbled against the mighty, and they are fallen both together.

13 ¶ The word that the LORD spake to Jeremiah the prophet, ^qhow Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon should come and smite the land of Egypt.

14 Declare ye in Egypt, and publish in Migdol, and publish in Noph, and in Tahpanhes: say ye, Stand fast, and prepare thee; for the sword shall devour round about thee.

15 ^{*}Why are thy valiant men swept away? they stood not, because the LORD did drive them.

16 He ^ymade many to fall, yea, one fell upon another: and ^xthey said, Arise, and let us go again to our own people, and to the land of our nativity, from the oppressing sword.

17 They did cry there, Pharaoh king of Egypt is ^{but} a noise; he hath passed the time appointed.

18 As I live, saith the ^bKing, whose name is the LORD of hosts, Surely as ^cTabor is among the mountains, and as ^dCarmel by the sea, so ^eshall he come.

19 Oh thou ^fdaughter dwelling in Egypt, furnish thyself to go into captivity: for Noph shall be waste and desolate without an inhabitant.

20 Egypt is like ^ea very fair heifer, but destruction cometh; it cometh ^hout of the north.

21 Also her ⁱhired men are in the midst of her, ^klike ^{*}fatted bullocks; for they also are turned back, and are fled away together: they did not stand, because ^mthe day of their calamity was come upon them, and the time of their visitation.

22 The voice thereof shall go ⁿlike a serpent; for they shall march with an army, and come against her with axes, as hewers of wood.

23 They shall cut down her ^pforest, saith the LORD, though it cannot be searched; because they are more ^qthan the grasshoppers, and are innumerable.

24 ^rThe daughter of Egypt shall be confounded; ^sshe shall be delivered into the hand of the people of the north.

25 The LORD of hosts, the God of Israel, saith, Behold, I will punish the ^tmultitude of No, and Pharaoh, and Egypt, with their gods and their ^xkings; even Pharaoh, and all them that trust in him:

26 And I will deliver them into the hand of those that seek their lives, and into the hand of Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon, and into the hand of his servants: and ^yafterward it shall be inhabited, as in the days of old, saith the LORD.

27 ¶ ^zBut fear not thou, O my servant Jacob, and be not dismayed, O Israel; for, behold, I will save thee from afar off, and thy seed from the land of their captivity; and Jacob shall return, and be in rest and at ease, and none shall make him afraid.

28 Fear thou not, O Jacob my servant, saith the LORD, for I am with thee; for ^aI will make a full end of all the nations whither I have driven thee; ^bbut I will not make a full end of thee, but correct thee in measure; yet will I [‡]not leave thee wholly unpunished.

CHAP. XLVIII.

Concerns the Moabites; and (1) Foretells their destruction, that it should be dreadful, and extend to all parts of their land; 1—6, 8, 21—25, 34: that the Chaldeans should shortly, and unexpectedly, invade their country; 8, 9, 16, 40, 41: murder them with great fury; 10: force some to flee; 9: carry multitudes captive; 12, 46: and, without permitting scarcely any to escape, lay the land desolate; 42, 45, 14, 15: and thus force them to abandon their idols; 7, 13, 35: turn their joys into mourning; 3—5, 33, 34, 37—39: while their neighbours should bewail their miseries; 17—19, 31—36. (2) Represents the sinful causes of these their disasters; viz. their pride, idolatry, carnal security, and confidence; 7, 11, 14, 29, 35: and their contempt of, and enmity against, God and his people; 20, 27, 30, 42. (3) Promises their restoration after the Chaldean captivity, &c. 47. [See Introduction, chap. iv. sect. viii. ix. x.]

A GAINST Moab thus saith the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel, Wo unto Nebo, for it is spoiled! Kiria-thaim is confounded and taken; *Misgab is confounded and dismayed.

2 There shall be no more praise of Moab: in Heshbon they have devised evil against it; come and let us cut it off from being a nation. Also thou shalt be cut down, O Madmen; the sword shall pursue thee.

numbers, no armour, no courage, no strength, no cunning, no wealth, no flight, avails when God is the assailant and pursuer. Mighty armies make but a pitiful figure when he masters the host of their enemies to the battle. And noisy blusterers do least in a time of need. They, who disappointed others, are at last disappointed themselves. Alas, what desolations sin makes in the most populous and wealthy countries! Quickly is Egypt too hot for the Jews, who fled thither, and all her thousands of cities turned into ruinous heaps. Amidst external preparations it is necessary to prepare chiefly for trouble, captivity, death, and eternity. But great is his grace, who secures the salvation of his church and people in the worst of times, and even grants partial deliverances to his enemies.

3 A voice of crying shall be from Horonaim, spoiling and great destruction.

4 Moab is destroyed; her little ones have caused a cry to be heard.

5 For in the going up of Luhith continual weeping shall go up; for in the going down of Horonaim the enemies have heard a cry of destruction.

6 † Flee, save your lives, and be like the heath in the wilderness.

7 ¶ For, because thou hast trusted in thy works, and in thy treasures, thou shalt also be taken; and Chemosh shall go forth into captivity with his priests and his princes together.

8 And the spoiler shall come upon every city, and no city shall escape: the valley also shall perish, and the plain shall be destroyed, as the LORD hath spoken.

9 Give wings unto Moab, that it may flee and get away: for the cities thereof shall be desolate, without any to dwell therein.

10 Cursed be he that doth the work of the LORD deceitfully, and cursed be he that keepeth back his sword from blood.

11 ¶ Moab hath been at ease from his youth, and he hath settled on his lees, and hath not been emptied from vessel to vessel, neither hath he gone into captivity; therefore his taste remained in him, and his scent is not changed.

12 Therefore, behold, the days come, saith the LORD, that I will send unto him wanderers that shall cause him to wander, and shall empty his vessels, and break their bottles.

13 And Moab shall be ashamed of Chemosh, as the house of Israel was ashamed of Beth-el their confidence.

14 ¶ How say ye, We are mighty and strong men for the war?

15 Moab is spoiled, and gone up out of her cities, and his chosen young men are gone down to the slaughter, saith the King, whose name is the LORD of hosts.

16 The calamity of Moab is near to come, and his affliction hasteth fast.

17 All ye that are about him, bemoan him; and all ye that know his name, say, How is the strong staff broken, and the beautiful rod!

18 Thou daughter that dost inhabit Dibon, come down from thy glory, and sit in thirst; for the spoiler of Moab shall come upon thee, and he shall destroy thy strong holds.

19 O inhabitant of Aroer, stand by the way, and espy: ask him that fleeth, REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. XLVII.—God exactly foresees the miseries of the most strong and flourishing states. And the strongest holds are of no avail against the artillery of a threatening, an angry, God. He effectually reckons against the spiteful or treacherous enemies of his people at last: and, if he be against us, who can be for us? The more we trust to creatures for help, the more sad disappointments we shall meet with in a time of need. Yea, great distress may make us even to forget we have our darling babies, or to wish they had never been born. But, notwithstanding the confusions of war, every stroke is directed by the hand of God; and none can stop it till it has finished his work.

23 And upon ^mKiriathaim, and upon Beth-gamul, and upon Beth-meon, 24 And upon ⁿKerioth, and upon ^oBozrah, and upon all the cities of the land of Moab, far or near.

25 ^pThe horn of Moab is cut off, and his arm is broken, saith the LORD.

26 ¶ ^qMake ye him drunken; for he magnified himself against the LORD; Moab also ^rshall wallow in his vomit, and he also shall be in derision.

27 For ^swas not Israel a derision unto thee? ^twas he found among thieves? for since thou spakest of him thou ^{||}skippedst for joy.

28 O ye that dwell in Moab, ^uleave the cities, and dwell in the rock, and be like the dove that maketh her nest in the sides of the hole's mouth.

29 We have heard the ^vpride of Moab, (he is exceeding proud); his loftiness, and his arrogancy, and his pride, and the haughtiness of his heart.

30 I know ^whis wrath, saith the LORD; but it shall not be so; ^xhis lies ^yshall not so effect it.

31 ^zTherefore will I howl for Moab, and I will cry out for all Moab; mine heart shall mourn for the men of Kir-heres.

32 ^aO vine of Sibmah, I will weep for thee with the weeping of Jazer; thy plants are gone over the sea, they reach even to the ^bsea of Jazer: ^cthe spoiler is fallen upon thy summer fruits and upon thy vintage.

33 And joy and gladness is taken from the plentiful field, and from the land of Moab; and I have caused wine to fail from the wine presses: none shall tread with shouting; their shouting shall be no shouting.

34 ^dFrom the cry of Heshbon even unto Elealeh, and even unto Jahaz have they uttered their voice, from Zoar, even unto Horonaim, as an heifer of three years old: for the waters also of Nimrim shall be ^edesolate.

35 Moreover, I will cause to cease in Moab, saith the LORD, ^fhim that offereth in the high places, and him that burneth incense to his gods.

36 ^gTherefore mine heart shall sound for Moab like pipes, and mine heart shall sound like pipes for the men of Kir-heres; because ^hthe riches that he hath gotten are perished.

37 For ⁱevery head shall be bald, and every beard ^jclipped: upon all the hands shall be cuttings, and upon the loins sackcloth.

38 There shall be lamentation generally ^kupon all the house-tops of Moab, and in the streets thereof: for I have broken Moab like ^la vessel, wherein is no pleasure, saith the LORD.

39 They shall howl, saying, ^mHow is it broken down! how hath Moab turned the ⁿback with shame! so ^oshall Moab be a derision and a dismaying to all them about him.

40 For thus saith the LORD, Behold, ^phe shall fly as an eagle, and shall spread his wings over Moab.

41 ^qKerioth is taken, and the strong holds are surprised, and the mighty men's hearts in Moab at that day ^rshall be as the heart of a woman in her pangs.

42 And Moab shall be destroyed ^sfrom being a people, because ^the hath magnified himself against the LORD.

43 ^uFear, and the pit, and the snare, shall be upon thee, O inhabitant of Moab, saith the LORD.

44 ^vHe that fleeth from the fear shall fall into the pit; and he that getteth up out of the pit shall be taken in the snare: for I will bring upon it, even upon Moab, ^wthe year of their visitation, saith the LORD.

45 They that fled stood under the shadow of Heshbon, because of the force: but ^xa fire shall come forth out of Heshbon, and a flame from the midst of Sihon, and shall devour the corner of Moab, and the crown of the head of the ^ytumultuous ones.

46 ^zWo be unto thee, O Moab! the people of Chemosh perisheth: for thy sons are taken ^acaptives and thy daughters captives.

47 ¶ ^bYet will I bring again the captivity of Moab in the latter days, saith the LORD. Thus far is the judgment of Moab.

CHAP. XLIX.

Still the cup of God's wrath goes round among the nations by the hand of the Chaldeans, and they must drink it. (1) For their seizing of the Israelites' territory in Gilead, and for their pride and carnal confidence, the Ammonites must have their hearts terrified, their cities destroyed, their persons murdered or made captives, that the Israelites may possess their country;—but shall at last be delivered; 1-6. (2) For their pride and self-confidence, the Edomites shall have their country wasted, their hopes disappointed, and themselves overwhelmed with inevitable, fearful, and lasting, destruction; 7-22. (3) After terrible confusion and consternation, the Syrians shall have their armies, and men able for war, murdered, and their cities burnt into ruinous heaps; 23-27. (4) The Arabs of Kedar and Hazor shall have their country desolated, and their flocks and herds carried off for a spoil; 28-33. (5) The Elamites, or Persians, shall have their forces destroyed or dispirited, their people scattered, and princes murdered; but at last be delivered; 34-39. [See Introduction, chap. iv. sect. vii-xii.]

exactness, activity, and fury, his agents perform their work. Such as could not be shamed out of their idolatry by his word must be made ashamed of it by his rod, and be convinced by experience that their idols cannot help them. Long outward prosperity is a snare to men's souls; and by it wicked men encourage themselves to more ungodliness. When men enjoy their good things here, they have none to expect in eternity. When God has borne long with sinful nations, they may expect calamities, surprising, terrible, lamentable, shameful, and complicated, but all of them righteous. And it is of infinite mercy if they issue not in everlasting destruction. Nor need presumptuous mockers of God and his people to wonder if their hands be made strong, or if their presumption become the prelude of their ruin.

CHAP. XLVIII. Ver. 43-45. In that period, fixed by God for the punishment of the wicked Moabites, multitudes of ruinous disasters shall come upon them at once; and, if they escape from one, they shall be ruined by another.—For fear of the Chaldeans, and conscious of their own weakness, they shall flee to Heshbon their capital; but the Chaldeans having taken it, shall, with fire and sword, spread themselves through the whole country, and waste it, and bring down the power and glory of their proud nobles, rulers, and noisy boasters.

36 And upon Elam will I bring ^cthe four winds from the four quarters of heaven, and ^dwill scatter them toward all those winds; and there shall be no nation whither the outcasts of Elam shall not come.

37 For ^eI will cause Elam to be dismayed before their enemies, and before them that seek their life: and I will bring evil upon them, even my fierce anger, saith the LORD; and I ^fwill send the sword after them, till I have consumed them:

38 And I will set my ^gthrone in Elam, and will destroy from thence the king and the princes, saith the LORD.

39 ¶ ^hBut it shall come to pass in the latter days that I will bring again the captivity of Elam, saith the LORD.

CHAP. L.

Now the Chaldeans, who had destroyed the nations around, must be fearfully destroyed in their turn, as a figure of the destruction of the Heathen, and especially the Antichristian, enemies of the gospel church. [See Introduction, chap. iv. sect. xii.] Here is (1) Manifest and grievous destructions advertised against Babylon by the Medes and Persians; 1—3. Their army is raised to strip the country of wealth, murder the affrighted inhabitants, and break down the walls, while their auxiliaries desert them; 9—18. They are mustered, and instructed to destroy Babylon, and are assured of success; 21—32. In fine, God's judgments cut off her helpers, ravage the country, and fill it with consternation and ruin; 35—46. (2) A list of the sinful causes of their destruction: idolatry, 2, 38; carnal joy, proud defiance of God, profanation of his truth, murderous oppression of neighbouring nations, particularly the Jews, 11, 14, 15, 17, 23, 24, 28, 29, 31, 33, 34. (3) Promises that Babylon's destruction should issue in mercy to the Jews; that God would plead their cause, and restore them rest in Canaan; 33, 34: make them penitently return to their God and their country, and solemnly covenant with him; 4—8: and not only restore their captivity, but pardon their sin; 28, 19, 20.

THE word that the LORD spake ^aagainst Babylon, and against the land of the Chaldeans, ^{*}by Jeremiah the prophet.

2 ^bDeclare ye among the nations, and publish, and [†]set up a standard; publish, and conceal not: say, Babylon is taken, ^cBel is confounded, Merodach is broken in pieces, her idols are confounded, her images are broken in pieces.

3 For ^dout of the north there cometh up a nation against her, who ^eshall make her land desolate, and none shall dwell therein: they shall remove, they shall depart both man and beast.

4 ¶ In those days, and in that time, saith the LORD, ^fthe children of Israel shall come, they and the children of Judah together, going and weeping: they shall go, and ^gseek the LORD their God.

5 They ^hshall ask their way to Zion with their faces thitherward, saying, Come, and let us join ourselves to the LORD in a perpetual covenant that shall not be forgotten.

6 My people hath been ⁱlost sheep: their ^jshepherds have caused them to go astray; they ^khave turned them away on the mountains: they have gone from mountain to hill; they have forgotten their [†]resting place.

7 All that found them ^lhave devoured them: and their adversaries said, ^mWe offend not, because they have sinned: against the LORD, ⁿthe habitation of justice, even the LORD, ^othe hope of their fathers.

8 ^pRemove out of the midst of Babylon, and go forth out of the land of the Chaldeans, and be as the he-goats before the flocks.

9 ¶ For, lo, I will raise and cause to come up against Babylon an assembly of great nations from the north country; and they shall set themselves in array against her; from thence she shall be taken: their arrows shall be as of a mighty ^qexpert man; ^rnone shall return in vain.

10 And Chaldea shall be a spoil: all that spoil her ^sshall be satisfied, saith the LORD.

11 ^tBecause ye were glad, because ye rejoiced, O ye ^udestroyers of mine heritage, because ^vye are grown ^{*}fat, as the heifer at grass, and bellow as bulls;

12 Your ^wmother shall be sore confounded; she that bare you shall be ashamed: behold, ^xthe hindermost of the nations shall be a wilderness, a dry land, and a desert.

13 Because of the wrath of the LORD, it shall not be inhabited, but it shall be wholly desolate: ^yevery one that goeth by Babylon shall be astonished, and hiss at all her plagues.

14 ^zPut yourselves in array against Babylon round about: all ye that bend

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. XLIX.—With strict jealousy God remarks the injuries done to his distressed people. And in very different forms he plagues and terrifies them who had plagued and terrified his favourites; while the losses of the injured are repaid out of the unjust gains of the injurers. It is therefore vain for backsliders from God to indulge pleasure, or to trust in any created enjoyment. When God lays countries desolate, widows and children are peculiarly miserable. O how great is the kindness of God, that invites such to be trusted to his care! But it is impossible to avert or withstand his angry blow, since he can make his weakest instruments too brave and valiant for the mightiest opposer, and can pull men from the strongest fortifications. And if his dearer favourites, or persons less guilty, be punished, it is in vain for us to hope for an escape. Yea, if he continue his hand on us, we can never recover from our ruins, but must be dreadful and lasting monuments of his vengeance.—All earthly joy, pomp, power, or bravery, in the day of his wrath, do but render our ruin more dreadful. Nor can the most securely situated, or the most inoffensive, escape from his anger. The most retired are forced into the open world, and made to share in the common misery. And God often wonderfully debases nations before he signally advances them.

the bow, shoot at her, spare no arrows: for she hath sinned against the LORD.

15 Shout against her round about: she hath given her hand: her foundations are fallen, her walls are thrown down: for it is the vengeance of the LORD: take vengeance upon her; as she hath done, do unto her.

16 Cut off the tower from Babylon, and him that handleth the sickle in the time of harvest: for fear of the oppressing sword, they shall turn every one to his people, and they shall flee every one to his own land.

17 Israel is a scattered sheep; the lions have driven him away: first the king of Assyria hath devoured him, and last this Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon hath broken his bones.

18 Therefore thus saith the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel, Behold, I will punish the king of Babylon and his land, as I have punished the king of Assyria.

19 And I will bring Israel again to his habitation, and he shall feed on Carmel and Bashan, and his soul shall be satisfied upon mount Ephraim and Gilead.

20 In those days, and in that time, saith the LORD, the iniquity of Israel shall be sought for, and there shall be none; and the sins of Judah, and they shall not be found: for I will pardon them whom I reserve.

21 Go up against the land of Merathaim, even against it, and against the inhabitants of Pekod: waste and utterly destroy after them, saith the LORD, and do according to all that I have commanded thee.

22 A sound of battle is in the land, and of great destruction.

23 How is the hammer of the whole earth cut asunder and broken! how is Babylon become a desolation among the nations!

24 I have laid a snare for thee, and thou art also taken, O Babylon, and thou wast not aware: thou art found, and also caught, because thou hast striven against the LORD.

25 The LORD hath opened his armoury, and hath brought forth the weapons of his indignation: for this is the work of the Lord God of hosts in the land of the Chaldeans.

26 Come against her from the uttermost border; open her storehouses; cast her up as heaps, and destroy her utterly: let nothing of her be left.

27 Slay all her bullocks; let them go down to the slaughter: wo unto them! for their day is come, the time of their visitation.

28 The voice of them that flee and escape out of the land of Babylon to declare in Zion the vengeance of the LORD our God, the vengeance of his temple.

29 Call together the archers against Babylon: all ye that bend the bow, camp against it round about; let none thereof escape: recompense her according to her work; according to all that she hath done, do unto her: for she hath been proud against the LORD, against the Holy One of Israel.

30 Therefore shall her young men fall in the streets, and all her men of war shall be cut off in that day, saith the LORD.

31 Behold, I am against thee, O thou most proud, saith the Lord God of hosts: for thy day is come, the time that I will visit thee.

32 And the most proud shall stumble and fall, and none shall raise him up: and I will kindle a fire in his cities, and it shall devour all round about him.

33 Thus saith the Lord of hosts, The children of Israel and the children of Judah were oppressed together; and all that took them captives held them fast, they refused to let them go.

34 Their Redeemer is strong; the LORD of hosts is his name: he shall thoroughly plead their cause, that he may give rest to the land and disquiet the inhabitants Babylon.

35 A sword is upon the Chaldeans, saith the LORD, and upon the inhabitants of Babylon, and upon her princes, and upon her wise men.

36 A sword is upon the liars, and they shall dote: a sword is upon her mighty men, and they shall be dismayed.

37 A sword is upon their horses, and upon their chariots, and upon all the mingled people that are in the midst of her; and they shall become as women: a sword is upon her treasures, and they shall be robbed.

38 A drought is upon her waters, and they shall be dried up: for it is the land of graven images, and they are mad upon their idols.

39 Therefore the wild beasts of the desert with the wild beasts of the islands shall dwell there, and the owls shall dwell therein; and it shall be no more inhabited for ever; neither shall it be dwelt in from generation to generation.

40 As God overthrew Sodom and Gomorrah, and the neighbour cities thereof, saith the LORD; so shall no man abide there, neither shall any son of man dwell therein.

41 Behold, a people shall come from the north, and a great nation, and many kings shall be raised up from the coasts of the earth.

42 They shall hold the bow and the lance: they are cruel, and will not shew mercy: their voice shall roar like the sea, and they shall ride upon horses, every one put in array like a man to the battle, against thee, O daughter of Babylon.

43 The king of Babylon hath heard the report of them, and his hands waxed feeble: anguish took hold of him, and pangs as of a woman in travail.

44 Behold, he shall come up like a lion from the swelling of Jordan unto the habitation of the strong: but I will make them suddenly run away from

CHAP. LI.

For the Jews' encouragement, Babylon's destruction is further delineated. Here is (1) An acknowledgment of her wonted wealth, glory, power, and conquests; 7, 20—23. (2) A complaint of her defiance of God; 1: covetousness; 13: cruelty; 7, 34, 35, 51: and perhaps obstinacy in idolatry; 9. (3) Judgment given against her in behalf of the Jews; 36, 5, 6, 10, 11, 24, 28, 56. (4) A description of Israel's God and Babylon's opposer, in contrast to her idols; 14—19. (5) The Medes and Persians, and their allies, raised up by God to destroy Babylon, are described; 1, 2, 11: and their commission given them; 3, 12, 27, 28. (6) The Chaldeans' inability to withstand them; 11, 12, 29, 30, 56—58. (7) Babylon's certain, unavoidable, gradual, unexpected, universal, and lasting, but righteous destruction; 8, 1—58. (8) The Jews are called to depart from Babylon as far as they could; 6, 9, 10, 45, 46, 50—52. (9) While some lament, multitudes shall rejoice over her ruin; 41, 48, 54, 55. (10) By Seraiah's sinking a copy of these predictions in the river Euphrates, near Babylon, after he had read it to the Jewish captives there, and appealed to God that it was his own declaration, this destruction is represented and ratified; 59—64.

THUS saith the LORD, Behold, ^aI will raise up against Babylon, and against them that dwell in the ^{*midst} of them ^bthat rise up against me, a ^cdestroying wind;

2 And will send unto Babylon ^dfan-ners, that shall fan her, and shall empty her land: for in the day of ^etrouble they shall be against her round about.

3 Against him that bendeth ^flet the archer bend his bow, and against him that lifteth himself up in his [†]brigandine: and ^gspare ye not her young men; destroy ye utterly all her host.

4 Thus the slain shall fall in the land of the Chaldeans, and they that are thrust through in her streets.

5 ^hFor Israel hath not been forsaken, nor Judah, of his God, of the LORD of hosts; though their land was filled with ⁱsin against the Holy One of Israel.

6 ^kFlee out of the midst of Babylon, and deliver every man his soul: be not cut off in her iniquity; for this is ^tthe time of the LORD's vengeance; he will render unto her a recompense.

7 Babylon hath been a ^mgolden cup in the LORD's hand, that ⁿmade all the earth drunken: the nations have drunken of her wine; therefore the nations are mad.

8 Babylon is ^osuddenly fallen and destroyed: ^phowl for her; ^qtake balm for her pain, if so be she may be healed.

9 We would have healed Babylon, but she is not healed: ^rforsake her, and let us go every one into his own country: for ^sher judgment reacheth unto heaven, and is lifted up even to the skies.

10 The LORD ^thath brought forth our righteousness: come, and let us declare in Zion the work of the LORD our God.

11 ^uMake [†]bright the arrows; gather the shields: the LORD ^vhath raised up the spirit of the kings of the Medes: for his device is against Babylon, to destroy it; because ^wit is the vengeance of the LORD, the vengeance of his temple.

12 ^xSet up the standard upon the walls of Babylon, make the watch strong, set up the watchmen, prepare the ^{||}ambushes: for the LORD ^yhath both devised and done that which he spake against the inhabitants of Babylon.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. L.—Certain but dreadful, is the ruin of arrogant sinners, and especially those who oppress or murder the people of God. How unstable are all earthly things! The Medes and Persians, whom the Chaldeans had but lately subdued, now tread their conquerors under their feet. And no idols, no princes, no counsellors, no diviners, no armies, no lofty walls or deep rivers, no wealth or bravery, can protect them from the weakest foe. The measure which they had meted out to others is meted out to them again, pressed down and running over. And their fearful judgments exactly correspond to their horrid iniquities.—But in what fearful things in righteousness doth God answer the prayers of his people! Yet certain is their deliverance, their restoration to fellowship with God, to safety, comfort, and full forgiveness. And if we begin to be tenderly affected under God's corrections, it is a token that our merciful deliverance is near. In promoting a good cause, it is good to be zealously affected, and to be among the first to lead the way. It is highly honourable to return to God and our covenant obligations to him. And happy is it when the cruel insults and upbraiding of our enemies are exchanged for the smiles, the vindications of our God. And, when our hearts and lives are reformed and our sins forgiven, how sweet are even the temporal mercies which we then enjoy!

CHAP. LI. Ver. 13. Thou Babylon, situated upon the great river Euphrates, and who rulest over many nations, the wealth of which thou hast collected by thy conquests, now the time fixed by God for the increase of thy wealth is finished. 38—46. Their mad roaring at their drunken and idolatrous revels shall be turned into fearful howlings: and, while they are inflamed with wine, the Persians shall murder them, their king, and their princes. At their idolatrous festival, in honour of their god Sheshach, shall Babylon be surprised by multitudes of irresistible enemies, and at last become quite desolate, and a fen or lake.—And, while their idols shall be destroyed by the Persians, who hate images, the spoils which they took from the nations around, especially from the 22 With thee also will I break in pieces man and woman; and with thee will I break in pieces old and young; and with thee will I break in pieces the young man and the maid;

23 I will also break in pieces with thee the shepherd and his flock; and with thee will I break in pieces the husbandman and his yoke of oxen; and with thee will I break in pieces captains and rulers.

24 And I will render unto Babylon, and to all the inhabitants of Chaldea, all their evil that they have done in Zion in your sight, saith the LORD.

25 Behold, I am against thee, O destroying mountain, saith the LORD, which destroyest all the earth; and I will stretch out mine hand upon thee, and roll thee down from the rocks, and will make thee a burnt mountain.

26 And they shall not take of thee a stone for a corner, nor a stone for foundations; but thou shalt be desolate for ever, saith the LORD.

27 Set ye up a standard in the land, blow the trumpet among the nations, prepare the nations against her; call together against her the kingdoms of Ararat, Minni, and Ashchenaz; appoint a captain against her; cause the horses to come up as the rough caterpillars.

28 Prepare against her the nations with the kings of the Medes, the captains thereof, and all the rulers thereof, and all the land of his dominion.

29 And the land shall tremble and sorrow: for every purpose of the LORD shall be performed against Babylon, to make the land of Babylon a desolation without an inhabitant.

30 The mighty men of Babylon have forborne to fight; they have remained in their holds; their might have failed; they became as women; they have burned her dwelling places; her bars are broken.

31 One post shall run to meet another, and one messenger to meet another, to shew the king of Babylon that his city is taken at one end, 32 And that the passages are stopped, and the reeds they have burned with fire, and the men of war are affrighted.

33 For thus saith the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel, The daughter of Babylon is like a threshing floor, it is time to thresh her: yet a little while, and the time of her harvest shall come.

34 Nebuchadrezzar the king of Babylon hath devoured me, he hath crushed me, he hath made me an empty vessel, he hath swallowed me up like a dragon, he hath filled his belly with my delicates, he hath cast me out.

35 The violence done to me and to my flesh be upon Babylon, shall the inhabitant of Zion say; and my blood upon the inhabitants of Chaldæa, shall Jerusalem say.

36 Therefore thus saith the LORD, Behold, I will plead thy cause, and take vengeance for thee; and I will dry up her sea, and make her springs dry.

37 And Babylon shall become heaps, a dwelling place for dragons, an astonishment, and an hissing, without an inhabitant.

38 They shall roar together like lions; they shall yell as lions' whelps.

39 In their heat I will make their feasts, and I will make them drunken, that they may rejoice, and sleep a perpetual sleep, and not wake, saith the LORD.

40 I will bring them down like lambs to the slaughter, like rams with he-goats.

41 How is Sheshach taken! and how is the praise of the whole earth surprised! how is Babylon become an astonishment among the nations!

42 The sea is come up upon Babylon; she is covered with the multitude of the waves thereof.

43 Her cities are a desolation, a dry land and a wilderness, a land wherein no man dwelleth, neither doth any son of man pass thereby.

44 And I will punish Bel in Babylon, and I will bring forth out of his mouth that which he hath swallowed up; and the nations shall not flow together any more unto him; yea, the wall of Babylon shall fall.

45 My people, go ye out of the midst of her, and deliver ye every man his soul from the fierce anger of the LORD.

46 And, lest your heart faint, and ye fear for the rumour that shall be heard in the land, a rumour shall both come one year, and after that in another year shall come a rumour, and violence in the land, ruler against ruler.

47 Therefore behold, the days come, that I will do judgment upon the graven images of Babylon; and her whole land shall be confounded, and all her slain shall fall in the midst of her.

48 Then the heaven and the earth, and all that is therein, shall sing for Babylon: for the spoilers shall come unto her from the north, saith the LORD.

49 As Babylon hath caused the slain of Israel to fall, so at Babylon shall fall the slain of all the earth.

50 Ye that have escaped the sword,

Jewish temple, and dedicated to their idols, shall be forced back, and restored to the owners: and no more shall multitudes bring presents, or come to worship their idols. Hasten out of Babylon as far as ye can, O ye Jews, and let not the rumours of Cyrus' invasion, or the revolt of the Chaldean lords, in the least terrify you, for God will by these very means work out your deliverance. 50, 51. O ye Jews, who have been preserved from the slaughter at the taking of Babylon, embrace the first opportunity of returning to Canaan, to rebuild your temple to God; deeply ashamed that, for your fathers' iniquities, it has so long lain in rubbish, and God been so much reproached on that account.

go away, stand not still: remember the LORD afar off, and let Jerusalem come into your mind.

51 ^pWe are confounded, because we have heard reproach; shame hath covered our faces: for ^qstrangers are come into the sanctuaries of the LORD's house.

52 Wherefore behold, the days come, saith the LORD that ^rI will do judgment upon her graven images; and through all her land the wounded shall groan.

53 ^sThough Babylon should mount up to heaven, and though she should fortify the height of her strength, yet ^tfrom me shall spoilers come unto her, saith the LORD.

54 ^uA sound of a cry cometh from Babylon, and great destruction from the land of the Chaldeans:

55 Because ^vthe LORD hath spoiled Babylon, and destroyed out of her the great voice when her waves do roar like great waters, a noise of their voice is uttered:

56 ^wBecause the spoiler is come upon her, even upon Babylon, and ^xher mighty men are taken, every one of their bows is broken; for ^ythe LORD God of recompenses shall surely requite.

57 And ^zI will make drunk her princes, and her wise men, her captains, and her rulers, and her mighty men: and they shall sleep a perpetual sleep, and not wake, saith the King, whose name is the LORD of hosts.

58 Thus saith the LORD of hosts, ^{aa}The broad walls of Babylon shall be utterly broken, and her ^{ab}high gates shall ^{ac}be burned with fire; and ^{ad}the people shall labour in vain, and the folk in the fire, and they shall be weary.

59 ¶ The word which Jeremiah the prophet commanded Seraiah the son of ^{ae}Neriaah, the son of Maaseiah, when he went ^{af}with Zedekiah the king of Judah into Babylon, in the fourth year of his reign. And ^{ag}this Seraiah was a ^{ah}quiet prince.

60 So Jeremiah ^{ai}wrote in a book all the evil that should come upon Babylon, even ^{aj}all these words that are written against Babylon.

61 And Jeremiah said to ^{ak}Seraiah, When thou comest to Babylon, and shalt see, and shalt ^{al}read all these words, 62 Then shalt thou say, O LORD, thou hast spoken against this place, ^{am}to cut it off, that none shall remain in it, neither man nor beast, but that it shall be ^{an}desolate for ever.

63 And it shall be, when thou hast made an end of reading this book, ^{ao}that thou shalt bind a stone to it, and cast it into the midst of Euphrates:

64 And thou shalt say, ^{ap}Thus shall Babylon sink, and shall not rise from the evil that I will bring upon her; and ^{aq}they shall be weary. Thus far are the words of Jeremiah.

CHAP. LII.

Chiefly coincides with 2 Kings xxv. and chap. xxxix. It is added to this book as a brief history of the fulfilment of Jeremiah's predictions against the Jews, and as an introduction of his Lamentations. Here is (1) Zedekiah's reign rendered unhappy by his sins and punishments; 1—3. (2) Jerusalem besieged and taken by the Chaldeans; 4—7. (3) The severe usage which Zedekiah and his princes met with from Nebuchadnezzar; 8—11. (4) Jerusalem and the temple burnt; 12—14. (5) The people carried captive to Babylon at different times; 15, 16, 28—30. (6) The plunder of the temple carried away; 17—23. (7) The two chief priests, and seventy-two others of rank, murdered in cold blood by Nebuchadnezzar at Riblah; 24—27. (8) King Jehoiachin is released and honoured after Nebuchadnezzar's death, as an earnest of the Jews' deliverance; 31—34.

ZEDEKIAH was ^{ar}one and twenty years old when he ^{as}began to reign; and he reigned eleven years in Jerusalem. And his mother's name was Hamutal, the daughter of Jeremiah of Libnah.

2 And ^{at}he did ^{au}that which was evil in the eyes of the LORD, ^{av}according to all that Jehoiakim had done.

3 For ^{aw}through the anger of the LORD it came to pass in Jerusalem and Judah, till he had cast them out from his presence, that ^{ax}Zedekiah rebelled against the king of Babylon.

4 ¶ And it came to pass in the ^{ay}ninth year of his reign, in the ^{az}tenth month, in the tenth ^{ba}day of the month, ^{bb}that Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon came, he, and all his ^{bc}army, against Jerusalem, ^{bd}and pitched against it, and built forts against it round about.

5 So the city was besieged unto the eleventh year of king Zedekiah.

6 And in ^{be}the fourth month, in the ninth ^{bf}day of the month, ^{bg}the famine was sore in the city, so that there was no bread for the people of the land.

7 Then ^{bh}the city was broken up, and all the men of war fled, and went forth out of the city by night, by the way of the gate between the two walls, which ^{bi}was by the king's garden; (now the Chaldeans ^{bj}were by the city round about); and they went by the way of the plain.

8 ¶ But the army of the Chaldeans ^{bk}pursued after the king, and overtook Zedekiah in the plains of Jericho, and all his army were scattered from him.

9 Then they took the king, and carried him up unto the king of Babylon to Riblah in the land of Hamath; where he gave judgment upon him.

10 ^{bl}And the king of Babylon slew the sons of Zedekiah before his eyes: he slew also all the princes of Judah in Riblah.

11 Then ^{bm}he ^{bn}put out the eyes of Zedekiah; and the king of Babylon bound him in ^{bo}chains, and carried him to Babylon, and put him in ^{bp}prison till the day of his death.

12 ¶ Now in the ^{bq}fifth month, in the tenth ^{br}day of the month, which ^{bs}was the nineteenth year of Nebuchadnezzar king LECTIONS UPON CHAP. LI.—Fearful are the destructions which await those who have long been employed in executing God's judgments upon others. And nothing more hastens their ruin than their insolence against God and abuse of his people. Even when he frowns upon these himself, he cannot endure others to insult, murder, or oppress, them. And it is easy for that Almighty God, who is infinitely superior to idols, to make his counsel to stand, and to do all his pleasure. Strong and brave are the weakest when God animates them to the battle: and weak and dispirited the strongest when God fights against them.

Vain is every thing earthly, as all may issue at last in such misery and desolation. But, alas, how dreadful must be the last, the eternal, destruction of the wicked, of which all the overthrow of cities and nations are but alarming preludes! Quickly should we flee from among them, that we share not in their sins and their plagues. In every affliction we suffer on earth, let us think on God, and remember his mercy and truth. And, though the accomplishment of his words be ever so unlikely, let us never stagger at his promise through unbelief. Is there any thing too hard for the Lord?

of Babylon, came Nebuzar-adan *captain of the guard, who †served the king of Babylon, into Jerusalem.

13 And burned the house of the LORD, and the king's house; and all the houses of Jerusalem, and all the houses of the great men, burned he with fire:

14 And all the army of the Chaldeans, that were with the captain of the guard, brake down all the walls of Jerusalem round about.

15 Then Nebuzar-adan the captain of the guard carried away captive certain of the poor of the people, and the residue of the people that remained in the city, and those that fell away, that fell to the king of Babylon, and the rest of the multitude.

16 But Nebuzar-adan the captain of the guard left certain of the poor of the land for vine-dressers and for husbandmen.

17 ¶ Also the pillars of brass that were in the house of the LORD, and the bases, and the brazen sea that was in the house of the LORD, the Chaldeans brake, and carried all the brass of them to Babylon.

18 The caldrons also, and the †shovels and the snuffers, and the ‖bowls, and the spoons, and all the vessels of brass wherewith they ministered, took they away.

19 And the basons, and the *fire pans, and the bowls, and the caldrons, and the candlesticks, and the spoons, and the cups; that which was of gold in gold, and that which was of silver in silver, took the captain of the guard away.

20 The two pillars, one sea, and twelve brazen bulls that were under the bases, which king Solomon had made in the house of the LORD: the brass of all these vessels was without weight.

21 And concerning the pillars, the height of one pillar was eighteen cubits; and a †fillet of twelve cubits did compass it; and the thickness thereof was four fingers: it was hollow.

22 And a chapter of brass was upon it; and the height of one chapter was five cubits, with net work and pomegranates upon the capters round about, all of brass. The second pillar also and the pomegranates were like unto these.

23 And there were ninety and six pomegranates on a side; and all the pomegranates upon the net work were an hundred round about.

24 ¶ And the captain of the guard took Seraiah the chief priest, and Zephaniah the second priest, and the three keepers of the door:

25 He took also out of the city an eunuch, who had the charge of the men of war, and seven men of them that were near the king's person, who were found in the city, and the †principal scribe of the host, who mustered the people of the land, and threescore men of the people of the land that were found in the midst of the city.

26 So Nebuzar-adan the captain of the guard took them, and brought them to the king of Babylon to Riblah.

27 And the king of Babylon smote them, and put them to death in Riblah in the land of Hamath. Thus Judah was carried away captive out of his own land.

28 ¶ This is the people whom Nebuchadrezzar carried away captive: in the seventh year three thousand Jews and three and twenty;

29 In the eighteenth year of Nebuchadrezzar he carried away captive from Jerusalem eight hundred thirty and two persons;

30 In the three and twentieth year of Nebuchadrezzar Nebuzar-adan the captain of the guard carried away captive of the Jews seven hundred forty and five persons: all the persons were four thousand and six hundred.

31 ¶ And it came to pass in the seven and thirtieth year of the captivity of Jehoiachin king of Judah, in the twelfth month, in the five and twentieth day of the month, that Evil-merodach king of Babylon, in the first year of his reign, lifted up the head of Jehoiachin king of Judah, and brought him forth out of prison, 32 And spake kindly unto him, and set his throne above the throne of the kings that were with him in Babylon.

33 And changed his prison garments: and he did continually eat bread before him all the days of his life.

34 And for his diet, there was a continual diet given him of the king of Babylon, every day a portion, until the day of his death, all the days of his life.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. LII.—How corrupt dignified persons, churches, and nations, sometimes become! But God casts out none from his church or protection till they first cast off him. If sinners wilfully depart from him, he gives them up to their own folly; and often nothing more is necessary for their destruction. Iniquity not only deserves, but hastens men's ruin upon them. And however sweet rebellion against God be at first, it is dreadful and bitter in its fruits. And the folly of parents often plunges their children into ruin. Divine ordinances, long abused, are removed at last. And external privileges, instead of excusing our sins, or exempting from miseries, become a grievous aggravation of both. Nor can our unbelief make void God's promises any more than his threatenings.—In this world all things are in a perpetual revolution; new kings, new laws, new conditions, new frames. And long nights of trouble often usher in joyful deliverances. Our times are all in God's hand, as well as the hearts of all men with whom we deal. And he can make our most wicked and infatuated oppressors to favour us whenever he sees meet.

THE LAMENTATIONS OF JEREMIAH

Are an appendix to his predictions; written not in the foresight, but on observing the desolations which they bewail;—not for Josiah's death, of whom there is not the smallest hint in the book, but for the destruction of Jerusalem and its temple, and the unhinging of the Jewish church and state, by Nebuchadnezzar. The composition is poetic and singular, each verse, in each chapter, beginning with a different letter of the alphabet, in order, as in some of the Psalms; only in the third every three verses begin with the same letter, somewhat in the form of Psalm cxix. Nothing can be conceived more tender, expressive, and affecting, than the descriptions. The grand design of them is to lead the captives to repentance and humiliation for their sins before God, and to inspire them with some hopes of deliverance.

CHAP. I.

Contains a grievous lamentation over the fearful change which had been made on Judah and Jerusalem on account of their sins.—Here is (1) A complaint to God of their calamities in church and state on account of numerous iniquities, and his compassion requested when other friends had proved treacherous or unprofitable; 1—11. (2) A like complaint to friends, and their compassionate consideration entreated; 12—17. (3) An appeal to God, justifying his righteous procedure in their affliction, and requesting him to justify himself in their deliverance; 18—22.

HOW doth the city sit solitary that was full of people! how is she become as a widow! she that was great among the nations, and princess among the provinces, how is she become tributary!

2 She weepeth sore in the night, and her tears are on her cheeks: among all her lovers she hath none to comfort her: all her friends have dealt treacherously with her, they are become her enemies.

3 Judah is gone into captivity because of affliction, and because of great servitude: she dwelleth among the heathen she findeth no rest: all her persecutors overtook her between the straits.

4 The ways of Zion do mourn because none come to the solemn feasts: all her gates are desolate: her priests sigh, her virgins are afflicted, and she is in bitterness.

5 Her adversaries are the chief, her enemies prosper: for the LORD hath afflicted her for the multitude of her transgressions: her children are gone into captivity before the enemy.

6 And from the daughter of Zion all her beauty is departed: her princes are become like harts that find no pasture, and they are gone without strength before the pursuer.

7 Jerusalem remembered, in the days of her affliction and of her miseries, all her pleasant things that she had in the days of old, when her people fell into the hand of the enemy, and none did help her: the adversaries saw her, and did mock at her sabbaths.

8 Jerusalem hath grievously sinned; therefore she is removed: all that honoured her despise her, because they have seen her nakedness: yea, she sigheth, and turneth backward.

9 Jerusalem hath grievously sinned; therefore she is removed: all that honoured her despise her, because they have seen her nakedness: yea, she sigheth, and turneth backward.

9 Her filthiness is in her skirts; she remembereth not her last end; therefore she came down wonderfully: she had no comforter. O LORD, behold my affliction; for the enemy hath magnified himself.

10 The adversary hath spread out his hand upon all her pleasant things: for she hath seen that the heathen entered into her sanctuary, whom thou didst command that they should not enter into thy congregation.

11 All her people sigh, they seek bread, they have given their pleasant things for meat to relieve the soul. See, O LORD, and consider; for I am become vile.

12 ¶ Is it nothing to you, all ye that pass by? behold, and see, if there be any sorrow like unto my sorrow which is done unto me, wherewith the LORD hath afflicted me in the day of his fierce anger.

13 From above hath he sent fire into my bones, and it prevaleth against them: he hath spread a net for my feet, he hath turned me back: he hath made me desolate and faint all the day.

14 The yoke of my transgressions is bound by his hand: they are wreathed, and come up upon my neck: he hath made my strength to fall; the LORD hath delivered me into their hands, from whom I am not able to rise up.

15 The LORD hath trodden under foot all my mighty men in the midst of me: he hath called an assembly against me, to crush my young men: the LORD hath trodden the virgin, the daughter of Judah, as in a wine-press.

16 For these things I weep: mine eye, mine eye runneth down with water, because the comforter that should relieve my soul is far from me: my children are desolate, because the enemy prevailed.

17 Zion spreadeth forth her hands, and there is none to comfort her: the LORD hath commanded concerning Jacob, that his adversaries should be round about her, and she is desolate. All her gates are desolate, and her streets are empty: her priests are desolate, and her virgins are afflicted: her children are desolate, and her husband is departed: her enemies are round about her, and she is desolate: her gates are desolate, and her streets are empty: her priests are desolate, and her virgins are afflicted: her children are desolate, and her husband is departed: her enemies are round about her, and she is desolate.

EXPLANATORY NOTES. CHAP. I. Ver. 13, 14. By his devouring judgments he has consumed all our strength. He has entangled us so that we cannot escape. He has most furiously debased and destroyed us, and all that we had. The punishment and bondage, which we undergo for our sins, are bound so fast on us that we cannot shake them off: and our sufferings are so twisted together that we cannot break through them and escape.

How hath the LORD covered the daughter of Zion with a cloud in his anger, and cast down from heaven unto the earth the beauty of Israel, and remembered not his footstool in the day of his anger!

2 The LORD hath swallowed up all the habitations of Jacob, and hath not pitied: he hath thrown down in his wrath the strong holds of the daughter of Judah; he hath brought them down to the ground: he hath polluted the kingdom and the princes thereof.

3 He hath cut off in his fierce anger all the horn of Israel: he hath drawn back his right hand from before the enemy, and he burned against Jacob like a flaming fire which devoureth round about.

4 He hath bent his bow like an enemy: he stood with his right hand as an adversary, and slew all that were pleasant to the eye in the tabernacle of the daughter of Zion: he poured out his fury like fire.

5 The LORD was as an enemy: he hath swallowed up Israel, he hath swallowed up all her palaces: he hath destroyed his strong holds, and hath increased in the daughter of Judah mourning and lamentation.

6 And he hath violently taken away this tabernacle, as if it were of a garden; he hath destroyed his places of the assembly: the LORD hath caused the solemn feasts and sabbaths to be forgotten in Zion; and hath despised, in the indignation of his anger, the king and the priest.

7 The LORD hath cast off his altar; he hath abhorred his sanctuary; he hath given up into the hand of the enemy the walls of her palaces: they have made a noise in the house of the LORD as in the day of a solemn feast.

8 The LORD hath purposed to destroy the wall of the daughter of Zion: he hath stretched out a line, he hath not withdrawn his hand from destroying: therefore he made the rampart and the wall to lament; they languished together.

9 Her gates are sunk into the ground; he hath destroyed and broken her bars: her king and her princes are among the Gentiles: the law is no more; her prophets also find no vision from the LORD.

10 The elders of the daughter of Zion sit upon the ground, and keep silence; they have cast up dust upon their heads; they have girded themselves with sackcloth: the virgins of Jerusalem hang down their heads to the ground.

11 Mine eyes do fail with tears, my bowels are troubled, my liver is poured upon the earth, for the destruction of the daughter of my people; because the children and the sucklings swoon in the streets of the city.

12 They say to their mothers, Where is corn and wine? when they swooned as the wounded in the streets of the city, when their soul was poured out into their mother's bosom.

13 What thing shall I take to witness for thee? what thing shall I liken to thee, O daughter of Jerusalem? what shall I equal to thee, that I may comfort thee, O virgin daughter of Zion? for thy breach is great like the sea; who can heal thee?

14 Thy prophets have seen vain and foolish things for thee: and they have not discovered thine iniquity, to turn away thy captivity; but have seen for

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. I.—Alas! how great is the desolation, when God withdraws, and we are deprived of a magistracy or ministry. Great is the slavery, the sorrow, the contempt, the poverty, to which sin brings men. And what neglect, profanation, and derision, of every thing sacred it occasions! If we wilfully depart from God, the rest of our soul, we must not hope to find rest in any thing else. And all afflictions are doubly heavy when we apprehend them coming from an incensed God. Affluence abused is the ready way to pining want: and cruel oppression of others prepares the like misery for ourselves. When sins become numerous and notorious, it is proper that God should rise to punish them. And, amidst desolating judgments, nothing is more painful to gracious souls than the violation and contempt of God's ordinances, and the loss of those comforts which they once enjoyed in him and his favours. But it is a mercy that we may apply to him in hope, when all our friends forsake us and our enemies abuse us. And it is doubly bitter if he then keep himself at a distance.—But, if comforts be withdrawn, children murdered, friends turn enemies or be buried in death, if sword, famine, and pestilence, devour, or if enemies insult, it is but the just punishment of our iniquities. No fiery judgments devour, no entangling providences befall, no servitude or misery crush, but what are all framed out of our own transgressions. Let us therefore always justify God, and blame ourselves: and, the more that created friends, confidences, and comforts, disappoint us, let us the more earnestly supplicate his favour. A praying heart and a prayer-hearing God will quickly produce the destruction of our enemies and our own deliverance. And after he has glorified himself in our corrections, he will magnify himself in the tremendous ruin of our destroyers.

CHAP. II. Ver. 13, 14. What can equal your calamity? Your breaches are like those made by the sea, great and incurable. Your prophets, of your own choosing, instead of charging your sins faithfully upon you, to bring you to repentance, and so prevent those judgments, preached their own flatteries, which hardened you in your sins, and hastened your ruin.

thee 'false burdens and causes of banishment.

15 All that pass †by 'clap their hands at thee; they hiss and wag their head at the daughter of Jerusalem, saying, Is this the city that men call 'the perfection of beauty, the joy of the whole earth?

16 All thine enemies 'have opened their mouth against thee: they hiss and gnash the teeth: they say, 'We have swallowed her up: certainly this is the day that we looked for: we have found, we have seen it.

17 The LORD hath done that which he had 'devised; he hath fulfilled his word that he had commanded in the days of old: 'he hath thrown down, and hath not pitied: and 'he hath caused thine enemy to rejoice over thee; he hath set up the horn of thine adversaries.

18 'Their heart cried unto the LORD, 'O wall of the daughter of Zion, 'let tears run down like a river day and night: give thyself no rest; let not the apple of thine eye cease.

19 'Arise, cry out in the night: in the beginning of the 'watches 'pour out thine heart like water before the face of the LORD: lift up thy hands toward him for the life of thy young children, 'that faint for hunger in the top of every street.

20 ¶ Behold, O Lord, and consider 'to whom thou hast done this. Shall the women 'eat their fruit, and children †of a span long? 'shall the priest and the prophet be slain in the sanctuary of the LORD?

21 The young and the old lie on the ground in the streets: my virgins and my young men are fallen by the sword: thou hast slain them in the day of thine anger; thou hast killed, and not pitied.

22 Thou hast called as in a solemn day my 'terrors round about, so that in the day of the LORD's anger none escaped nor remained: those that I have swaddled and brought up 'hath mine enemy consumed.

CHAP. III.

Contains mourning sentences, shorter, and applicable to Jeremiah's person, as well as to the Jewish church and state. (1) His grievous complaints, that God was angry, acted as an enemy, refused to hear his prayer: and that himself was in great perplexity, sore affliction, and almost utter despair of relief; that, while his enemies mocked, his griefs were renewed on every remembrance of his trouble; 1—20. (2) Comforting considerations,—that it was of God's mercy his troubles were not worse; that in the very depths of them he had some experience of God's faithful promises; that God was his everlasting portion; that it is good to seek, wait for, and trust in, God; that afflictions are really for our good; and that God will in due time restore his comforts, as he takes no pleasure in our troubles, nor in the wrongs done to us by our enemies; 21—36. (3) Proper duties under afflictions followed; viz. observation of God's hand in them, patience and resignation to his will, self-examination, and a hearty and believing return to him and his ways; 37—41. (4) Further complaints of God's frowns and tokens of displeasure, of reproach and contempt by neighbours, destruction by enemies, and of their own excessive griefs and fears; 42—54. (5) An appeal to God's omniscience and justice against the persecutors of the church encouraged by former experience of his kindness; 55—66.

I AM the man 'that hath seen affliction by the rod of his wrath.

2 He hath led me, and brought me into 'darkness, but not into light.

3 Surely 'against me is he turned; he turneth his hand against me all the day.

4 'My flesh and my skin hath he made old; he hath broken my bones.

5 'He hath builded against me, and compassed me with gall and travail.

6 'He hath set me in dark places, as they that be dead of old.

7 'He hath hedged me about, that I cannot get out: he hath made my 'chain heavy.

8 Also, 'when I cry and shout, he shutteth out my prayer.

9 'He hath enclosed my ways with hewn stone; he hath made my paths crooked.

10 'He was unto me as a bear lying in wait, and as a lion in secret places.

11 'He hath turned aside my ways, and pulled me in pieces: he hath made me desolate.

12 'He hath bent his bow, and set me as a mark for the arrow.

13 He hath caused the 'arrows of his quiver to enter into my reins.

14 'I was a derision to all my people, and their song all the day.

15 He hath filled me with †bitterness, 'he hath made me drunken with †wormwood.

16 He hath also 'broken my teeth with gravel stones; he hath ||covered me with ashes.

17 And 'thou hast removed my soul far off from peace: I 'forgot 'prosperity.

18 And I said, 'My strength and my hope is perished from the LORD;

19 †Remembering 'mine affliction: and my misery, the wormwood and the gall.

20 My soul hath them still in remembrance, and is †humbled in me.

21 'This I ||recall to my mind, 'therefore have I hope.

22 ¶ 'It is of the LORD's mercies that we are not consumed, because his compassions fail not.

23 They are 'new every morning: great is thy 'faithfulness.

24 The LORD is 'my portion, saith my soul; therefore will I hope in him.

25 'The LORD is good unto them that wait for him, to the soul that seeketh him.

26 'It is good that a man should both hope and quietly wait for the salvation of the LORD.

27 'It is good for a man that he bear the yoke in his youth.

28 'He sitteth alone and keepeth silence, because he hath borne it upon him.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. III.—How tremendous are the fatherly corrections of JERUSALEM! and very criminal must be the sins which so provoked him against the objects of his love. The children of light, and heirs of joy, sometimes walk in the greatest darkness of calamity and grief, and even despondency: and many and diversified are God's arrows of affliction, flying swift and piercing deep. But, if men will walk in crooked paths of iniquity, it is but just that God should cross their designs and break their measures; and, if they will regard iniquity, it is just in him to shut out their prayers, than which few things are more galling to a gracious heart.—Saints can never enter the lowest hell, being preserved by grace: but, by multiplied troubles from God, from devils, and from men, they may have a hell upon earth. Yet God will deliver his people and churches in due time, when they are thoroughly melted and purified in his furnace. In their worst cases they are neither helpless nor hopeless. Let us therefore always acknowledge him kind and faithful. If our troubles be heavy and sharp, let us eagerly claim and live upon him as our portion, and comfort ourselves with his compassion, and with a persuasion that all he does is the fulfilment of his gracious word, on which he has caused us to hope. Let us complain to God, but never complain against him. And let us earnestly work together with God, and labour to promote the same self-debasing and soul-sanctifying ends. Experience of former kindness should encourage us to hope for more. And, having cast our burdens on the Lord, we should continue waiting instant and patient in prayer; and at last we shall find an answer of peace. There is no prison so deep or dark but God can bring us out of it; no enemy so strong but God can destroy; and no request of faith so silent but he will hear it for our good. But wo to those, however powerful, haughty, merry, or scornful, against whom God's favourites plead! And think, my soul, what of all these troubles Jesus underwent—in infinite love underwent—and all for me!

of Sodom, that was ^moverthrown as in a moment, and no hands stayed on her.

7 Her ^mNazarites were purer than snow, they were whiter than milk, they were more ruddy in body than rubies, their polishing was of sapphire;

8 ^mTheir visage is [†]blacker than a coal; they are not known in the streets: ^mtheir skin cleaveth to their bones; ^mit is withered, it is become like a stick.

14 They have ^mwandered as blind men in the streets, they have polluted themselves with blood, [†]so that men could not touch their garments.

15 They cried unto them, Depart ye; it is unclean; depart, depart, touch not: when they fled away and wandered they said among the heathen, ^mThey shall no more sojourn there.

16 The ^manger of the Lord ^mhath divided them; he will no more regard them: ^mthey respected not the persons of the priests, they favoured not the elders.

CHAP. IV. Ver. 13—15. Their priests and prophets have persecuted the Lord's prophets, and have ruined the nation by flattering them in their sins. They formerly wandered from God's law in acts of violence and murder, and now they cannot walk in the streets without polluting themselves by dead bodies. —Yea, every one, even the heathens, abhor them as unclean lepers, or persons too despicable to live on the earth.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. IV.—When God forsakes a people their honour leaves them. And if rulers will not act for God, it is but just that he should make them contemptible. They, who live in the greatest plenty and pomp, know not to what straits they may be reduced before they die. And delicate and high living renders hardships doubly grievous when they come to be experienced. God's vengeance on his own people often astonishes his and their enemies. And scarcely ever does the vengeance of God light upon nations and churches without clerical wickedness having a distinguished share in procuring it. No wonder then that the very monsters of wickedness at last condemn and abhor unfaithful ministers. There is no escaping from the vengeance of God appointed for us. If we make creatures our trust, or the breath of our nostrils, God, who is our life, will confound them, and disappoint us. Yet the troubles of the godly will continue no longer than till they have accomplished the purification intended by them. But such as ridicule and insult Jesus Christ, and his people or ordinances, will at last render themselves ridiculous and miserable. And in the end their sin shall be discovered and punished, however secret and hidden.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. V.—Alas, what hurt sin has done! through it this world is but a scene of awful changes! And peculiarly terrible is the misery of ravaged and conquered nations. But, under all our trouble, it is a comfort to reflect that God sees all that comes upon us; and that, if we patiently and penitently suffer for the sins of our fathers, he will quickly return to us in mercy; yea there is a Canaan above, of which none can deprive us; and, though God frown, he will not forget us. If our earthly provision be scanty, our abundant spiritual provision can more than balance its defects; and, if the Son hath made us free, we shall be free indeed; yea honoured, glad, and glorious, for ever.

more. If the honour of his oracles and ordinances on earth go nearer our heart than our secular interests, he will quickly transport us to his sanctuary above, where we shall be ever with the Lord. His mercy may be hid, but it is not clean gone; and there is enough in it to redress all our grievances. If by his grace he renews our hearts, he will by his favour renew our days, and restore our wanted prosperity. Let me therefore, under my afflictions, complain to and plead with my God; but never quarrel with his conduct, discredit his love, or despair of his favours.

THE BOOK OF THE PROPHET EZEKIEL.

Ezekiel was also a priest; and prophesied among the captives in Chaldea, while Jeremiah prophesied in Judea and Egypt. His predictions, especially the first and last nine chapters, are extremely figurative. But, if we search them with reverence, humility, and diligence, we may from them find much encouragement to our faith and hope in God; even as in natural things we may reap much benefit from those, the nature, connections, and influences, of which we do not well understand. We have in them (1) His divine call to his prophetic office; i—iii. (2) His visions, and messages of reproof and threatening to the Jews; iv—xxiv. xxxiii. (3) His predictions of ruin to the enemies of the Jews; particularly the Ammonites, Moabites, Edomites, Philistines, Tyrians, Egyptians, and Turks; xxv—xxxii. xxxv. xxxviii. xxxix. (4) Promises of mercy to the Jews after their captivity in Babylon and their present dispersion; which are likewise typical of the glorious privileges of the gospel church; xxxiv. xxxvi—xlvi.

(2) A vision of four living creatures, or cherubims, qualified for action, and moved, as actuated by the Spirit of God; 4—14: and all directed by God; 22, 25: of wheels moved by them; 15—21: and of the glory of God, as in our nature, enthroned above them; 26—28: which represented Christ as the manager of providence by the ministration of angels, and of churches by the service of ministers.

NOW it came to pass in the thirtieth year, in the fourth month, in the fifth day of the month, as I was among the captives by the river of Chebar, that the heavens were opened, and I saw visions of God.

2 In the fifth day of the month, which was the fifth year of king Jehoiachin's captivity,

3 The word of the LORD came expressly unto Ezekiel the priest, the son of Buzi, in the land of the Chaldeans by the river Chebar; and the hand of the LORD was there upon him.

4 And I looked, and, behold, a whirlwind came out of the north, a great cloud, and a fire in folding itself, and a brightness was about it, and out of the midst thereof as the colour of amber, out of the midst of the fire.

5 Also out of the midst thereof came the likeness of four living creatures. And this was their appearance; they had the likeness of a man.

6 And every one had four faces, and every one had four wings.

7 And their feet were straight feet; and the sole of their feet was like the sole of a calf's foot: and they sparkled like the colour of burnished brass.

8 And they had the hands of a man under their wings on their four sides; and they four had their faces and their wings.

9 Their wings were joined one to another; they turned not when they went; they went every one straight forward.

10 As for the likeness of their faces, they four had the face of a man, and the face of a lion, on the right side: and they four had the face of an ox on the left side: they four also had the face of an eagle.

11 Thus were their faces: and their wings were stretched upward; two wings of every one were joined one to another, and two covered their bodies.

12 And they went every one straight forward: whither the spirit was to go, they went; and they turned not when they went.

See ver. 9, 12, 17. 2 Cor. 1. 12. Luke 9. 62. Heb. 10. 38, 39. Ver. 20. Zech. 4. 6. Mat. 4. 1, 11. Heb. 1. 14.

EXPLANATORY NOTES. CHAP. I. Ver. 4—15. These living creatures may denote angels, as ministering in the dispensations of providence, and ministers, as serving in the church. Their being living denotes their own life and liveliness, and the quickening influences of their work: their being four denotes their sufficiency for all the ends of the earth, and under all the empires of it: their four faces;—viz. of a man, denotes their wisdom, prudence, and tender compassion;—of a lion, their courage, boldness, and might;—of an ox, their indefatigable labour and patience;—of an eagle, their clear and piercing knowledge, high contemplations, and holy affections. Their four wings, covering their bodies, stretched upwards, and joined to their fellows, denote their diligence, speedy success, consciousness of their own infirmities, and mutual harmony and love. Their straight feet, like those of a calf, and sparkling, denote their upright, steady, persevering, pure, and glorious, ministrations and behaviour. Their many hands under their wings denote their great, but prudently directed and humble, activity in their whole work. Their fiery appearance denotes their ardent love and holy zeal. The Spirit moving among them denotes the Holy Ghost as calling them and qualifying them for, and directing and actuating them in, their work; and all directed by the voice of the Almighty who 13 As for the likeness of the living creatures, their appearance was like burning coals of fire, and like the appearance of lamps: it went up and down among the living creatures; and the fire was bright, and out of the fire went forth lightning.

14 And the living creatures ran and returned as the appearance of a flash of lightning.

15 Now, as I beheld the living creatures, behold one wheel upon the earth by the living creatures, with his four faces.

16 The appearance of the wheels and their work was like unto the colour of a beryl: and they four had one likeness: and their appearance and their work was as it were a wheel in the middle of a wheel.

17 When they went they went upon their four sides; and they turned not when they went.

18 As for their rings, they were so high that they were dreadful; and their rings were full of eyes round about them four.

19 And, when the living creatures went, the wheels went by them: and, when the living creatures were lifted up from the earth, the wheels were lifted up.

20 Whithersoever the spirit was to go they went, thither was their spirit to go; and the wheels were lifted up over against them: for the spirit of the living creature was in the wheels.

21 When those went these went; and when those stood these stood; and when those were lifted up from the earth the wheels were lifted up over against them: for the spirit of the living creature was in the wheels.

22 And the likeness of the firmament upon the heads of the living creature was as the colour of the terrible crystal, stretched forth over their heads above.

23 And under the firmament were their wings straight, the one toward the other: every one had two, which covered on this side, and every one had two, which covered on that side, their bodies.

24 And when they went I heard the noise of their wings, like the noise of great waters, as the voice of the Almighty, the voice of speech as the noise of an host: when they stood they let down their wings.

25 And there was a voice from the is enthroned in heaven. 15—25. The four wheels, with four faces each, and coloured like beryl, mysterious in their form, dreadfully high in their rings, full of eyes, and moved by the living creatures straight forward, may denote the manifold, precious, glorious, mysterious, dreadful, wise, and prudent, providences of God, perseveringly, self-consistently, and righteously, conducted by the ministration of angels in all parts of the world: Or they may denote the churches of Christ, mysterious in their form, uniform in their appearances, perseveringly advancing to the everlasting state, precious and shining in their oracles, ordinances, and true members, fearing God, and dreadful to their enemies, intelligent, prudent, and watchful, and directed and actuated by the Spirit of God, through the instrumentality of ministers, according to the word of an enthroned Redeemer.

26—28. This man, amber-coloured, and fiery in appearance, enthroned in heaven over the wheels and animals, and encircled with a rainbow, represents Jesus Christ in our nature as terrible to his enemies, but full of love to and zeal for his people, exalted to his Father's right hand, to be the Head and Director of angels and ministers, and ever attending to and administering the covenant of grace to the world.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. I.—Wherever God has a people he will find ministers for them. And there is great need that these should have a clear and firmament, that was over their heads, when they stood, and had let down their wings.

26 ¶ And above the firmament that was over their heads was the likeness of a throne, as the appearance of a sapphire stone; and upon the likeness of the throne was the likeness as the appearance of a man above upon it.

27 And I saw as the colour of amber, as the appearance of fire round about within it, from the appearance of his loins even upward; and from the appearance of his loins even downward I saw as it were the appearance of fire, and it had brightness round about.

28 As the appearance of the bow that is in the cloud in the day of rain, so was the appearance of the brightness round about. This was the appearance of the likeness of the glory of the Lord. And when I saw it I fell upon my face, and I heard a voice of one that spake.

CHAP. II.

Being prepared by his vision, Ezekiel is here (1) Ordained a prophet, to deliver God's messages to the Jewish captives in Chaldea, however rebellious and stubborn they were; 1—5. (2) Cautioned not to be afraid of them, however mischievous; 6. (3) Instructed to declare to them precisely what God should dictate to him, which is represented by a roll full of mournful contents given him to eat; 7—10.

AND he said unto me, Son of man, stand upon thy feet, and I will speak unto thee.

2 And the spirit entered into me when he spake unto me, and set me upon my feet, that I heard him that spake unto me.

3 And he said unto me, Son of man, I send thee to the children of Israel, to a rebellious nation that hath rebelled against me: they and their fathers have transgressed against me, even unto this very day.

4 For they are impudent children and stiff hearted: I do send thee unto them; and thou shalt say unto them, Thus saith the Lord God.

5 And they, whether they will hear or whether they will forbear, (for they are a rebellious house), yet shall know that there hath been a prophet among them.

6 ¶ And thou, son of man, be not afraid of them, neither be afraid of their words, though briers and thorns be with thee, and thou dost dwell among scorpions: be not afraid of their words, nor be dismayed at their looks, though they be a rebellious house.

distinct call from him to their work, considering the important dangers attending, and the awful issues and accounts thereof. All discoveries of God ought to fill our minds with deep awe and reverence of him. May I then, like these living creatures, be endowed with the Holy Ghost, filled with spiritual knowledge and prudence, and be uniformly active and upright in the Lord's way; always under his direction and influence, and making my light so to shine before men, as that they may see my good works, and glorify my Father which is in heaven. However strange and intricate the form of ordinances, churches, and providences, be, let me revere them, as framed and managed by God for his own glory; and always look above all to his infinitely glorious self, particularly as manifested in my nature, and the Lamb as it had been slain in the midst of the throne.

CHAP. II. Ver. 1—6. The title, Son of man, so often given to Ezekiel, and sometimes to Daniel, who also prophesied in Chaldea, might be given them to render them humble under their enjoyment of so many divine visions; or as an honourable representation of them as types of the Son of God in our nature. And the Jews are called briers, thorns, and scorpions, to represent what cursed, mischievous, malignant, subtle, fierce, frowning, venomous, and murderous, persecutors they would be to him,

CHAP. III.

Contains the further preparation of Ezekiel for his prophetic work.

(1) At his command, he eats the roll given him by Christ, which he found sweet as honey; 1—3. (2) He is further charged to remember what mischievous and obstinate hearers he was sent to, to encourage himself in God's assistance, and to continue instant in his work; 4—11. (3) Amidst great rushing and noise, and in much perplexity and anguish, he is, by a mighty impulse of God's Spirit, carried to his hearers; 12—15. (4) After seven days of astonishment and grief, he, as a watchman, receives further instructions in the duties and dangers of his office; 16—21. (5) In a new vision, similar to the former, he is ordered home to his house, and is struck dumb, and informed that God would restrain or restore his speech, as he thought fit; 22—27.

MOREOVER, he said unto me, Son of man, ^aeat that thou findest; eat this roll, and ^bgo speak unto the house of Israel.

2^c So I opened my mouth, and he caused me to eat that roll.

3 And he said unto me, Son of man, ^acause thy belly to eat, and fill thy bowels with this roll that I give thee. Then did I ^eeat it; and it was in my mouth as honey for sweetness.

4 ¶ And he said unto me, Son of man, ^fgo, get thee unto the house of Israel, and speak with my words unto them.

5^e For thou ^{art} not sent to a people ^hof a strange speech, and of an hard language, ^{but} to the house of Israel:

6 Not to many people of a strange speech and of an hard language, whose words thou canst not understand: ⁱsurely, had I sent thee to them, they would have hearkened unto thee.

7^k But the house of Israel will not hearken unto thee; for they will not hearken unto me: for all the house of Israel ^{are} ⁱimpudent and hard-hearted.

8 Behold, ^mI have made thy face strong against their faces, and thy forehead strong against their foreheads.

9 As an adamant, harder than flint, have I made thy forehead: ⁿfear them not, neither be dismayed at their looks, though they ^{be} a rebellious house.

10 Moreover, he said unto me, Son of man, ^oall my words that I shall speak unto thee receive in thine heart, and hear with thine ears.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. II.—Ministers had need always to keep in view their own infirmities as well as the dignity of their office; and the Spirit of God must enable them to receive as well as to declare their instructions. Alas, how fast men's wickedness cleaves to them under the heaviest afflictions! God exactly knows what men are and will be, and what entertainment his word and ordinances will get among them. And marvellous is his patience and pity in using all common methods to reform the most stubborn. And, if ministers preach by his commission and in his authority, whether men be edified or not, he will be glorified, by the faithful publication of his truths. They must indeed, in the discharge of their office, expect the most unnatural and infernal persecution; and from none more than from hardened hypocrites. But, let them be used as they may, they must faithfully adhere to and publish God's truths, however mournful or cutting. And, in order hereto, they must consider, understand, and experience, the power of them on their own hearts before they preach them to others.

CHAP. III. Ver. 1—3. This roll noted his prophetic commission, or the messages he was to deliver. The eating imported his cordial reception of his messages, and serious meditation on them, that he might understand them. Its being sweet in his mouth, imported that his commission was delightful to him at first, though afterwards he was filled with grief and anguish, when he found that he was to deliver such terrible messages, and those to be so little regarded. 8, 9. I will endow thee with boldness to deliver my messages, and with courage and constancy to hold out against all opposition. 12—14. The great rushing, &c. denotes the great commotions and troubles which he was to foretell, and in which God would be glorified.—The noise of the wings of the animals, and of the wheels, denotes the great activity of angels, ministers, and others, in executing God's threatenings and providences. 20. If a man who is but apparently righteous, without any real principle of grace, abandon his seemingly virtuous course, and give up himself to a continued practice of wickedness, and I lay in his way what his lusts shall improve to his destruction, whatever seeming good things Arise, ² go forth into the plain, and I will there talk with thee.

23 Then I arose, and went forth into the plain, and, behold, the ^a glory of the LORD stood there, as the glory which I saw ^b by the river of Chebar: ^c and I fell on my face.

24 Then ^d the spirit entered into me, and set me upon my feet, and spake with me, and said unto me, Go, ^e shut thyself within thine house.

25 But thou, O son of man, behold, they shall put bands upon thee, and shall bind thee with them, and thou shalt not go out among them.

26 ^f And I will make thy tongue cleave to the roof of thy mouth, that thou shalt be dumb, and ^h shalt not be to them ^{*} a reprover; for they are ⁱ a rebellious house.

27 But, when I speak with thee, ^k I will open thy mouth, and thou shalt say unto them, Thus saith the Lord God, ^l He that heareth, let him hear; and he that forbear, let him forbear; for they are a rebellious house.

CHAP. IV.

To try the faith of those Jewish captives who piously regarded Jerusalem, and to rebuke the presumption of those false prophets, and their votaries, who expected a speedy return to it, Ezekiel, by a figure, warns them of its approaching calamities. (1) The close siege of it, and fortifications raised against it, by the Chaldeans, are represented by his besieging a portraiture of it, lying 390 days on his left and 40 on his right side; 1—8. (2) The famine, which should rage in the city and among the captives, is represented by his eating coarse bread, disgracefully baked, and little of it, during his 430 days' siege of the portraiture.

THOU also, Son of man, ^a take thee ^b a tile, and lay it before thee, and pourtray upon it the city, even ^c Jerusalem:

2 ^d And lay siege against it, and build a fort against it, and cast a mount against it; set the camp also against it, and set ^{*} battering rams against it round about.

3 Moreover, take thou unto thee [†] an iron pan, and set it ^{for} ^a wall of iron between thee and the city, and set thy face against it, and it shall be besieged, and thou shalt lay siege against it. ^l This shall be a sign to the house of Israel.

4 ¶ [¶] Lie thou also upon thy left side, and lay ^h the iniquity of the house of Israel upon it: according to the number of the days that thou shalt lie upon it thou shalt bear their iniquity.

5 For I have laid upon thee ⁱ the years of their iniquity, according to the number of the days, ^k three hundred and ninety days: so shalt thou bear the iniquity of the house of Israel.

6 And, when thou hast accomplished them, lie again on thy ^l right side, and thou shalt bear the iniquity of the house of Judah ^m forty days: I have appointed thee ⁿ each day for a year.

7 Therefore thou shalt ^o set thy face toward the siege of Jerusalem, and ^p thine arm shall be uncovered, and thou shalt prophesy against it.

8 And, behold, ^q I will lay bands upon thee, and thou shalt not turn thee [†] from one side to another till thou hast ended the days of thy siege.

9 ¶ Take thou also unto thee wheat, and barley, and beans, and lentiles, and millet, and ^{||} fitches, and put them in one vessel, and make thee bread thereof, according to the number of the days that thou shalt lie upon thy side; ^s three hundred and ninety days shalt thou eat thereof.

10 And thy meat which thou shalt eat ^t shall be by weight ^{*} twenty shekels a day: from time to time shalt thou eat it.

11 Thou shalt drink also water by measure, [†] the sixth part of an hin: from time to time shalt thou drink.

12 And thou shalt eat it as [‡] barley cakes, and thou shalt ^u bake it with dung that cometh out of man in their sight.

13 And the LORD said, Even thus shall the children of Israel eat ^x their defiled bread among the Gentiles, whither I will drive them.

14 Then said I, Ah Lord God, ^y behold, my soul hath not been polluted! for from my youth up even till now have I not eaten of that which dieth of itself, or is torn in pieces; neither came there abominable flesh into my mouth.

15 Then he said unto me, Lo, I have given thee ^z cow's dung for man's dung, and thou shalt prepare thy bread therewith.

These bands may either denote the restraints which God put upon him during his four hundred and thirty days emblematical siege of Jerusalem, [chap. iv.] or the restraints which the Jews would lay upon him, in order to prevent his denouncing judgments against them.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. III.—God's word ought to be received, as the delightful food of our soul, without disputing: and, the more readily we obey God's difficult commandments, we shall receive the more comfort in the issue. Saints may receive with delight what speaks terror to the wicked. And they who minister in holy things ought to meditate on and experience their subject before they deliver it to others. But, unless God give them a spirit of wisdom and understanding, their own labours can avail but little. The more impudent sinners are in opposition to religion, the more bold and resolute should ministers and others appear in defence of it, that, if any obstinately reject the counsel of God, they may be rendered excusable. And, if we be called to hard services, he will fit and furnish us for them. Nor must the want of desired success discourage us, or in the least abate our faithfulness and diligence. What struggles of fear and unbelief may there be where grace reigns! It is very discouraging for ministers to be sent to preach to such as are uncontrollably wicked, and hate to be reformed. And their great griefs are often too big to be uttered. But God can bow their hearts as well as furnish their heads, and so prevent their refusal or desertion of their work. And he often for a time straitens them whom he intends to exalt.—Perseverance in sin and apostasy from God must certainly issue in temporal and eternal destruction. But readily will God pardon the most wicked, if penitent. O the infinite importance of the ministerial office! What influence the execution thereof hath upon the everlasting happiness or misery of mankind!

and ministers are acquitted, or condemned as guilty, of the destruction of souls, as they faithfully deliver God's messages or not. Men's apostasy from, or perseverance in good works, clearly manifest the counterfeit or real nature of their religion and grace. But they who follow God's direction shall have his necessary comforts always attending them. They, who sinfully evade God's public work, are ordinarily punished with temporary restraints from it: and they who hate reproof are deprived of faithful reprovers. Such as intend public preaching ought to be prepared for it by much reading, meditation, and prayer, as their messages are deeply connected with the eternal salvation and damnation of multitudes.

CHAP. IV. Ver. 1—7. It is most probable that these things were really done, and not in mere vision. If that year was their leap year of thirteen months, there was time enough between the dates, [chap. i. 1, 2, and viii. 1.] God could easily make the prophet lie still all the time specified, and live comfortably on his provision. The brittle tile represented Jerusalem's weakness and readiness to be irrecoverably ruined. The pan, or slice of iron, represented the walls of Jerusalem, or the resolution and fortifications of the Chaldean besiegers; the three hundred and ninety days on his left side, answering to the years of wickedness by the less regarded ten tribes after Jeroboam had become king, [1 Kings xii.] might also figure out three hundred and ninety days of siege by the Chaldeans, before they went off to fight the Egyptians, [Jer. xxxvii. 5.] The forty days on his right side, answering to the Jews' years of wickedness under Manasseh, Jehoiakim, and Zedekiah; or beginning from the 13th or 18th year of Josiah; might represent the forty days of siege after the Chaldeans returned before the city was taken.—His setting his face against the portraiture of Jerusalem, and having his arm bare, marked how furiously the Chaldeans should besiege it, and how ready they would be to use their swords in murdering the inhabitants.

Here (1) The murder, pestilential death, burning, and scattering, of the Jews still remaining in Judea and Jerusalem are represented by the cutting, burning, and scattering, of Ezekiel's hair; 1—14. (3) On account hereof, and answerably to Ezekiel's sign, great wrath is threatened; 8—10: and a variety of miseries, issuing in their reproach and ruin; 12—17.

AND thou, son of man, ^atake thee a sharp knife, take thee a barber's razor, and cause it to pass upon thine head and upon thy beard: then take thee ^cbalances to weigh and divide the hair.

2 ^aThou shalt burn with fire a third part in the midst of the ^ccity, when the days of the siege are fulfilled: and thou shalt take a third part, and ^dsmite about it with a knife; and a third part thou shalt ^escatter in the wind, and I will draw out a sword after them.

3 Thou shalt also take thereof ^ba few in number, and bind them in thy ^fskirts.

4 Then ⁱtake of them again, and cast them into the midst of the fire, and burn them in the fire; for thereof shall a fire come forth into all the house of Israel.

5 ¶ Thus saith the Lord God, ^kThis is Jerusalem: ^lI have set it in the midst of the nations and countries that are round about her.

6 ^mAnd she hath changed my judgments into wickedness more than the nations, and my statutes more than the countries that are round about her: for they have refused my judgments and my statutes; they have not walked in them.

7 Therefore thus saith the Lord God, ⁿBecause ye multiplied more than the nations that are round about you, ^oand have not walked in my statutes, neither have kept my judgments, neither have done according to the ^pjudgments of the nations that are round about you:

8 Therefore thus saith the Lord God, Behold, ^qI, even I, am against thee, and will execute judgments in the midst of thee in the sight of the nations.

9 And I will do in thee ^rthat which I have not done, and whereunto I will not do any more the like; because of all thine abominations.

10 Therefore the fathers ^sshall eat the sons in the midst of thee, and the sons shall eat their fathers; and I will execute judgments in thee, and the whole remnant of thee ^twill I scatter into all the winds.

11 Wherefore, ^uas I live, saith the Lord God, Surely because thou hast ^vdefiled my sanctuary with all thy detestable things, and with all thine abominations, therefore will I also ^wdiminish thee; ^xneither shall mine eye spare, neither will I have any pity.

12 ¶ ^yA third part of thee shall die with the pestilence, and with famine shall they be consumed in the midst of thee: and a third part shall fall by the sword round about thee: and I will scatter a third part into all the winds, and ^zI will draw out a sword after them.

13 ^aThus shall mine anger be accomplished, and I will cause my fury to rest upon them, and ^bI will be comforted: and they shall know that I the Lord have spoken it in my ^czeal, when I have accomplished my fury in them.

14 Moreover, ^dI will make thee waste, and a reproach among the nations that are round about thee, in the sight of all that pass by.

15 So it shall be a reproach and a taunt, an ^einstruction and an astonishment unto the nations that are round about thee, when I shall ^fexecute judgments in thee in anger and in fury and in furious rebukes. I the Lord have spoken it.

16 When I shall send upon them the evil ^garrows of famine, which shall be for ^htheir destruction, and which I will send to destroy you: and I will increase the famine upon you, and ⁱI will break your staff of bread.

17 So will I send upon you famine and ^jevil beasts, and they shall bereave thee; and ^kpestilence and blood shall pass through thee; and I ^lwill bring the sword upon thee. I the Lord have spoken it.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. IV.—God accurately marks and avenges the iniquities of preceding ages upon obstinate apostates who have continued in them. And with earnestness and resolution the instruments of his wrath proceed in their work against hardened transgressors. If God require it of us, we must be ready to endure any hardship or disgrace for his sake. And it is prudent to accustom ourselves to hardships, as we know not to what we may be put before we die. The fear of sinning chiefly affects a gracious soul. And, amidst pinching wants, it is very comfortable to have a conscience untainted with wilful guilt. But how ready God is, and how ready then should we be, to regard the conscientious scruples of his people!

CHAP. V. Ver. 1—4. This imports that Jerusalem, which had been the head of the nation, full of inhabitants, and numerous, but now weak, as hairs, should undergo the foulest disgrace and bitterest grief; and, being weighed in the balances of God's justice, should have punishment answerable to their guilt; the city should be taken and burnt; one third of the inhabitants consumed in the flames, or by the pestilence and famine; another slain during the siege, or in attempting to escape; the other be led captive to Chaldea, or flee for refuge to Egypt, Moab, and Ammon, whither the sword of the Chaldeans would pursue them. A few of them seemed reserved for mercy; but the slaughter of Gedaliah their governor, and others, and their flight into Egypt, not only issued in their own ruin, but provoked the Chaldeans to further cruelties against the remains of their nation.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. V.—If men will not be reformed, they must certainly be ruined: And with great ease, and by a vast variety of judgments, God can accomplish the destruction of obstinate sinners. It is very awful when those, who appeared as marked for monuments of mercy, are destroyed in wrath; and highly criminal when such as had been singularly privileged with God's favours, oracles, and ordinances, for promoting the welfare of all around them, become a plague, and the vilest monsters in wickedness: and yet often apostate professors become more abandoned than heathens! How awful it is when idols, and their services, are admitted into God's land, his temple, his church, and the heart formed for himself! The immediate agents in the ruin of sinners are all the instruments of an angry God; and, when his wrath is kindled, who can abide it! It is dreadful to have him glorified by, or rejoicing in, our everlasting destruction. And, alas, in what unpitied condition must the impenitent perish for ever! If public reproofs cannot restrain public wickedness, public judgments must follow at last. Some must be destroyed for the instruction and warning of others. And, if God bear long with us in our sins, his judgments must be the severer when they are inflicted. And the most incredulous will at length be forced to believe his word, though it should be by their own everlasting destruction.

CHAP. VI.

Contains (1) Threatenings of general destruction to the Jews and their idols: 1—7. (2) Promises of the unfeigned repentance and thorough reformation of a remnant of them; 8—10. (3) Directions for Ezekiel and his fellow prophets to bewail the iniquities and the calamities of their nation; 11—14.

AND ^athe word of the LORD came unto me, saying,

2 Son of man, ^bset thy face toward the ^cmountains of Israel, and prophesy against them,

3 And say, Ye mountains of Israel, hear the word of the Lord God, Thus saith the Lord God ^dto the mountains and to the hills, to the rivers and to the valleys, Behold, I, even I, will bring a sword upon you, and I will destroy your ^ehigh places.

4 And your altars shall be desolate, and your ^fimages shall be broken; and ^gI will cast down your slain men before your ^hidols.

5 And I will ⁱlay the dead carcasses of the children of Israel before their idols; and I will scatter your bones round about your altars.

6 ^jIn all your dwelling places the cities shall be laid waste, and the high places shall be desolate; that your altars may be laid waste and made desolate, and your idols may be broken and cease, and your images may be cut down, and your ^kworks may be abolished.

7 And the slain shall fall in the midst of you: and ^lye shall know that I am the LORD.

8 ¶ Yet will I leave ^ma remnant, that ye may have some that shall escape the sword among the nations when ye shall be scattered through the countries.

9 And they that escape of you shall ⁿremember me among the nations whither they shall be carried captives, because ^oI am broken with their whorish heart which hath departed from me, and with their ^peyes which go a whoring after their idols: and they shall ^qloathe themselves for the evils which they have committed in all their abominations.

10 ^rAnd they shall know that I am the LORD, and that I have not said in vain that I would do this evil unto them.

11 ¶ Thus saith the Lord God, ^sSmite with thine hand, and stamp with thy foot, and say, Alas for all the evil abominations of the house of Israel; for ^tthey shall fall by the sword, by the famine, and by the pestilence!

12 He that is far off shall die of the pestilence; and he that is near shall fall by the sword; and he that remaineth, and is besieged, shall die by the famine: thus will I ^uaccomplish my fury upon them.

13 ^vThen shall ye know that I am the LORD, when their slain men shall be among their idols round about their altars, upon ^wevery high hill, in all the tops of the mountains, and under every green tree, and under every thick oak, the place where they did offer sweet savour to all their idols.

14 So will I ^xstretch out my hand upon them, and make the land desolate; yea, ^ymore desolate than the wilderness toward ^zDiblath, in all their habitations: and they shall know that I am the LORD.

CHAP. VII.

Foretells the ruin of the Jews in a most affecting and alarming manner. That (1) It would be a final, complete, and miserable, destruction; 1—6. (2) It was very near at hand; 7—10. (3) On account of their aggravated pride and violence, it was unavoidable; 10—15. (4) Neither their strength nor riches should in the least protect them from it: 16—19. (5) Their glorious temple, in which they trusted, should be ruined; 20—22. (6) Their miseries and desolation by the Chaldeans should be as universal as their sins had been; 23—27.

MOREOVER, the word of the LORD came unto me, saying,

2 Also, thou son of man, thus saith the Lord God unto the ^aland of Israel, ^bAn end, the end is come upon the four corners of the land.

3 Now is the end come upon thee, and ^cI will send mine anger upon thee, and will judge thee according to thy ways, and will ^drecompense upon thee all thine abominations.

4 ^eAnd mine eye shall not spare thee, neither will I have pity: ^fbut I will recompense thy ways upon thee, and thine abominations ^gshall be in the midst of thee, and ^hye shall know that I am the LORD.

5 Thus saith the Lord God, ⁱAn evil, an only evil, behold, is come.

6 ^jAn end is come, the end is come, it ^kwatcheth for thee; behold, it is come.

7 ^lThe morning is come unto thee, O thou that dwellest in the land: ^mthe time is come, the day of trouble is near, and not the ⁿ†sounding again of the mountains.

8 ^oNow will I shortly pour out my fury upon thee, and accomplish mine anger upon thee: and I will judge thee ^paccording to thy ways, and will recompense thee for all thine abominations.

9 And mine eye shall not spare, neither will I have pity: I will recompense ^qthee according to thy ways, and thine abominations that are in the midst of thee; and ye shall know that I am the LORD that smiteth.

CHAP. VII. Ver. 7. The beginning of desolation is come upon you who remain in Judea; and ye shall quickly meet with real and terrible trouble, and not mere fears and ill-grounded fancies of it. 10—15. Since pride and violence have come to such intolerable heights among all ranks, the haughty and cruel Chaldeans are in readiness to punish you; and all orders shall be equally involved in your misery: such as sell fields shall not return to them in the year of jubilee, being captives in Babylon; Yea, after their seventy years' captivity, it will be impossible for many to find their own inheritances. This prediction of the desolation of the country, and of its inhabitants, shall not fail of exact REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. VI.—Terrible are the desolations which guilt and war make in nations. And no place, no idol, no station, can protect from God's wrath. If men will not destroy idols, he will find a way, even by idolaters, to destroy both together. His persevering patience, as well as both mercies and judgments, encourage and excite to a cordial and thorough repentance. And loathsome and abominable is the most beloved sin to a person truly penitent. Yea, hopeful is the case when sinners begin to remember God, and the base affronts which they have given him. And nothing more deeply wounds awakened consciences than a sense of their base ingratitude, and of grieving the holy Spirit of God. God will make all men, either by their ruin, or especially by their hearty repentance, effectually to acknowledge his perfections, to feel the equity and veracity of his word, and justify him in the accomplishment of it.

6 He said furthermore unto me, Son of man, seest thou what they do? even "the great abominations that the house of Israel committeth here, that I should go far off from my sanctuary? but turn thee yet again, and thou shalt see ^ogreater abominations.

7 ¶ And he brought me to ^pthe door of the court; and, when I looked, behold a hole in the wall.

8 Then said he unto me, Son of man, dig now in the wall: and, when I had digged in the wall, behold a door.

9 And he said unto me, Go in, and behold the wicked abominations that they do here.

10 So I went in and saw; and behold ^revery form of creeping things, and abominable beasts, and all the ^ridols of the house of Israel, pourtrayed upon the wall round about.

11 And there stood before them ^sseventy men of the ancients of the house of Israel, and in the midst of them stood Jaazaniah the son of ^tShaphan, "with every man his censer in his hand; and a thick cloud of incense went up.

12 Then said he unto me, Son of man, hast thou seen what the ^xancients of the house of Israel do ^yin the dark, every man in the chambers of his imagery? for they say, ^zThe LORD seeth us not, the LORD hath forsaken the earth.

13 ¶ He said also unto me, Turn thee yet again, and thou shalt see ^agreater abominations that they do.

14 Then he brought me to the door of the gate of the LORD's house which was ^{*}toward the north; and, behold, there sat women ^bweeping for Tammuz.

15 Then said he unto me, Hast thou seen this, O son of man? turn thee yet again, and thou shalt see ^cgreater abominations than these.

16 ¶ And he brought me into the inner court of the LORD's house; and, behold, ^dat the door of the temple of the LORD, between the porch and the altar, were about five and twenty men, ^ewith their backs toward the temple of the LORD and their faces toward the east, and they worshipped the sun toward the east.

17 ¶ Then he said unto me, Hast thou seen this, O son of man? ^fIs it a light thing to the house of Judah that they commit the abominations which they commit here? for they have filled the land with violence, and have returned to provoke me to anger; and lo ^gthey put the branch to their nose.

18 ^hTherefore will I also deal in fury: mine eye shall not spare, neither will I have pity: ⁱand, though they cry in mine ears with a loud voice, yet will I not hear them.

CHAP. IX.

Now Ezekiel must, in vision, see the destruction of Jerusalem for its wickedness. Here are (1) Destroyers prepared for the work; 1, 2. (2) While the cloud of glory removes from off the ark in the Holy of Holies to the threshold of the temple, as a token of God's abandoning it to ruin, the mourners over the prevailing sins of the city are ordered to be marked for preservation; 3, 4. (3) Orders are given for the execution of the rest, and the slaughter immediately begins; 5—7. (4) Ezekiel intercedes in vain for the mitigation of the slaughter; 8—10. (5) He who marked the mourners reports that every thing was done according to order; 11.

HE ^acried also in mine ears with ^ba loud voice, saying, Cause ^cthem that have charge over the city to draw near, even every man with his destroying weapon in his hand.

2 And, behold, ^dsix men came from the way of the ^ehigher gate ^{*}which lieth toward the north, and every man ^fa slaughter weapon in his hand; and ^gone man among them was ^hclothed with linen, with a writer's inkhorn ⁱby his side: and they went in, and stood ^jbeside the brazen altar.

3 And ^kthe glory of the God of Israel was gone up from the cherub, whereupon he was, to the threshold of the house. And he called to the man clothed with linen, who had the writer's inkhorn by his side;

4 And the LORD said unto him, Go through the midst of the city, through the midst of Jerusalem, and ^lset a mark upon the foreheads of the men ^mthat sigh and that cry for all the abominations that be done in the midst thereof.

5 ¶ And to the others he said in ⁿmine hearing, ^oGo ye after him through the city, and smite: let not your eye spare, neither have ye pity:

6 Slay ^putterly old and young, both maids, and little children, and women; ^qbut come not near any man upon whom is the mark: and ^rbegin at my sanctuary. Then they began at ^sthe ancient men which were before the house.

7 And he said unto them, ^tDefile the house, and fill the courts with the slain: go ye forth. And they went forth, and slew in the city.

8 ¶ And it came to pass, while they were slaying them, and I was left, that ^uI fell upon my face, and cried, and said, 'Ah Lord God! wilt thou destroy all the residue of Israel in the pouring out of thy fury upon Jerusalem?

9 Then said he unto me, ^vThe iniquity of the house of Israel and Judah is dom can any be found worse than evil ministers and magistrates. Nothing more encourages men to indulgence, or even impudence, in sin, than a practical disbelief of God's all-seeing knowledge and all-present Majesty. If once women transgress the natural modesty of their sex, they bid fair to stick at nothing horrid or obscene. And, if men once turn their back upon God's institutions, they bid fair endlessly to wander after their own inventions. But shortly shall the most secret abominations be discovered, and the most shocking and daring be sufficiently punished.

CHAP. IX. Ver. 2—11. The six armed destroyers denote the Chaldeans, and other instruments of God's vengeance. The man with the inkhorn denotes Jesus Christ, who manages all the slaughter of apostate nations, nay, all in the world, so as may consist with the preservation of his people, especially those who faithfully mourn over, and testify against, abounding iniquities.

exceeding great, and the land is *full of blood, and the city full of †perverseness: for they say, *The LORD hath forsaken the earth, and the LORD seeth not.

10 And, as for me also, mine eye shall not spare, neither will I have pity, but †I will recompense their way upon their head.

11 And, behold, the man clothed with linen, which had the inkhorn by his side, †reported the matter, saying, *I have done as thou hast commanded me.

CHAP. X.

The vision which the prophet had seen [chap. i. and iii. 23, and viii. 2, 4.] is here repeated, with a particular reference to the destruction of Jerusalem, signified by (1) The scattering of burning coals over it, taken from between the cherubims, by him who marked the mourners for preservation; 1—7. (2) The removal of the divine cloud of glory from the temple, and standing as if ready fully to depart; 8—22.

THEN †I looked, and, behold, in the firmament that was above the head of the cherubims there appeared over them as it were a sapphire stone, as the appearance of the likeness of a throne.

2 And †he spake unto the †man clothed with linen, and said, †Go in between the wheels, even under the cherub, and fill *thine hand with coals of fire from between the cherubims, and †scatter them over the city. And he went in in my sight.

3 Now the cherubims stood on the right side of the house when the man went in; and †the cloud filled the inner court.

4 Then the glory of the LORD †went up from the cherub, †and stood over the threshold of the house; and †the house was filled with the cloud, and the court was full of the brightness of the LORD's glory.

5 And the †sound of the cherubims' wings was heard even to the †outer court, as the †voice of the Almighty God when he speaketh.

6 And it came to pass, that, †when he had commanded the man clothed with linen, saying, Take fire from between the wheels, from between the cherubims, then he went in and †stood beside the wheels.

7 And one cherub †stretched forth his hand from between the cherubims unto the fire that was between the cherubims, and took thereof, and put it into the hands of him that was clothed with linen; who took it, and †went out.

8 ¶ And there appeared in the cherubims †the form of a man's hand under their wings.

9 †And, when I looked, behold the four wheels by the cherubims, one wheel by one cherub and another wheel by another cherub: and the appearance of the wheels was as the colour of a beryl stone.

10 And, as for their appearances, they four had one likeness, †as if a wheel had been in the midst of a wheel.

11 †When they went they went upon their four sides; they turned not as they went, but to the place whither the †head looked they followed it; they turned not as they went.

12 And their whole †body, and their backs, and their hands, and their wings, and the wheels, were †full of eyes round about, even the wheels that they four had.

13 As for the wheels, *it was †cried unto them in my hearing, O wheel!

14 †And every one had four faces: †the first face was the face of a cherub, and †the second face was the face of a man, and the †third the face of a lion, and the fourth †the face of an eagle.

15 And the cherubims were †lifted up. †This is the living creature that I saw by the river of Chebar.

16 †And when the cherubims went the wheels went by them: and when the cherubims lifted up their wings to mount up from the earth, the same wheels also turned not from beside them.

17 When they stood these stood; and when they were lifted up these lifted up themselves also: for †the spirit †of the living creature was in them.

18 Then the glory of the LORD †departed from off the threshold of the house, and †stood over the †cherubims.

19 And the †cherubims lifted up their wings, and mounted up from the earth in my sight: when they went out the wheels also were beside them, and every one stood †at the door of †the east gate of the LORD's house; †and the glory of the God of Israel was over them above.

20 †This is the living creature that I saw under the God of Israel by the river of Chebar; and †I knew that they were the cherubims.

21 †Every one had four faces apiece, and every one four wings; and the likeness of the hands of a man was under their wings.

22 And the likeness of their faces was the same faces which I saw by the river of Chebar, their appearances and themselves: they †went every one straight forward.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. IX.—God's ministers of wrath, no less than of mercy, are always ready at his call. But how exceeding loth he is to leave a church, till their obstinacy and impudence, as it were, force him away! And gradual even then are the removals of his comfortable presence. But even in the midst of ruin and destruction he takes peculiar care of the protection of his followers, however weak and concealed their holiness and zeal may be. He knows them that are his; and not one of them shall be lost. And he will keep them safe amidst common calamities, who keep themselves pure amidst abounding provocations. But, when he has gathered his wheat into his garner, nothing remains for the chaff but unquenchable fire. Those who persist in impenitence must die without mercy. And none meet with more terrible destruction than unfaithful magistrates and ministers. God's temple protects penitent, not obstinate, offenders. And, if judgment begin at the house of God, where shall the ungodly and sinner appear! If servants in it defile it with their idolatries, no wonder that God should suffer the enemies of it to defile it with their violences.—But, if God spare us in mercy, we ought to intercede for our sinful brethren. And, even though for their sinfulness God should refuse to grant our requests, he will condescend to shew us the reasons of his conduct.

CHAP. X. Ver. 1—7. The throne, ver. 1, Denotes God's coming in a way of judgment against the Jews. The man clothed in linen, taking the fire from between the cherubims to scatter over the city, 2, 6, 7, denotes Christ as executing the destructive vengeance of God on Jerusalem, according to the predictions of his prophets, and by the ministration of angels. The bright cloud that filled the inner court, 3, 4, might denote the terrible vengeance of God on the priests; or his presence, as leaving the Jews and coming to the Gentiles. The terrible sound of the cherubims' wings, heard even to the outer court, 5, may denote the terrible judgments of God on the Jews, heard of among the Heathen; or the gospel published by the apostles to the Gentiles. 13. I plainly discerned that every providential dispensation, and every particular church, was under the direction and government of some superior being, even God himself. CHAP. XI.

Concludes the vision which Ezekiel saw at Jerusalem, and relates the two messages which he received. (1) A message of wrath against those princes, who, in high presumption and false hope of safety, remained in Jerusalem; importing that God would charge them with all the murder occasioned by their refusing to surrender the city to the Chaldeans; and that he would force them out of it, and prosecute them unto ruin, by his righteous vengeance:—as a prelude of which, Pelatiah, one of them, drops down dead, which excites the prophet to renew his intercession: 1—13. (2) A message of comfort to the dispirited captives in Babylon; importing that God would protect and be present with them, put an end to their captivity and troubles, pardon and purge them from their idolatries and other sins, renew their hearts and reform their lives, and meanwhile severely punish those who should hate to be reformed; 14—21. (3) The cloud of glory removing further from the temple, the vision disappears, and Ezekiel faithfully relates it to his fellow captives at Babylon; 22—25.

MOREOVER, "the spirit lifted me up, and brought me unto the ^beast gate of the LORD's house, which looketh eastward: and, behold, at the door of the gate ^cfive and twenty men; among whom I saw Jaazaniah the son of Azur, and Pelatiah the son of Benaiah, ^dprinces of the people.

2 Then said he unto me, Son of man, these are the men that ^edevise ^f*mischief and give wicked counsel in this city;

3 Which say, †It is ^g'not near, let us build houses: ^hthis city is the caldron, and we be the flesh.

4 ¶ Therefore ⁱprophesy against them; prophesy, O son of man.

5 And the spirit of the LORD ^jfell upon me, and said unto me, Speak, Thus saith the LORD, ^kThus have ye said, O house of Israel: for ^lI know the things that come into your mind, every one of them.

6 ^mYe have multiplied your slain in this city, and ye have filled the streets thereof with the slain.

7 Therefore thus saith the Lord God, ⁿYour slain, whom ye have laid in the midst of it, they are the flesh, and this city is the caldron: but ^oI will bring you forth out of the midst of it.

8 ^pYe have feared the sword, and I will bring a sword upon you, saith the Lord God.

9 ^qAnd I will bring you out of the midst thereof, and deliver you into the hands of strangers, and will execute judgments among you.

10 Ye shall fall by the sword; I will judge you in the border of Israel; and ^rye shall know that I am the LORD.

11 ^sThis city shall not be your caldron, neither shall ye be the flesh in the midst thereof; but I will judge you in the ^t'border of Israel:

12 And ye shall know that I am the LORD: †for ye have not walked in my statutes, neither executed my judgments, but ^u"have done after the manners of the heathen that are round about you.

13 ¶ And it came to pass, ^v"when I prophesied, that Pelatiah the son of Benaiah ^w'died. Then ^x'fell I down upon my face, and cried with a loud voice, and said, Ah, Lord God! wilt thou make a full end of the remnant of Israel?

14 ¶ ^y"Again the word of the LORD came unto me, saying, 15 Son of man, thy ^z^bbrethren, even thy brethren, the men of thy kindred, and all the house of Israel wholly, are they unto whom the inhabitants of Jerusalem have said, ^a"Get ye far from the LORD: unto us is this land given in possession.

16 Therefore say, Thus saith the Lord God, Although ^b"I have cast them far off among the heathen, and although I have scattered them among the countries, yet will I be to them as ^c"a little sanctuary in the countries where they shall come.

17 Therefore say, Thus saith the Lord God, I will even ^d'gather you from the people, and assemble you out of the countries where ye have been scattered, and I will give you the land of Israel.

18 And they shall come thither, and they shall ^e'take away all the detestable things thereof and all the abominations thereof from thence.

19 And ^f"I will give them one heart, and I will put a new spirit within you; and I will take the ^g'stony heart out of their flesh, and will give them an heart of flesh:

20 ^h"That they may walk in my statutes, and keep mine ordinances, and do them: ⁱ'and they shall be my people, and I will be their God.

21 But as for them whose ^j"heart walketh after the heart of their ^k"detestable things, and their abominations, ^l"I will recompense their way upon their own heads, saith the Lord God.

22 ¶ ^m"Then did the cherubims lift up their wings, and the wheels beside them; and the glory of the God of Israel was over them above.

23 ⁿ"And the glory of the LORD went up from the midst of the city, and stood upon the mountain which is on the east side of the city.

24 ¶ Afterwards the spirit ^o'took me up, and brought me in a vision by the spirit of God into ^p"Chaldea, to them of the captivity. So the vision that I had seen ^q'went up from me.

25 ^r"Then I spake unto them of the

It is for these your brethren in Chaldea you should pray, who are ridiculed by the Jews at Jerusalem as voluntary forsakers of the Lord, his land and worship, and forfeiters of their property to such as maintained their station and interest in Canaan.—To these, in their scattered condition, will I be a protector, and will accept their worship, as well as if at Jerusalem. These will I gather together and restore to their country; in due time, purge from their idolatries; renew in all the faculties of their soul; and change their stubborn, rebellious, and incorrigible, dispositions into those which are tender, tractable, and pliable.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. X.—How glorious and majestic are the appearances of God in his providence or church! awful is the ministration of angels, or messages of faithful ministers; and terrible are the denunciations of JEHOVAH's wrath, especially against apostate professors! And deep the concern of Jesus Christ, and his angels and ministers in the execution of it! He hath all judgment committed to him; and at his last coming, he will scatter his coals of fire over our earth, and for ever over the world of the ungodly. Harmonious and uniform, steady and regular, are the motions of providence, and the divine management of churches, amidst all their variations. All things are fixed by God's unalterable decree, and brought to pass by his irresistible energy.—But by slow degrees, and in seeming aversion, doth he remove his gracious presence and ordinances from a people, as one glad to return upon their gospel repentance and humble requests.

CHAP. XI. Ver. 2, 3. They contrive schemes for the defence of the city, and had shewed me.

CHAP. XII.

Not glorious visions, but divine words, now assure Ezekiel of Jerusalem's destruction. (1) By removing his stuff, and quitting his lodging, he must prefigure King Zedekiah's flight out of Jerusalem, in great confusion, at the taking of the city by the Chaldeans, and the dispersion of his assistants; 1—10. (2) By eating his meat with trembling, he must prefigure the famine and consternation of the inhabitants during the siege; 17—20. (3) He must plainly declare that these predictions of Jerusalem's ruin should happen within a very few years, notwithstanding they flattered themselves to the contrary; 21—28.

THE word of the LORD also came unto me, saying,

2 ^aSon of man, thou dwellest in the midst of ^ba rebellious house, ^cwho have eyes to see, and see not; they have ears to hear, and hear not: for they are a rebellious house.

3 Therefore, thou son of man, ^dprepare the ^{*}stuff for removing, and remove ^eby day in their sight; and thou shalt remove from thy place to another place in their sight: ^fit may be they will consider, though they be a rebellious house.

4 Then shalt thou bring forth thy stuff by day in their sight, as stuff for removing: and thou shalt go forth ^gat even in their sight, ^has they that go forth into captivity.

5 ⁱDig thou through the wall in their sight, and carry out thereby.

6 In their sight shalt thou bear ⁱit upon thy shoulders, and carry ⁱit forth in the twilight: thou shalt ^jcover thy face that thou see not the ground: for I have set thee ^kfor a sign unto the house of Israel.

7 ^lAnd I did so as I was commanded: I brought forth my stuff by day, as stuff for captivity; and in the even I ^mdigged through the wall with mine hand; I brought ⁿit forth in the twilight, and I bare ⁿit upon my shoulder in their sight.

8 ¶ And in the morning came the word of the LORD unto me, saying,

9 Son of man, ^ohath not the house of Israel, the rebellious house, said unto thee, What dost thou?

10 Say thou unto them, Thus saith the Lord God, This ^pburden concerneth the prince in Jerusalem, and all the house of Israel that are among them.

11 Say, ^qI am your sign: like as I have done, so shall it be done unto them: ^rthey shall remove and go into captivity.

12 ^sAnd the prince that is among them shall bear upon his shoulder in the twilight, and shall go forth: they shall dig through the wall to carry out thereby: ^the shall cover his face that he see not the ground with his eyes.

13 ^uMy net also will I spread upon him, and he shall be taken in my snare; and I will bring him to Babylon to the land of the Chaldeans; yet shall he not see it, though he shall die there.

14 ^vAnd I will scatter toward every wind all that are about him to help him, and all his bands; and will draw out the sword after them.

15 ^wAnd they shall know that I am the LORD when I shall scatter them among the nations and disperse them in the countries.

16 ^xBut I will leave ^ya few men of them from the sword, from the famine, and from the pestilence, that they may ^zdeclare all their abominations among the heathen whither they come; and ^athey shall know that I am the LORD.

17 ¶ Moreover, the word of the LORD came to me, saying,

18 Son of man, ^beat thy bread with quaking, and drink thy water with trembling and with carefulness;

19 And say unto the people of the land, Thus saith the Lord God of the inhabitants of Jerusalem, and of the land of Israel, They shall eat their bread with carefulness, and drink their water with astonishment, ^cthat her land may be desolate from ^{*}all that is therein, because of the violence of all them that dwell therein.

20 ^dAnd the cities that are inhabited shall be laid waste, and the land shall be desolate; and ye shall know that I am the LORD.

21 ¶ And the word of the LORD came unto me, saying,

22 Son of man, what is that proverb that ye have in the land of Israel, saying, ^eThe days are prolonged, and every vision faileth?

23 Tell them therefore, Thus saith the Lord God, I ^fwill make this proverb to cease, and they shall no more use it as a proverb in Israel: but say unto them, ^gThe days are at hand, and the effect of every vision.

24 ^hFor there shall be no more any vain vision nor flattering divination within the house of Israel.

25 For I am the LORD: ⁱI will speak; and the word that I shall speak shall come to pass: it shall be no more prolonged: for in your days, O rebellious house, will I say the word, and will perform it, saith the Lord God.

26 ¶ Again the word of the LORD came to me, saying,

27 Son of man, behold, ^jthey of the house of Israel say, The vision that he seeth is ^kfor many days to come, and he prophesieth of the times that are far off.

28 Therefore say unto them, Thus saith the Lord God, ^lThere shall none of my words be prolonged any more,

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. XI.—The higher men are in office, the more criminal is their unfaithfulness. Wicked counsellors hurry a deluded people to the precipice of ruin. But they who put far from them the evil day, will find it terribly surprise them before they are aware. Mockery at God's words will quickly end in misery. It is common for Satan to make sinners look on their punishment as either doubtful or distant. Ministers have therefore need to be exceedingly bold and faithful in warning self-flatterers and deceivers of others. And for this God sometimes renders some unexpected monuments of his vengeance, that others may hear and learn and do no more so wickedly.—Proud transgressors often disclaim and detest their inferiors in guilt, and insult such as, in obedience to God, have given place unto wrath. To be banished from public ordinances is heavy to gracious souls; but God's presence and acceptance can more than balance the want. And great is the mercy when remarkable pardons, regeneration, and reformation, coincide with, and prepare for, remarkable outward deliverances. But, however loth God be to proceed, the obstinately wicked shall never pass unpunished. When sinners have filled up the measure of their iniquity, he will be glorified in their torment.—The most remarkable visions of God here are but short-lived. But it is of great use when ministers faithfully impart to others what themselves have heard and learned of the Father.

but the words which I have spoken shall be done, saith the Lord God.

CHAP. XIII.

Nothing had more hardened the Jews in their sin than the pretended predictions and flatteries of their false prophets. Here it is threatened (1) That the false prophets, who pretended a commission and instructions from God, but took no care to prevent sins and judgments, while they flattered the people with hopes of peace and prosperity, should be expelled from a communion of Israel, and cut off by death; that the fearful judgments of God should effectually confute their flatteries, and involve themselves in ruin, along with those whom they had seduced; 1—16. (2) That the false prophetesses, who in God's name had told deliberate lies; had overawed the people, discouraging the godly, and encouraging the wicked; and who, by giving signs, had imitated the true prophets; should be confounded in their enterprises, and God's people delivered from their seductions; 17—23.

AND the word of the Lord came unto me, saying,

2 Son of man, prophesy against the prophets of Israel that prophesy, and say thou unto them that prophesy out of their own hearts, Hear ye the word of the Lord;

3 Thus saith the Lord God, Wo unto the foolish prophets, that follow their own spirit, and have seen nothing!

4 O Israel, thy prophets are like the foxes in the deserts.

5 Ye have not gone up into the gaps, neither made up the hedge for the house of Israel to stand in the battle in the day of the Lord.

6 They have seen vanity and lying divination, saying, The Lord saith; and the Lord hath not sent them: and they have made others to hope that they would confirm the word.

7 Have ye not seen a vain vision, and have ye not spoken a lying divination, whereas ye say, The Lord saith it, albeit I have not spoken?

8 Therefore thus saith the Lord God, Because ye have spoken vanity, and seen lies, therefore, behold, I am against you, saith the Lord God.

9 And mine hand shall be upon the prophets that see vanity, and that divine lies: they shall not be in the assembly of my people, neither shall they be written in the writing of the house of Israel, neither shall they enter into the land of Israel; and ye shall know that I am the Lord God.

10 Because, even because they have seduced my people, saying, Peace; and there was no peace; and one built up a wall, and, lo, others daubed it with untempered mortar:

11 Say unto them which daub it with untempered mortar, that it shall fall:

there shall be an overflowing shower; and ye, O great hailstones, shall fall; and a stormy wind shall rend it.

12 Lo, when the wall is fallen shall it not be said unto you, Where is the daubing wherewith ye have daubed it?

13 Therefore thus saith the Lord God, I will even rend it with a stormy wind in my fury: and there shall be an overflowing shower in mine anger, and great hailstones in my fury, to consume it.

14 So will I break down the wall that ye have daubed with untempered mortar, and bring it down to the ground, so that the foundation thereof shall be discovered, and it shall fall, and ye shall be consumed in the midst thereof: and ye shall know that I am the Lord.

15 Thus will I accomplish my wrath upon the wall, and upon them that have daubed it with untempered mortar, and will say unto you, The wall is no more, neither they that daubed it;

16 To wit, the prophets of Israel who prophesy concerning Jerusalem, and who see visions of peace for her, and there is no peace, saith the Lord God.

17 Likewise, thou son of man, set thy face against the daughters of thy people, who prophesy out of their own heart; and prophesy thou against them,

18 And say, Thus saith the Lord God, Wo to the women that sew pillows to all arm holes, and make kerchiefs upon the head of every stature to hunt souls! Will ye hunt the souls of my people, and will ye save the souls alive that come unto you?

19 And will ye pollute me among my people for handfuls of barley and for pieces of bread, to slay the souls that should not die, and to save the souls alive that should not live, by your lying to my people that hear your lies?

20 Wherefore thus saith the Lord God, Behold, I am against your pillows, wherewith ye there hunt the souls to make them fly; and I will tear them from your arms, and will let the souls go, even the souls that ye hunt to make them fly.

21 Your kerchiefs also will I tear, and deliver my people out of your hand; and they shall be no more in your hand to be hunted; and ye shall know that I am the Lord.

22 Because with lies ye have made the them as they please, his threatenings will in due time prevail, and vindicate themselves.

CHAP. XIII. Ver. 2—6. According to their own inclinations and affections, they publish their own imaginations without any warrant from me: and are extremely crafty, covetous, hardened, and mischievous. But they never do any thing to reform the people, or to prevent judgments, or for the security and defence of church or state, which can enable them to hold out in the day of the Lord's judgments. Yea, their visions are but false and counterfeit, though, by their high pretences to inspiration, they have made the credulous people to believe their predictions will be accomplished. 9—16. I will manifest my power in punishing these false prophets, and will expel them from among my people, and I will deny them a return from captivity, because some of them affirmed their seductions for truths, and others supported them by specious, but weak, pretences. Yea the Chaldeans, by their desolating ravage and fury, shall disprove their counterfeit oracles, and every argument used to support them. 18—21. They, by their signs of pillows and kerchiefs, and especially by their flattering predictions of peace and prosperity, lull all ranks into vain confidence and carnal security. By fitting their predictions to every one's humour, they promote their destruction instead of saving them. For the most pitiful rewards, they pretend my name and authority to countenance their abominable flatteries, denouncing destruction to those in Babylon, whom I will preserve; and promising life and liberty to those REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. XII. Ministers ought to accommodate themselves, not only to the weakness, but even to the wilfulness of their hearers. They ought cheerfully to comply with the most difficult and self-debasing method which God directs for promoting his glory or the welfare of souls. It is necessary that we be affected ourselves with the truths with which we wish to affect others. And we have need to sit loose to this world, and be always preparing to leave it.—God exactly observes what entertainment is given to his ministers or messengers, and is highly displeased if they are overlooked or contemned. It is easy for him to take the greatest in his snares, and to make the most hardened sinners either glorify him by their distinguished destruction, or by their conversion and candid acknowledgments of sin.—It is just that they who abuse plenty should be punished with want. Anxious care and slavish terrors can strangely embitter our comforts, and render them sore judgments. The decay of virtue in nations brings along with it the decay of every thing valuable, or a curse on what remains. And if once neighbours, by fraud, oppression, and murder, devour one another, let them expect that God will plague them with common devourers: and that he will make himself known, either in the terrors of his wrath to the impenitent, or in the riches of his grace to such as humble themselves under his mighty hand. How dreadful is it when corrupt speeches become common proverbs, by which Satan hardens sinners against the words or ways of God! But they, who will not believe God's warnings, will too late be terribly convinced by the infliction of his judgments. And, let sinners put the evil day as far from

CHAP. XIV.

Here the Jewish elders at Babylon, having come to inquire what God intended to do with their nation, God (1) Rebukes their dissimulation, and charges them to repent and reform their lives; otherwise they and their flattering prophets would be fearfully destroyed; 1—11. (2) Represents to them that not all the righteousness and intercession of his greatest favourites could avail to save the Jews from wild beasts, sword, famine, and pestilence, when their sins had so ripened them for ruin; 12—21. (3) Promises that nevertheless he would, in sovereign mercy, preserve a remnant, by whose behaviour or information those in Chaldea would see the equity of his providence; 11, 22, 23.

THEN came ^a certain of the elders of Israel unto me, and sat before me.

a remnant that shall be brought forth, both sons and daughters: behold, they shall come forth unto you, and ye shall see their way and their doings: and ye shall be comforted concerning the evil that I have brought upon Jerusalem, even concerning all that I have brought upon it.

23 And they shall comfort you when ye see their ways and their doings: and ye shall know that I have not done without cause all that I have done in it, saith the Lord God.

CHAP. XV.

To reconcile Ezekiel himself, and his hearers, to the destruction of Judah and Jerusalem by the Chaldeans, God here shews that it was as proper that they should be destroyed, as that an unfruitful vine should be cut up and burnt. Here is (1) The elegant similitude; 1—5. (2) The awful application of it to the Jews.

AND the word of the Lord came unto me, saying,

2 Son of man, What is the vine tree more than any tree, or than a branch which is among the trees of the forest?

3 Shall wood be taken thereof to do any work? or will men take a pin of it to hang any vessel thereon?

4 Behold it is cast into the fire for fuel; the fire devoureth both the ends of it, and the midst of it is burned. *Is it meet for any work?

5 Behold, when it was whole it was meet for no work: how much less shall it be meet yet for any work when the fire hath devoured it, and it is burned?

6 Therefore thus saith the Lord God, As the vine tree among the trees of the forest, which I have given to the fire for fuel, so will I give the inhabitants of Jerusalem.

7 And I will set my face against them; they shall go out from one fire, and another fire shall devour them; and ye shall know that I am the Lord when I set my face against them.

8 And I will make the land desolate, because they have committed a trespass, saith the Lord God.

CHAP. XVI.

The Jews were to be punished not only for mere unfruitfulness, but for ungrateful and enormous wickedness; 1, 2. Here God reminds them (1) Of the despicable and wretched beginnings of their church and nation; 3—5. (2) Of the many favours which he had heaped upon them in making them a people, rescuing them from ruin in Egypt, fixing his peculiar love on them, taking them under his protection, rolling away the reproach of their slavery, multiplying them exceedingly, rendering them his covenant people, and in making them every way glorious, happy, and respected; 6—14. (3) Of their treacherous and ungrateful departure from him to alliances with Egyptians, Assyrians, Chaldeans, and to the service of idols; represented by the most fond, impudent, and obstinate whoredom; 15—34. (4) He threatens to punish them as adulteresses and murderers, with terrible and destructive judgments by these heathens whose alliances and idolatries they had greedily pursued; 35—43. (5) Represents their great wickedness as more aggravated than that of the ten tribes, or even of the Sodomites, or other heathen neighbours; 44—59. (6) Promises rich and sovereign mercies to a remnant after the captivity and present dispersion; 60—63.

Before Christ
cir. 593

AGAIN the word of the Lord came unto me, saying,

2 Son of man, cause Jerusalem to know her abominations,

3 And say, Thus saith the Lord God unto Jerusalem, Thy birth and thy nativity is of the land of Canaan; thy father was an Amorite, and thy mother an Hittite.

4 And, as for thy nativity, in the day thou wast born thy navel was not cut, neither wast thou washed in water to supple thee; thou wast not salted at all, nor swaddled at all.

5 None eye pitied thee, to do any of these unto thee, to have compassion upon thee; but thou wast cast out in the open field, to the lothing of thy person, in the day that thou wast born.

6 And when I passed by thee, and saw thee polluted in thine own blood, I said unto thee when thou wast in thy blood, Live; yea, I said unto thee when thou wast in thy blood, Live.

7 I have caused thee to multiply as the bud of the field, and thou hast increased and waxen great, and thou art come to excellent ornaments: thy breasts are fashioned, and thine hair is grown, whereas thou wast naked and bare.

8 Now when I passed by thee, and looked upon thee, behold, thy time was the time of love; and I spread my skirt over thee, and covered thy nakedness: yea, I swore unto thee, and entered into a covenant with thee, saith the Lord God, and thou becamest mine.

9 Then washed I thee with water; yea, I thoroughly washed away thy blood from thee, and I anointed thee with oil.

10 I clothed thee also with brodered work, and shod thee with badgers' skin, and I girded thee about with fine linen, and I covered thee with silk.

11 I decked thee also with ornaments, and I put bracelets upon thine hands, and a chain on thy neck.

12 And I put a jewel on thy forehead, and earrings in thine ears, and a beautiful crown upon thine head.

13 Thus wast thou decked with gold and silver; and thy raiment was of fine linen, and silk, and brodered work; thou didst eat fine flour, and honey, and oil: and thou wast exceeding beautiful; and thou didst prosper into a kingdom.

14 And thy renown went forth among calamity. Yet how pleasant is it in evil days to see God reserving some monuments of mercy, and to see such benefited by his judgments and repenting of their sin;—And it is well when God is not only justified, but glorified, in the manifested wisdom and goodness of his afflictive dispensations.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. XV.—In great condescension God often explains his providences, for the satisfaction of his servants and people. But none are more unprofitable than degenerate professors of the true religion. They, who will not be useful for the glory of God and his grace, must be made fuel for the fire of his wrath; and must pass from one trouble into another, till they be consumed. And the complete ruin of his implacable adversaries will manifest his excellencies, as well as the perfect happiness of his obedient friends.

CHAP. XVI. The whole of this chapter emblematically represents the original sinfulness and misery, the gracious conversion, the fearful apostasy, severe corrections, and sovereign recovery, of the gospel church, and of elect men, 3—5. Abraham and Sarah were originally idolaters; and their posterity lived in Egypt most wickedly and wretchedly. 6—14. These figurative expressions

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. XIV.—The very worst of men too often hypocritically put on specious appearances of religion. But it is at their peril to mock God, or attempt imposing upon him. His judgments will fall upon them, answerably to what they really are in his sight. Their sin, shame, and misery, are all owing to themselves. And of all sinners, the doom of hypocrites and deceitful preachers will be the most terrible. If we serve idols, our heart cannot fail to be estranged from God, and we must be for ever separated from him. If we love to be flattered in our sins, God will justly give us up to such flattery. And dreadful at last shall be the punishment both of deceivers and deceived. The punishments of sin on earth are intended to prevent others from the commission of it. Nor does God ever take men into covenant with himself without purging them from their odious iniquities. National sins, carried on to an enormous height, cannot long fail to bring on national judgments. And, if men who receive distinguished favours notoriously rebel, they may expect complicated judgments. God often averts general calamities for the sake of a few, who, in the general corruption, are singularly upright, pious, humble, and mighty in prayer. But, if nations be singularly ripened for ruin, such can only obtain their own deliverance, or a blessing on their own share in the common the heathen for thy beauty: for it was perfect through my comeliness, which I had put upon thee, saith the Lord God.

15 ¶ But thou didst trust in thine own beauty, and playedst the harlot because of thy renown, and pouredst out thy fornications on every one that passed by; his it was.

16 And of thy garments thou didst take, and deckedst thy high places with divers colours, and playedst the harlot thereupon: the like things shall not come, neither shall it be so.

17 Thou hast also taken thy fair jewels of my gold and of my silver, which I had given thee, and madest to thyself images of men, and didst commit whoredom with them,

18 And tookest thy broidered garments, and coveredst them; and thou hast set mine oil and mine incense before them.

19 My meat also which I gave thee, fine flour, and oil, and honey, where-with I fed thee, thou hast even set it before them for a sweet savour: and thus it was, saith the Lord God.

20 Moreover, thou hast taken thy sons and thy daughters, whom thou hast borne unto me, and these hast thou sacrificed unto them to be devoured. Is this of thy whoredoms a small matter, 21 That thou hast slain my children, and delivered them to cause them to pass through the fire for them?

22 And in all thine abominations and thy whoredoms thou hast not remembered the days of thy youth, when thou wast naked and bare, and wast polluted in thy blood.

23 And it came to pass, after all thy wickedness, (wo, wo unto thee! saith the Lord God);

24 That thou hast also built unto thee an eminent place, and hast made thee an high place in every street.

25 Thou hast built thy high place at every head of the way, and hast made thy beauty to be abhorred, and hast opened thy feet to every one that passed by, and multiplied thy whoredoms.

26 Thou hast also committed fornication with the Egyptians thy neighbours, great of flesh; and hast increased thy whoredoms, to provoke me to anger.

27 Behold, therefore I have stretched out my hand over thee, and have diminished thine ordinary food, and delivered thee unto the will of them that hate thee, the daughters of the Philistines, who are ashamed of thy lewd way.

28 Thou hast played the whore also with the Assyrians, because thou wast unsatiable; yea, thou hast played the harlot with them, and yet couldest not be satisfied.

29 Thou hast moreover multiplied thy fornication in the land of Canaan unto Chaldea; and yet thou wast not satisfied herewith.

30 How weak is thine heart, saith the Lord God, seeing thou dost all these things, the work of an imperious whorish woman;

31 In that thou buildest thine eminent place in the head of every way, and makest thine high place in every street; and hast not been as an harlot, in that thou scornest hire,

32 But as a wife that committeth adultery, who taketh strangers instead of her husband!

33 They give gifts to all whores; but thou givest thy gifts to all thy lovers, and hirest them, that they may come unto thee on every side for thy whoredom.

34 And the contrary is in thee from other women in thy whoredoms, whereas none followeth thee to commit whoredoms: and in that thou givest a reward, and no reward is given unto thee; therefore thou art contrary.

35 Wherefore, O harlot, hear the word of the Lord:

36 Thus saith the Lord God, Because thy filthiness was poured out, and thy nakedness discovered through thy whoredoms with thy lovers, and with all the idols of thy abominations, and by the blood of thy children, which thou didst give unto them;

37 Behold, therefore I will gather all thy lovers, with whom thou hast taken pleasure, and all them that thou hast loved, with all them that thou hast hated: I will even gather them round about against thee, and will discover thy nakedness unto them, that they may see all thy nakedness.

38 And I will judge thee as women that break wedlock and shed blood are judged; and I will give thee blood in fury and jealousy.

39 And I will also give thee into their hand, and they shall throw down thine eminent place, and shall break down thy high places: they shall strip thee also of thy clothes, and shall take thy fair jewels, and leave thee naked and bare.

40 They shall also bring up a company against thee, and they shall stone thee with stones, and thrust thee through with their swords.

41 And they shall burn thine houses with fire, and execute judgments upon thee in the sight of many women: and I will cause thee to cease from playing the harlot, and thou also shalt give no hire any more.

42 So will I make my fury toward thee to rest, and my jealousy shall depart from thee, and I will be quiet, and will be no more angry.

represent all the favours which God heaped upon them in the days of Moses, Joshua, David, and Solomon; their deliverance from Egypt; preservation in the wilderness; the adoption of them by covenant into his family; giving them his oracles, ordinances, tabernacle, and temple; multiplication of their numbers; rendering them his only church, and a most wealthy, powerful, prosperous, and famous nation. 15—34. Proud of their privileges, they abandoned themselves to idolatry, and employed the wealth which God had given them in making and serving idols every where throughout their country. Their first-born children, who were sacred to God, they sacrificed to Moloch. By costly presents they courted the alliance of their Heathen neighbours, Egyptians, Assyrians, Chaldeans, &c. and insatiably and impudently vied with them in their idolatries. 35—43. For their filthy idolatries, murder of their innocent 43 Because thou hast not remembered the days of thy youth, but hast fretted me in all these things; behold, therefore I also will recompense thy way upon thine head, saith the Lord God; and thou shalt not commit this lewdness above all thine abominations.

44 ¶ Behold, every one that useth proverbs shall use this proverb against thee, saying, As is the mother so is her daughter.

45 Thou art thy mother's daughter, that lotheth her husband and her children; and thou art the sister of thy sisters, which lothed their husbands and their children: your mother was an Hittite, and your father an Amorite.

46 And thine elder sister is Samaria, she and her daughters, that dwell at thy left hand: and thy younger sister, that dwelleth at thy right hand, is Sodom and her daughters.

47 Yet hast thou not walked after their ways, nor done after their abominations: but, as if that were a very little thing, thou wast corrupted more than they in all thy ways.

48 As I live, saith the Lord God, Sodom thy sister hath not done, she nor her daughters, as thou hast done, thou and thy daughters.

49 Behold, this was the iniquity of thy sister Sodom, Pride, fulness of bread, and abundance of idleness was in her and in her daughters, neither did she strengthen the hand of the poor and needy.

50 And they were haughty, and committed abomination before me: therefore I took them away as I saw good.

51 Neither hath Samaria committed half of thy sins; but thou hast multiplied thine abominations more than they, and hast justified thy sisters in all thine abominations which thou hast done.

52 Thou also, who hast judged thy sisters, bear thine own shame for thy sins that thou hast committed more abominable than they: they are more righteous than thou: yea, be thou confounded also, and bear thy shame, in that thou hast justified thy sisters.

53 When I shall bring again their captivity, the captivity of Sodom and her daughters, and the captivity of Samaria and her daughters, then will I bring again the captivity of thy captives in the midst of them:

CHAP. XVII.

In the preceding chapter God had reckoned with the Jewish nation for their treacherous breaches of their covenant with him. Here (1) By the parable of a low vine bending its branches towards a great eagle after another had solemnly subjected it to himself, is represented the wickedness of Zedekiah, in courting the king of Egypt's favour after he had sworn himself and kingdom tributary to Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon, and the just punishment of it; 1—10, 11—21. (2) By the emblem of God's planting a top branch on a high mountain, and causing it to flourish exceedingly, is promised the restoration of the honour of David's family in Zerubbabel, but chiefly in the person and kingdom of Christ; 22—24.

AND the word of the LORD came unto me, saying,
2 Son of man, put forth a riddle, productions of our Redeemer: and these benefits are all infinitely enhanced from the deplorable condition in which he finds us. But the most shocking wickedness, perjury, idolatry, murder, yea every thing horrid, is produced by pride, ingratitude, and forgetfulness of God and of ourselves. Nor will apostate hypocrites grudge to sacrifice wealth, life, health, and honour, to the service of devils and insatiable lusts. Not even the most abandoned monsters can vie with such in aggravated wickedness; and justly therefore the Lord brings upon them complicated judgments answerable to their complicated crimes, and makes their partners in sin their tormentors in punishment. If sinners will not be warned, they must be destroyed and damned. If they will make themselves vile by their sins, God must make them still more vile by their sufferings. But it is not all the terrors and punishments of time or eternity, but the pardoning and renewing grace of God, that can make men truly penitent for sin. O how infinite is his mercy to pardon and save those who have plunged themselves into the infinite depths of guilt and pollution! and soon shall that mercy be fully displayed in converting both Jews and Gentiles by his grace, and cordially uniting them in the one mystical body of Christ!

CHAP. XVII. Ver. 2—7. Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon, and Pharaoh-hophra king of Egypt, are represented as great eagles, because of their great infants, shameless lewdness, base ingratitude, and long-repeated provocations of God, the Chaldeans, and afterwards the Syro-grecians and Romans, shall terribly destroy them, and lay desolate their country, and thus force them to cease from their wickedness. 44—59. In loathing God their covenantant Husband, and murdering their children, they were as wicked as the ancient Canaanites. And however they had once condemned the ten tribes which dwelt on the north, and the Sodomites who dwelt on the south-east, of Judea, they now exceeded them in the number of their idols, the enormities of their wickedness, and in sinning against more warnings, mercies, and judgments. 60—63. In pursuance of my covenant made with Abraham, and in the wilderness, I will forgive their iniquities, render them deeply penitent for their sins, and receive them back to their land: and not by the ceremonial dispensation, but by the preaching of the gospel, will I convert not only the ten tribes, but the very worst of the Heathens, to Christ, and unite them into one church.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. XVI.—Ministers have great need to be faithful in representing to men the sinfulness of their heart and life, and the misery which attends it. But what an astonishing change is made upon them by union to Christ, justification, adoption, sanctification, and spiritual comfort! All our life, honour, safety, perfection, and comeliness, are the free gifts and almighty and speak a parable unto the house of Israel ;

3 And say, Thus saith the LORD God, ^bA great eagle with great wings, long winged, full of feathers, which had ^cdivers colours, ^dcame unto Lebanon, and took the highest branch of the cedar :

4 He cropped off the top of his young twigs, and carried it into ^ea land of traffic ; he set it in a ^fcity of merchants.

5 He took also of the ^gseed of the land, and ^hplanted it in a fruitful field ; he placed ⁱit by great waters, and set it ^jas a willow tree :

6 And ^kit grew, and became a spreading vine of low stature, whose branches turned toward him, and the roots thereof were under him : so it became a vine, and brought forth branches, and shot forth sprigs.

7 There was also ^lanother great eagle with great wings and many feathers ; and, behold, this vine did bend her roots toward him, and shot forth her branches toward him, that he might water it by the furrows of her plantation.

8 ^mIt was planted in a good ⁿsoil by great waters, that it might bring forth branches, and that it might bear fruit, that it might be a goodly vine.

9 Say thou, Thus saith the LORD God, ^oShall it prosper ? ^pshall he not pull up the roots thereof, and cut off the fruit thereof, that it wither ! it shall wither in all the leaves of her spring, even without great power or many people to pluck it up by the roots thereof.

10 Yea, behold, ^qbeing planted, shall it prosper ? ^rshall it not utterly wither when the east wind toucheth it ? it shall wither in the furrows where it grew.

11 ¶ Moreover, the word of the LORD came unto me, saying,

12 Say now to the ^srebellious house, ^tKnow ye not what these ^uthings mean ? tell them, ^vBehold the king of Babylon is come to Jerusalem, and hath taken the king thereof, and the princes thereof, and led them with him to Babylon ;

13 And hath taken of the king's seed, and made a covenant with him, and hath ^wtaken an oath of him : he hath also taken the mighty of the land :

14 ^xThat the kingdom might be base, that it might not lift itself up, ^ybut that by keeping of his covenant it might stand.

15 ^zBut he rebelled against him in sending his ambassadors into Egypt, that they might give him horses and much people. ^{aa}Shall he prosper ? shall he escape that doth such ^{ab}things ? or shall he break the covenant, and be delivered ?

16 ^{ac}As I live, saith the Lord God, surely in the place ^{ad}where the king ^{ae}dwell-^{eth} that made him king, ^{af}whose oath he despised, and whose covenant he brake, ^{ag}even with him, ^{ah}in the midst of Babylon he shall die.

17 ^{ai}Neither shall Pharaoh, with his mighty army and great company, make for him in the war, by casting up mounts, and building forts, to cut off many persons ;

18 Seeing he despised the oath by breaking the covenant, when, lo, he had ^{aj}given his hand, and hath done all these ^{ak}things, he shall not escape.

19 Therefore thus saith the Lord God, ^{al}As I live, ^{am}surely mine oath that he hath despised, and my covenant that he hath broken, even it will I recompense upon his own head.

20 And I will ^{an}spread my net upon him, and he shall be taken in my snare, and ^{ao}I will bring him to Babylon, and ^{ap}will plead with him there for his trespass that he hath trespassed against me.

21 ^{aq}And all his fugitives, with all his bands, shall fall by the sword, and they that remain shall be scattered toward all winds : and ^{ar}ye shall know that I the LORD have spoken ^{as}it.

22 ¶ Thus saith the Lord God, ^{at}I will also take of the highest branch of the high cedar, and will set ^{au}it ; I will crop off from the top of his young twigs a tender one, and will plant ^{av}it ^{aw}upon an high mountain and eminent :

23 In the mountain of the height of Israel will I plant it ; ^{ax}and it shall bring forth boughs, and bear fruit, and be ^{ay}a goodly cedar : and ^{az}under it shall dwell all fowl of every wing ; in the shadow of the branches thereof shall they dwell.

24 And all the trees of the field shall know that ^{ba}I the LORD have brought down the high tree, have exalted the low tree, have dried up the green tree, and have made the dry tree to flourish : I the LORD have spoken and have done ^{bb}it.

CHAP. XVIII.

(1) To refute a profane proverb of the wicked Jews, importing that God punished the innocent children instead of the wicked parents, God here asserts his sovereignty and justice : to manifest which, (1) he dooms to ruin the wicked ; 4, 20 : and that, however good his father had been ; 10—15 : and however well he himself had lived for a time ; 24, 26 : and (2) he promises to reward the righteous ; 5—9 : however wicked his parents had been ; 14—18 : and though himself had for a time been the same ; 21—23. (3) He declares that the end of such providential conduct was to vindicate his own equity ; 19, 20, 25, 29 : and to excite men sincerely to repent of sin and turn to himself ; 23, 30—32.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. XVII.—Ministers must turn themselves every way to promote the conviction or conversion of sinners : and plain similitudes are of great use for the illustration of divine truths, and impression of them upon men's minds. What a despicable appearance, even as ravenous beasts, do the mightiest conquerors and kings make before a great and righteous God ! And, if his providence reduce us to a low condition, it is our wisdom, and will be our comfort, to submit to our lot, and improve it in the best way we can. But it is dreadfully criminal and dangerous to violate oaths and covenants with God, or even with wicked men, as God is made witness and guarantee of the solemn transaction. Men's sinful evasions to extricate themselves do but involve them in more certain and tremendous ruin. And fatal experience will at last force sinners to believe God's threatenings. It is in vain to attempt restoring the credit of decayed families till God himself rise for their help. And it is infinitely to the glory of his sovereign grace that scenes of wickedness and ruin introduce exhibitions of Jesus Christ, and his eternal redemption and glory.

power, high dignity, tyrannical murder and oppression of their neighbours. Their ^{bc}great wings represent their extensive dominions. King Jeconiah, and his family and princes, carried to Babylon, were the ^{bd}highest branch carried into a land of traffic. Zedekiah made king by Nebuchadnezzar, as his sworn tributary, over the Jewish multitudes in Judea, in a state of subjection to the Chaldeans, is the ^{be}seed of the land planted with circumspection in a fruitful field, that it might be a ^{bf}vine of low stature. Its bending its roots and branches towards the other eagle, refers to his sending ambassadors to Pharaoh-hophra, for procuring troops to assist him against the Chaldeans. 22—24. Out of the royal family of David I will raise up the Messiah, exalt him to my right hand, and make him Head of his Church, and of all things to her ; and to him shall multitudes of all nations be converted, for salvation and comfort, and become members of his church. And all the nations of the world shall remark my power in exalting and prospering my once-despised church, and in bringing down her most powerful enemies, Chaldeans, Jews, Romans, Antichristians, or Turks.

THE word of the LORD came unto me again, saying,

2 ^aWhat mean ye, that ye use this proverb concerning ^bthe land of Israel, saying, The ^cfathers have eaten sour grapes, and the children's teeth are set on edge?

3 ^aAs I live, saith the Lord God, ye shall not have occasion any more to use this proverb in Israel.

4 ^aBehold, all souls are mine; as the soul of the father, so also the soul of the son is mine: ^cthe soul that sinneth, it shall die.

5 ¶ ^aBut if a man be just, and do ^athat which is lawful and right,

6 ^aAnd hath not ^eeaten upon the mountains, neither hath ^blifted up his eyes to the idols of the house of Israel, neither hath ^ddefiled his neighbour's wife, neither ^khath come near to a menstruous woman,

7 ^aAnd hath not oppressed any, ^bbut hath restored to the debtor his pledge, hath spoiled none by violence, ^ahath given his bread to the hungry, and hath covered the naked with a garment;

8 ^aHe ^athat hath not given forth upon usury, neither hath taken any increase, ^athat hath ^bwithdrawn his hand from iniquity, ^ahath executed true judgment between man and man,

9 ^aHath walked in my statutes, and hath kept my judgments to deal truly; ^ahe is just, he shall surely live, saith the Lord God.

10 ¶ If he beget a son ^athat is a trobber, a shedder of blood, and ^athat doth the like to ^aany one of these things,

11 And that doth not any of those ^aduties, but even hath ^aeaten upon the mountains, and ^adefiled his neighbour's wife,

12 ^aHath oppressed the poor and needy, hath spoiled by violence, hath not restored the pledge, and hath ^blifted up his eyes to the idols, hath committed abomination,

13 ^aHath given forth upon usury, and hath taken increase: shall he then live?
he shall not live: he hath done all these abominations; ^ahe shall surely die; his ^bblood shall be upon him.

14 ¶ Now, lo, if he beget a son ^athat seeth all his father's sins which he hath done, and considereth, and doth not such like

15 ^aThat hath not ^aeaten upon the mountains, neither hath lifted up his eyes to the idols of the house of Israel, ^ahath not defiled his neighbour's wife,

16 ^aNeither hath oppressed any, ^ahath not withholden the pledge, neither hath ^bspoiled by violence, ^bbut ^ahath given his bread to the hungry, and hath covered the naked with a garment,

17 ^aThat hath taken off his hand from the poor, ^athat hath not received usury nor increase, ^ahath executed my judgments, ^ahath walked in my statutes; ^ahe shall not die for the iniquity of his father, he shall surely live.

18 ^aAs for his father, ^abecause he cruelly oppressed, spoiled his brother by violence, and did ^athat which is not good among his people, lo, even he shall die in his iniquity.

19 ¶ Yet say ye, Why? ^adoth not the son bear the iniquity of the father?
When the son hath done that which is lawful and right, ^aand hath kept all my statutes, and hath done them, he shall surely live.

20 ^aThe soul that sinneth, it shall die.
The son shall not bear the iniquity of the father, neither shall the father bear the iniquity of the son: the righteousness of the righteous shall be upon him, and the wickedness of the wicked shall be upon him.

21 ^aBut if the wicked will turn from all his sins that he hath committed, and keep all my statutes, and do that which is lawful and right, he shall surely live, he shall not die.

22 ^aAll his transgressions that he hath committed, they shall not be mentioned unto him: ^ain his righteousness that he hath done he shall live.

23 ^aHave I any pleasure at all that the wicked should die? saith the Lord God; ^aand not that he should return from his ways and live?

24 ¶ But when the righteous turn-eth away from his righteousness, and committeth iniquity, ^aand doth according to ^aall the abominations that the wicked ^aman doth, shall he live? ^aAll his righteousness that he hath done shall not be mentioned: in his trespass that he hath trespassed, and in his sin that he hath sinned, in them shall he die.

25 ¶ Yet ye say, ^aThe way of the LORD is not equal. Hear now, O house of Israel; ^ais not my way equal? ^aare not your ways unequal?

26 ^aWhen a righteous ^aman turneth away from his righteousness, and com-mitteth iniquity, and dieth in them; for his iniquity that he hath done shall he die.

27 ^aAgain, when the wicked ^aman turneth away from his wickedness that he hath committed, and doth that which is lawful and right, he shall save his soul alive:

28 Because ^ahe considereth, and turn-eth away from all his transgressions that he hath committed, he shall surely live, he shall not die.

29 ^aYet saith the house of Israel, The way of the LORD is not equal. O house of Israel, are not my ways equal? are not your ways unequal?

Is a parabolic lamentation over the calamitous fate of Josiah's sons, Jehoahaz, Jehoiakim, Zedekiah, and his grandson Jehoiachin; 1. 11 And she had strong rods for the sceptres of them that bear rule, and her stature was exalted among the thick branches, and she appeared in her height with the multitude of her branches.

12 But she was plucked up in fury, she was cast down to the ground, and the east wind dried up her fruit: her strong rods were broken and withered; the fire consumed them.

13 And now she is planted in the wilderness, in a dry and thirsty ground.

CHAP. XX.

Being consulted by some of the Jewish elders in Chaldea what they should do, or might expect, Ezekiel, in God's name, (1) Declares that God was highly displeased with them; 1—3. (2) Represents the causes of his displeasure, in a narrative of his kind dealings with their nation, and their treacherous behaviour towards him in Egypt; 4—9: in the Arabian wilderness; 10—26: and in Canaan; 27—32. (3) Denounces God's judgments to be inflicted upon them for their sins; 33—36. (4) Intimates how God would have mercy on them in bringing a remnant of them to repentance, re-establishing them in their own land, and restoring his sanctuary among them; 37—44. (5) By a parable he predicts the burning of Jerusalem, and other cities of Judah, and the destruction of all ranks of people in the land; 45—49.

AND it came to pass in the seventh year, in the fifth month, the tenth day of the month, that certain of the elders of Israel came to enquire of the LORD, and sat before me.

2 Then came the word of the LORD unto me, saying,

3 Son of man, speak unto the elders of Israel, and say unto them, Thus saith the LORD God, Are ye come to inquire of me? as I live, saith the LORD God, I will not be enquired of by you.

4 ¶ Wilt thou judge them, son of man, wilt thou judge them? cause them to know the abominations of their fathers; ternal behaviour, without supernatural influences from Christ, yet it is not supposed that they can truly repent of their sin, and renew their hearts; (23, 30—32.) but that it is their duty to have gracious and penitent hearts, and therefore to attend the ordinances of the gospel, and receive newness of heart and repentance as the free gifts of Jesus Christ offered therein, and implanted by his Holy Spirit.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. XVIII.—Hardened sinners readily dare to strive with their Maker, and charge him with injustice, when he but justly punishes them. Nor can any thing less than the ruin they deserve silence their presumptuous murmurings. Let God reward or punish men's behaviour as exactly as he can, prejudiced criminals will hold his conduct unjust and their own equal. How extensive is the amiable character of a truly good man! Cordial worship of the true God alone, chastity, honesty, equity, mercy, and withdrawing from fellowship in wickedness, jointly taken, are the necessary lines of it. And none can expect a glorious reward, unless by grace he persevere in his righteousness. But it is vain to seek righteousness as it were by the works of the law, which requires of us what only infinite power can effect. And it is infinitely dangerous to rush upon death and damnation, notwithstanding the most earnest warnings, entreaties, and offers, of a gracious God; or to indulge ourselves in neglect of the most difficult duties, when God hath graciously promised to work them in us.

CHAP. XIX. Ver. 1—9. The kingdom of Judah, and family of David, abandoned to violence and oppression, associated themselves with their Heathen neighbours, their princes and nobles, and learned their ways. Jehoahaz, son of king Josiah, was scarcely enthroned by the nation when he became a tyrannical oppressor. But the Egyptians quickly dethroned him, and carried him off a prisoner. The Jews, finding that there was no hope of his restoration, or of freeing themselves from their dependance on the Egyptians, did, with their consent, make Jehoiakim their king. Conversing with his heathen neighbours, he soon became a most cruel oppressor, and rendered his kingdom every where miserable by his tyrannical rage. The Chaldeans and their allies quickly invaded the country, and, by making him their prisoner, restrained his oppressive cruelties. Not long after, they transported to Babylon king Jehoiachin his son, and almost all the princes of Judah; and, after eleven years more, Zedekiah; and laid the land desolate. 10—14. Once the Jewish state and family of David wonderfully flourished, had many valiant princes fit to sway the sceptre, and in glory and power could have vied with any of the neighbouring nations. But, by the Egyptians, and especially by the Assyrians and Chaldeans from the east, the nation is wholly ruined, and the princes either murdered or carried captive; and now the poor remains of the nation are miserable captives in Babylon. And king Zedekiah, by his rebellion against Nebuchadnezzar, hath occasioned the ruin of his family and nation; and never shall any of his family be honoured with an earthly sceptre.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. XIX.—Faithful ministers have often mournful work put into their hands to declare the awful consequences of sin. It is just and common for those, who terrified and enslaved others, to be affrighted and enslaved in their turn. And they, who fill up the measure of their father's sins, lay up sorrows and lasting matter of lamentation for their children.

the Lord God, In the day when ^bI chose Israel, and ^llifted up mine hand unto the seed of the house of Jacob, and ^kmade myself known unto them in the land of Egypt, when I lifted up mine hand unto them, saying, ^lI am the LORD your God,

6 In the day that ^mI lifted up mine hand unto them, to ^bbring them forth of the land of Egypt into a land that I had ^oespied for them, ^pflowing with milk and honey, which is the ^qglory of all lands;

7 Then said I unto them, ^rCast ye away every man the abominations of his eyes, and ^rdefile not yourselves with the idols of Egypt; I am the LORD your God.

8 But they ^rrebelled against me, and would not hearken unto me: they did not every man cast away the abominations of their eyes, neither did they forsake the idols of Egypt. Then I said, ^uI will pour out my fury upon them, to accomplish my anger against them in the midst of the land of Egypt.

9 But ^xI wrought for my name's sake, that it should not be polluted before the heathen, among whom they were, in whose sight I made myself known unto them, in bringing them forth out of the land of Egypt.

10 Wherefore ^yI caused them to go forth out of the land of Egypt, and brought them into the wilderness.

11 And ^yI gave them my statutes, and ^zshewed them my judgments, ^zwhich if a man do, he shall even live in them.

12 Moreover, also I gave them my sabbaths, to be a sign between me and them, that they might know that ^zI am the LORD that sanctify them.

13 ¶ But the house of Israel ^zrebelled against me in the wilderness: they walked not in my statutes, and they despised my judgments, which if a man do, he shall even live in them; and ^zmy sabbaths they greatly polluted. Then I said, ^zI would pour out my fury upon them in the wilderness to consume them.

14 ^zBut I wrought for my name's sake, that it should not be polluted before the heathen, in whose sight I brought them out.

15 ^zYet also I lifted up my hand unto them in the wilderness, that I would not bring them into the land ^zwhich I had given them, flowing with milk and honey, which is the glory of all lands;

16 ^zBecause they despised my judgments, and walked not in my statutes, but polluted my sabbaths: for their heart went after ^ztheir idols.

17 ^zNevertheless, mine eye spared them from destroying them, neither did I make an end of them in the wilderness.

18 But ^zI said unto their children in the wilderness, Walk ye not in the statutes of your fathers, neither observe their judgments, ^znor defile yourselves with their idols:

19 ^zI am the LORD your God; ^zwalk in my statutes, and keep my judgments, and do them;

20 ^zAnd hallow my sabbaths; and they shall be a sign between me and you, that ye may know that I am the LORD your God.

21 Notwithstanding, the children rebelled against me: they walked not in my statutes, neither kept my judgments to do them, which if a man do, he shall even live in them: they ^zpolluted my sabbaths. ^zThen I said, I would pour out my fury upon them, to accomplish my anger against them in the wilderness.

22 Nevertheless, I withdrew mine hand, and ^zwrought for my name's sake, that it should not be polluted in the sight of the heathen, in whose sight I brought them forth.

23 ^zI lifted up mine hand unto them also in the wilderness, that I would scatter them among the heathen, and disperse them through the countries;

24 ^zBecause they had not executed my judgments, but had despised my statutes, and had polluted my sabbaths, and ^ztheir eyes were after their fathers' idols.

25 Wherefore I gave them also statutes that were not good, and judgments whereby they should not live;

26 ^zAnd I polluted them in their own gifts, in that they caused to pass through the fire all that openeth the womb, that I might make them desolate, to the end that they ^zmight know that I am the LORD.

27 ¶ Therefore, son of man, speak unto ^zthe house of Israel, and say unto them, Thus said the Lord God, Yet in this your fathers have ^zblasphemed me, in that they have ^zcommitted a trespass against me.

28 For when ^zI had brought them into the land, for the which I ^zlifted up mine hand to give it to them, then they saw ^zevery high hill, and all the thick trees, and they offered there their sacrifices, and there they presented the ^zprovocation of their offering: there also they made their sweet savour, and poured out there their drink-offerings.

29 Then ¶ I said unto them, What is the high place whereunto ye go? ^zAnd the name thereof is called Bamah unto this day.

30 ¶ Wherefore say unto ^zthe house of Israel, Thus saith the Lord God, ^zAre ye polluted after the manner of your fathers? and commit ye whoredom after their abominations?

CHAP. XXII.

Contains three messages of wrath against Judah and Jerusalem.

(1) A catalogue of their crimes, murder, idolatry, disobedience to parents, oppression, profanation of holy things, uncleanness, forgetfulness of God; for which they are sentenced to infamy, dispersion, and rejection by God; 1—16. (2) As dross, wretchedly degenerated, despicable, and useless, they are condemned to the fiery furnace of terrible judgments; 17—22. (3) All ranks, prophets, priests, princes, and people, having neglected the duty of their stations, and combined in crimes, and none appearing as intercessor for them, they must be punished for their conduct; 23—31.

MOREOVER, the word of the LORD came unto me, saying,

2 Now, thou son of man, ^awilt thou ^{*judge}, wilt thou judge the ^bbloody city? yea, thou shalt [†]shew her ^dall her abominations.

3 Then say thou, Thus saith the Lord God, The city sheddeth blood ^ein the midst of it, that ^fher time may come; and ^gmaketh idols against herself to defile herself.

4 ^hThou art become guilty in thy blood that thou hast shed, and hast defiled thyself in thine idols which thou hast made; and ⁱthou hast caused thy days to draw near, and art come even unto thy years: therefore have I made thee ^ka reproach unto the heathen, and a mocking to all countries.

5 Those that be near, and those that be far from thee, shall mock thee, who art infamous, and much vexed.

6 Behold, the princes of Israel, every one were in thee to their ^lpower ^mto shed blood.

7 In thee have they set ⁿlight by father and mother; in the midst of thee have they dealt by ^ooppression with the stranger: in thee have they vexed the fatherless and the widow.

8 ^pThou hast despised mine holy things, and hast profaned my sabbaths.

9 In thee are ^qmen that carry tales to shed blood: and in thee they ^reat upon the mountains: in the midst of thee they ^scommit lewdness.

10 In thee have they ^tdiscovered their father's nakedness: in thee have they ^uhumbled her that was set apart for pollution.

11 And ^vone ^whath committed abomination with his neighbour's wife; and ^xanother hath ^ylewdly ^zdefiled his daughter-in-law; and another in thee hath humbled his sister, his father's daughter.

12 In thee ^{aa}have they taken gifts to shed blood: thou hast ^{ab}taken usury and increase, and thou hast greedily gained of thy neighbours by extortion, and hast ^{ac}forgotten me, saith the Lord God.

13 Behold, therefore I have ^{ad}smitten mine hand at thy ^{ae}dishonest gain which thou hast made, and at thy blood which hath been in the midst of thee.

14 ^{af}Can thine heart endure, or can thine hands be strong, in the days that I shall deal with thee? ^{ag}I the LORD have spoken it, and will do it.

15 And I will ^{ah}scatter thee among the heathen, and disperse thee in the countries, and ^{ai}will consume thy filthiness out of thee.

16 And thou shalt ^{aj}take thine inheritance in thyself in the sight of the heathen, ^{ak}and thou shalt know that I am the LORD.

17 ^{al}And the word of the LORD came unto me, saying,

18 Son of man, the house of Israel is to me become ^{am}dross: all they are ^{an}brass and tin, and iron, and lead, in the midst of the ^{ao}furnace; they are even the ^{ap}dross of silver.

19 Therefore thus saith the Lord God, ^{aq}Because ye are all become dross, behold, therefore ^{ar}I will gather you into the midst of Jerusalem.

20 ^{as}As they gather silver, and brass, and iron, and lead, and tin, into the midst of the furnace, to blow the fire upon it, to melt it; so will I gather you in mine anger, and in my fury, and I will leave you there, and melt you.

21 Yea, ^{at}I will gather you, and blow upon you in the fire of my wrath, and ye shall be melted in the midst thereof.

David wear a sceptre, till Christ take his spiritual kingdom in the gospel church, nay, in the millennium. 29. Your diviners falsely promise you safety and happiness, and that you shall tread down the Jews, whose wickedness hath made them fully ripe for punishment: but they will really bring you into the same miserable condition with these wicked Jews.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. XXI.—There is great need that ministers should use great plainness of speech in dealing with souls; should observe God's hand in his public judgments, in which even the godly share with the wicked: and should deny themselves, and be affected with their messages, in order to edify others. Alas! infinite is their danger who have God against them. Nothing can defend them from his righteous and terrible judgments. And, while wicked men abound every where, his wrath shall follow without restraint. Nor is it proper to be jovial, but penitent, when his judgments are abroad in the earth, in order to vindicate his perfections. But it is matter of comfort to saints that all judgments are managed by Christ, the Son of God, and their Husband and Saviour; and that to them they are but corrective trials, not blows aimed for their destruction.—God can easily force the most proud and crafty plotters on earth to court his direction in their concerns, and lead them even by events apparently fortuitous to his proper work. None are more ready to despise God's warnings than perfidious and profane swearers. And in none do these sins look worse than in magistrates and ministers who profess the true religion. But, if men despise the warnings and offers of God's grace, they shall be seized by his vengeance; and none are so high but God can debase them, nor any so low but he can exalt them. Pride goes before destruction; and before honour is humility. At what pains and cost do men destroy one another! But, if all overturnings in the world make way for Christ, the rightful Sovereign of nations and churches, and his gracious designs, let us be therewith content.—Nevertheless, let the proud reproachers and oppressors of God's people, who wish to extirpate his and their name from the world, remember their iniquities will but draw similar vengeance on themselves, and neither rights nor possessions on earth will avail them any thing.

CHAP. XXII. Ver. 16. I, who was once your inheritance, have cast you off, and now you may support yourselves in your notorious wretchedness, in the best way you can. 18—22. They are even growing worse and worse in the midst midst thereof; and ye shall know that I the LORD have poured out my fury upon you.

23 ¶ And the word of the LORD came unto me, saying,

24 Son of man, say unto her, 'Thou art the land that is not cleansed, nor rained upon in the day of indignation.

25 There is a conspiracy of her prophets in the midst thereof, like a roaring lion ravening the prey: they have devoured souls; they have taken the treasure and precious things; they have made her many widows in the midst thereof.

26 Her priests have violated my law, and have profaned mine holy things: they have put no difference between the holy and profane, neither have they shewed difference between the unclean and the clean, and have hid their eyes from my sabbaths, and I am profaned among them.

27 Her princes in the midst thereof are like wolves ravening the prey, to shed blood, and to destroy souls, to get dishonest gain.

28 And her prophets have daubed them with untempered mortar, seeing vanity, and divining lies unto them, saying, Thus saith the Lord God, when the LORD hath not spoken.

29 The people of the land have used oppression, and exercised robbery, and have vexed the poor and needy: yea, they have oppressed the stranger wrongfully.

30 And I sought for a man among them that should make up the hedge, and stand in the gap before me for the land, that I should not destroy it; but I found none.

31 Therefore have I poured out mine indignation upon them; I have consumed them with the fire of my wrath: their own way have I recompensed upon their heads, saith the Lord God.

CHAP. XXIII.

Like xvi. xx. &c. represents the idolatrous apostasy of Israel and Judah, their sinful alliances with the heathens about them, and the ruin thereby entailed upon them. (1) The wickedness of the Israelites, and of Samaria their capital; 1—8: and their destruction by the Assyrians; 9, 10. (2) The sinful alliances and idolatries of Judah and Benjamin; 12—21: and their condemnation to like destruction by the Chaldeans; 22—35. (3) The similar wickedness of both; 36—44: and similar judgments annexed to it; 45—49.

THE word of the LORD came again unto me, saying,

2 Son of man, there were two women, the daughters of one mother,

3 And they committed whoredoms in Egypt; they committed whoredoms in their youth: there were their breasts pressed, and there they bruised the teats of their virginity.

4 And the names of them were Aholah the elder, and Aholibah her sister: and they were mine, and they bare sons and daughters. Thus were their names, Samaria is Aholah, and Jerusalem Aholibah.

5 And Aholah played the harlot when she was mine, and she doated on her lovers, on the Assyrians her neighbours, 6 Which were clothed with blue, captains and rulers, all of them desirable young men, horsemen riding upon horses.

7 Thus she committed her whoredoms with them, with all them that were the chosen men of Assyria, and with all on whom she doated: with all their idols she defiled herself.

8 Neither left she her whoredoms brought from Egypt: for in her youth they lay with her, and they bruised the breasts of her virginity, and poured their whoredom upon her.

9 Wherefore I have delivered her into the hand of her lovers, into the hand of the Assyrians, upon whom she doated.

10 These discovered her nakedness: they took her sons and her daughters, and slew her with the sword; and she became famous among women: for they had executed judgment upon her.

11 And, when her sister Aholibah saw this she was more corrupt in her inordinate love than she, and in her whoredoms more than her sister in her whoredoms.

12 She doated upon the Assyrians her neighbours, captains and rulers clothed most gorgeously, horsemen riding upon horses, all of them desirable young men.

13 Then I saw that she was defiled, that they took both one way,

14 And that she increased her whoredoms: for when she saw men portrayed upon the wall, the images of the Chaldeans portrayed with vermillion,

15 Girded with girdles upon their loins, exceeding in dyed attire upon their heads, all of them princes to look to after the manner of the Babylonians of Chaldea, the land of their nativity:

16 And as soon as she saw them with her eyes she doated upon them, and sent messengers unto them into Chaldea.

17 And the Babylonians came to her into the bed of love, and they defiled her with their whoredom, and she was polluted with them, and her mind was alienated from them.

abominable, but forgetfulness of God, and of his relations and favours, may produce it. But very base and contemptible before God are degenerate and hypocritical professors. Dreadful is the case of a nation when prophets, priests, and princes, are accomplices and ringleaders in guilt. And, when there is scarcely a faithful opposer or importunate intercessor, God's vengeance must break in upon them, and render them infamous and miserable. Then shall they tremble under his hand, and feel what a wretched exchange they have made by their apostasy from him. And, as their stations aggravated their offences, they shall enhance their misery and ruin.

CHAP. XXIII. Whoredom here, and in many other places, denotes an idolatrous apostasy from God, their covenanted husband, to idols, and a dependance on heathen alliances. Ver. 4. The Israelites are called AHOLAH, her own tabernacle, because their worship, appointed by Jeroboam, was of their own invention: and the Jews AHOLIBAH, my tabernacle is in her, as they enjoyed the temple and ordinances of God. Both belonged to God by solemn marriage covenant: and they once brought forth many converts unto him.

of my judgments upon them, and therefore shall be terribly punished and destroyed. 24—30. They are not refined, nor washed, by the judgments which I have inflicted. Their prophets combine against upright persons; and persecute, rob, and murder, such as oppose them. Their priests wrest my laws to countenance their oppression and impiety: they irreverently officiate in my service: and neither in preaching nor in practice make any difference between right and wrong, clean or unclean; they take no care to have my sabbaths observed: and thus dishonour me by their infamous conduct. Their princes have abandoned themselves to cruelty, murder, oppression, and extortion. Their prophets, by false reasonings, and unstudied discourses, pretended visions, and presages of peace and prosperity, flatter them in their sinful courses. And there is none among them who either apply themselves to reform the nation, or to supplicate the prevention of my judgments.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. XXII.—Lord, what are men, that they, that professors of the true religion, should be such monsters! And what an awful connection there is between the different forms of wickedness! There is nothing so 18 So she discovered her whoredoms, and discovered her nakedness: then my mind was alienated from her, like as my mind was alienated from her sister.

19 Yet she multiplied her whoredoms, in calling to remembrance the days of her youth, wherein she had played the harlot in the land of Egypt.

20 For she doated upon their paramours, whose flesh is as the flesh of asses, and whose issue is like the issue of horses.

21 Thus thou calledst to remembrance the lewdness of thy youth, in bruising thy teats by the Egyptians, for the paps of thy youth.

22 ¶ Therefore, O Aholibah, thus saith the Lord God, Behold, I will raise up thy lovers against thee, from whom thy mind is alienated, and I will bring them against thee on every side;

23 The Babylonians, and all the Chaldeans, Pekod, and Shoa, and Koa, and all the Assyrians with them: all of them desirable young men, captains and rulers, great lords and renowned, all of them riding upon horses.

24 And they shall come against thee with chariots, waggons, and wheels, and with an assembly of people who shall set against thee buckler and shield and helmet round about: and I will set judgment before them, and they shall judge thee according to their judgments.

25 And I will set my jealousy against thee, and they shall deal furiously with thee: they shall take away thy nose and thine ears; and thy remnant shall fall by the sword: they shall take thy sons and thy daughters, and thy residue shall be devoured by the fire.

26 They shall also strip thee out of thy clothes, and take away thy fair jewels.

27 Thus will I make thy lewdness to cease from thee, and thy whoredom brought from the land of Egypt: so that thou shalt not lift up thine eyes unto them, nor remember Egypt any more.

28 For thus saith the Lord God, Behold, I will deliver thee into the hand of them whom thou hatest, into the hand of them from whom thy mind is alienated:

29 And they shall deal with thee hatefully, and shall take away all thy labour, and shall leave thee naked and bare: and the nakedness of thy whoredoms shall be discovered, both thy lewdness and thy whoredoms.

30 I will do these things unto thee, because thou hast gone a whoring after the heathen, and because thou art polluted with their idols.

31 Thou hast walked in the way of thy sister, therefore will I give her cup into thine hand.

32 Thus saith the Lord God, Thou shalt drink of thy sister's cup deep and large: thou shalt be laughed to scorn and had in derision; it containeth much.

33 Thou shalt be filled with drunkenness and sorrow, with the cup of astonishment and desolation, with the cup of thy sister Samaria.

34 Thou shalt even drink it, and suck it out, and thou shalt break the sherds thereof, and pluck off thine own breasts: for I have spoken it, saith the Lord God.

35 Therefore thus saith the Lord God, Because thou hast forgotten me, and cast me behind thy back, therefore bear thou also thy lewdness and thy whoredoms.

36 ¶ The Lord said moreover unto me, Son of man, wilt thou judge Aholah and Aholibah? yea, declare unto them their abominations;

37 That they have committed adultery, and blood is in their hands, and with their idols have they committed adultery, and have also caused their sons, whom they bare unto me, to pass for them through the fire to devour them.

38 Moreover, this they have done unto me; they have defiled my sanctuary in the same day, and have profaned my sabbaths.

39 For when they had slain their children to their idols, then they came the same day into my sanctuary to profane it; and, lo, thus have they done in the midst of mine house.

40 And, furthermore, that ye have sent for men to come from far, unto whom a messenger was sent, and, lo, they came; for whom thou didst wash thyself, paintedst thy eyes, and deckedst thyself with ornaments,

41 And satest upon a stately bed, and a table prepared before it, whereupon thou hast set mine incense and mine oil.

42 And a voice of a multitude being at ease was with her: and with the men of the common sort were brought Sabeans from the wilderness, who put bracelets upon their hands, and beautiful crowns upon their heads.

43 Then said I unto her that was old in adulteries, Will they now commit whoredoms with her, and she with them?

44 Yet they went in unto her, as they go in unto a woman that playeth the harlot; so went they in unto Aholah and unto Aholibah the lewd woman.

45 ¶ And the righteous men, they shall judge them after the manner of adulteresses, and after the manner of women that shed blood; because they are adulteresses, and blood is in their hands.

46 For thus saith the Lord God, I will bring up a company upon them, and will give them to be removed and spoiled.

CHAP. XXIV.

Contains two figurative, but dreadful sermons, preached to the captives in Chaldea just when Nebuchadnezzar began his siege of Jerusalem; 1, 2. (1) By the emblem of flesh boiling in a pot on a fire are represented the miseries of the inhabitants of Jerusalem during the siege, as the punishment of their murder, oppression, lewdness, idolatry, and other wickedness; 1—14. (2) By the sign of Ezekiel's not mourning for the death of his wife, is represented, that the approaching calamities of the Jews would be too heavy to be bewailed, and would sink them into utter despair; 15—27.

A GAIN, in the ^aninth year, in the tenth month, in the tenth day of the month, the word of the LORD came unto me, saying,

2 Son of man, ^bwrite thee the name of the day, even of ^cthis same day: the king of Babylon set himself against Jerusalem this same day.

3 ^dAnd utter a parable unto the ^erebellious house, and say unto them, Thus saith the Lord God, Set on a ^fpot, set it on, and also pour water into it:

4 ^gGather the pieces thereof into it, even every good piece, the thigh, and the shoulder; fill it with the choice bones.

5 Take the choice of the flock, ^hand ^{*}burn also the bones under it, and make it boil well, and let them seethe the bones of it therein.

6 Wherefore thus saith the Lord God, Wo to the ⁱbloody city, to the pot whose ^jscum is therein, and whose scum is not gone out of it! ^kbring it out piece by piece, let ^lno lot fall upon it.

7 For ^mher blood is in the midst of her: she set it upon the top of a rock; she poured it not upon the ground, to cover it with dust;

8 ⁿThat it might cause fury to come up to take vengeance; ^oI have set her blood upon the top of a rock, that it should not be covered.

9 Therefore thus saith the Lord God, ^pWo to the bloody city! I will even ^qmake the pile for fire great.

10 Heap on wood, kindle the fire, consume the flesh, and ^rspice it well, and let the bones be burned.

11 Then ^sset it empty upon the coals thereof, that the brass of it may be hot, and may burn, and ^tthat the filthiness of it may be molten in it, that the scum of it may be consumed.

12 ^uShe hath wearied ^vherself with lies, and ^wher great scum went not forth out of her: ^xher scum shall be in the fire.

13 ^yIn thy filthiness is lewdness: ^zbecause I have purged thee, and thou wast not purged, ^athou shalt not be purged from thy filthiness any more, ^btill I have caused my fury to rest upon thee.

14 ^cI the LORD have spoken it: it shall come to pass, and I will do it; I will not go back, ^dneither will I spare, neither will I repent: ^eaccording to thy ways, and according to thy doings, shall they judge thee, saith the Lord God.

15 ¶ Also the word of the LORD came unto me, saying,

16 Son of man, behold, I take away from thee ^fthe desire of thine eyes with a stroke: ^gyet neither shalt thou mourn nor weep, neither shall thy tears ^htrun-down. 17 ⁱForbear to cry, make no mourning for the dead, ^jbind the tire of thine head upon thee, and put ^kon thy shoes upon thy feet, and ^lcover not ^mthy ⁿlips, and eat not ^othe bread of men.

18 So I spake unto the people in the morning: and at even my wife ^pdied: and I did in ^qthe morning as I was commanded.

19 ¶ And the people said unto me, ^rWilt thou not tell us what these things are to us, that thou dost so?

20 Then I answered them, The word of the LORD came unto me, saying, 21 Speak unto the house of Israel, Thus saith the Lord God, Behold, I ^swill profane my sanctuary, the excellency of your strength, the desire of your eyes, and ^tthat which your soul pitieth; and ^uyour sons and your daughters whom ye have left shall fall by the sword.

22 ^vAnd ye shall do as I have done: ^wye shall not cover ^xyour lips, nor eat the bread of men.

23 And your tires shall be upon your heads, and your shoes upon your feet: ^yye shall not mourn nor weep, but ye shall do as I have done: ^zye shall not cover ^ayour lips, nor eat the bread of men.

24 And your tires shall be upon your heads, and your shoes upon your feet: ^bye shall not mourn nor weep, but ye shall do as I have done: ^cye shall not cover ^dyour lips, nor eat the bread of men.

25 And your tires shall be upon your heads, and your shoes upon your feet: ^eye shall not mourn nor weep, but ye shall do as I have done: ^fye shall not cover ^gyour lips, nor eat the bread of men.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. XXIII.—Disgraceful to men, and dishonourable to God, are sinful confederacies, and confidence in an arm of flesh. And, the greater our privileges and nearer our connections with God, the more criminal is our apostasy from him. If men will strengthen their corruptions, and bid defiance to repentance, by long continued customs of sinning, or by reflecting on their former wickedness with pleasure and pride, and will alienate their affections from God, let them not wonder if he mark his detestation of them in the most fearful calamities. If we follow the pattern of punished transgressors, we must expect to share with them in their tremendous plagues. And, if we indulge ourselves in forgetfulness of God, the most shocking treachery, gross idolatry, barbarous murder, heaven-daring profaneness, and confederacy with the worst and basest of mankind, will most probably follow. And what can then await us but disappointments, and miseries unnumbered and tremendous? But most shameful is it when the Heathen executioners of God's judgments are less wicked than the hypocritical professors on whom they execute them.

CHAP. XXIV. Ver. 4—13. Gather the Jews, especially their great men, kings, princes, and rulers in church and state, into Jerusalem, that there my kindled wrath may render them and their people inexpressibly miserable, by sword, famine, or pestilence. Since they continue obstinate in wickedness, let them be destroyed, one after another, by diversified judgments. By their open and avowed wickedness they have provoked me to punish them with public, correspondent, and destructive judgments. Let resentment and hope of plunder animate the Chaldeans utterly to destroy the inhabitants, and even burn up their city; to see if that will cure them of their vain hopes, heathen confederacies, and obstinacy and impudence in wickedness, notwithstanding all my reproofs, threatenings, and lesser judgments. 21—23. I will give up the temple, that magnificent structure, on which ye rely for security and indemnity, to be defiled and destroyed by the Chaldean Heathens; and your friends left at Jerusalem to be murdered; and yet ye shall not dare to make any open discoveries of your mourning for them, but shall secretly, in your own breasts, or with one another, bewail your misery, and pine away in sorrow.

Before Christ
cir. 590.

shall ^zpine away for your iniquities, and mourn one toward another.

24 Thus Ezekiel is unto you ^aa sign; according to all that he hath done shall ye do: and ^bwhen this cometh ye shall know that I am the Lord God.

25 ¶ Also, thou son of man, shall it not be in the day when I take from them their ^cstrength, the ^djoy of their glory, the desire of their eyes, and ^ethat whereupon they set their minds, ^ftheir sons and their daughters, 26 That ^ghe that escapeth in that day shall come unto thee, to cause thee to hear it with thine ears?

27 In that day, ^hshall thy mouth be opened to him who is escaped; and thou shalt speak, and be no more dumb: and thou shalt be ⁱa sign unto them; and they shall know that I am the LORD.

CHAP. XXV.

Having finished his denunciations of wrath against the wicked Jews, Ezekiel threatens their heathen enemies, as a token that God had not utterly cast them off. Here, for their insolent and barbarous behaviour to the people of God: 3, 6, 8, 12, 15: we have desolating judgments denounced against (1) The Ammonites: 1—7, 10. (2) The Moabites; 8—11. (3) The Edomites; 8, 12—14. (4) The Philistines; 15—17. [See Introduction, chap. iv. sect. ii. vii—x.]

THE word of the LORD came again unto me, saying,

2 Son of man, ^aset thy face ^bagainst the Ammonites, and prophesy against them;

3 And say unto the Ammonites, Hear the word of the Lord God; Thus saith the Lord God, ^cBecause thou saidst, Aha! against my sanctuary when it was profaned, and against the land of Israel when it was desolate, and against the house of Judah when they went into captivity;

4 Behold, therefore I will deliver thee to the ^dmen of the east for a possession, and they shall set their palaces in thee, and make their dwellings in thee: they shall eat thy fruit, and they shall drink thy ^emilk.

5 And I will make ^fRabbah ^ga stable for camels, and the Ammonites a couching place for flocks: and ^hye shall know that I am the LORD.

6 For thus saith the Lord God, ⁱBecause thou hast clapped thine ^jhands, and stamped with the ^kfeet, and ^lrejoiced in ^mheart with all thy despite against the land of Israel;

7 Behold, therefore I ⁿwill stretch out mine hand upon thee, and ^owill deliver thee for a ^pspoil to the heathen, and I will cut thee off from the people, and I will cause thee to perish out of the countries: I will destroy thee, ^qand thou shalt know that I am the LORD.

8 ¶ Thus saith the Lord God, ^rBecause that Moab and ^sSeir do say, Behold, the house of Judah ^tis like unto all the heathen;

9 Therefore, behold, I will open the ^uside of Moab from the cities, from his cities which are on his frontiers, the glory of the country Beth-jesimoth, Baalmeon, and Kiriathaim, 10 ^vUnto the men of the east, ^wwith the Ammonites, and will give them in possession, that the Ammonites may not be remembered among the nations.

11 ^xAnd I will execute judgments upon Moab, and they ^yshall know that I am the LORD.

12 ¶ Thus saith the Lord God, ^zBecause that Edom hath dealt against the house of Judah ^{aa}by taking vengeance, ^{ab}and hath greatly offended, and revenged himself upon them;

13 ^{ac}Therefore thus saith the Lord God, I will also stretch out mine hand upon Edom, and will cut off man and beast from it, and I will make it desolate from Teman, and ^{ad}they of Dedan shall fall by the sword.

14 And I will lay my vengeance upon ^{ae}Edom ^{af}by the hand of my people Israel: and they shall do in Edom according to mine anger and according to my fury; and they ^{ag}shall know my vengeance, saith the Lord God.

15 ¶ Thus saith the Lord God, ^{ah}Because the Philistines ^{ai}have dealt by revenge, and have taken vengeance with a despiteful heart, to destroy ^{aj}it for the old hatred;

16 Therefore thus saith the Lord God, ^{ak}Behold, I will stretch out mine hand upon the Philistines, and I will cut off the ^{al}Cherethims, and destroy the remnant of the ^{am}sea coasts.

17 And I will execute great ^{an}vengeance upon them with furious rebukes; and ^{ao}they shall know that I am the LORD when I shall lay my vengeance upon them.

CHAP. XXVI.

The comparatively despicable nations of the Ammonites and Moabites on the south-east, Edomites on the south, and Philistines on the south-west of Judea, had received a short doom. Now Tyre, at that time the most famous city for trade in the world, receives a large one in this and the two subsequent chapters. Here, after the date of the prediction, is, (1) One cause of the Tyrian's ruin; viz. their rejoicing in Jerusalem's fall, in hopes of increasing their trade by it; 2, 3. (2) Their destruction; how terrible and complete! 4—6, 12—14; and to be effected by a prodigious and furious army of Chaldeans; 3, 7—11. (3) What surprise and alarm their desolations should give to the nations around; 15—21. [See Introduction, chap. iv. sect. i. xi.]

Yea, that he should make hardened sinners to feel the truths which they slighted when preached to them. But dreadful is the situation when miseries are so heavy as to stupify and overwhelm the mind. And still more so when men under terrible calamities pine away in their sin.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. XXV.—In all ages the seed of the serpent have hated the people of God, or those who had their appearance. And, especially in their distress, what unnatural and barbarous instances have they given thereof, as if they imagined the saints had lost their ALL when they lost their outward prosperity! It is indeed mournful when professed saints, by their apostasy, give occasion to the enemies of the Lord to blaspheme. But, if God severely correct his own people, he will severely punish their enemies. And they who boasted of any other defence but his promise, power, and providence, shall quickly be ashamed of their glorying. He who detests revenge, despite, and hatred of neighbours, shall terribly punish the guilty; and perhaps by the hand of those whom they had injured.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. XXIV.—All times, places, and events, are under the immediate inspection of God: and it is useful to keep an exact account of his remarkable providences. But men only weary and ruin themselves by following after lying vanities. And inviolable are the threatenings, and tremendous the judgments, of God against obstinate sinners. Daring sinners must be made a spectacle to angels and men. They, who harden themselves against God's means for their conversion, must perish without remedy: and they, who obstinately indulge their lusts, must at last be abandoned to them. Agreeable marriage connections are very delightful. But our dearest created comforts are always on the wing to depart from us; and if they be taken from us, let us eye the hand of God, and hear his language therein;—and by faith, let us take himself and his fulness, to supply their room. Such submission will exceedingly sweeten our wormwood and gall. The removal of other men's comforts ought to make us think of parting with our own. But, if men hate the power of godliness, it is just that God should strip them of their beloved forms of it, and make them to mourn for their sufferings who never would mourn for their sins,

AND it came to "pass, in the eleventh year, in the first day of the month, that the word of the LORD came unto me, saying,

2 Son of man, because that Tyrus hath said against Jerusalem, "Aha, she is broken that was the 'gates of the people: she is turned unto me: I shall be replenished now she is laid waste:

3 Therefore thus saith the Lord God, "Behold, I am against thee, O Tyrus, and will cause many nations to come up against thee, as the sea causeth his waves to come up.

4 And they shall destroy the walls of Tyrus, and break down her towers: "I will also scrape her dust from her, and make her like the top of a rock.

5 It shall be a place for the spreading of nets in the midst of the sea: for I have spoken it, saith the Lord God; and it shall become a spoil to the nations.

6 And her daughters who are in the field shall be slain by the sword, and they shall know that I am the LORD.

7 ¶ For thus saith the Lord God, Behold, I will bring upon Tyrus Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon, a king of kings, from the north, with horses, and with chariots, and with horsemen, and companies, and much people.

8 He shall slay with the sword thy daughters in the field: and he shall make a fort against thee, and cast a mount against thee, and lift up the buckler against thee.

9 And he shall set engines of war against thy walls, and with his axes he shall break down thy towers.

10 By reason of the abundance of his horses their dust shall cover thee: thy walls shall shake at the noise of the horsemen, and of the wheels, and of the chariots, when he shall enter into thy gates, as men enter into a city wherein is made a breach.

11 With the hoofs of his horses shall he tread down all thy streets: he shall slay thy people by the sword, and thy strong garrisons shall go down to the ground.

12 And they shall make a spoil of thy riches, and make a prey of thy merchandise; and they shall break down thy walls, and destroy thy pleasant houses; and they shall lay thy stones, and thy timber, and thy dust, in the midst of the water.

13 And I will cause the noise of thy songs to cease, and the sound of thy harps shall be no more heard.

14 And I will make thee like the top of a rock: thou shalt be a place to spread nets upon: thou shalt be built no more: for I the LORD have spoken it, saith the Lord God.

15 ¶ Thus saith the Lord God to Tyrus, Shall not the isles shake at the sound of thy fall, when the wounded cry, when the slaughter is made in the midst of thee?

16 Then all the princes of the sea shall come down from their thrones, and lay away their robes, and put off their broidered garments: they shall clothe themselves with trembling; they shall sit upon the ground, and shall tremble at every moment, and be astonished at thee.

17 And they shall take up a lamentation for thee, and say to thee, How art thou destroyed that wast inhabited of seafaring men, the renowned city which wast strong in the sea, she and her inhabitants, who cause their terror to be on all that haunt it!

18 Now shall the isles tremble in the day of thy fall; yea, the isles that are in the sea shall be troubled at thy departure.

19 For thus saith the Lord God, when I shall make thee a desolate city, like the cities that are not inhabited; when I shall bring up the deep upon thee, and great waters shall cover thee;

20 When I shall bring thee down with them that descend into the pit, with the people of old time, and shall set thee in the low parts of the earth, in places desolate of old, with them that go down to the pit, that thou be not inhabited, and I shall set glory in the land of the living;

21 I will make thee a terror, and thou shalt be no more: though thou be sought for, yet shalt thou never be found again, saith the Lord God.

CHAP. XXVII.

Contains a prophetic lamentation over the ruin of Tyre; in which we have (1) A large account of the dignity, wealth, splendor, and power, of that city while in her glory, the vast trade which she carried on with the nations around, in the west of Asia, north of Africa, south of Europe, and isles of the Mediterranean sea; 1—25: which is designed to make her overthrow appear the more dreadful. (2) A prediction of her fall and ruin, to the terror and wonder of all around; 26—36.

THE word of the LORD came again unto me, saying,

2 Now, thou son of man, take up a lamentation for Tyrus;

3 And say unto Tyrus, O thou that art situate at the entry of the sea, who art a merchat of the people for many isles, Thus saith the Lord God, O Tyrus, thou hast said, I am of perfect beauty.

4 Thy borders are in the midst of the seas, thy builders have perfected thy beauty.

5 They have made all thy ship boards of fir trees of Senir: they have taken cedars from Lebanon to make masts for thee.

6 Of the oaks of Bashan have they made thine oars: the company of the Ashurites have made thy benches of ivory, brought out of the isles of Chittim.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. XXVI.—God highly resents our taking pleasure in the death or decay of others for the sake of our own carnal advantage. And there is little reason to boast of, or trust in, created enjoyments, when the most wealthy and powerful cities may quickly be so ruined as that the place where they stood shall not be known. So weak is human strength, so failing human greatness, and so tottering the rocky foundations of cities! Alas, the dreadful effects of sin, especially in hell! And how just is it that they who, priding themselves in their own strength, took pleasure to affright their inferiors, by the display of it, should likewise affright and astonish them by the suddenness or strangeness of their punishments. It is common for worldly men to lament the death of great rather than of good men. And marvellously will God connect his own glory and the restoration of his people with the ruinous destruction of his and their enemies.

15 The men of ^cDedan were thy merchants; many isles were the merchandise of thine hand: they brought thee for a present horns of ivory and ebony.

16 ^dSyria was thy merchant by reason of the multitude of ^ethe wares of thy making: they occupied in thy fairs with emeralds, purple, and brodered work, and fine linen, and coral, and ^fagate.

17 ^gJudah, and the land of Israel, they were thy merchants: they traded in thy market ^hwheat of Minnith, and Pannag, honey, and oil, and ⁱbalm.

18 ^jDamascus was thy merchant in the multitude of the waves of thy making, for the multitude of all riches; in the wine of Helbon, and white wool.

19 ^kDan also and Javan, ^lgoing to and fro, occupied in thy fairs: bright iron, ^mcassia, and calamus, were in thy market.

20 ⁿDedan was thy merchant in ^oprecious clothes for chariots.

21 ^pArabia, and all the princes of Kedar, ^qthey occupied with thee in lambs, and rams, and goats: in these were they thy merchants.

22 The merchants of ^rSheba and Raamah, they were thy merchants: they occupied in thy fairs with chief of all spices, and with all precious stones, and gold.

23 ^sHaran, and Canneh, and Eden, the merchants of ^tSheba, ^uAshur, and Chilmad, were thy merchants.

24 These were thy merchants in ^vall sorts of things, in blue ^wclothes, and brodered work, and in chests of rich apparel, bound with cords, and made of cedar among thy merchandise.

25 The ^xships of Tarshish did sing of thee in thy market; and thou wast replenished, and made very glorious in the midst of the seas.

26 ^yThy ^zrowers have brought thee ^ainto great waters: the ^beast wind hath broken thee in the ^cmidst of the seas.

27 Thy ^driches and thy fairs, thy merchandise, thy mariners, and thy pilots, thy calkers, and the occupiers of thy merchandise, and all thy men of war that are in thee, ^eand in all thy company, which is in the midst of thee ^fshall fall into the ^gmidst of the seas in the day of thy ruin.

28 The ^hsuburbs shall ⁱshake at the sound of the cry of thy pilots.

29 And all that handle the oar, the mariners, ^jand all the pilots of the sea, ^kshall come down from their ships, they shall stand upon the land;

30 ^lAnd shall cause their voice to be heard against thee, and shall cry bitterly, and shall ^mcast up dust upon their own heads; they shall ⁿwallow themselves in the ashes:

31 And they shall make themselves ^outterly bald for thee, and gird them with sackcloth, and they shall ^pweep for thee with bitterness of heart ^qand bitter wailing.

32 And in their wailing they shall ^rtake up a lamentation for thee, and lament over thee, ^ssaying, ^tWhat city is like Tyrus, like the destroyed in the midst of the sea?

33 When ^uthy wares went forth out of the seas thou filledst many people; thou didst enrich the kings of the earth with the multitude of thy riches and of thy merchandise.

34 In the time ^vwhen ^wthou shalt be broken by the seas in the depths of the waters, thy merchandise, and all thy company in the midst of thee, shall fall.

35 ^xAll the inhabitants of the isles shall be astonished at thee, and their kings shall be sore afraid, they shall be troubled in ^ytheir countenance.

36 The merchants among the people shall ^zhiss at thee; thou shalt be ^aa terror, and ^bnever shalt be any more.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. XXVII.—Great power and wealth rarely fail to have great pride for their companion. How strangely God by trade connects the different nations of the world! and yet, the more extensive trade is, the necessities and dependance of the traders are but the more manifested. Many articles in trade might be easily dispensed with: and yet God's wisdom remarkably appears in rendering that which is but trifling in itself the means of subsistence to multitudes. But the most pompous and powerful nations and cities are certainly and awfully brought down at last. And convenient situations advantageous harbours, magnificent and elegant structures, numerous and well-manned fleets, choice troops and armour, universal traffic, and wide-spread fame, do but concur to aggravate their misery. But, when even their own governors are guiding them to ruin, most sure and wretched is the downfall. And it is very hard for those, who have been wallowing in pleasure, and sleeping in carnal security, to endure remarkable losses, disappointments, and trouble.

10. (2) A lamentation over him thus astonishingly fallen from his grandeur by his pride, fraudulent traffic, and abominable idolatries; 11—19. (3) A prediction of ruin to Zidon, a neighbouring city of Tyrus, and from which she had originated; 20—23. (4) A promise of the restoration and safety of Israel, after the captivity in Babylon and present dispersion, notwithstanding the insults and abuse which they had suffered from their neighbours in the day of their distress; 24—26.

THE word of the LORD came again unto me, saying,

2 Son of man, say unto the *prince of Tyrus, Thus saith the Lord God, ^aBecause thine heart is lifted up, and thou hast said, ^bI am a god, I sit in the seat of God, in the †midst of the seas; ^cyet thou art a man, and not God, though thou set thine heart as the heart of God:

3 Behold, thou art ^dwiser than Daniel; there is no secret that they can hide from thee:

4 ^eWith thy wisdom and with thine understanding thou hast gotten thee riches, and hast gotten gold and silver into thy treasures:

5 † By thy great wisdom and by thy traffic hast thou increased thy riches, and ^fthine heart is lifted up because of thy riches:

6 Therefore thus saith the Lord God, Because thou hast ^gset thine heart as the heart of God,

7 Behold, therefore I will bring ^hstrangers upon thee, the terrible of the nations: and they shall draw their swords against the beauty of thy wisdom, and they shall defile thy ⁱbrightness.

8 ^kThey shall bring thee down to the pit, and thou shalt die the deaths of ^lthem that are slain in the midst of the seas.

9 Wilt thou yet say before him that slayeth thee, I am God? but thou shalt be a man, and no god, in the hand of him that ^mslayeth thee.

10 Thou shalt die ⁿthe deaths of the uncircumcised by the ^ohand of strangers: for I have spoken it, saith the Lord God.

11 ¶ Moreover the word of the LORD came unto me, saying,

12 Son of man, ^ptake up a lamentation upon the king of Tyrus, and say unto him, Thus saith the Lord God, Thou ^qsealest up the sum full of wisdom, and perfect in beauty.

13 Thou hast been in ^rEden the garden of God; every ^sprecious stone was thy covering, the ^tsardius, topaz, and the diamond, the †beryl, the onyx, and the jasper, the sapphire, the ‡emerald, and the carbuncle, and gold: the ^uworkmanship of thy tabrets and of thy pipes was prepared in thee in the day that thou wast created.

14 Thou art the ^vanointed cherub that covereth; and ^wI have set thee so: thou wast ^xupon the holy mountain of God; thou hast walked up and down in the midst of the ^ystones of fire.

15 Thou wast perfect in thy ways from the day that thou wast created, till ^ziniquity was found in thee.

16 By the ^amultitude of thy merchandise they have filled the midst of thee with violence, and thou hast sinned; therefore I will cast thee as profane out of the ^bmountain of God; and I will destroy thee, O covering cherub, from the midst of the stones of fire.

17 Thine heart was ^clifted up because of thy beauty; thou hast corrupted thy wisdom by reason of thy brightness: ^dI will cast thee to the ground, I will ^elay thee before kings, that they may behold thee.

18 ^fThou hast defiled thy ^gsanctuaries by the multitude of thine iniquities, by the iniquity of thy traffic; therefore will I bring forth ^ha fire from the midst of thee; it shall devour thee; and I will bring thee ⁱto ashes upon the earth, in the sight of all them that behold thee.

19 All they that know thee among the people shall be astonished at thee: thou shalt be ^ja terror, and never shalt thou be any more.

20 ¶ Again the word of the LORD came unto me, saying,

21 Son of man, set thy face against ^kZidon, and prophesy against it, 22 And say, Thus saith the Lord God, Behold, ^lI am against thee, O Zidon; and I will be ^mglorified in the midst of thee: and they shall know that I am the LORD, when I shall have executed judgments in her, and shall be sanctified in her.

23 ⁿFor I will send into her pestilence, and blood into her streets; and the wounded shall be judged in the midst of her by the sword upon her on every side; and they shall know that I am the LORD.

24 ¶ And there shall be no more ^oa pricking brier unto the house of Israel, nor ^pany grieving thorn of all that are round about them that despised them; ^qand they shall know that I am the Lord God.

25 Thus saith the Lord God, When ^rI shall have gathered the house of Israel from the people among whom they are scattered, and shall be ^ssanctified in them in the sight of the heathen, then shall they dwell in their land that I have given to my servant Jacob.

26 And ^tthey shall dwell ^usafely therein, ^vand shall build houses and plant vineyards; yea, they shall dwell with confidence when ^wI have executed judgments upon all those that ^xdespise them round about them; and ^ythey shall know that I am the LORD their God.

CHAP. XXVIII. Ver. 1—19. You think yourself every way accomplished in body and mind, in dignity and wealth—as happy as ever Adam was in Paradise; having your crown studded, and your garments glittering with precious stones; and regaled, chiefly on your coronation day, with the finest music of instruments, contrived with exquisite art.—You think yourself a very angel, endowed with power to protect your people. You walk up and down as a god, or as the Jewish high priest, all surrounded with precious stones, glittering like fire. And, till you discovered your violence, pride, fraud, and joy at the miseries of the Jews, you appeared endowed with all excellencies and prerogatives.—But now for these thine iniquities I will overturn thy dignity, eject thee from thy throne and grandeur, render thee a public example of my wrath, and an object of derision to the princes around; and a fire, kindled by thy own imprudence and injustice, shall occasion thy terrible ruin. 22—25. God is sanctified in Zidon, by manifesting his justice, holiness, and power, in his judgments; but sanctified in the Jews, by manifestations of his mercy, and making them to own him for a holy and just God in their holy conversation.

CHAP. XXIX.

And the three following, contain six predictions against the Egyptians, in the 10th, 11th, 12th, and 27th year of Jehoiachin's captivity. In the first, delivered when Pharaoh-hophra was marching to assist Zedekiah against the Chaldeans, (1) Pharaoh himself is threatened with disgrace and ruin, by his own subjects and the Chaldeans, for his pride, carnal security, and deception of the Jews; 1-7. (2) The wide-spread desolation of Egypt for forty years, and dispersion of the Egyptians, is foretold; 8-12. At the end of which a partial restoration is promised; but that the nation should remain base, tributary, and weak, to all generations; 13-16. In the second prediction, delivered about sixteen years after, is foretold, (3) That Nebuchadnezzar would make a seizure of the enormous wealth of Egypt, as a reward of his thirteen years' fruitless labour in besieging Tyros; 17-20. (4) That in due time the Jews should be graciously delivered, 21 with 16; which would confirm Ezekiel's predictions. [See Introduction, chap. iv. sect. iii.]

IN the tenth year, in the tenth month, in the twelfth day of the month, the word of the LORD came unto me, saying,

2 Son of man, set thy face against Pharaoh king of Egypt, and prophesy against him, and against all Egypt:

3 Speak, and say, Thus saith the Lord God, Behold, I am against thee, Pharaoh king of Egypt, the great dragon that lieth in the midst of his rivers, which hath said, My river is mine own, and I have made it for myself.

4 But I will put hooks in thy jaws, and I will cause the fish of thy rivers to stick upon thy scales, and I will bring thee up out of the midst of thy rivers, and all the fish of thy rivers shall stick unto thy scales.

5 And I will leave thee thrown into the wilderness, thee and all the fish of thy rivers: thou shalt fall upon the open fields; thou shalt not be brought together, nor gathered: I have given thee for meat to the beasts of the field, and to the fowls of the heaven.

6 And all the inhabitants of Egypt shall know that I am the LORD, because they have been a staff of reed to the house of Israel.

7 When they took hold of thee by thy hand, thou didst break, and rend all their shoulder: and, when they leaned upon thee, thou brakest, and madest all their loins to be at a stand.

8 ¶ Therefore thus saith the Lord God, Behold, I will bring a sword upon thee, and cut off man and beast out of thee.

9 And the land of Egypt shall be desolate and waste; and they shall know that I am the LORD: because he hath said, The river is mine, and I have made it.

10 Behold, therefore I am against thee, and against thy rivers, and I will make the land of Egypt utterly waste and desolate, from the tower of Syene even unto the border of Ethiopia.

11 No foot of man shall pass through it, nor foot of beast shall pass through it, neither shall it be inhabited forty years.

12 And I will make the land of Egypt desolate in the midst of the countries that are desolate, and her cities among the cities that are laid waste shall be desolate forty years: and I will scatter the Egyptians among the nations, and will disperse them through the countries.

13 Yet thus saith the Lord God, At the end of forty years will I gather the Egyptians from the people whither they were scattered:

14 And I will bring again the captivity of Egypt, and will cause them to return into the land of Pathros, into the land of their habitation; and they shall be there a base kingdom.

15 It shall be the basest of the kingdoms; neither shall it exalt itself any more above the nations: for I will diminish them, that they shall no more rule over the nations.

16 And it shall be no more the confidence of the house of Israel, which bringeth their iniquity to remembrance, when they shall look after them: but they shall know that I am the Lord God.

17 ¶ And it came to pass, in the seven and twentieth year, in the first month, in the first day of the month, the word of the LORD came unto me, saying,

18 Son of man, Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon caused his army to serve a great service against Tyros: every head was made bald, and every shoulder was peeled: yet had he no wages, nor his army for Tyros, for the service that he had served against it:

19 Therefore thus saith the Lord God, Behold, I will give the land of Egypt unto Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon, and he shall take her multitude, and take her spoil, and take her prey; and it shall be the wages for his army.

20 I have given him the land of Egypt for his labour wherewith he served against it, because they wrought for me, saith the Lord God.

21 ¶ In that day will I cause the horn of the house of Israel to bud forth, and I will give thee the opening of the mouth in the midst of them; and they shall know that I am the LORD.

for encouraging the Jews to rebel against the Chaldeans to their own hurt. 16. They shall no more appear proper assistants to the Jews, nor tempt them to recommit their former wickedness, in distrusting God's promises and assistance, or in trusting to Heathen helpers, and copying after their idolatries.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. XXIX.—It is a mercy to foresee the failure of created confidences, when we are most tempted to depend on them. But highly criminal is it for men, even the greatest, to pride themselves in their prosperity, as if they had not received all from God and that only in loan. Quickly may they expect to lose that which they refuse to hold under him. Alas, how fluctuating are the affections of our most ardent lovers and greatest admirers! They may one day risk their life to assist our ambition, and the next pull us from our station and being on earth. And too often do subjects ruin themselves by foolish adherence to sovereigns, or by undutiful rebellions against them. Nothing is more provoking to God, and injurious to mankind, than to deceive those who put confidence in us. And it is a mercy for the world when he strips those of their power who exercised it in tyrannizing over, or deceiving, their neighbours. Yea happy is it to have those created comforts and confidences removed from us which estranged us from God. But how alarming is it to REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. XXVIII.—It is necessary, and yet very hard, to make proud men know themselves to be but men—but poor, dependent, dying worms. And very rarely they, who are intelligent, wealthy, and dignified, are remarkably humble. Yea, seldom do men carry on very extensive trades without oppressing and injuring their neighbours. But they, who pretend to be the rivals, are at last forced to quit their claims, and find themselves but men, weak and sinful. God can easily cast the most fixed out of their dignified stations, and devour them with a fire kindled by their own iniquity! Let Britain look and tremble!—How the cup of his vengeance goes round from one nation to another! But the ruin of his people's enemies remarkably makes way for their restoration and happiness. Even when he corrects them, he takes the greatest care that they may not seem vile to those around; and is highly provoked with those that despise them and help forward their affliction.

CHAP. XXIX. Ver. 4-7. By my providence thou shalt march out of thy country against the Syrians, on the west of Egypt; and lead along with thee multitudes of thy subjects. But the terrible ruin of this thine army shall provoke the remainder to rebel, and never cease their war against thee till thou and thy party be utterly ruined. And the Egyptians shall see themselves punished

CHAP. XXX.

Contains (1) Another prediction against Egypt, importing that, by the Chaldeans, the Egyptians and their allies, of Ethiopia, Libya, and African Lydia, should be routed and murdered, the whole country of Egypt, from north to south, miserably ravaged, and the principal cities almost utterly desolated; 1—19. (2) A fourth prediction, delivered while the Egyptians, who had come to assist Zedekiah, were shamefully retreating home; importing that their power should gradually decrease, till the nation should be murdered and scattered by flight and captivity, while the power of the Chaldeans should be gradually increased, till they had ruined them; 20—26. [See Introduction, chap. iv. sect. iii.]

THE word of the LORD came again unto me, saying,

2 Son of man, prophesy and say, Thus saith the Lord God, ^aHowl ye, wo worth the day!

3 For the ^bday is near, even the day of the LORD is near, a ^ccloudy day; it shall be ^dthe time of the heathen.

4 And the sword shall come upon Egypt, and great ^epain shall be in Ethiopia, when the slain shall fall in Egypt, and they ^fshall take away her multitude, and her ^gfoundations shall be broken down.

5 ^hEthiopia, and ⁱ*Libya, and Lydia, and all the mingled people, and Chub, and the ^jmen of the land that is in league, shall fall with them by the sword.

6 Thus saith the LORD, They also ^kthat uphold Egypt shall fall, and the pride of her power shall come down: ^lfrom the tower of Syene shall they fall in it by the sword, saith the Lord God.

7 And ^mthey shall be desolate in the midst of the countries ⁿthat are desolate, and her cities shall be in the midst of the cities ^othat are wasted.

8 And ^pthey shall know that I am the LORD when I have ^qset a fire in Egypt, and ^rwhen all her helpers shall be ^sdestroyed.

9 In that day shall messengers go forth from me ^tin ships, to make the careless Ethiopians afraid, and ^ugreat pain shall come upon them, as in the day of Egypt: for, lo, it cometh.

10 Thus saith the Lord God, ^vI will also make the multitude of Egypt to cease by the hand of Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon.

11 He and his people with him, the ^wterrible of the nations, shall be brought to destroy the land: and they shall draw their swords against Egypt, and fill the land with the slain.

12 And I will make the rivers ^xdry, and ^ysell the land into the hand of the wicked: and I will make the land waste, and ^zfall that is therein, by the hand of strangers: I the LORD have spoken it.

13 Thus saith the Lord God, I will also ^{aa}destroy the idols, and I will cause ^{ab}their ^{ac}images to cease out of ^{ad}Noph:

and ^{ae}there shall be no more a prince of the land of Egypt: and I ^{af}will put a ^{ag}ear in the land of Egypt.

14 And I will make ^{ah}Pathros desolate, and will set fire in ^{ai}Zoan, and will execute judgments in No.

15 And I will ^{aj}pour my fury upon ^{ak}Sin, the strength of Egypt; and I will cut off the multitude of ^{al}No.

16 And I will ^{am}set fire in Egypt: Sin shall have ^{an}great pain, and No shall be rent asunder, and Noph ^{ao}shall have distresses daily.

17 The young men of ^{ap}Aven and of ^{aq}Pi-beseth shall fall by the sword: and these cities ^{ar}shall go into captivity.

18 At ^{as}Tehaphnehes also the day shall be ^{at}darkened when I shall break there the ^{au}yokes of Egypt; and the ^{av}pomp of her strength shall cease in her: as for her, ^{aw}a cloud shall cover her, and her daughters shall ^{ax}go into captivity.

19 ^{ay}Thus will I execute judgments in Egypt; and they shall know that I am the LORD.

20 ¶ And it came to pass, in the ^{az}eleventh year, in the first month, in the seventh day of the month, ^{ba}that the word of the LORD came unto me, saying,

21 Son of man, ^{bb}I have broken the arm of Pharaoh king of Egypt; and, lo, ^{bc}it shall not be bound up to be healed, to put a roller to bind it, to make it strong to hold the sword.

22 Therefore thus saith the Lord God, ^{bd}Behold, I am against Pharaoh king of Egypt, and will break his arms, the strong, and ^{be}that which was broken; and ^{bf}I will cause the sword to fall out of his hand.

23 ^{bg}And I will scatter the Egyptians among the nations, and will disperse them through the countries.

24 ^{bh}And I will strengthen the arms of the king of Babylon, and ^{bi}put my sword in his hand: but I will break Pharaoh's arms, and he ^{bj}shall groan before him with the groanings of a deadly wounded man.

25 But I will strengthen the arms of the king of Babylon, and the arms of Pharaoh shall fall down; and ^{bk}they shall know that I am the LORD when I shall put my sword into the hand of the king of Babylon, and ^{bl}he shall stretch it out upon the land of Egypt.

26 And ^{bm}I will scatter the Egyptians among the nations, and disperse them among the countries; and they ^{bn}shall know that I am the LORD.

CHAP. XXXI.

To humble Pharaoh and his Egyptians, Ezekiel must (1) Shew him what potent, wealthy, and proud, monarchs the kings of Assyria were; what a vast empire they had, and what a sway they bore: so that none of their fellow kings could equal, but only envied, them; 1—9. (2) After shewing him how much he REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. XXX.—The day of God's just vengeance, however slow, comes certainly at last. And they who will help his enemies to take their destruction along with them. God ordinarily makes one wicked person or nation his scourge to another; easily he can alarm the most distant secure. And the fall of sinners ought to alarm their survivors. If we refuse to glorify him by obedience, he will take care to glorify himself in our destruction. And, if lesser judgments will not humble and reform us, he will bring on us severe ones. He keeps nations in perpetual variation. Nothing is unchangeable but himself. But they who are most elevated in their prosperity are often undispersed in their adversity. And no conquerors, no armies, have any power all but what is given them from above.

behold Egypt, the most ancient enslaver of God's people for about an hundred years, already more than two thousand years in the basest servitude to Chaldeans, Persians, Greeks, Romans, Saracens, and at last to Mamluk and Turkish slaves!—At the most terrible expense and pains, are men bent to destroy one another. And yet, while they are pursuing their covetous and ambitious views, they are but the tools of a sovereign, a wise, a just, an angry God. And often God rewards their services with wealth or honour in this world, and yet with damnation in the next. It is well if he, in wrath, remember mercy; and it is a happy presage when his faithful ministers are divinely countenanced and encouraged in their work.

was like them in pride, carnal confidence, and security, he must relate how the Assyrian monarchy was ruined; and what an alarm it gave the nations around to beware of pride; 10—17. (3) He must leave it to the Egyptians, through the ruin of the Assyrians, to foresee their own; 18.

AND it came to pass, in the eleventh year, in the third month, in the first day of the month, that the word of the LORD came unto me, saying,

2 Son of man, speak unto Pharaoh king of Egypt, and to his multitude, Whom art thou like in thy greatness?

3 Behold, the Assyrian was a cedar in Lebanon, with fair branches, and with a shadowing shroud, and of an high stature; and his top was among the thick boughs.

4 The waters made him great, the deep set him up on high with her rivers running round about his plants, and sent out her little rivers unto all the trees of the field.

5 Therefore his height was exalted above all the trees of the field, and his boughs were multiplied, and his branches became long because of the multitude of waters, when he shot forth.

6 All the fowls of heaven made their nests in his boughs, and under his branches did all the beasts of the field bring forth their young, and under his shadow dwelt all great nations.

7 Thus was he fair in his greatness, in the length of his branches: for his root was by great waters.

8 The cedars in the garden of God could not hide him: the fir trees were not like his boughs, and the chesnut trees were not like his branches; not any tree in the garden of God was like unto him in his beauty.

9 I have made him fair by the multitude of his branches: so that all the trees of Eden, that were in the garden of God, envied him.

10 Therefore thus saith the Lord God, Because thou hast lifted up thyself in height, and he hath shot up his top among the thick boughs, and his heart is lifted up in his height;

11 I have therefore delivered him into the hand of the mighty one of the heathen; he shall surely deal with him: I have driven him out for his wickedness.

12 And strangers, the terrible of the nations, have cut him off, and have left him: upon the mountains and in all the vallies his branches are fallen, and his boughs are broken by all the rivers of the land; and all the people of the earth are gone down from his shadow, and have left him.

13 Upon his ruin shall all the fowls of the heaven remain, and all the beasts of the field shall be upon his branches:

14 To the end that none of all the trees by the waters exalt themselves for their height, neither shoot up their top among the thick boughs, neither their trees stand up in their height, all that drink water: for they are all delivered unto death, to the nether parts of the earth, in the midst of the children of men, with them that go down to the pit.

15 Thus saith the Lord God, In the day when he went down to the grave, I caused a mourning: I covered the deep for him, and I restrained the floods thereof, and the great waters were stayed: and I caused Lebanon to mourn for him, and all the trees of the field fainted for him.

16 I made the nations to shake at the sound of his fall when I cast him down to hell with them that descend into the pit: and all the trees of Eden, the choice and best of Lebanon, all that drink water, shall be comforted in the nether parts of the earth.

17 They also went down into hell with him unto them that be slain with the sword; and they that were his arm, that dwelt under his shadow in the midst of the heathen.

18 ¶ To whom art thou thus like in glory and in greatness among the trees of Eden? yet shalt thou be brought down with the trees of Eden unto the nether parts of the earth: thou shalt lie in the midst of the uncircumcised with them that be slain by the sword. This is Pharaoh and all his multitude, saith the Lord God.

CHAP. XXXII.

Contains two lamentations over the ruin of the Egyptians by the Chaldeans, which were probably suggested to the prophet on two different sabbaths: 1, 17. It is represented by two similitudes: (1) The killing of a mischievous lion, or a whale, ercodile, or some such devouring sea monster, attended with great terror and a fearful darkness; 1—16. (2) The pompous funeral of a great general of an army, welcomed to the grave of ruin, along with the Assyrians, Persians, Scythians, Edomites, Phenicians, &c. 17—32.

AND it came to pass in the twelfth year, in the twelfth month, in the first day of the month, that the word of the LORD came unto me, saying,

2 Son of man, take up a lamentation for Pharaoh king of Egypt, and say unto him, Thou art like a young lion of the nations, and thou art as a whale in the seas: and thou camest forth with thy rivers, and troubledst the waters with thy feet, and fouledst thy rivers.

And the greater men's height, the more ruinous is their fall. But how unhappy it is that men cannot excel in earthly things without creating envy to themselves! It is highly necessary that they who have power and wealth should use it for the protection and comfort of others around; and that God's hand should be carefully observed in the advancement of the great men of the earth. He, as Judge, pulls down one king and kingdom, and sets up another. And often their ruin comes upon them just after they seemed most fixed and flourishing. The more proud and imperious they are, the greater is like to be their disgrace and contempt. They who were courted in their prosperity will be deserted and spoiled in the day of adversity; and their fall will probably involve multitudes in terror or ruin. And let us always remember that God intends every providential stroke as a warning to others; that, when proud presumptuous sinners are cast down, all around may mortify their lusts, and be clothed with humility.

CHAP. XXXII. Ver. 2—10. Pharaoh is full of cruelty and violence to the nations around; and, with his great armies, disturbs their peace and spoils their country. But I will quickly conduct thee to Cyrene, where the bulk of thine army shall be destroyed and lie unburied. After which, Egypt itself, by inter-

CHAP. XXXI. Ver. 3—6. The kingdom of Assyria arrived at an astonishing extent of dignity and power, ruling over and protecting many nations: and their king was exceedingly exalted. Their fruitful soil, enriching commodities, prudent administrations, and traffic with, or conquest of, nations rendered it more powerful and extensive than any kingdom on earth. All the nations about were either under its dominion or courted its friendship. 13—17. Upon the fall of the Assyrian monarchy the conquering nations made a prey of it, and glutted themselves with the spoils thereof: Let therefore no princes nor kingdoms be puffed up with a conceit of themselves because of present prosperity, as they must all, in their turn, be reduced and ruined. When the Assyrian monarchy was destroyed, it struck a general terror into all its friends, dependants, and neighbours, and put a stop to all trade:—and while the Assyrians and their neighbours bewailed the disaster, the great kings and kingdoms, which had been before reduced, rejoiced to see Assyria in like manner ruined, and to see its ruins and dependants brought to destruction.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. XXXI.—Kings and kingdoms may flourish and shine for a time in great pomp and grandeur, and yet must certainly fall at last.

3 Thus saith the Lord God, I will therefore spread out my net over thee with a company of many people, and they shall bring thee up in my net.

4 Then will I leave thee upon the land; I will cast thee forth upon the open field, and will cause all the fowls of the heaven to remain upon thee, and I will fill the beasts of the whole earth with thee.

5 And I will lay thy flesh upon the mountains, and fill the valleys with thy height.

6 I will also water with thy blood the land wherein thou swimmest, even to the mountains; and the rivers shall be full of thee.

7 And when I shall put thee out I will cover the heaven, and make the stars thereof dark; I will cover the sun with a cloud, and the moon shall not give her light.

8 All the bright lights of heaven will I make dark over thee, and set darkness upon thy land, saith the Lord God.

9 I will also vex the hearts of many people, when I shall bring thy destruction among the nations, into the countries which thou hast not known.

10 Yea, I will make many people amazed at thee, and their kings shall be horribly afraid for thee, when I shall brandish my sword before them; and they shall tremble at every moment, every man for his own life, in the day of thy fall.

¶ For thus saith the Lord God, The sword of the king of Babylon shall come upon thee.

12 By the swords of the mighty will I cause thy multitude to fall, the terrible of the nations all of them; and they shall spoil the pomp of Egypt, and all the multitude thereof shall be destroyed.

13 I will destroy also all the beasts thereof from beside the great waters; neither shall the foot of man trouble them any more, nor the hoofs of beasts trouble them.

14 Then will I make their waters deep, and cause their rivers to run like oil, saith the Lord God.

15 When I shall make the land of Egypt desolate, and the country shall be destitute of that whereof it was full, when I shall smite all them that dwell therein, then shall they know that I am the Lord.

16 This is the lamentation wherewith they shall lament her: the daughters of the nations shall lament her: they shall lament for her, even for Egypt, and for all her multitude, saith the Lord God.

¶ It came to pass also in the twelfth year, in the fifteenth day of the month, that the word of the Lord came unto me, saying,

18 Son of man, wail for the multitude of Egypt, and cast them down, even her, and the daughters of the famous nations, unto the nether parts of the earth, with them that go down to the pit.

19 Whom dost thou pass in beauty? go down, and be thou laid with the uncircumcised.

20 They shall fall in the midst of them that are slain by the sword: she is delivered to the sword: draw her and all her multitudes.

21 The strong among the mighty shall speak to him out of the midst of hell with them that help him: they are gone down, they lie uncircumcised, slain by the sword.

22 Ashur is there and all her company: his graves are about him: all of them slain, fallen by the sword:

23 Whose graves are set in the sides of the pit, and her company is round about her grave: all of them slain, fallen by the sword, who caused terror in the land of the living.

24 There is Elam and all her multitude round about her grave, all of them slain, fallen by the sword, who are gone down uncircumcised into the nether parts of the earth, who caused their terror in the land of the living; yet have they borne their shame with them that go down to the pit.

25 They have set her a bed in the midst of the slain with all her multitude: her graves are round about him: all of them uncircumcised, slain by the sword: though their terror was caused in the land of the living, yet have they borne their shame with them that go down to the pit: he is put in the midst of them that be slain.

26 There is Meshech, Tubal, and all her multitude: her graves are round about him: all of them uncircumcised, slain by the sword, though they caused their terror in the land of the living.

27 And they shall not lie with the mighty that are fallen by the uncircumcised, who are gone down to hell with their weapons of war: and they have laid their swords under their heads, but their iniquities shall be upon their bones, though they were the terror of the mighty in the land of the living.

28 Yea, thou shalt be broken in the midst of the uncircumcised, and shalt lie with them that are slain with the sword.

29 There is Edom, her kings, and all her princes, who with their might are laid by them that were slain by the sword: they shall lie with the uncircumcised, and with them that go down to the pit.

30 There be the princes of the north all of them, and all the Zidonians, who are gone down with the slain; with their terror they are ashamed of their might; and they lie uncircumcised with them that be slain by the sword, and bear their shame with them that go down to the pit.

CHAP. XXXIII.

Now Ezekiel returns to the Jews. He must tell them (1) That he was among them as a prophet and watchman, and was accountable to God for his faithfulness; 1—9. (2) That, as the peculiar people of God, they were on exact trial for their behaviour; and that, however wicked they had been, they should not perish, if penitent; and that, however righteous they had been, they should perish, if obstinate apostates; 10—20. (3) He must warn those whom the Chaldeans left in Judea, after the taking of Jerusalem, that, notwithstanding their vain hopes, they should be utterly ruined, on account of their persisting in their wickedness; 21—29. (4) A rebuke is tendered to his hearers at Babylon, for their derision of, and hypocritical attendance on, his instructions; 30—33.

A GAIN the word of the LORD came unto me, saying,

2 Son of man, 'speak to the children of thy people, and say unto them, *When I bring the sword upon a land, if the people of the land take a man of their coasts, and set him for their 'watchman:

3 If, when 'he seeth the sword come upon the land, he 'blow the trumpet, and warn the people;

4 Then †whosoever 'heareth the sound of the trumpet, and taketh not warning; if the sword come and take him away, 'his blood shall be upon his own head.

5 He heard the sound of the trumpet, and took not warning; his blood shall be upon him. But 'he that taketh warning shall deliver his soul.

6 But if the watchman see the sword come, 'and blow not the trumpet, and the people be not warned; if the sword come, and take any person from among them, 'he is taken away in his iniquity; but his blood will I require at the watchman's hand.

7 'So thou, O son of man, I have set thee a watchman unto the house of Israel; 'therefore thou shalt hear the word at my mouth, and warn them from me.

8 When I say unto the wicked, 'O wicked man, thou shalt surely die; 'if thou dost not speak to warn the wicked from his way, that wicked man shall die in his iniquity; but his blood will I require at thine hand.

9 Nevertheless, 'if thou warn the wicked of his way to turn from it; 'if he do not turn from his way, he shall die in his iniquity; but thou hast delivered thy soul.

10 ¶ Therefore, O thou son of man, 'speak unto the house of Israel, Thus ye speak, saying, 'If our transgressions and our sins be upon us, and we pine away in them, 'how should we then live?

11 Say unto them, As I live, saith the Lord God, 'I have no pleasure in the death of the wicked, but that the wicked turn from his way and live: *turn ye, turn ye from your evil ways; for why will ye die, O house of Israel?

12 Therefore, thou son of man, say unto the children of thy people, 'the righteousness of the righteous shall not deliver him in the day of his transgression: as for the wickedness of the wicked, he shall not fall thereby in the day that he turneth from his wickedness; neither shall the righteous be able to live for his righteousness in the day that he sinneth.

13 'When I shall say to the righteous that he shall surely live; 'if he trust to his own righteousness, and commit iniquity, all his righteousness shall not be remembered; but, for his iniquity that he hath committed, 'he shall die for it.

14 Again, when I say unto the wicked, 'Thou shalt surely die; 'if he turn from his sin, and do 'that which is lawful and right;

15 If the wicked restore the pledge, give again that he hath robbed, walk in 'the statutes of life without committing iniquity; 'he shall surely live, he shall not die.

16 'None of his sins that he hath committed shall be mentioned unto him: he hath done that which is lawful and right; he shall surely live.

17 ¶ Yet the children of thy people say, 'The way of the LORD is not equal: but, as for them, their way is not equal.

18 'When the righteous turneth from his righteousness, and committeth iniquity, he shall even die thereby.

19 'But, if the wicked turn from his wickedness, and do that which is lawful and right, he shall live thereby.

20 Yet ye say, 'The way of the LORD is not equal. O ye house of Israel, 'I will judge you every one after his ways.

21 ¶ And it came to pass in the 'twelfth year of our captivity, in the tenth month, in the fifth day of the month, that 'one that had escaped out of Jerusalem came unto me, saying, 'The city is smitten.

22 Now 'the hand of the LORD was upon me in the evening, afore he that was escaped came; and had opened my mouth, until he came to me in the morning; and 'my mouth was opened, and I was no more dumb.

23 Then the word of the LORD came unto me, saying,

24 Son of man, 'they that inhabit

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. XXXII.—Ministers must weep and tremble at the words of God, that they may affect others therewith. Alas, how the restless ambition and implacable resentment of proud princes disturb the world! But the brandished sword of God's judgments shall at last overwhelm them with consternation, terror, and ruin. Hardened sinners often fret and murmur under God's tremendous threatenings, instead of humbling themselves. And they, who with complacency admired the pomp of this world, with terrible astonishment behold its ruin. The mighty nations who delighted in war, shall find enough of it at last. And no multitudes, wealth or power, can avail, either to withstand the wrath or to move the pity of God. After all the noise and pomp of men, he can bring them down to the most mean and abject appearances. Alas! that dreadful devourers are sin and death! Yea, the terrors of God shall prevail when those of men are for ever subdued. Awful indeed will be that assembly when the dead, small and great, shall stand before him.

CHAP. XXXIII. Ver. 10, 11. They cavil, and say if we are thus miserable, and are long punished for our iniquities, how can we be ever delivered and restored to prosperity? But how assuredly that I take no pleasure in punishing you, wicked as you are; but had rather you should repent of your wickedness, that I might accomplish my promises of mercy to you. Why then do ye not, without a moment's delay, heartily repent and return? Why do ye continue to ruin yourselves, and provoke me to destroy you? N. B. The death and life here, as well in chap. xviii. and iii. primarily denote the temporal misery or happiness of the Jews: the first of which might have been prevented, and the latter might have been obtained, by repentance and righteousness, though not properly evangelical or infallibly persevering. 24. They whom the Chaldeans have left in the desolated country of Judea, far from lamenting their sins and desolations, and the captivity or death of their brethren, boast that, being Abraham's seed, and especially considering their number, they shall be able to keep possession of the country.

those wastes of the land of Israel speak, saying, 'Abraham was one, and he inherited the land: but we are many, 'the land is given us for inheritance.

25 Wherefore say unto them, Thus saith the Lord God, 'Ye eat with the blood, and 'lift up your eyes toward your idols, and 'shed blood: and shall ye possess the land?

26 Ye 'stand upon your sword, 'ye work abomination, and 'ye defile every one his neighbour's wife: and 'shall ye possess the land?

28 For 'I will lay the land ||most desolate, and the 'pomp of her strength shall cease; and 'the mountains of Israel shall be desolate, that none shall pass through.

29 'Then shall they know that I am the LORD, when I have laid the land most desolate, 'because of all their abominations which they have committed.

30 ¶ Also, thou son of man, the children of thy people still are talking *against thee by the walls and in the doors of the houses, and speak one to another, every one to his brother, saying, 'Come, I pray you, and hear what is the word that cometh forth from the LORD.

33 And, when this cometh to pass, (lo, it *will come), then 'shall they know that a prophet hath been among them.

CHAP. XXXIV.

With xxxvi—xlvi. represent the state of the Jewish nation after their captivity and present dispersion. This contains (1) God's high charge against the Jewish rulers, in church and state, for their self-enrichment, negligence, unskilfulness, and unfair oppression, in the management of public affairs; 1—6, 8; and his wrathful discharge of them from their office; 7—10. (2) His gracious promise that he himself would take the management of his flock or people into his own hand, and effectually bring them back from their captivity, and redress all their grievances; 11—16. (3) Another charge against the rich and powerful Jews, for their oppression of their poor brethren, and a threatening of punishment; 16—22. (4) Another promise of his sending Jesus Christ in due time, as the great, good, and famous, Shepherd of his people, under whom they should have remarkable peace, protection, comfort, provision, liberty, and honour, attended by the special presence of God, and relation to him; 23—30. These promises will be especially accomplished in the millennium. [See Introduction, the last page of chap. iv.]

AND the word of the LORD came unto me, saying,

2 'Son of man, prophesy against the shepherds of Israel, prophesy, and say unto them, Thus saith the Lord God unto the shepherds, Wo be to the shepherds of Israel that 'do feed themselves! should not the shepherds 'feed the flocks?

3 'Ye eat the fat, and ye clothe you with the wool, ye kill them that are fed: but ye feed not the flock.

4 'The diseased have ye not strengthened, neither have ye healed that which was sick, neither have ye bound up that which was broken, neither have ye brought again that which was driven away, neither have ye sought that which was lost; but with 'force and with cruelty have ye ruled them.

5 And they were scattered, 'because there is no shepherd: and they became meat to all the beasts of the field when they were scattered.

6 'My sheep wandered through all the mountains, and upon every high hill: yea, my flock was scattered upon all the face of the earth, and 'none did search or seek after them.

7 ¶ Therefore, ye shepherds, hear the word of the LORD;

8 As I live, saith the Lord God, 'surely because 'my flock became a prey, and my flock became meat to every beast of the field, because there was no shepherd, neither did my shepherds search for my flock, but the shepherds fed themselves, and fed not my flock;

9 Therefore, O ye shepherds, hear the word of the LORD;

10 Thus saith the Lord God, 'Behold, I am against the shepherds, and I will 'require my flock at their hand, and 'cause them to cease from feeding the flock; neither shall the shepherds feed themselves any more; for 'I will deliver my flock from their mouth, that they may not be meat for them.

11 ¶ For thus saith the Lord God, 'Behold, I, even I, will both search my sheep and seek them out.

12 'As a shepherd seeketh out his flock in the day that he is among his sheep that are scattered, so will I seek out my sheep, and will 'deliver them out of all places where they have been scattered in 'the cloudy and dark day.

13 And 'I will bring them out from for God's ministers and ordinances, who have no real love to them! Oft hearers have their fancies pleased, who never get their consciences touched, the hearts renewed, or lives sanctified, by what they hear. And nothing more effectually prevents the efficacy of the gospel than a covetous heart. Neither scottiers nor hypocrites shall be able to defeat the threatenings of God, and they, who would not improve his mercies, shall know their value by wanting them.

CHAP. XXXIV. Ver. 2—5. These rulers regard only their own interest, not the welfare of the people. By oppression and murder they seize upon the estates of the rich: they have not supported, relieved, or comforted, such were fallen into decay or distress: they have not relieved or redressed the wrong of the oppressed: they have not restored to their right such as, by the violence of others, had been forced to quit their lands: nor have they attempted to reform the wanderers in wickedness, but have tyrannized over them in the

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. XXXIII.—One faithful minister or magistrate may be of great service to a country or nation. Yet much care and faithfulness is necessary in the work of either. And it is a great mercy that, when they cannot be so useful to others as they wished, they may save themselves. They, who have hardened themselves in presumption, generally at last sink into, and harden themselves in, despair. Yet certain and delightful is it that God hath no pleasure in the ruin of sinners; and that he is infinitely sincere and earnest in his calls to repentance. But sinners must repent or be damned. Holiness and happiness, obstinate sinning and misery, are inseparably connected in God's purposes, oracles, and providences; nor does the escaping one stroke secure the hardened transgressor from imminent ruin.—To what a fearful pitch of profaneness are they arrived, who can make common calamities the matter of their joy, or important discourses the object of their derision! And yet faithful ministers are a common object of contempt and hatred, and a common subject of discourse in the places where they live. And, alas, many pretend great fondness unmerciful manner:—so that, by the ill conduct of their rulers, and the violence of enemies, they are either destroyed, or forced, as captives or fugitives, into other countries, and their wealth is made a spoil.

16, 17, 20, 22. While I redress the manifold grievances of the poor and oppressed, I will, by righteous judgments, destroy their wealthy and powerful oppressors; I will, in righteousness, make an effectual difference between the weaker and stronger part of my people; cherishing the former, and restraining the violence and fury of the latter.

18, 19, 21. Think ye it a small crime to enjoy my enlarged blessings yourselves alone, but ye must disturb the poor in the possession of their small estates, and consume them by your illegal oppression;—Yea, ye oblige them to live upon the remains of what ye have destroyed, and molest and vex them by your injustice and violence.

23. Jesus Christ is called David, because he was his promised seed and glorious antitype, and called God's servant, because, as mediator, he performs the debased and honorary work of our salvation, appointed him of the Father. He is called a Shepherd, to denote his careful gathering, protecting, guarding, providing for, feeding, and healing his people. And he is called a Plant of Renown (ver. 29), because, being low in his humiliation, he is infinitely excellent in himself; and is, and will for ever be, infinitely famous among angels and men.

25. I will establish with them my covenant; by virtue of which they shall enjoy all kinds of blessings; and wicked men, who oppress and devour others, shall either be converted or destroyed to such a the people, and gather them from the countries, and will bring them to their own land, and feed them upon the mountains of Israel by the rivers, and in all the inhabited places of the country.

14 I will feed them in a good pasture, and upon the high mountains of Israel shall their fold be: there shall they lie in a good fold, and in a fat pasture shall they feed upon the mountains of Israel.

15 I will feed my flock, and I will cause them to lie down, saith the Lord God.

16 I will seek that which was lost, and bring again that which was driven away, and will bind up that which was broken, and will strengthen that which was sick: but I will destroy the fat and the strong; I will feed them with judgment.

17 And, as for you, O my flock, thus saith the Lord God, Behold, I judge between cattle and cattle, between the rams and the goats.

18 Seemeth it a small thing unto you to have eaten up the good pasture, but ye must tread down with your feet the residue of your pastures? and to have drunk of the deep waters, but ye must foul the residue with your feet?

19 And, as for my flock, they eat that which ye have trodden with your feet; and they drink that which ye have fouled with your feet.

20 ¶ Therefore thus saith the Lord God unto them, Behold, I, even I, will judge between the fat cattle and between the lean cattle.

21 Because ye have thrust with side and with shoulder, and pushed all the diseased with your horns, till ye have scattered them abroad;

22 Therefore will I save my flock, and they shall no more be a prey, and I will judge between cattle and cattle.

23 And I will set up one shepherd over them, and he shall feed them, even my servant David; he shall feed them, and he shall be their shepherd.

24 And I the Lord will be their God, and my servant David a prince among them: I the Lord have spoken it.

25 And I will make with them a covenant of peace, and will cause the evil beasts to cease out of the land: and they shall dwell safely in the wilderness, and sleep in the woods.

26 And I will make them and the places round about my hill a blessing; and I will cause the shower to come down in his season; there shall be showers of blessing.

27 And the tree of the field shall yield her fruit, and the earth shall yield her increase, and they shall be safe in their land, and shall know that I am the Lord, when I have broken the bands of their yoke, and delivered them out of the hand of those that served themselves of them.

28 And they shall no more be a prey to the heathen, neither shall the beasts of the land devour them; but they shall dwell safely, and none shall make them afraid.

29 And I will raise up for them a plant of renown, and they shall be no more consumed with hunger in the land, neither bear the shame of the heathen any more.

30 Thus shall they know that I the Lord their God am with them, and that they, even the house of Israel, are my people, saith the Lord God.

31 And ye my flock, the flock of my pasture, are men, and I am your God, saith the Lord God.

(2) A denunciation of ruin, on account thereof, that God will prove their enemy; 3: Lay their land most desolate; 4, 6—9: and continue it so when other countries should be restored to their wonted felicity; 14, 15.

MOREOVER, the word of the Lord came unto me, saying,

2 Son of man, Set thy face against mount Seir, and prophesy against it,

3 And say unto it, Thus saith the Lord God, Behold, O mount Seir, I am against thee, and I will stretch out mine hand against thee, and I will make thee most desolate.

4 I will lay thy cities waste, and thou shalt be desolate, and thou shalt know that I am the Lord.

5 Because thou hast had a perpetual hatred, and hast shed the blood of the children of Israel by the force of the sword in the time of their calamity, in the time that their iniquity had an end:

6 Therefore, as I live, saith the Lord God, I will prepare thee unto blood, and blood shall pursue thee: since thou hast not hated blood, even blood shall pursue thee.

degree, that, in the most barbarous and dangerous places, there shall be nothing but safety and comfort.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. XXXIV.—If the dignity and power of men do not restrain them from sin, it will not exempt them from reproof, excuse their impenitence, or avert God's judgments. Alas! miserable is the case of nations and churches when magistrates and ministers mind only their own temporal interests, neglect their duty, plague, oppress, and mislead their people. And most dreadful will be their account and condemnation at last. Soon will God deprive them of that power which they have abused. And, if they will neglect their part, God will, at their expense, and for the welfare of his people, perform his, and neither slumber nor sleep. If they harden the wicked, and discourage the righteous, he will comfort the distressed and ruin the presumptuous. And they who would engross every thing to themselves, and who grudge that any can live beside them, shall be awfully reckoned with at last. But every loss, every trouble, is completely balanced to them who have Jesus Christ, and God in him, for their ALL and IN ALL. Glorious and renowned is his person, office, and work; rich and stable the new covenant made with him, and with us in him; and complete the safety, and unbounded and innumerable the blessings, of his kingdom!

CHAP. XXXVI.

And twelve following, are an explication of the promissory part of ch. xxxiv. This contains (1) Predictions relative to the temporal state of the Jews after their captivity and dispersion; that, notwithstanding their present desolation and misery, and the triumph of enemies, their grievances should be redressed, and themselves restored to their country, and multiplied in it, amidst permanent honour, peace, and plenty; 1—15, 24, 33—38, 28—30. (2) Predictions relative to their spiritual state, that, notwithstanding their abominable and self-destructive iniquities, God, for his name's sake, would pardon their iniquities, reform them from their idolatries, renew their natures, and, by his Spirit, render them holy, happy, and deeply penitent, in answer to their prayers; 16—23, 25—33, 37, 38.

ALSO, thou son of man, prophesy unto the °mountains of Israel, and say, Ye mountains of Israel, hear the °word of the LORD:

2 Thus saith the Lord God, °Because the enemy had said against you, Aha, even °the ancient high places are °our's in possession:

3 Therefore prophesy and say, Thus saith the Lord God, °Because they have made you desolate, and swallowed you up on every side, that ye might be a possession unto the residue of the heathen, and °ye are taken up in the lips of talkers, and are an infamy of the people:

4 Therefore, ye mountains of Israel, hear the word of the Lord God, Thus saith the Lord God to °the mountains and to the hills, to the °rivers and to the vallies, to °the desolate wastes, and to the cities that are forsaken, which became a prey and derision to °the residue of the heathen that are round about;

5 Therefore thus saith the Lord God, Surely °in the fire of my jealousy have I spoken °against the residue of the heathen, and against all Idumea, who have appointed °my land into their possession °with the joy of all their heart, with despiteful minds to cast it out for a prey.

6 Prophecy therefore concerning the land of Israel, and say unto the mountains and to the hills, to the rivers and to the vallies, Thus saith the Lord God, Behold, I have spoken in my jealousy and in my fury, because °ye have borne the shame of the heathen:

7 Therefore thus saith the Lord God, °I have lifted up mine hand, °Surely the heathen that are about you, they shall bear their shame.

8 But ye, O mountains of Israel, °ye shall shoot forth your branches, and yield your fruit to my people of Israel, for they are °at hand to come.

9 For, behold, I am for you, °and I will turn unto you, and ye shall be tilled and sown:

10 And °I will multiply men upon you, all the house of Israel, even all of it; and the cities shall be inhabited, and the wastes shall be builded:

11 And I will multiply upon you man and beast; and they shall increase and bring fruit: and °I will settle you after your old estates, and °will do better unto you than at your beginnings: and °ye shall know that I am the LORD.

12 Yea, I will cause men to walk upon you, even my people Israel, and they shall possess thee, and thou shalt be their inheritance, and thou °shalt no more henceforth bereave them of men.

13 Thus saith the Lord God, Because they say unto you, Thou land °devourest up men, and hast bereaved thy °nations;

14 Therefore thou shalt devour men °no more, neither °bereave thy nations any more, saith the Lord God.

15 Neither will I cause men °to hear in thee the shame of the heathen any more, neither shalt thou bear the reproach of the people any more, neither shalt thou cause thy nations to fall any more, saith the Lord God.

16 ¶ Moreover, °the word of the LORD came unto me, saying,

17 Son of man, when the house of Israel dwelt in their own land °they defiled it by their own way and by their her friends, and the malice and pride of her enemies, are singularly manifest. God is highly provoked when his enemies lay claim to the peculiar property his offending favourites. And they, who jest at or help forward their misdeeds, may expect similar calamities. Neither men's words nor their deeds are forgiven by God in measuring out his judgments. And implacable malice must be punished with irreparable ruin.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. XXXV.—God's ministers must declare nothing but evil against the implacable enemies of Christ and his people. The quarrels of parents often descend to their children; and national antipathies are deeply rooted. Therefore parents should carefully avoid giving bad example to their children, as it may ensnare and ruin them, though themselves should repent. Nothing is more cruel than to insult and oppress the distressed. Even they, who suffer for their sin here, ought not to be trampled on, but pitied. And it shews great baseness, if our own advantage thereby render us glad at the losses and troubles of others. When God's church is in trouble, the constancy and fidelity of survived the common calamities, made a scorn and by-word of the Jews, and assisted to ruin them, in hopes of getting their country. 25, 26, 29. By my word and spirit I will apply to your souls the blood of Christ for removing the guilt and filth of your iniquities, and will reform you from your idolatry and other wickedness: I will renew your hearts, subdue your indwelling lusts, implant in you new principles of holiness; and by my spirit dwelling and acting in you, will effectually determine and enable you to render a cordial and universal obedience to all my commandments.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. XXXVI.—God takes the most compassionate notice of the deplorable condition of his people; and severe are his resentments of the insults and injuries done to them. But numerous, and infallible in ac-doings: their way was before me as the uncleanness of a removed woman.

18 Wherefore I poured my fury upon them for the blood that they had shed upon the land, and for their idols wherewith they had polluted it:

19 And I scattered them among the heathen, and they were dispersed through the countries: according to their way and according to their doings I judged them.

20 And, when they entered unto the heathen whither they went, they profaned my holy name, when they said to them, These are the people of the LORD, and are gone forth out of his land.

21 But I had pity for mine holy name, which the house of Israel had profaned among the heathen, whither they went.

22 Therefore say unto the house of Israel, Thus saith the Lord God, I do not this for your sakes, O house of Israel, but for mine holy name's sake, which ye have profaned among the heathen, whither ye went.

23 And I will sanctify my great name, which was profaned among the heathen, which ye have profaned in the midst of them; and the heathen shall know that I am the LORD, saith the Lord God, when I shall be sanctified in you before their eyes.

24 For I will take you from among the heathen, and gather you out of all countries, and will bring you into your own land.

25 Then will I sprinkle clean water upon you, and ye shall be clean: from all your filthiness, and from all your idols, will I cleanse you.

26 A new heart also will I give you, and a new spirit will I put within you; and I will take away the stony heart out of your flesh, and I will give you an heart of flesh.

27 And I will put my spirit within you, and cause you to walk in my statutes; and ye shall keep my judgments, and do them.

28 And ye shall dwell in the land that I gave to your fathers; and ye shall be my people, and I will be your God.

29 I will also save you from all your uncleannesses; and I will call for the corn, and will increase it, and lay no famine upon you.

30 And I will multiply the fruit of the tree, and the increase of the field, that ye shall receive no more reproach of famine among the heathen.

31 Then shall ye remember your own evil ways, and your doings that were not good, and shall lothe yourselves in your own sight for your iniquities and for your abominations.

32 Not for your sakes do I this, saith the Lord God, be it known unto you: be ashamed and confounded for your own ways, O house of Israel.

33 Thus saith the Lord God, In the day that I shall have cleansed you from all your iniquities I will also cause you to dwell in the cities, and the wastes shall be builded.

34 And the desolate land shall be tilled, whereas it lay desolate in the sight of all that passed by.

35 And they shall say, This land that was desolate is become like the garden of Eden; and the waste and desolate and ruined cities are become fenced, and are inhabited.

36 Then the heathen that are left round about you shall know that I the LORD build the ruined places, and plant that that was desolate: I the LORD have spoken it, and I will do it.

37 Thus saith the Lord God, I will yet for this be inquired of by the house of Israel, to do it for them; I will increase them with men like a flock.

38 As the holy flock, as the flock of Jerusalem in her solemn feasts; so shall the waste cities be filled with flocks of men; and they shall know that I am the LORD.

CHAP. XXXVII.

(1) By the vision of dry bones, quickened by prophecy, is represented that, however dispersed among enemies, destitute of human help, and dispirited in their own minds, the Jews were in their captivity, or are in their present dispersion, God would, by Cyrus' proclamation and his own influences, animate, help, and gather them to their own land; 1-14. (2) By the uniting of two sticks in Ezekiel's hand is represented that, notwithstanding the old enmity between them, the Jews and ten tribes would, after the captivity, and especially after the dispersion, happily unite, and renounce their idolatries, and under the Messiah enjoy the most comfortable relation to God, abundant peace and prosperity, and holy fellowship with him; 15-28. But this shall have its more excellent fulfilment in the quickening influences of the Holy Spirit, in the erection of the gospel church, and entrance into the millennial blessedness; in the making of Jews and Gentiles one mystical body of Christ, and in the glorious resurrection and heavenly blessedness. [See Introduction, chap. iv. sect. xviii. xix.]

THE hand of the LORD was upon me, and carried me out in the spirit of the LORD, and set me down in the midst of the valley which was full of bones,

2 And caused me to pass by them round about: and, behold, there were very many in the open valley; and, lo, they were very dry.

3 And he said unto me, Son of man, can these bones live? And I answered, O Lord God, thou knowest.

4 Again he said unto me, Prophecy upon these bones, and say unto them, O ye dry bones, hear the word of the LORD.

complishment, are his promises of grace towards them. What an honour for our earth to be made serviceable to the people of God, and to be improved by them to the ends of his glory! The kingdom of our Lord Jesus Christ is a growing kingdom. Though for a time it be diminished, it quickly recovers, and is replenished. When God returns in mercy to his people, and makes them return in duty to him, their grievances are effectually redressed, and their honour retrieved! marvellously does grace much more abound where sin had abounded; and, even from the wickedness and misery of men, his perfections are more abundantly glorified. What multitudes of rich blessings are, in excellent order, connected together in the new covenant! And the infinite freedom and riches of God's favours powerfully lead men to repentance, holiness, earnest prayer, and abundant devotion.

5 Thus saith the Lord God unto these bones, Behold, I will cause breath to enter into you, and ye shall live:

6 And I will lay sinews upon you, and will bring up flesh upon you, and cover you with skin, and put breath in you, and ye shall live; and ye shall know that I am the LORD.

7 So I prophesied as I was commanded: and as I prophesied there was a noise, and behold a shaking, and the bones came together, bone to his bone.

8 And when I beheld, lo, the sinews and the flesh came up upon them, and the skin covered them above; but there was no breath in them.

9 Then said he unto me, Prophecy unto the wind, prophecy, son of man, and say to the wind, Thus saith the Lord God, Come from the four winds, O breath, and breathe upon these slain, that they may live.

10 So I prophesied as he commanded me, and the breath came into them, and they lived, and stood up upon their feet, an exceeding great army.

11 Then he said unto me, Son of man, these bones are the whole house of Israel: Behold, they say, Our bones are dried, and our hope is lost; we are cut off for our parts.

12 Therefore prophesy and say unto them, Thus saith the Lord God, Behold, O my people, I will open your graves, and cause you to come up out of your graves, and bring you into the land of Israel.

13 And ye shall know that I am the LORD when I have opened your graves, O my people, and brought you up out of your graves, 14 And shall put my spirit in you, and ye shall live, and I shall place you in your own land: then shall ye know that I the LORD have spoken it, and performed it, saith the LORD.

15 ¶ The word of the LORD came again unto me, saying,

16 Moreover, thou son of man, take thee one stick, and write upon it, For Judah, and for the children of Israel his companions: then take another stick, and write upon it, For Joseph the stick of Ephraim, and for all the house of Israel his companions.

17 And join them one to another into one stick; and they shall become one in thine hand.

18 And when the children of thy people shall speak unto thee, saying, Wilt thou not shew us what thou meanest by these?

19 Say unto them, Thus saith the Lord God, Behold, I will take the stick of Joseph which is in the hand of Ephraim, and the tribes of Israel his fellows, and will put them with him, even with the stick of Judah, and make them one stick, and they shall be one in mine hand.

20 And the sticks whereon thou writest shall be in thine hand before their eyes.

21 ¶ And say unto them, Thus saith the Lord God, Behold, I will take the children of Israel from among the heathen whither they be gone, and will gather them on every side, and bring them into their own land:

22 And I will make them one nation in the land upon the mountains of Israel; and one king shall be king to them all: and they shall be no more two nations, neither shall they be divided into two kingdoms any more at all:

23 Neither shall they defile themselves any more with their idols, nor with their detestable things, nor with any of their transgressions: but I will save them out of all their dwelling places, wherein they have sinned, and will cleanse them: so shall they be my people, and I will be their God.

24 And David my servant shall be king over them; and they all shall have one shepherd: they shall also walk in my judgments, and observe my statutes and do them.

25 And they shall dwell in the land that I have given unto Jacob my servant, wherein your fathers have dwelt; and they shall dwell therein, even they and their children, and their children's children for ever: and my servant David shall be their prince for ever.

26 Moreover, I will make a covenant of peace with them: it shall be an everlasting covenant with them: and I will place them and multiply them, and will set my sanctuary in the midst of them for evermore.

27 My tabernacle also shall be with them: yea, I will be their God, and they shall be my people.

28 And the heathen shall know that I the LORD do sanctify Israel, when my sanctuary shall be in the midst of them for evermore.

CHAP. XXXVIII.

(1) Under divine restraints, but by divine permission, the Syro-grecians, after the captivity, but chiefly the Turks, and their Persian, Arabian, Ethiopian, and Libyan allies, after the present dispersion, with an huge army, invade the land of Israel, in order to ravage it; 1-13. (2) Notwithstanding God's managing all for their benefit, the Jews are thereby thrown into terrible consternation; 14-20. (3) At last God, to impress an holy awe of his perfections upon the nations around, by some immediate stroke of his vengeance, and by one another, cuts off most of the Turkish forces. [See Introduction, chap. iv. sect. xvii.]

AND the word of the LORD came unto me, saying,

2 Son of man, set thy face against Gog, the land of Magog, the chief prince of Meshech and Tubal, and prophesy against him,

3 And say, Thus saith the Lord

when cordially united under Christ, effectually reformed from heathen and popish idolatry, and every temptation thereto, when fixed in the new covenant and enjoying therein the most blessed peace, safety, familiarity, and fellowship with God and his saints. In the worst of cases let me supplicate his Spirit, and depend on his promises, in hopes of that everlasting blessedness, in which there shall be no death, no discord, no wars, no want, no distance from God.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. XXXVII.—In what a forlorn and apparently hopeless state are the vessels of mercy by nature, and sometimes the visible church of Christ. Dead, withered, and buried in graves of misery and wickedness! But God himself knows how to revive and quicken them by his word, Spirit, and providence, though none beside can effect it. Nor can any obstructions in the way withstand his infinite power and grace. Happy is the church

GOD, Behold, 'I am against thee, O Gog, the chief prince of Meshech and Tubal: 4 And 'I will turn thee back, and put hooks into thy jaws, †and I will bring thee forth, and all thine army, 'horses and horsemen, all of them clothed with all sorts of armour, even a great company with bucklers and shields, all of them handling swords:

5 'Persia, Ethiopia, and †Libya, with them; all of them with shield and helmet:

6 'Gomer, and all his bands, the house of Togarmah of the north quarters, and all his bands; and many people with thee.

7 'Be thou prepared, and prepare for thyself, thou and all thy company that are assembled unto thee, and be thou a guard unto them.

8 ¶ 'After many days thou shalt be visited^k: in the latter years thou 'shalt come into ^mthe land that is brought back from the sword, and is gathered out of many people against the mountains of Israel, which have been always waste: but it is brought forth out of the nations, and they shall dwell safely all of them.

9 'Thou shalt ascend and come like a storm, thou shalt be like a cloud to cover the land, thou and all thy bands, and many people with thee.

10 Thus saith the Lord God, It shall also come to pass, that at the same time shall 'things come into thy mind, and thou shalt 'think an evil thought:

11 And thou shalt say, 'I will go up to the land of unwalled villages, I will go to them that 'are at rest, that dwell safely^s, all of them dwelling without walls, and having neither bars nor gates,

12 'To take a spoil, and to take a prey, 'to turn thine hand upon the desolate places that are now inhabited, and upon the people that are gathered out of the nations, who have gotten cattle and goods, that dwell in the ^xmidst of the land.

13 'Sheba and Dedan, and the merchants of Tarshish, with all the ^zyoung lions thereof, shall say unto thee, Art thou come to take a spoil? hast thou gathered thy company to take a prey? to carry away silver and gold, to take away cattle and goods, to take a great spoil?

14 ¶ Therefore, son of man, prophesy and say unto Gog, Thus saith the Lord God, In that day when my people of Israel 'dwelleth safely, 'shalt thou not know it?

15 'And thou shalt come from thy place out of the north parts, thou and many people with thee, all of them riding upon horses, a great company, and a mighty army:

16 And thou shalt come up against my people of Israel, 'as a cloud to cover the land: it shall be in the latter days, and I will bring thee against my land, 'that the heathen may know me when I shall be sanctified in thee, O Gog, before their eyes.

17 Thus saith the Lord God, Art thou he of whom 'I have spoken in old time by ||my servants the prophets of Israel, who prophesied in those days many years that I would bring thee against them?

18 And it shall come to pass at the same time, when Gog shall come against the land of Israel, saith the Lord God, that 'my fury shall come up in my face.

19 For in my jealousy and in the fire of my wrath have I spoken, Surely in that day there shall be a great 'shaking in the land of Israel;

20 So that the fishes of the sea, and the fowls of the heaven, and the beasts of the field, and all creeping things that creep upon the earth, and all the men that are upon the face of the earth, shall shake at my presence; and the mountains shall be thrown down, and the ^{*}steep places shall fall, and every wall shall fall to the ground.

21 'And I will call for a sword against him throughout all ^kmy mountains, saith the Lord God: 'every man's sword shall be against his brother.

22 'And I will plead against him with pestilence and with blood; and I will rain upon him, and upon his bands, and upon the many people that are with him, an overflowing rain, and great hailstones, fire and brimstone.

23 Thus will I 'magnify myself and sanctify myself; and I will be known in the eyes of many nations; and they shall know that I am the LORD.

CHAP. XXXIX.

Is but a continuation of the former, containing (1) An express and more large prediction of the ruin of the Turkish army and their allies; 1-7: and the dreadful nature of that stroke, illustrated by the burning of their weapons: 8-10; the long continued burying of the slain; 11-16: and the feasting of the fowls and wild beasts on the carcasses unburied; 17-23. (2) Promises that this event should make the heathens to consider the fearful influence of sin, and should usher into the Jews remarkable favours from, and fellowship with, God; their more full return from captivity, and endowment with the Holy Ghost; 25-29.

THEREFORE, thou son of man, prophesy against Gog, and say, Thus saith the Lord God, Behold, 'I am against thee, O Gog, the chief prince of Meshech and Tubal:

2 And 'I will turn thee back, and leave but a sixth part of thee, 'and will cause thee to come up from ^{*}the north parts, and will bring thee upon the mountains of Israel:

3 'And I will smite thy bow out of thy left hand, and will cause thine arrows to fall out of thy right hand.

4 'Thou shalt fall upon the mountains of Israel, thou, and all thy bands, and the people that is with thee: I will give thee unto the ravenous birds of every †sort,

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. XXXVIII.—The most distant events, and the most secret designs of his people's enemies, are all naked and open before God: yet, while there are so many covetous hearts, so many evil thoughts, in the world, there will never be wanting multitudes to assemble against Christ's church. Yea, however heartily Turks, Persians, Arabs, and Africans, have long hated one another, they will be ready enough to combine against the newly-restored Israel of God. The effectual accomplishment of God's promise sets the devil and his votaries in a rage. But he who touches God's people, touches the apple of his eye. His power and promises are sufficient security for their protection and deliverance. He, who has in an harmonious form foretold the distress, will glorify the whole system of his perfections in the deliverance. They who have been a terror to others shall be made a terror to themselves; and his enemies shall at last become their own executioners.

5 Thou shalt fall upon ^ethe open field;
for I have spoken it, saith the Lord

6 And I will send ^ha fire on Magog,

7 ^k So will I make my holy name and I will not let them pollute my holy in Israel.

8 ¶ Behold, ^mit is come, and it is done, saith the Lord God; this is ⁿthe day ^owhereof I have spoken.

9 And they that dwell in the cities of Israel shall ^pgo forth, and shall ^qset on fire and burn the weapons, both the shields and the bucklers, the bows and the arrows, and the ^{*}hand staves and the robbed them, saith the Lord God.

11 ¶ And it shall come to pass in that day, that I will give unto Gog a place there of graves in Israel, the valley of the passengers on the east of ^sthe sea; and it shall stop the † noses of the ^tpassengers:
and there shall they bury Gog, and all his multitude: and they shall call it the 12 And seven months shall the house of Israel be burying of them, that they may ^ucleanse the land.

13 Yea, all the people of the land shall bury them; and it shall be to them ^{*}a 14 And they shall ^vsever out ^wmen of continual employment, passing through the land to bury with the passengers those cleanse it: after the end of seven months shall they search.

15 And the passengers that pass through the land, when any seeth a man's bone, then shall he ^xset up a sign by it, till the buriers have buried it in the valley of of bullocks, all of them fatlings of Bashan.

19 And ye shall eat fat till ye be full, † and drink blood till ye be ^bdrunken, of my sacrifice which I have sacrificed for you.

20 Thus ye shall be ^cfilled at my table with horses and chariots, with mighty men, and with all ^dmen of war, saith the Lord God.

21 ¶ And I will set my glory among the heathen, and all the heathen shall see my judgment that I have executed, and my hand that I have laid upon them.

22 So the house of Israel shall ^eknow that I am the LORD their God from that day and forward.

23 ^fAnd the heathen shall know that the house of Israel went into captivity for their iniquity: because they trespassed against me, therefore ^ghid I my face from them, and gave them into the hand of their enemies: so fell they all by the sword.

24 ^hAccording to their uncleanness, and according to their transgressions, have I done unto them, and hid my face from them.

25 ¶ Therefore thus saith the Lord
God, ⁱNow will I bring again the captivity of Jacob, and have mercy upon the whole house of Israel, and ^jwill be jealous for my holy name;

26 ^kAfter that they have borne their shame, and all their trespasses whereby they have trespassed against me, ^lwhen they dwelt safely in their land, and none made them afraid.

27 When I have brought them again from the people, and gathered them out of their enemies' lands, and ^mam sanctified in them in the sight of many nations;

28 ⁿThen shall they know that I am the LORD their God, || who caused them to be led into captivity among the heathen: but I have gathered them unto their own land, and have ^oleft none of them any more there.

29 ^pNeither will I hide my face any more from them: for I have ^qpoured out my spirit upon the house of Israel, saith the Lord God.

CHAP. XL.

And the eight following, are amongst the darkest portions of scripture. No doubt they were partly meant to encourage the captive Jews to expect the restoration of their public worship and civil privileges after their deliverance from Babylon. But many circumstances mentioned, having no place in their former state,

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. XXXIX.—No weapon formed against Zion can prosper. The most mighty armies are easily crushed by an angry God, and must be ruined, rather than his word should fail. They who expect wealth with the wicked must take their punishment with them; and they who invade other men's rights justly lose their own. They who know God's name will never dare to profane it. And his enemies must know at last what a great God and Saviour he is to his people, and what an awful destroyer to his enemies. No injuries done to us should hinder our humanity, even to the dead. And vile corpses ought to render sin, the cause of death, abominable. General mercies should animate to general reformations: and every one ought to be hearty and persevering in them. After all our conquests on earth there is always great need of purification: and to advance God's glory is Israel's great renown. Ho-humbling is it to nature when the vengeance of God makes human carcasses feast to ravenous beasts! But wise are all his dispensations: his judgments his enemies are a sacrifice to his justice, and an encouragement to the faith hope of his people. True penitents are willing to bear their shame, a wonder at the mercy mingled with their sufferings. And when we return God he will return to us, and lift upon us the light of his countenance. But is truly delightful when his kindness towards his people silences all the reflections of their enemies against him; and when he eminently bestows upon them his presence and Spirit, and assures them of their everlasting relation to, and enjoyment of, himself.

make it evident that they chiefly relate to the gospel church, particularly in the apostolic and millennial periods; and will have their full and final accomplishment in the eternal state. Here is (1) A general account of Ezekiel's vision of this city and temple, and of Jesus Christ as his directing informer. 1—4. (2) A particular account of the outworks of the temple viz. 1. The wall surrounding the outer court; 5. 2. The gates on the east; 6—19: north; 20—23: south; 24—31. 3. The inner court, both towards the east and towards the south; 32—38. 4. The tables for slaying the sacrifices upon; 39—43. 5. The chambers for lodging the singers and priests; 44—47. 6. The porch of the temple: 48, 49.

IN the ^afive and twentieth year of our captivity, in the beginning of the year, in the tenth day of the month, in the fourteenth year after that ^bthe city was smitten, in the ^cself-same day ^dthe hand of the LORD was upon me, and brought me thither.

2 In the visions of God brought he me into the land of Israel, and set me upon ^aa very high mountain, ^{*}by which was as the ^cframe of a city on the south.

3 And he brought me thither, and, behold, ^athere was ^aa man, whose appearance was like the appearance of brass, with ^ba line of flax in his hand, and a measuring reed; and he stood in the gate.

4 And the man said unto me, Son of man, ^bbehold with thine eyes, and hear with thine ears, and set thine heart upon all that I shall shew thee; for to the intent that I might shew ^{them} unto thee ^{art} thou brought hither: declare all that thou seest to the house of Israel.

5 And, behold, ^aa wall on the outside of the house round about, and in the man's hand a measuring reed of six cubits, ^{long} by the cubit, and an hand-breadth: ^mso he measured the breadth of the building, one reed, and the height, one reed.

6 ¶ Then came he unto ⁿthe gate ^owhich looketh toward the east, and went up the ^pstairs thereof, and measured the ^qthreshold of the gate, ^{which} was one reed broad; and the other threshold ^{of the gate, which} was one reed broad.

7 And every ^rlittle chamber was one reed long and one reed broad; and between the little chambers ^{were} five cubits; and the threshold of the gate, by the porch of the gate within, ^{was} one reed.

8 He measured also the porch of the gate within, one reed.

9 Then measured he the porch of the gate, eight cubits; and the ^sposts thereof, two cubits; and the porch of the gate ^{was} inward.

10 And the ^tlittle chambers of the gate eastward ^{were} three on this side and three on that side; they three ^{were} of one measure: and the posts ^{had} one measure on this side and on that side.

11 And he measured ^uthe breadth of the entry of the gate ten cubits, ^{and} the ^vlength of the gate thirteen cubits.

12 The ^wspace also before the little chambers ^{was} one cubit ^{on this side}, and the space ^{was} one cubit on that side: and the little chambers ^{were} six cubits on this side and six cubits on that side.

13 He measured then the gate from the roof of ^{one} little chamber to the roof of another: the breadth ^{was} five and twenty cubits, door against door.

14 He made also ^yposts of threescore cubits, even unto the post of the ^zcourt round about the gate.

15 And from the face of the gate of the entrance unto the face of the porch of the inner gate ^{were} fifty cubits.

16 And ^{aa}there ^{were} ^{bb}narrow windows to the little chambers, and to their posts within the gate round about, and likewise to the ^{cc}arches; and windows ^{were} round about ^{dd}inward; and ^{ee}upon each post ^{were} ^{ff}palm trees.

17 Then brought he me into ^{gg}the outward court; and, lo, ^{hh}there ^{were} ⁱⁱchambers, and a pavement made for the court round about: thirty chambers ^{were} upon ^{jj}the pavement.

18 And the pavement by the side of the gates ^{kk}over against the length of the gates ^{was} the lower pavement.

19 Then he measured the breadth, from the forefront of the lower gate ^{ll}unto the forefront of the inner court ^{mm}without, an hundred cubits eastward and northward.

20 ¶ And the gate of the outward court ⁿⁿthat looked toward the north, he measured the length thereof and the breadth thereof.

21 And the ^{oo}little chambers thereof ^{pp}were three on this side and three on that side: and the posts thereof and the ^{qq}arches thereof were after the measure of the first gate: the length thereof ^{was} fifty cubits, and the breadth five and twenty cubits.

22 And ^{rr}their windows, and their arches, and their palm trees, ^{ss}were after the measure of the gate that looketh toward the east: and ^{tt}they went up unto it by seven steps; and the arches thereof ^{were} before them.

23 And the gate of the inner court ^{was}

CHAP. XL. Ver. 2, 3. The high mountain may denote the conspicuous firmness and heavenly nature of the gospel church. The man appearing as brass denotes Jesus Christ in his strength, stability, duration, debasement, and glory. His line and reed represent the scriptures, by which every thing in the doctrine, worship, or discipline, of his church ought to be measured. His standing in the gate may represent him as the only door and way of our access to God, and to his church above or below. 4. This, and ch. xliv. 5, compared with xliii. 10—14, containing most solemn charges for both ministers and people to remark and regard every thing in the form of the gospel church, directs an awful rebuke to those who, affecting to put asunder what God hath joined, condemn and decry the forms of worship and the government and discipline of the gospel church, as not appointed in the scriptures, and not much worthy of a Christian's regard.

Ver. 5—49. xli. xlii. xliii. The temple and its furniture, described in this and the three following chapters, represent the church, particularly in the apostolic and millennial state. The measuring of every thing by Christ with a line and reed denotes that every thing in it is appointed by Christ in his word; and nothing ought to be admitted but what is answerable to, and founded on, that word. The wall denotes her divine protection and surrounding discipline and government. The courts, at least the outward, may denote her visible state; and the inner court, and especially the sanctuary, may allude to her invisible state of eminent fellowship with God in Christ. The separate building at the west end may represent the state of glory. The large gates, doors, and porches, may signify Jesus Christ as the means of our abundant access to God: but the porch of the sanctuary may denote him as a supporter, hiding place, and house of prayer, for his people. The stairs at the different thresholds may mark out our deliberate and gradual entrance into the visible and invisible church, and to fellowship with God; and our gradual increase in gifts and grace. The foundations and pavements represent Jesus Christ and his inspired oracles as the foundation of the church, of every true member, of all saving grace, and of every good work, in it. The posts and pillars denote fundamental truths, gospel promises, faithful ministers, and zealous saints. Palm trees alternately mingled with cherubims in the engravings, denote saints attended and assisted by angels and ministers. Windows represent ministers and ordinances, by which we obtain the light and air of life. The altar of burnt offering and sacrifices are to be referred to Christ in his person and righteousness. The altar of incense represents him in his all procuring intercession. The chamber for washing the sacrifices may denote baptism; in which saints, those spiritual oblations, are washed in the blood and Spirit of the Lamb. The eight tables of hewn stone, with the knives on them, may signify the divinely-appointed, permanent, and 27 ¶ And ^athere was a gate in the inner court toward the south: and ^ahe measured from gate to gate toward the south an hundred cubits.

28 * And he brought me to the inner court by the south gate: and he measured the south gate according to these measures;

29 And the ^alittle chambers thereof, and the posts thereof, and the arches thereof, according to these measures: and ^athere were ^awindows in it, and in the arches thereof round about: ^ait was fifty cubits long, and five and twenty cubits broad.

32 ¶ And he brought me into the inner court toward the east; and he measured the gate according to these measures.

33 And the little chambers thereof, and the posts thereof, and the arches thereof, ^awere according to these measures: and ^athere were windows therein, and in the arches thereof round about: ^ait was fifty cubits long, and five and twenty cubits broad.

34 And the arches thereof ^awere toward the outward court; and palm trees ^awere upon the posts thereof on this side and on that side: and the going up to it ^ahad ^aeight steps.

35 ¶ And he brought me to the north gate, and measured ^ait according to these measures;

36 The little chambers thereof, the posts thereof, and the arches thereof, and the windows to it round about: the length ^awas fifty cubits, and the breadth five and twenty cubits.

37 And the posts thereof ^awere toward the outer court; and palm trees ^awere upon the posts thereof on this side and on that side: and the going up to it ^ahad eight steps.

38 And the chambers and the entries thereof ^awere by the posts of the gates where ^athey washed the burnt offering.

39 ¶ And in the porch of the gate ^awere two ^atables on this side and two tables on that side, to slay thereon the ^aburnt-offering, and the sin-offering, and the trespass-offering.

40 And at this side without, ^aas one goeth up to the entry of the north gate, ^awere two tables; and on the other side, which ^awas at the porch of the gate, ^awere two tables.

41 Four tables ^awere on this side and four tables on that side, by the side of the gate; eight tables, whereupon they slew ^atheir sacrifices.

42 And the four tables ^awere of hewn stone for the burnt-offering, of a cubit and a half long, and a cubit and a half broad, and one cubit high: whereupon also they laid ^athe instruments wherewith they slew the burnt-offering and the sacrifice.

43 And within ^awere ^ahooks, an hand broad, fastened round about: and ^aupon the tables ^awas the flesh of the offering.

44 ¶ And without the inner gate ^awere the ^achambers of the ^asingers in the inner court, which ^awas at the side of the north gate; and their prospect ^awas toward the south: one at the side of the east gate, ^ahaving the prospect toward the north.

frequently-dispensed, ordinance of the Lord's supper; in which Christ crucified, and our sins as the cause of his death, are affectingly presented to our view. The chambers, built on the inside of the wall of the court and outside of the wall of the temple, may denote particular churches, worshipping assemblies, and instituted ordinances, or evangelical offices, in which Christ's people are lodged, protected, taught, and comforted by him. The enlarging of some of these chambers, according to the height of their stories by their jutting into the principal wall, imports that the more holy, heavenly, and dependent, on God churches and Christians are, the more extensive is their gospel liberty. But the narrowing the priest's chambers in the outward court towards the north, as they ascended, may denote that, the more eminent ministers are, they are the more exposed to persecution. The void places between and before the chambers may represent the abundant access there is to Christian churches and ordinances; and the light, liberty, and wholesome air of spiritual influence, there enjoyed; and that our whole life ought to be an improvement of ordinances past, and preparation for what are in view. The equal size of the chambers, and the equality of the things and measures on different sides, gates, &c. may represent the equal privileges, power, and authority, of churches and ministers, the identity of Christ, his word and ordinances, and the similarity of his people in every part of the world. The five hundred reeds of measure, for vacant space on every side of the court, may denote the extent of the gospel church, and the remarkable distinction which ought to be kept up between it and the world. The whole limit thereof round about being most holy, imports that all her ordinances are holy and spiritual, not ceremonial and carnal; and that holiness ought to be the shining quality of every officer and member. The people's never returning by the gate at which they entered the court, but going out by that directly opposite, and with the prince in the midst of them, (ch. xlv. 9, 10,) denotes that, in fellowship with Christ, we must go forward, for strength to strength, in all our attendance on ordinances, and never turn back on God or his institutions. The appropriation of the east gate to the Prince (ch. xlv. 1—3. and xlv. 1—3, 8.) may denote that Jesus alone approached to God directly, and in the way of merit; and that it is only through him that we have access with boldness unto God. The singers and Levites may represent Christians as praising God, and labouring in his service; and priests may denote ministers who present Christ, the atoning sacrifice, to men, and attend on God's service; and saints, who by faith present him, themselves, and their services to God.

Represents (1) The temple itself; its dimensions; 13: posts; 1: door; 2: wall and side-chambers; 5, 6: with their foundations, walls, and doors; 8-11. (2) The dimensions of the oracle, or Holy of Holies; 3, 4. (3) A building at the west end of the temple; 12-15. (4) The manner how the house was built; 7, 16, 17. (5) The ornaments of the house; 18-20. (6) The altar of incense, and perhaps table of shew-bread; 22. (7) The two doors between the sanctuary and Holy of Holies; 23-26. Whatever obscurity may now appear to us in these descriptions, they might all be plain to a Jewish mason or carpenter.

AFTERWARD he brought me to the temple, and measured the posts, six cubits broad on the one side and six cubits broad on the other side, which was the breadth of the tabernacle.

To the Holy of Holies.

2 And the breadth of the door was ten cubits; and the sides of the door were five cubits on the one side and five cubits on the other side: and he measured the length thereof forty cubits, and the breadth twenty cubits.

3 Then went he inward, and measured the post of the door, two cubits; and the door, six cubits; and the breadth of the door, seven cubits.

4 So he measured the length thereof, twenty cubits; and the breadth, twenty cubits before the temple: and he said unto me, This is the most holy place.

5 After he measured the wall of the house, six cubits; and the breadth of every side chamber, four cubits, round about the house on every side.

6 And the side chambers were three, one over another, and thirty in order: and they entered into the wall which was of the house for the side chambers round about, that they might have hold, but they had not hold in the wall of the house.

7 And there was an enlarging, and a winding about still upward to the side chambers: for the winding about of the house went still upward round about the house: therefore the breadth of the house was still upward, and so increased from the lowest chamber to the highest by the midst.

8 I saw also the height of the house round about: the foundations of the side chambers were a full reed of six great cubits.

9 The thickness of the wall, which was for the side chamber without, was five cubits; and that which was left was the place of the side chambers that were within.

10 And between the chambers was the wideness of twenty cubits round about the house on every side.

11 And the doors of the side chambers were toward the place that was left, one door toward the north and another door toward the south: and the breadth of the place that was left was five cubits round about.

12 Now the building that was before the separate place at the end toward the west was seventy cubits broad; and the wall of the building was five cubits thick round about, and the length thereof ninety cubits.

13 So he measured the house, an hundred cubits long; and the separate place, and the building, with the walls thereof, an hundred cubits long;

14 Also the breadth of the face of the house, and of the separate place toward the east, an hundred cubits.

15 And he measured the length of the building over against the separate place which was behind it, and the galleries thereof on the one side and on the other side, an hundred cubits, with the inner temple and the porches of the court;

16 The door posts, and the narrow windows, and the galleries round about on their three stories, over against the door, ceiled with wood round about, and from the ground up to the windows, and the windows were covered:

17 To that above the door, even unto the inner house and without, and by all the wall round about, within and without, by measure.

18 And it was made with cherubims and palm trees, so that a palm tree was between a cherub and a cherub; and every cherub had two faces;

19 So that the face of a man was toward the palm tree on the one side, and the face of a young lion toward the palm tree on the other side: it was made through all the house round about.

20 From the ground unto above the door were cherubims and palm trees made, and on the wall of the temple.

21 The posts of the temple were squared, and the face of the sanctuary; the appearance of the one as the appearance of the other.

22 The altar of wood was three cubits high, and the length thereof two cubits; and the corners thereof, and the length thereof, and the walls thereof, were of wood: and he said unto me, This is the table that is before the LORD.

23 And the temple and the sanctuary had two doors.

24 And the doors had two leaves apiece, two turning leaves: two leaves for the one door and two leaves for the other door.

25 And there were made on them, on the doors of the temple, cherubims and palm trees, like as were made upon the walls; and there were thick planks upon the face of the porch without.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. XL.—Ministers have constant need to be taught by Christ, and carefully to attend to, believe, and practise, themselves what they declare to others. Every thing which they speak or act should be carefully compared with the measuring line and reed of God's word: and scripture should be compared with scripture, in order to understand it. Yea, and much earnest prayer and humility is requisite in searching and explaining the oracles of God. But how similar in substance is all the true worship of God in the world; in the most mysterious ceremonies of his institution, if properly considered; we behold the glory of the Redeemer, the method of his salvation, the graces of his spirit, and the eternal blessings of his kingdom.

3 Over against the twenty cubits which were for the inner court, and over against the pavement which was for the outer court, was ^fgallery against gallery in three stories.

4 And before the chambers was ^ga walk of ten cubits breadth inward, ^ha way of one cubit; and their doors toward the north.

5 Now the upper chambers were shorter: for the galleries ⁱwere higher than these, ^jthan the lower and than the middlemost of the building.

6 For they were in three stories, but had not pillars as the pillars of the courts: therefore the building was straightened ^kmore than the lowest, and the middlemost from the ground,

7 And the ^lwall that was without over against the chambers, toward the outer court, on the forepart of the chambers, the length thereof was fifty cubits.

8 For the length of the chambers that were in the outer court was fifty cubits: and, lo, before the temple were an hundred cubits.

9 And ^mfrom under these chambers was ⁿthe entry on the east side, ^oas one goeth into them from the outer court.

10 The chambers were in the thickness of the wall of the court toward the east, over against the separate place, and over against the building.

11 And the way before them was like the appearance of the chambers which were toward the north, as long as they and as broad as they; and all their goings out were both according to their fashions and according to their doors.

12 And according to the doors of the chambers that were toward the south was a door in the head of the way, even the way directly before the wall toward the east, as one entereth into them.

13 ¶ Then said he unto me, The north chambers and the south chambers, which are before the separate place, they be holy chambers, where the priests that ^papproach unto the LORD shall ^qeat the most holy things: there shall they ^rlay the most holy things, and the meat-offering, and the sin-offering, and the trespass-offering; for the place is holy.

14 When the priests enter therein, then ^sshall they not go out of the holy place into the outer court, but there they shall lay their garments wherein they minister; for they are holy; and shall put on ^tother garments, and shall approach to those things which are for the people.

15 ¶ Now, when he had made an end of measuring the inner house, he brought me forth toward the gate whose prospect is toward the east, and measured it round about.

16 He measured the east ^uside with the ^vmeasuring reed, ^wfive hundred reeds, with the measuring reed round about.

17 He measured the north side, five hundred reeds, with the measured reed round about.

18 He measured the south side, five hundred reeds, with the measuring reed.

19 He turned about to the west side, and measuring five hundred reeds with the measuring reed.

20 He measured it by the four sides: it had ^xa wall round about, five hundred reeds long, and five hundred broad, to make a ^yseparation between the sanctuary and the profane place.

CHAP. XLIII.

Here, (1) In a cloud of glory, God takes possession of the temple; 1—6. (2) He promises to continue his presence in it, providing the people return to, and continue in, the instituted and holy ordinances of his worship, and keep themselves from idolatry; 7—12. (3) The altar of burnt-offering is described; 13—17: with directions for the consecration of it; 18—27.

AFTERWARD ^ahe brought me to the gate, even the gate that looketh toward the east:

2 And, behold, ^bthe glory of the God of Israel came from the way of the east: and ^chis voice was like a noise of many waters: and ^dthe earth shined with his glory.

3 And it was ^eaccording to the appearance of the vision which I saw, even according to the vision that I saw, ^fwhen I came to destroy the city: and the visions were like the vision that I saw by the river Chebar: and I fell upon my face.

4 And the glory of the LORD came into the house ^gby the way of the gate whose prospect is toward the east.

5 ^hSo the spirit took me up, and brought me ⁱinto the inner court, and, behold, ^jthe glory of the LORD filled the house.

6 And I heard ^khim ^lspeaking unto me out of the house; and the man ^mstood by me.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. XLI.—If I diligently improve the instructions given to me in the Lord's courts on earth, I shall quickly be admitted into the temple eternal in the heavens. If I diligently attend to, and profit by, the plain parts of religion, I shall quickly be brought into further acquaintance with the mysteries of the kingdom. And, the higher I build for glory, the more shall my heart be enlarged in faith, love, and heavenly-mindedness. Let my stature then, under all my pressures, be as the palm tree, ever fat and flourishing. And since I serve with, and am ministered to by, angels and ministers, let my conversation be as becometh the gospel of Christ.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. XLII.—Let me bless the Lord for his name but simple, gospel ordinances, and the extensive enlargement of them; but specially for the many and large mansions in the Father's house above. Great privilege of converse with fellow Christians, and of opportunity to attend on Lord without destruction. A great difference ought to be put between common and sacred things. And, alas! an impassable wall of separation excludes iniquitous sinners from the blessings and benefits of Christ's church and kingdom, and will exclude them for ever from his presence in glory.

7 ¶ And he said unto me, Son of man, the place of my throne, and the place of the soles of my feet, where I will dwell in the midst of the children of Israel for ever, and my holy name, shall the house of Israel no more defile, neither they nor their kings, by their whoredom, nor by the carcasses of their kings in their high places.

8 In their setting of their threshold by my thresholds, and their post by my posts, and the wall between me and them, they have even defiled my holy name by their abominations that they have committed: wherefore I have consumed them in mine anger.

9 Now let them put away their whoredom, and the carcasses of their kings far from me, and I will dwell in the midst of them for ever.

10 ¶ Thou son of man, shew the house to the house of Israel, that they may be ashamed of their iniquities: and let them measure the pattern.

11 And, if they be ashamed of all that they have done, shew them the form of the house, and the fashion thereof, and the goings out thereof, and the comings in thereof, and all the forms thereof, and all the ordinances thereof, and all the forms thereof, and all the laws thereof: and write it in their sight, that they may keep the whole form thereof, and all the ordinances thereof, and do them.

12 This is the law of the house; Upon the top of the mountain, the whole limit thereof round about, shall be most holy. Behold, this is the law of the house.

13 ¶ And these are the measures of the altar after the cubits: the cubit is a cubit and an hand-breadth; even the bottom shall be a cubit, and the breadth a cubit, and the border thereof by the edge thereof round about shall be a span: and this shall be the higher place of the altar.

14 And from the bottom upon the ground, even to the lower settle, shall be two cubits, and the breadth one cubit; and from the lesser settle even to the greater settle shall be four cubits, and the breadth one cubit.

15 So the altar shall be four cubits; and from the altar and upwards shall be four horns.

16 And the altar shall be twelve cubits long; twelve broad, square in the four squares thereof.

17 And the settle shall be fourteen cubits long, and fourteen broad in the four squares thereof: and the border about it shall be half a cubit: and the bottom thereof shall be a cubit about: and his stairs shall look toward the east.

18 ¶ And he said unto me, Son of man, thus saith the Lord God, These are the ordinances of the altar in the day when they shall make it, to offer burnt-offerings thereon, and to sprinkle blood thereon.

19 And thou shalt give to the priests the Levites that be of the seed of Zadok, who approach unto me to minister unto me, saith the Lord God, a young bullock for a sin-offering.

20 And thou shalt take of the blood thereof, and put it on the four horns of it, and on the four corners of the settle, and upon the border round about: thus shalt thou cleanse and purge it.

21 Thou shalt take the bullock also of the sin-offering, and he shall burn it in the appointed place of the house without the sanctuary.

22 And on the second day thou shalt offer a kid of the goats without blemish for a sin-offering, and they shall cleanse the altar as they did cleanse it with the bullock.

23 When thou hast made an end of cleansing it, thou shalt offer a young bullock without blemish, and a ram out of the flock without blemish.

24 And thou shalt offer them before the Lord, and the priests shall cast salt upon them, and they shall offer them up for a burnt-offering unto the Lord.

25 Seven days shalt thou prepare every day a goat for a sin-offering: they shall also prepare a young bullock, and a ram out of the flock, without blemish.

26 Seven days shall they purge the altar and purify it, and they shall consecrate themselves.

27 And when these days are expired, it shall be that, upon the eighth day and so forward, the priests shall make your burnt-offerings upon the altar, and your peace-offerings; and I will accept you saith the Lord God.

CHAP. XLIV.

Represents (1) The shutting of the east gate of the temple, and the appropriation of it to the prince alone; 1—3. (2) A reproof to the Israelites for admitting improper persons to the courts and work of the temple, and a charge to be more strict; 4—9. (3) The degrading of such priests as had been guilty of idolatry to the service of mere Levites; and the establishment of the priesthood in the family of Zadok, which had continued in an adherence to the true worship of God; 10—16. (4) Laws regulating the priest's clothes, hair, diet, marriage, instructions, government, mourning, and maintenance; 17—31.

THEN he brought me back the way of the gate of the outward sanctuary, which looketh toward the east, and it was shut.

2 Then said the Lord unto me, This gate shall be shut, it shall not be opened, and no man shall enter in by it: because the Lord the God of Israel hath entered in by it, therefore it shall be shut.

CHAP. XLIII. Ver. 7—9. Their whoredom denotes their idolatry. The carcasses of their kings, or Moloch, denote their idols, infinitely loathsome and detestable to God. Their thresholds and posts, erected in opposition to God's, are their temples, altars, and inventions in worship, which they set up in opposition to him.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. XLIII.—The different visits which God makes to his people are much alike, and serve to confirm one another; and it is but for a small moment he withdraws, when he returns in kindness. His glory manifested in his church is her principal ornament, furniture, and source of felicity. But it is through Jesus Christ, as with us, that we can have communion with him, or hear his voice with comfort. And, if his goodness lead us not to repentance, nothing will. Yea his pardon of sins renders them peculiarly loathsome and detestable. But, alas, how often the greatest abominations are found placed by men in God's own temple, his church, his worship, and their heart! No wonder that he is highly provoked herewith. But such as improve his goodness received to his glory, and to their own self-loathing and debasement, shall experience it more and more.—The whole of our salvation is of God. And no society is a church of his but so far as true holiness prevails in it. None of our performances can be accepted, unless our persons be accepted and sins pardoned through Jesus' blood. Nor can any performance be religious unless it spring from, and be seasoned with, real grace. There is great need for ministers to be signally prepared for their important work. And dreadful is the profaneness of 3 ^d It is for the prince; the prince, he shall sit in it to eat bread before the LORD: he shall enter by the way of the porch of that gate, and shall go out by the way of the same.

4 ¶ Then brought he me the way of the north gate before the house: and I looked, and, behold, ^e the glory of the LORD filled the house of the LORD: and ^f I fell upon my face.

5 And the LORD said unto me, Son of man, ^g mark well, and behold with thine eyes, and hear with thine ears all that ^h I say unto thee concerning all the ordinances of the house of the LORD, and all the laws thereof; and mark well the entering in of the house, with every going forth of the sanctuary.

6 And thou shalt say to the rebellious, even to the house of Israel, Thus saith the Lord God, O ye house of Israel, ^k let it suffice you of all your abominations,

7 ⁱ In that ye have brought into my sanctuary ^m strangers uncircumcised in heart and uncircumcised in flesh, to be in my sanctuary to pollute it, even my house, when ye ⁿ offer my bread, the fat and the blood; and they have ^o broken my covenant because of all your abominations.

8 And ^p ye have not kept the charge of mine holy things; but ye have set keepers of ^q my charge in my sanctuary for yourselves.

9 ¶ Thus saith the Lord God, ^r No stranger uncircumcised in heart, nor uncircumcised in flesh, shall enter into my sanctuary, of any stranger that is among the children of Israel.

10 And ^s the Levites that are gone away far from me, when Israel went astray, which went astray away from me after their idols, they shall even ^t bear their iniquity.

11 ^u Yet they shall be ministers in my sanctuary, having charge at the gates of the house, and ministering to the house: they shall slay the burnt-offering and the sacrifice for the people, and they shall stand before them to minister unto them.

12 ^v Because they ministered unto them before their idols, and ^w caused the house of Israel to fall into iniquity; therefore have I lifted ^y up mine hand against them, saith the Lord God; and they shall ^z bear their iniquity.

13 ^a And they shall not come near unto me to do the office of a priest unto me, nor to come near to any of my ^b holy things, in the most holy place: but they shall ^c bear their shame and their abominations which they have committed.

14 ^d But I will make them keepers of the charge of the house for all the service thereof, and for all that shall be done therein.

15 ¶ ^e But the priests, the Levites, the ^f sons of Zadok, that kept the charge of my sanctuary when the children of Israel went astray from me, they shall come near to me to minister unto me, and they shall stand before me to offer unto me ^g the fat and the blood, saith the Lord God:

16 They shall enter into my sanctuary, and they shall come near to my ^h table to minister unto me, and they shall ⁱ keep my charge.

17 ¶ And it shall come to pass that, when they enter in at the gates of the inner court, ^j they shall be clothed with linen garments, and ^k no wool shall come upon them while they minister in the gates of the inner court, and within.

18 They shall have linen ^l bonnets upon their heads, and shall have ^m linen breeches upon their loins: they shall not gird themselves ⁿ with any thing that causeth sweat.

19 And when they go forth into the outer court, even into the outer court to the people, ^o they shall put off their garments wherein they ministered, and lay them in the holy chambers, and they shall put on other garments: and they ^p shall not sanctify the people with their garments.

20 ^q Neither shall they shave their heads, nor suffer their locks to grow long, they shall only poll their heads.

21 Neither shall any priest drink wine when they enter into the inner court.

22 Neither shall they take for their wives a ^r widow, or her that is ^s put away; but they shall take maidens of the seed of the house of Israel, or a widow ^t that had a priest before.

23 And ^u they shall teach my people the difference between the holy and profane, and cause them to discern between the unclean and the clean.

24 ^v And in controversy they shall stand in judgment; and they shall judge it according to my judgments: and they shall ^w keep my laws and my statutes in all mine assemblies; and they shall hallow my sabbaths.

25 And they shall come at no ^x dead person to defile themselves: but for father, or for mother, or for son, or for daughter, for brother, or for sister that hath had no husband, they may defile themselves.

26 And after he is ^y cleansed they shall reckon unto him seven days.

27 ^z And in the day that he goeth into the sanctuary, unto the inner court to minister in the sanctuary, he shall offer his sin-offering, saith the Lord God.

28 And it shall be unto them for an inheritance: I ^a am their inheritance; and ye shall give them no possession in Israel; I ^b am their possession.

29 ^c They shall eat the meat-offering, and the sin-offering, and the trespass-offering; and every ^d dedicated thing in Israel shall be their's.

blood, and vigorous study of gospel holiness. Their being clothed with linen, not with wool or any thing that causeth sweat, imports their being arrayed with ^xJesus' imputed righteousness, his implanted grace, and a holy conversation; not with their own fatiguing, deiled, and defiling, works; and their maintaining purity of doctrine, esteeming their work their pleasure not their burden, and neither being erroneous nor unsavoury. Their linen bonnets and breeches denote their gravity, modesty, chastity, and freedom from Antichristian whoredoms. Their laying aside their fine robes and wearing other garments, when among the people, may denote that, though they must only appear before God in the righteousness of his Son, yet, by a gospel conversation, they must recommend holiness to their hearers. Their not sanctifying the people with their garments may denote that they must indulge no vain glory of superiority to others in goodness, nor pretend to convey any holiness, merit, or safety to them. Their neither shaving their hair, nor suffering it to grow long, imports their abstinence from popish superstition, pride, and wantonness. Their not drinking wine, &c. imports that they must never indulge drunkenness, luxury, or carnal are; that they must marry only such women as are of good report, and never connect themselves with apostate and disorderly churches: that they must, by doctrine and example, faithfully teach their hearers; and compose differences among them; and must avoid immoderate sorrow for the loss of created enjoyments. The food, fields, &c. allotted them for a maintenance, import their continual living on Christ crucified and his new covenant provision, and their being decently and commodiously supported by their hearers. Their having distinct chambers for themselves may denote their office circumscribed by the divine law; and that none ought to interfere with either their work or benefice without commission from Christ. Their offering the sacrifices of the people may denote their preaching Christ crucified among them, and leading their exercises in their public dedications of themselves to God.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. XLIV.—It is highly reasonable and infinitely delightful that Jesus, our only Mediator, Prince, and High Priest, should in all things have the pre-eminence. And it is necessary that God's mercies should be always attended with the most cordial repentance and thorough reformation.

How provoking to God, ruinous to the church, and damning to souls, is it when persons, apparently graceless, are admitted to the seals of God's covenant, and to the office of rulers in the church of Christ! Nor must ministers who have fallen into scandal, be hastily or easily restored to their office. It is in vain to expect a flourishing church where government and discipline are neglected, and where ministers are not extremely regular in all their conduct. But, while ministers give up worldly cares for the sake of their hearers' salvation, it becomes their hearers, as they regard the blessing of God and their own temporal or spiritual welfare, to provide for them a decent subsistence.

CHAP. XLV. Ver. 1—8. with chap. xlvii. 13—23; and xlviii. Canaan, on the west of Jordan, about 180 miles from north to south, and 50 from east to west, is represented as thus divided. Beginning from the north, Dan, Ashur, Naphtali, Manasseh, Ephraim, Reuben, and Judah, had their portions, all of them extending from Jordan on the east to the Mediterranean sea on the west. All along the south side of Judah's portion is represented a sacred portion of 25,000 reeds broad. Of this, in the middle of the country, a portion of 25,000 reeds from east to west, and 10,000 from north to south, is allotted for the priests, in the middle of which a square of 500 reeds is allotted for the temple and its appurtenances. On the south side of the priests' portion another of the same dimensions is allotted for the Levites. On the south of the Levites' portion, a portion equally long, but only half as broad as that of the priests or Levites, is assigned for the holy city; i. e. a square of 5000 reeds for the city to stand on, and a portion of 10,000 reeds in length and 5000 in breadth, on the east side, and another on the west side of the same extent, assigned to the office bearers in the city. All of the country that remained on the east side and on the west side of this sacred square of 25,000 reeds, divided between the priests, Levites, and city, is allotted to the prince. And southward of that portion in the middle of which the city stood, and of the land appointed for the prince at the east and west sides, the tribes of Benjamin, Simeon, Issachar, Zebulun, and Gad, had their portions, each extending from Jordan to the Mediterranean sea. This division is entirely different from that made by Joshua, Josh. xiii—xxi.

16 All the people of the land * shall give this oblation * for the prince in Israel.

17 And it shall be the prince's part to give burnt-offerings, and meat-offerings, and drink-offerings, in the feasts, and in the new moons, and in the sabbaths, in all solemnities of the house of Israel: he shall ^z prepare the sin-offering, and the meat-offering, and the burnt-offering, and the [†] peace-offerings, to make reconciliation for the house of Israel.

18 Thus saith the Lord God, ^a In the first month, in the first day of the month, thou shalt take ^b a young bullock without blemish, and ^c cleanse the sanctuary:

19 And the priest shall take of the blood of the sin-offering, and put it upon ^d the posts of the house, and upon the four corners of the settle of the altar, and upon the posts of the gate of the inner court.

20 And so thou shalt do the seventh day of the month, for every one that erreth, and for him that is simple: so shall ye ^e reconcile the house.

21 In the first month, in the fourteenth day of the month, ^f ye shall have the passover, a feast of seven days, unleavened bread shall be eaten.

22 And ^g upon that day shall the prince prepare for himself, and for all the people of the land, a bullock for a sin-offering.

23 And seven days of the feast he shall prepare a burnt-offering to the Lord, seven bullocks and seven rams ^h without blemish daily the seven days; and a kid of the goats daily for a sin-offering.

24 And he shall prepare ⁱ a meat-offering of an ephah for a bullock, and an ephah for a ram, and an hin of oil for an ephah.

25 In the seventh month, ^k in the fifteenth day of the month, shall he do the like in the feast of the seven days, according to the sin-offering, according to the burnt-offering, and according to the meat-offering, and according to the oil.

CHAP. XLVI.

Contains (1) Further directions for the prince, the priest, and the people, in their worship on the sabbath and solemn feasts and in the daily sacrifice; 1—15. (2) Laws concerning the prince's disposal of his inheritance to his children or servants; 16—18. (3) A description of the places appointed for boiling the flesh of sacrifices and baking meat-offerings; 19—24.

THUS saith the Lord God, The gate of the inner court that looketh toward the east ^a shall be shut the ^b six working days; but ^c on the sabbath it shall be opened, and in the day of the new moon it shall be opened.

2 And the prince shall enter by the way of the porch of ^d that gate without, and shall ^e stand by the post of the gate, and the ^f priest shall prepare his burnt-offering, and his peace-offerings, and he shall ^g worship at the threshold of the gate:

then he shall go forth, but the gate shall ^h not be shut until the evening.

3 ^h Likewise the people of the land shall worship at ⁱ the door of this gate before the Lord in the sabbaths and in the new moons.

4 And the ^k burnt-offering that the prince shall offer unto the Lord in the sabbath day shall be six lambs without blemish, and a ram without blemish.

5 And the meat-offering shall be an ephah for a ram, and the meat-offering for the lambs ^l as he shall be able to give, and an hin of oil to an ephah.

6 And in the day of the new moon it shall be a young bullock without blemish, and six lambs, and a ram: they shall be without blemish.

7 And he shall prepare a meat-offering, an ephah for a bullock, and an ephah for a ram, and for the lambs according as his hand shall attain unto, and an hin of oil to an ephah.

8 And when the prince shall enter ^m he shall go in by the way of the porch of ⁿ that gate, and he shall go forth by the way thereof.

9 ¶ But, when the people of the land ^o shall come before the Lord in the solemn feasts, ^p he that entereth in by the way of the north gate to worship shall go out by the way of the south gate; and he that entereth by the way of the south gate shall go forth by the way of the north gate: he shall not return by the way of the gate whereby he came in, but shall go forth over against it.

10 ^q And the prince in the midst of them, when they go in, shall go in; and when they go forth, shall go forth.

11 And in the feasts, and in the solemnities, the meat-offering shall be an ephah to a bullock, and an ephah to a ram, and to the lambs as he is able to give, and an hin of oil to an ephah.

12 Now, when the prince shall prepare ^r a voluntary burnt-offering or peace-offerings voluntarily unto the Lord, ^s one shall then open him the gate that looketh toward the east, and ^t he shall prepare his burnt-offering and his peace-offerings, as he did on the sabbath day: then he shall go forth, and after his going forth ^u one shall shut the gate.

13 Thou shalt daily ^v prepare a burnt-offering unto the Lord of a lamb ^w of the first year without blemish; thou shalt prepare it ^x every morning.

14 And thou shalt prepare a meat-offering for it every morning, the ^y sixth part of an ephah, and the third part of an hin of oil, to temper with the fine flour; a meat-offering continually, by a perpetual ordinance unto the Lord.

15 Thus shall they prepare the lamb, and the meat-offering, and the oil, ^z every morning, for a continual burnt-offering.

and represented as a Saviour to sinners; and his people giving up themselves and all that they have to God through him. The sacred festivals may point out the seasons of Christ's incarnation, suffering, and pouring out of the Holy Ghost, and the solemn ordinances of gospel worship, in which Christ and his people hold solemn fellowship to the honour of God.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. XLV.—God ought to be honoured with the first and best of our substance; and his ministers and magistrates should be so provided for as that they may constantly attend to their work. Wherever religion thrives true liberty and strict honesty will abound. Magistrates and people, well as ministers, ought, in their places, to lay out all their influence in promoting true and practical religion: and none shall receive mercies from God with grateful returns according to what they have received. Though our great sacrifice of atonement was offered but once for all, our spiritual sacrifices of thanksgiving to God through Christ ought to be daily continued, especially when allows us the more solemn ordinances of his worship.

17 But, if he give a gift of his inheritance to one of his servants, then it shall be his 'to the year of liberty; after, it shall return to the prince: but his inheritance shall be his sons' for them.

18 Moreover, 'the prince shall not take of the people's inheritance by oppression, to thrust them out of their possession; 'but he shall give his sons' inheritance out of his own possession: that my people be not scattered every man from his possession.

19 ¶ After he brought me through the entry, 'which was at the side of the gate, into the holy chambers of the priests, which looked toward the north: and, behold, there was a place on the two sides westward.

20 Then said he unto me, 'This is the place where the priests shall boil the trespass-offering, and the sin-offering, where they shall 'bake the meat-offering; that they bear them not out into the outer court, 'to sanctify the people.

21 Then he brought me forth into the outer court, and caused me to pass by the four corners of the court; and, behold, 'in every corner of the court there was a court.

22 In the four corners of the court there were courts 'joined of forty cubits long and thirty broad: these four 'corners were of one measure.

23 And there was a row of building round about in them, round about them four, and it was made with boiling places under the rows round about.

24 Then said he unto me, These are the places of them that 'boil, where the ministers of the house shall boil the 'sacrifice of the people.

CHAP. XLVII.

Contains (1) A vision of holy waters, which, in their origin from the temple, their gradual increase, extensive spread, healing and fructifying virtue, and the plenty of fish and fruitful trees thereby produced, mark the gradual issuing forth of gospel truths and spiritual influences, for the quickening and conversion of multitudes all around, and making them to abound in fruits of righteousness; 1—12. (2) An appointment of the borders of Canaan, which was to be divided by lot to the tribes of Israel and sojourning strangers; 13—23.

AFTERWARD he brought me again unto the 'door of the house; and behold, 'waters issued out from under the threshold of the house eastward: for the forefront of the house stood toward the east, and the waters came down from under from the right side of the house, 'at the south side of the altar.

2 Then brought he me out of the way of the gate northward, and led me about the way without unto the outer gate by the way that looketh eastward; and, behold, there ran out waters on the right side.

3 And, when 'the man that had the line in his hand went forth eastward, he 'measured a thousand cubits, and he brought me through the waters: the 'waters were to the ancles.

4 Again he measured a thousand, and brought me through the waters: 'the waters were to the knees. Again he measured a thousand, and brought me through: the waters were 'to the loins.

5 Afterward he measured a thousand, and it was a 'river that I could not pass over: for the waters were risen, *waters to swim in, a river that could not be passed over.

6 ¶ And he said unto me, Son of man, 'hast thou seen this? then he brought me, and caused me to return to the brink of the river.

7 Now, when I had returned, behold, at the 'bank of the river were very many 'trees on the one side and on the other.

8 Then said he unto me, These waters issue out toward the east country, and go down into the 'desert, and go into the sea: which being brought forth into the sea, 'the waters shall be healed.

9 And it shall come to pass that every thing that liveth, which moveth, whithersoever the 'rivers shall come, 'shall live; and there shall be 'a very great multitude of fish, because these waters shall come thither: for they shall be healed; and every thing shall live whither the river cometh.

10 And it shall come to pass that 'the fishers shall stand upon it from En-gedi even unto En-eglaim; they shall be a place to spread forth nets; their fish shall be according to their kinds, as the fish of the 'great sea, exceeding many.

11 But the miry places thereof, and the marishes thereof, 'shall not be healed; they shall be 'given to salt.

12 And by the river upon the bank thereof, on this side and on that side, 'shall grow all trees for meat, whose leaf shall not fade, neither shall the fruit thereof be consumed: it shall bring forth 'new fruit according to his months, because their waters they issued out of the sanctuary: and the fruit thereof shall be the south side of the altar, denote the purifying, refreshing, and fructifying, oracles and ordinances of the gospel, and the Holy Ghost in his gifts and graces attending the same, issuing forth from Christ's person and through his righteousness. Their gradual increase denotes the gradual progress of gospel truths and influences till the whole earth be filled with the knowledge of the Lord: and that, the further we search into divine truths, the more mysterious we shall find them; and also that, by continued accessions of light and love from Jesus Christ, the work of grace in every believer's heart, and the church in general, increases with the increase of God. Their running into the Dead sea of Sodom, and quickening or producing multitudes of fishes, represents gospel truths and influences as running into the Gentile world, even the worst places of it, which had long lain in wickedness and under the curse of God; and spiritually quickening multitudes, who had been dead in trespasses and sins. The fishers all over the Dead sea denote multitudes of gospel preachers all over the world, labouring to gain sinners to Christ. The many fishes, like the fishes of the Mediterranean sea, are multitudes of sinners, in a thousand diversified forms of misery and guilt, attending gospel ordinances, and, by means thereof, drawn unto Christ. The miry places and marshes are obstinate sinners, Jews, Anti-

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. XLVI.—All ranks of men should carefully con- in promoting the regular sanctification of the sabbath, and the whole wor- of God. And it is the greatest glory of princes to be patterns of true y to their people. But all our attendance on ordinances ought to be in se fellowship with Jesus our Prince, who is ALL to, does all for, and works in, us. And in our whole course of religion we must never go back; but, getting the things that are behind, reach forward unto the things that are ore. It is very graceful to behold great men reverently attending the ordi- ces of the gospel with their servants, tenants, and poor, around them; and an honour for princes to be generous, without oppressing their subjects; infinitely more so for Jesus to give gifts to his servile professors, qualifying m for the help of his church in this life, and to give his genuine children an ounded, irrevocable, and everlasting, salvation. Nor must ministers by any ans deliver to the people what themselves have not seriously preconsidered. d it is when their hearts and studies are made warm by the power of the truths ch they are to preach, that their work is most useful and acceptable.

CHAP. XLVIII.

Represents the appointed division of the country, of which we have just heard the boundaries. (1) The portions of the twelve tribes of Israel, viz. equal portions to each, stretching the wholechristians, &c. abandoned of God to their own lusts and to everlasting damna-tion. The ever-flourishing, fruitful, and medicinal, trees on the bank of this river, are Jesus the Tree of life, eternally glorious, and infinitely useful to his people, and his people themselves, as trees of righteousness, by the influence of his word and Spirit persevering in their profession and grace, honouring God, and being useful to their neighbours around. 13—23. The Jews after their captivity never had the whole territory here mentioned. Few of the ten tribes then returned. Nor was the country ever parcelled out in the manner directed in this and the next chapter. While therefore these things may partly respect the state of the Jews when returned from their present dispersion, they chiefly respect the church of Christ, the boundaries of which are appointed by God, and in which all true Israelites, Jews, and Gentiles, have their whole portion of blessedness assigned them by God.REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. XLVII.—What a blessed source of oracles, ordinances, and influences, is Jesus Christ, God-man, the Lord our righteousness!
While divine truths are gradually manifested, and spiritual influences bestowed, it is proper to be carefully searching and applying them. And the more we contemplate or experience them, the more shall we be lost in wonder at their height, depth, length, and breadth. But let us always begin with what is more plain and practical, and admire what we cannot comprehend. Great is the sovereignty of God in transmitting his blessings to the very worst of persons andbreadth of the country, beginning from the north, and proceeding still southward. The seven portions of Dan, Asher, Neph-tali, Manasseh, Ephraim, Reuben, and Judah, to the north of the holy portion; 1—7. And the five portions of Benjamin, Simeon, Issachar, Zebulun, and Gad, to the south of it; 23—28.

tribes. ^bFrom the north end to the coast of the way of Hethlon, as one goeth to Hamath, Hazar-enan, the border of Damascus northward, to the coast of Hamath; for these are his sides ^ceast and west; ^aa portion for ^cDan.2 And by the border of Dan, from the east side unto the west side, a portion for Asher.3 And by the border of Asher, from the east side even unto the west side, a portion for Naphtali.4 And by the border of Naphtali, from the east side unto the west side, a portion for Manasseh.5 And by the border of Manasseh, from the east side unto the west side, a portion for Ephraim.6 And by the border of Ephraim, from the east side even unto the west side, a portion for Reuben.7 And by the border of Judah, from the east side unto the west side, a portion for Judah.8 ¶ And by the border of Judah, from the east side unto the west side, shall be ^sthe offering which ye shall offer of five and twenty thousand reeds in breadth, and in length as one of the other parts, from the east side unto the west side: and the sanctuary shall be ^bin the midst of it.9 The oblation that ye shall offer unto the LORD shall be of five and twenty thousand in length, and of ten thousand in breadth.10 And for them, even for the priests, shall be this holy oblation; toward the north five and twenty thousand in length, and toward the west ten thousand in breadth, and toward the east ten thousand in breadth, and toward the south five and twenty thousand in length: and the sanctuary of the LORD shall be in the midst thereof.11 *It shall be for the priests that are sanctified of ^athe sons of Zadok, who have kept my †charge, who went not astray when the children of Israel went astray, as the Levites went astray.12 And this oblation of the land thatplaces; and almighty the influence of his word and Spirit; not even death death in trespasses and sins can withstand it! But, alas, unhappy are the whom it is a savour of death unto death and damnation. The gospel and influences finds the sinners of mankind in the most diversified and abominforms of iniquity. But infinite power and grace can apprehend the most rageous, and render the most ugly and deformed like unto Christ. And delightful for ministers, in multitudes, to administer the ordinances of gospel when Jesus goeth forth with them conquering and to conquer. Gloriin character, persevering and fruitful in good works towards God and men his saints!—And there is abundant room in the gospel church for Ger-equally with Jews. In comely order they coalesce into one mystical bod-Christ. All are entitled to the same privileges, share alike the same and glory, in virtue of God's new covenant promise and oath.CHAP. XLVIII. Canaan, here divided, represents the gospel church as taining all the tribes of the redeemed, with the presence and ordinances of in the midst of them; and in admission to which no natural descent, no character or privilege is in the least to be regarded. Jerusalem, the holy represents the gospel church as exceedingly enlarged, as wholly answerabthe measuring line of God's word, as abundantly accessible to all ends earth, and as dignified with the special care, presence, and ordinance

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. XLVIII.—In the gospel church old things are all passed away, and all things are become new. In the most comely order, the past is made first: the chief of sinners become the chief of saints. What abundant access have they to Christ and to God in his ordinances! And the most faithful tribes are admitted into the nearest fellowship. Yea God hath made abundant provision for the support of his ordinances, ministers, or magistrates; and it is at their peril if any receive his revenues without serving as his deputies. What is offered shall be unto them 'a thing most holy by the border of the Levites.

13 And over against the border of the priests the Levites shall have five and twenty thousand in length, and ten thousand in breadth: all the length shall be five and twenty thousand, and the breadth ten thousand.

14 And they shall not sell of it, neither exchange, nor alienate the first fruits of the land: for it is holy unto the LORD.

15 And the five thousand, that are left in the breadth over against the five and twenty thousand, shall be a profane place for the city, for dwelling and for suburbs: and the city shall be in the midst thereof.

16 And these shall be the measures thereof; the north side four thousand and five hundred, and the south side four thousand and five hundred, and on the east side four thousand and five hundred, and the west side four thousand and five hundred.

17 And the suburbs of the city shall be toward the north two hundred and fifty, and toward the south two hundred and fifty, and toward the east two hundred and fifty, and toward the west two hundred and fifty.

18 And the residue in length, over against the oblation of the holy portion, shall be ten thousand eastward and ten thousand westward: and it shall be over against the oblation of the holy portion; and the increase thereof shall be for food unto them that serve the city.

19 And they that serve the city shall serve it out of all the tribes of Israel.

20 All the oblation shall be five and twenty thousand by five and twenty thousand: ye shall offer the holy oblation four-square, with the possession of the city.

21 And the residue shall be for the prince on the one side and on the other of the holy oblation, and of the possession of the city over against the five and twenty thousand, of the oblation toward the east border, and westward over against the five and twenty thousand toward the west border, for over against the portions for the prince; and it shall be the holy oblation; and the sanctuary of the house shall be in the midst thereof.

22 Moreover, from the possession of the Levites, and from the possession of the city, being in the midst of that which is the prince's, between the border of Judah and the border of Benjamin, shall be for the prince.

23 As for the rest of the tribes, from the east side unto the west side Benjamin shall have a portion.

24 And by the border of Benjamin, from the east side unto the west side, Simeon shall have a portion.

25 And by the border of Simeon, from the east side unto the west side, Issachar a portion.

26 And by the border of Issachar, from the east side unto the west side, Zebulun a portion.

27 And by the border of Zebulun, from the east side unto the west side, Gad a portion.

28 And by the border of Gad, at the south side southward, the border shall be even from Tamar unto the waters of strife in Kadesh, and to the river toward the great sea.

29 This is the land which ye shall divide by lot unto the tribes of Israel for inheritance, and these are their portions, saith the Lord God.

30 And these are the goings out of the city on the north side, four thousand and five hundred measures.

31 And the gates of the city shall be after the names of the tribes of Israel: three gates northward; one gate of Reuben, one gate of Judah, one gate of Levi.

32 And at the east side four thousand and five hundred: and three gates; and one gate of Joseph, one gate of Benjamin, one gate of Dan.

33 And at the south side four thousand and five hundred measures: and three gates; one gate of Simeon, one gate of Issachar, one gate of Zebulun.

34 At the west side four thousand and five hundred, with their three gates; one gate of Gad, one gate of Asher, one gate of Naphtali.

35 It was round about eighteen thousand measures: and the name of the city from that day shall be, The LORD is there.

is dedicated to his service cannot be alienated to other purposes. And every one in his station ought to lay out himself in the service of this city, knowing that his labour shall not be in vain in the Lord. What then shall be the heavenly city, in which God is ALL and IN ALL!

THE BOOK OF DANIEL.

Ezekiel, a priest, had not begun prophesying to the poor captives in Babylon when Daniel, a prince, begins to officiate as a prophet at court, and continued about seventy years. He was early famous for wisdom and piety; chap. i. ii. Ezek. xxviii. 3; and xiv. 14, 20: Was one of the first who was carried captive to Babylon, and lived to see the deliverance. The first six chapters of his book are generally historical and plain, narrating his and his three companions' captivity and education at Babylon; his companions' advancement and deliverance from the fiery furnace; his own interpretation of Nebuchadnezzar's dreams and Belshazzar's hand-writing; and his deliverance from the lions; chap. i—vi. The last six are generally prophetic, containing his four visions of the future state of the world and church of God; chap. vii—xii.

CHAP. I.

Relates (1) how Daniel, and other descendants of David, were carried captive to Babylon in the third year of Jehoiakim; 1, 2. (2) How he and other young men are chosen by Nebuchadnezzar's orders to be educated in the learning of the Chaldeans; who have victuals appointed them from Nebuchadnezzar's table; 3—7. (3) How Daniel and his three companions, Shadrach, Meshach, and Abed-nego, piously refuse the royal dainties, and live on pulse and water, by the permission of Melzar their steward; 8—16. (4) Their wonderful improvement in wisdom and knowledge above all their fellow students; 17—21.

IN the third year of the reign of Jehoiakim king of Judah ^acame Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon unto Jerusalem, and besieged it.

2 And the LORD ^bgave Jehoiakim king of Judah into his hand, ^cwith part of the vessels of the house of God; which he carried into ^dthe land of Shinar to the ^ehouse of his god; and he brought the vessels into the treasure house of his god.

3 ¶ And the king spake unto Ashpenaz the master of his eunuchs, that he should bring ^fcertain of the children of Israel, and of the king's seed, and of the princes;

4 ^gChildren in whom was no blemish, but well favoured, and skilful in all wisdom, and cunning in knowledge, and understanding science, and such as had ability in them ^hto stand in the king's palace, and whom they might teach ⁱthe learning and the tongue of the Chaldeans.

5 And the king appointed them a daily provision of ^jthe king's meat, and of ^kthe wine which he drank; so nourishing them ^lthree years, that at the end thereof they might stand before the king.

6 Now among these were of the children of Judah, ^mDaniel, Hananiah, Mishael, and Azariah:

7 Unto whom the ⁿprince of the eunuchs gave names: ^ofor he gave unto Daniel the name of Belteshazzar; and to Hananiah of Shadrach; and to Mishael of Meshach; and to Azariah of Abed-nego.

8 ¶ But Daniel ^ppurposed in his heart ^qthat he would not defile himself with the portion of the king's meat, nor with the wine which he drank: therefore he requested of the prince of the eunuchs that he might not defile himself.

9 Now ^rGod had brought Daniel into favour and tender love with the prince of the eunuchs.

10 And the prince of the eunuchs said unto Daniel, ^sI fear my lord the king, who hath appointed your meat and your drink: for why should he see your faces ^tworse liking than the children who are of your ^usort? then shall ye make me endanger my head to the king.

11 Then said Daniel to ^vMelzar, whom the prince of the eunuchs had set over Daniel, Hananiah, Mishael, and Azariah, 12 Prove thy servants, I beseech thee, ten days; and let them give us ^wpulse ^xto eat and water to drink.

13 Then let our countenance be looked upon before thee, and the countenance of the children that eat of the portion of the king's meat: and as thou seest deal with thy servants.

14 So he consented to them in this matter, and ^yproved them ten days.

15 And at the end of ten days their countenances appeared ^zfairer and fatter in flesh than all the children which did eat the portion of the king's meat.

16 Thus Melzar took away the portion of their meat, and the wine that they should drink; and gave them ^{aa}pulse.

17 ¶ As for these four children, ^{ab}God gave them knowledge and skill in all learning and wisdom: and ^{ac}Daniel had understanding in all visions and dreams.

18 Now at ^{ad}the end of the days that the king had said he should bring them in, then the prince of the eunuchs brought them in before Nebuchadnezzar.

19 And the king communed with them: and among them all was found none like Daniel, Hananiah, Mishael, and Azariah: therefore ^{ae}stood they before the king.

20 And in all matters of ^{af}wisdom and understanding, that the king inquired of them, he found them ^{ag}ten times better than all the magicians and astrologers that were in all his realm.

21 ^{ah}And Daniel continued even unto the first year of king Cyrus.

CHAP. II.

Scarcely had Daniel been three years in Babylon when God exalts him from the jaws of destruction to amazing honour. (1) Nebuchadnezzar, perplexed by a forgotten dream, outrageously orders all the wise men of Babylon to be murdered as impostors, because such of them as he had consulted could not tell him his dream and the interpretation of it; 1—13. (2) By promising to declare the dream and its interpretation, Daniel prevents the execution of that order, at least in part; and, by joint prayer with his three companions, he obtains from God the discovery of the dream and its interpretation, and thanks God for the favour; 14—23. (3) Admitted to king Nebuchadnezzar, he informs him of his dream of a great image, composed, in its different parts, of gold, silver, brass, iron, and clay, and interprets it of four monarchies successively rising, and at last giving place to the kingdom of Christ; 24—45. (4) Nebuchadnezzar rewards Daniel and his companions with great preferment; 46—49.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. I.—When men profane God's temple by their sins, it is but just that he should profane it by his judgments. How exactly Iezekiah's pride is punished in the captivity of his seed! They, who wish to serve their generation, must not spend their youth in idleness, but in study. And it is shameful for Christians to take less care of educating their children than Heathens do to their slaves, and to shew less regard to their God than Heathens do to their idols. If we receive favours from men, let us always view them as the gift of God, and be the more careful to avoid every appearance of evil; and let us always be humble under humbling providences. Let us ne-and very furious, and commanded to destroy all the wise men of Babylon.

13 And the decree went forth that the wise men should be slain; and they sought Daniel and his fellows to be slain.

14 ¶ Then Daniel answered with counsel and wisdom to Arioch the captain of the king's guard, who was gone forth to slay the wise men of Babylon:

15 He answered and said to Arioch the king's captain, Why is the decree so hasty from the king? Then Arioch made the thing known to Daniel.

16 Then went Daniel in, and desired of the king that he would give him time, and that he would shew the king the interpretation.

17 Then Daniel went to his house, and made the thing known to Hananiah, Mishael, and Azariah, his companions:

18 * That they would desire mercies of the God of heaven concerning this secret; † that Daniel and his fellows should not perish with the rest of the wise men of Babylon.

19 ^z Then was the secret revealed unto Daniel in a night vision. Then Daniel blessed the God of heaven.

20 Daniel answered and said, ^a Blessed be the name of God for ever and ever; for ^b wisdom and might are his:

21 And ^c he changeth the times and the seasons: he removeth kings, and setteth up kings: ^d he giveth wisdom unto the wise, and knowledge to them that know understanding:

22 ^e He revealeth the deep and secret things: ^f he knoweth what is in the darkness, and the light dwelleth with him.

23 ^g I thank thee, and praise thee, O thou God of my fathers, who hast given me wisdom and might, and ^h hast made known unto me now what we desired of thee: for thou hast now made known unto us the king's matter.

24 ¶ Therefore Daniel went in unto Arioch, whom the king had ordained to destroy the wise men of Babylon: he went and said thus unto him, ^k Destroy not the wise men of Babylon: bring me in before the king, and I will shew unto the king the interpretation.

25 Then Arioch brought in Daniel before the king in haste, and said thus unto him, I have found a man of the ^m captives of Judah that will make known unto the king the interpretation.

26 The king answered and said to Daniel, whose name was Belteshazzar, Art thou able to make known unto me the dream which I have seen, and the interpretation thereof?

27 Daniel answered in the presence of the king, and said, The secret which the ver be backward to that self-denial which tends to prevent sin: and, for that end, let us improve whatever interest we have with the great. Whatever in diet, or any thing else, we willingly lose for God's honour, will prove clear gain in the issue. Proper abstemiousness and temperance contribute to the improvement of our mind as well as the health of our body. God honours them that honour him, while they who despise him are lightly esteemed. And they who mourn much with Zion in her distress, are, if for their good, spared to share with her in the joys of her deliverance.

king hath demanded "cannot the wise men, the astrologers, the magicians, the soothsayers, shew unto the king;

28 But there is a God in heaven that revealeth secrets, and maketh known to the king Nebuchadnezzar what shall be in the latter days. Thy dream, and the visions of thy head upon thy bed, are these;

29 As for thee, O king, thy thoughts came into thy mind upon thy bed what should come to pass hereafter: and he that revealeth secrets maketh known to thee what shall come to pass.

30 But, as for me, this secret is not revealed to me for any wisdom that I have more than any living, but for their sakes that shall make known the interpretation to the king, and that thou mightest know the thoughts of thy heart.

31 ¶ Thou, O king, sawest, and behold a great image. This great image, whose brightness was excellent, stood before thee; and the form thereof was terrible.

32 This image's head was of fine gold, his breast and his arms of silver, his belly and his thighs of brass, 33 His legs of iron, his feet part of iron and part of clay.

34 Thou sawest till that a stone was cut out without hands, which smote the image upon his feet that were of iron and clay, and brake them to pieces.

35 Then was the iron, the clay, the brass, the silver, and the gold, broken to pieces together, and became like the chaff of the summer threshing floors; and the wind carried them away, that no place was found for them: and the stone that smote the image became a great mountain, and filled the whole earth.

36 This is the dream; and we will tell the interpretation thereof before the king.

37 Thou, O king, art a king of kings: for the God of heaven hath given thee a kingdom, power, and strength, and glory.

38 And, wheresoever the children of men dwell, the beasts of the field and the fowls of the heaven hath he given into thine hand, and hath made thee ruler over them all. Thou art this head of gold.

39 And after thee shall arise another kingdom inferior to thee, and another third kingdom of brass, which shall bear rule over all the earth.

40 And the fourth kingdom shall be strong as iron: forasmuch as iron breaketh in pieces and subdueth all things: and as iron, that breaketh all these, shall it break in pieces, and bruise.

41 And whereas thou sawest the feet and toes, part of potter's clay and part of iron, the kingdom shall be divided; but there shall be in it of the strength of the iron, forasmuch as thou sawest the iron mixed with miry clay.

42 And, as the toes of the feet were part of iron and part of clay, so the kingdom shall be partly strong and partly broken.

43 And, whereas thou sawest iron mixed with miry clay, they shall mingle themselves with the seed of men; but they shall not cleave one to another, even as iron is not mixed with clay.

44 And in the days of these kings shall the God of heaven set up a kingdom which shall never be destroyed: and the kingdom shall not be left to other people, but it shall break in pieces and consume all these kingdoms, and it shall stand for ever.

45 Forasmuch as thou sawest that the stone was cut out of the mountain without hands, and that it brake in pieces the iron, the brass, the clay, the silver, and the gold; the great God hath made known to the king what shall come to pass hereafter: and the dream is certain, and the interpretation thereof sure.

46 ¶ Then the king Nebuchadnezzar fell upon his face, and worshipped Daniel, and commanded that they should offer an oblation and sweet odours unto him.

47 The king answered unto Daniel, and said, Of a truth it is that your God is a God of gods, and a Lord of kings, and a revealer of secrets, seeing thou couldst reveal this secret.

48 Then the king made Daniel a great man, and gave him many great gifts, and made him ruler over the whole province of Babylon, and chief of the governors over all the wise men of Babylon.

49 Then Daniel requested of the king, and he set Shadrach, Meshach, and Abed-nego, over the affairs of the province of Babylon: but Daniel sat in the gate of the king.

CHAP. III.

Here Shadrach, Meshach, and Abed-nego, are strangely tried, and further advanced. (1) Nebuchadnezzar, returning from his conquests, erects and dedicates a gigantic image of gold to his idol Bel, and commands all his subjects around to join in worshipping it;—with which most of them comply; 1—7. (2) Being informed that Shadrach, Meshach, and Abed-nego, had disobeyed, he sends for them; and, finding that no furious ancient empires, and which did in the apostolic age, and will especially in the millennium, extend over the whole habitable world. See Introduction, chap. iv. sect. xii—xv. xix.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. II.—To what perplexing cares and anxieties great men subjected by God! To what pangs, what sleepless hours, because fear in the night! It is dreadful to be under the power of wicked and unreasoning men. Yet by the most unexpected means God can punish impostors and exalt his favourites. How inexpressibly valuable are friends mighty in prayer!—Fervent prayer is powerful to unlock the mysteries of providence. A there is great need of earnestness in it when God's favourites are in danger suffering as evil doers. God must be thankfully acknowledged as the bestower of wisdom and every good gift. But humble souls will rather attribute the attaining of his favours to the prayers of their friends than their own; and distinguished abilities never appear so grand as when accompanied with uncommensurable humility. Whatever influence we have with great men should be improved attempts to bring them to the true God; as no princes, no not the greatest, h

Then they brought these men before the king.

14 Nebuchadnezzar spake and said unto them, Is it true, O Shadrach, Meshach, and Abed-nego, do not ye serve my gods, nor worship the golden image which I have set up?

15 Now if ye be ready that at what time ye hear the sound of the cornet, flute, harp, sackbut, psaltery, and dulcimer, and all kinds of music, ye fall down and worship the image which I have made, well: but, if ye worship not, ye shall be cast the same hour into the midst of a burning fiery furnace; and who is that God that shall deliver you out of my hands?

16 Shadrach, Meshach, and Abed-nego, answered and said to the king, O Nebuchadnezzar, we are not careful to answer thee in this matter.

17 If it be so, our God whom we serve is able to deliver us from the burning fiery furnace, and he will deliver us out of thine hand, O king.

18 But, if not, be it known unto thee, O king, that we will not serve thy gods, nor worship the golden image which thou hast set up.

19 ¶ Then was Nebuchadnezzar full of fury; and the form of his visage was changed against Shadrach, Meshach, and Abed-nego: therefore he spake, and commanded that they should heat the furnace one seven times more than it was wont to be heated.

20 And he commanded the *†*most mighty men that were in his army to *a*bind Shadrach, Meshach, and Abed-nego, and to cast them into the burning fiery furnace.

21 Then these men were bound in their *†*coats, their hosen, and their *||*bats, and their other garments, and were cast into the midst of the burning fiery furnace.

22 Therefore, because the king's com-* mandment was urgent, and the furnace exceeding hot, the *†*flame of the fire *b*slew those men that took up Shadrach, Meshach, and Abed-nego.

most high God, ⁵ come forth, and come hither. Then Shadrach, Meshach, and Abed-nego, came forth of the midst of the fire.

27 And the princes, governors, and captains, and the king's counsellors, being gathered together, saw these men, ^h upon whose bodies the fire had no power, nor was an hair of their head singed, neither were their coats changed, nor the smell of fire had passed on them.

28 Then Nebuchadnezzar spake, and said, ⁱ Blessed be the God of Shadrach, Meshach, and Abed-nego, who hath sent ^k his angel, and delivered his servants ^l that trusted in him, and ^m have changed the king's word, and yielded their bodies, that ⁿ they might not serve nor worship any god except their own God.

29 Therefore ^o I make a decree, That every people, nation, and language, which speak ^{*} any thing amiss against the God of Shadrach, Meshach, and Abed-nego, shall be ^p cut in pieces, and their houses shall be made a dunghill, because ^q there is no other god that can deliver after this sort.

30 ¶ Then the king ^r promoted Shadrach, Meshach, and Abed-nego, in the province of Babylon.

CHAP. IV.

Is an extract from Nebuchadnezzar's register of edicts, solemnly acknowledging that God had forced him to submit. After a preface, containing such an acknowledgment, he relates (1) His dream of a large and flourishing tree cut down, and left with nothing but the stump for seven years;—which none of his magicians could interpret; 4—18. (2) Daniel's interpretation of it, as prognosticating his fall, unless he should prevent it by his speedy repentance and reformation; 19—27. (3) The accomplishment of it, in the height of his pride, in his being suddenly deprived of his senses for seven years, and then recovering his reason and government; 28—34, 36. (4) His solemn acknowledgment of God's absolute supremacy and almighty power; 34, 35, 37.

NEBUCHADNEZZAR the king ^a unto all people, nations, and languages, that dwell in all the earth; Peace be multiplied unto you.

2 ^b I thought it good to shew the signs and wonders that the high God hath wrought toward me.

3 ^c How great are his signs! and how mighty are his wonders! ^d his kingdom is an everlasting kingdom, and his dominion is from generation to generation.

4 ¶ I Nebuchadnezzar was ^e at rest in mine house, and flourishing in my palace:

5 I saw a dream ^f which made me afraid; and the thoughts upon my bed and the visions of my head troubled me.

6 Therefore made I a decree ^g to bring in all the wise men of Babylon before me, that they might make known unto me the interpretation of the dream.

7 ^h Then came in the magicians, the astrologers, the Chaldeans, and the sooth-sayers: and I told the dream before them; but they did not make known unto me the interpretation thereof.

8 ¶ But at the last ⁱ Daniel came in before me, whose name was Belteshazzar, according to the name of ^k my God, and ^l in whom is the spirit of the holy gods; and before him I told the dream, saying,

9 O Belteshazzar, ^m the master of magicians, because I know that the spirit of the holy gods is in thee, and no secret troubleth thee, ⁿ tell me the visions of my dream that I have seen, and the interpretation thereof.

10 Thus were the visions of mine head in my bed; ^{*} I saw, and behold ^o a tree in the midst of the earth, and the height thereof was great.

11 The tree grew, and was strong, and the height thereof ^p reached unto heaven, and the sight thereof to the end of all the earth:

12 The leaves thereof were fair, and the fruit thereof much, and in it was meat for all: ^q the beasts of the field had shadow under it, and the fowls of the heaven dwelt in the boughs thereof, and all flesh was fed of it.

13 I saw in the visions of my head upon my bed, and behold ^r a watcher and an ^s holy one came down from heaven;

14 He cried aloud, and said thus, ^t Hew down the tree, and cut off his branches; shake off his leaves, and scatter his fruit: ^u let the beasts get away from under it, and the fowls from his branches.

15 ^v Nevertheless, leave the stump of his roots in the earth, even with a band of iron and brass, in the tender grass of the field; and let it be wet with the dew of heaven; and let his portion be with the beasts in the grass of the earth.

16 Let his heart ^w be changed from man's, and let a beast's heart be given unto him; and let seven ^x times pass over him.

17 This matter is ^y by the decree of the watchers, and the demand by the word of the holy ones: to the intent ^z that the living may know that the Most High ruleth in the kingdom of men, and giveth it to whomsoever he will, and setteth up over it ^{aa} the basest of men.

18 This dream I king Nebuchadnezzar have seen. Now thou, O Belteshazzar, declare the interpretation thereof, forasmuch as all the wise men of my kingdom ^{ab} are not able to make known unto me the interpretation: but ^{ac} thou art able; for the spirit of the holy gods is in thee.

19 ¶ Then Daniel, whose name was Belteshazzar, ^{ad} was astonished for one REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. III.—At what expense will proud men dare to affront JEHOVAH, and mark their gratitude to an idol which never shewed them a favour! Sinners readily comply with the most wicked commands of terrible tyrants: and few can at once withstand the charms of music and the terrors of a fiery furnace. Every where there are villains ready to accuse the faithful servants of God. But it is honourable to the cause of God, when, in the way of duty, we avoid all parleying with temptation, and drop all care about the consequences; when faith in God casts out slavish fears; and when self-denial prepares for the severest conflicts. How terrible and violent the passions of proud men become when they are indulged! they bid defiance to every thing human!

and it is dangerous to be the instruments of persecution and cruelty to tyrannical princes; but always safe and honourable to suffer for Jesus Christ. He will walk with his people in their fiery furnace, and they shall reign with him on throne. God can easily convince the proudest that wherein they deal proudly he is above them; and can extort confessions of his Godhead from such as have been just ready to curse him to his face. But he greatly honours those who obey and seek praise of him, rather than of men: and it is a mercy to his church to have the mouths of her enemies stopped, even when their hearts are not turned to God. And princes should prudently prefer those to places of power and to whom they have found faithful to God.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. IV.—Kings, by prayers and good wishes, as well by good instructions and good deeds, should study to be a blessing to their subjects. If God remarkably rebuke or deliver us, we ought to manifest his dealings to those around us. And, the more wisdom and power we discern in his works of creation or providence, the more wonderful will they be in our eyes. God can easily reach the greatest, and make the terrors of mankind tormentors to themselves, amidst their nightly repose. It is common for wicked men to apply to the devil, or to any thing, rather than to God, for instruction and comfort. But what is the chaff to the wheat? What amazing pomp and splendour sinners sometimes arrive at on earth! yet saints, angels, and divine powers, shall concur to delude them. With deep concern faithful ministers observe ruin impending on the heads of many quite unaffected with it themselves. And with great freedom and prudence ought they to give warning of it;

31 While the word was in the king's mouth there fell a voice from heaven, saying, O king Nebuchadnezzar, to thee it is spoken; The kingdom is departed from thee.

32 And they shall drive thee from men, and thy dwelling shall be with the beasts of the field: they shall make thee to eat grass as oxen, and seven times shall pass over thee, until thou know that the Most High ruleth in the kingdom of men, and giveth it to whomsoever he will.

33 The same hour was the thing fulfilled upon Nebuchadnezzar: and he was driven from men, and did eat grass as oxen, and his body was wet with the dew of heaven, till his hairs were grown like eagles' feathers, and his nails like birds' claws.

34 And at the end of the days I Nebuchadnezzar lifted up mine eyes unto heaven, and mine understanding returned unto me, and I blessed the Most High, and I praised and honoured him that liveth for ever, whose dominion is an everlasting dominion, and his kingdom is from generation to generation:

35 And all the inhabitants of the earth are reputed as nothing: and he doth according to his will in the army of heaven, and among the inhabitants of the earth: and none can stay his hand, or say unto him, What dost thou?

36 At the same time my reason returned unto me; and, for the glory of my kingdom, mine honour and brightness returned unto me; and my counsellors and my lords sought unto me; and I was established in my kingdom, and excellent majesty was added unto me.

37 Now I Nebuchadnezzar praise, and extol, and honour, the King of heaven, all whose works are truth, and his ways judgment: and those that walk in pride he is able to abase.

CHAP. V.

Belshazzar, Nebuchadnezzar's grandson, now filled the Chaldean throne. His forces, being routed by Cyrus the Persian, had retired into Babylon, where, having laid up provision for twenty years, they lived secure, while Cyrus in vain laid siege to their city. After two years (1) Belshazzar and his lords celebrate an idolatrous feast, and drink to their idols in the vessels of the Jewish temple; 1-4. (2) Amidst their jollity and drunkenness an angel alarms them, by writing their doom on the wall of the house where they sat, in terms which none of the magicians could read or explain; 5-9. (3) By means of Nitocris, the queen-mother, Daniel is brought, who, after faithfully reproving Belshazzar's wickedness, reads in the hand-writing his and his kingdom's ruin; 10-28. (4) His interpretation is fulfilled that same night, in the slaughter of Belshazzar and the seizure of his empire by the Medes and Persians. [See Introduction, chap. iv. sect. xii.]

BELSHAZZAR the king made a great feast to a thousand of his lords, and drank wine before the thousand.

for sinners must be often courted to secure their own mercies. And they, who wish to know God's mind, ought to encourage ministers in an unrestrained freedom with them. Perhaps they may have time for repentance allotted them before they are ruined. And, in repentance, it is not enough to cease from doing evil; we must also learn to do well.—How strangely pride prevails after the most humbling warnings! And few sins more certainly or fearfully provoke God's judgments than extravagant pride. Easily he can render the self-fancied deity a mad and senseless brute! But, if we return to him by penitential acknowledgments, he is ready to restore us our dignity and honour. Our afflictions last no longer than to accomplish God's end of their mission. And therefore all the accounts which we give or receive of God's marvellous works ought to begin and end with his praise.

27 TEKEL, thou art ^sweighed in the balances, and art found wanting.

28 PERES, ^{thy} kingdom is divided, and given to the Medes and Persians.

29 Then commanded Belshazzar, and they clothed Daniel with scarlet, and put a chain of gold about his neck, and made a proclamation concerning him, that he should be the third ruler in the kingdom.

30 ¶ In that night was Belshazzar the king of the Chaldeans slain.

31 And Darius the Median took the kingdom, ^{being} ^{about} threescore and two years old.

CHAP. VI.

Represents (1) Daniel as preferred in the Persian court by king Darius, but maliciously envied by his heathen partners in power; 1—5. (2) Finding that they could fix no guilt upon him in any thing but his worshipping JIHOVAH, they procure a royal decree against all prayers, except to the king, for thirty days; 6—9. (3) Daniel, more boldly continuing his daily prayers, is accused, and cast into the den of lions, notwithstanding all that Darius could do for his protection; 10—17: but is miraculously preserved, to the great joy of Darius, and afterwards flourishes at the Persian court; 18—23, 29. (4) His accusers are cast into the den of lions, and immediately torn to pieces; 24. (5) Darius, by a solemn decree, orders all his subjects to reverence the almighty God of Daniel; 25—28.

IT pleased Darius to set over the kingdom an hundred and twenty princes, which should be over the whole kingdom;

2 And over these three presidents, of whom Daniel was ^{first}, that the princes might give accounts unto them, and the king should have no damage.

3 Then this Daniel was preferred above the presidents and princes, because an excellent spirit was in him; and the king thought to set him over the whole realm.

4 ¶ Then the presidents and princes sought to find occasion against Daniel concerning the kingdom, but they could find none occasion nor fault: forasmuch as he was faithful, neither was there any error or fault found in him.

5 Then said these men, We shall not find any occasion against this Daniel, except we find it against him concerning the law of his God.

6 Then these presidents and princes assembled together to the king, and said thus unto him, King Darius, live for ever.

7 All the presidents of the kingdom, the governors and the princes, the counsellors, and the captains, have consulted together to establish a royal statute, and to make a firm decree, that whosoever shall ask a petition of any God or man for thirty days, save of thee, O king, he shall be cast into the den of lions.

8 Now, O king, establish the decree, and sign the writing, that it be not changed, according to the law of the Medes and Persians, which altereth not.

9 Wherefore king Darius signed the writing and the decree.

10 ¶ Now, when Daniel knew that the writing was signed, he went into his house; and, his windows being open in his chamber toward Jerusalem, he kneeled upon his knees three times a day, and prayed, and gave thanks before his God, as he did aforetime.

11 Then these men assembled, and found Daniel praying, and making supplication before his God.

12 Then they came near, and spake before the king concerning the king's decree; Hast thou not signed a decree that every man that shall ask a petition of any God or man within thirty days, save of thee, O king, shall be cast into the den of lions? The king answered and said, The thing is true according to the law of the Medes and Persians, which altereth not.

13 Then answered they and said before the king, That Daniel, which is of the children of the captivity of Judah, regardeth not thee, O king, nor the decree that thou hast signed, but maketh his petition three times a day.

14 Then the king, when he heard these words, was sore displeased with himself, and set his heart on Daniel to deliver him: and he laboured till the going down of the sun to deliver him.

15 Then these men assembled unto the king, and said unto the king, Know, O king, that the law of the Medes and Persians is, that no decree nor statute which the king establisheth may be changed.

16 Then the king commanded, and they brought Daniel, and cast him into the den of lions. Now the king spake and said unto Daniel, Thy God whom thou servest continually, he will deliver thee.

17 And a stone was brought, and laid upon the mouth of the den, and the king sealed it with his own signet, and with the signet of his lords; that the purpose might not be changed concerning Daniel.

18 ¶ Then the king went to his palace, and passed the night fasting: neither were instruments of music brought before him: and his sleep went from him.

19 Then the king arose very early in the morning, and went in haste unto the den of lions.

20 And when he came to the den he cried with a lamentable voice unto Daniel: and the king spake and said to Daniel, O Daniel, servant of the living God, is thy God, whom thou servest continually, able to deliver thee from the lions?

21 Then said Daniel unto the king, O king, live for ever.

22 My God hath sent his angel, and hath shut the lions' mouths, that they have not hurt me: forasmuch as before

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. V.—Alas, how mad is it to riot in luxury and carnal security—in drunkenness and uncleanness; when death and hell stand ready to receive us! But awfully criminal is that mirth in which men profane or treat with sacred things. Immorality and impiety, drunkenness and idolatry, greatly promote one another. And indeed drunken worshippers are good enough for dunghill gods. How easily can God awaken the most secure, and cause the stoutest heart to tremble! and the incapacity of creatures to comfort adds to the terror. But if an hand-writing on a wall can so affect sinners, how is it that they do not tremble to see, every day, in the Bible, God's hand-writing, denouncing their everlasting damnation! Wise counsellors are strangely overlooked at luxurious courts. But necessity nevertheless often forces their despisers to receive them back to honour and regard; and such are worthy of praise who again introduce them to esteem. Ministers ought to deal faithfully with the greatest, in shewing them their guilt, their presumptuous pride and profaneness, and what they may expect for their punishment; and God will procure honour to such, even from them who condemn his own word.

him innocency was found in me; and also before thee, O king, have I done no hurt.

23 Then was the king exceeding glad for him, and commanded that they should take Daniel up out of the den. So Daniel was taken up out of the den, and no manner of hurt was found upon him, because he believed in his God.

24 ¶ And the king commanded, and they brought those men which had accused Daniel, and they cast them into the den of lions, them, their children, and their wives: and the lions had the mastery of them, and brake all their bones in pieces or ever they came at the bottom of the den.

25 ¶ Then king Darius wrote unto all people, nations, and languages, that dwell in all the earth, Peace be multiplied unto you.

26 I make a decree, that in every dominion of my kingdom men tremble and fear before the God of Daniel: for he is the living God, and stedfast for ever, and his kingdom that which shall not be destroyed, and his dominion shall be even unto the end.

27 He delivereth and rescueth, and he worketh signs and wonders in heaven and in earth, who hath delivered Daniel from the power of the lions.

28 So this Daniel prospered in the reign of Darius, and in the reign of Cyrus the Persian.

CHAP. VII.

Ch. 5. 1. 31. Begins Daniel's own visions. Here is (1) His vision of four ravenous beasts successively rising out of a tempestuous sea; and of God's throne of judgment, and the enthronement of Jesus Christ thereon, receiving an universal and everlasting dominion; 1—14. (2) Daniel being greatly perplexed, an angel interprets the four beasts of the successive empires of the Chaldeans, Persians, Greeks, and Romans; upon the ruins of which the everlasting kingdom of Jesus Christ and his people is established; 15—28. [See Introduction, chap. iv. sect. xii. xv. xix.]

IN the first year of Belshazzar king of Babylon Daniel had a dream and visions of his head upon his bed; then he wrote the dream, and told the sum of the matters.

2 Daniel spake and said, I saw in my vision by night, and, behold, the four winds of the heaven strove upon the great sea.

3 And four great beasts came up from the sea, diverse one from another.

4 The first was like a lion, and had eagles' wings: I beheld till the wings thereof were plucked, and it was lifted up from the earth, and made stand upon the feet as a man, and a man's heart was given to it.

5 And behold another beast, a second, like to a bear, and it raised up itself on one side, and it had three ribs in the mouth of it between the teeth of it: and they said thus unto it, Arise, devour much flesh.

6 After this I beheld, and lo another like a leopard, which had upon the back of it four wings of a fowl; the beast had also four heads; and dominion was given to it.

7 After this I saw in the night visions, and behold a fourth beast, dreadful and terrible, and strong exceedingly; and it had great iron teeth: it devoured and brake in pieces, and stamped the residue with the feet of it: and it was diverse from all the beasts that were before it; and it had ten horns.

8 I considered the horns, and, behold, there came up among them another little horn, before whom there were three of the first horns plucked up by the roots: and, behold, in this horn were eyes like the eyes of man, and a mouth speaking great things.

9 ¶ I beheld till the thrones were cast down, and the Ancient of days did sit, whose garment was white as snow, and the hair of his head like the pure wool: his throne was like the fiery flame, and his wheels as burning fire.

10 A fiery stream issued and came forth from before him: thousand thousands ministered unto him, and ten thousand times ten thousand stood before him: the judgment was set, and the books were opened.

11 I beheld then because of the voice of the great words which the horn spake: I beheld even till the beast was slain, and his body destroyed, and given to the burning flame.

12 As concerning the rest of the beasts, they had their dominion taken away: yet their lives were prolonged for a season and time.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. VI.—Stedfast uprightness is the best method of retaining favour and honour in courts, however wicked: by that men may preserve their places amidst strange revolutions. And the more our neighbours wait for our halting, let us be the more circumspect. It is extremely honourable if they can find nothing to accuse us of but the regular worshipping of God. If we thus suffer, we need neither be afraid nor ashamed. And it is highly honourable to have our habitations temples for God, and houses of daily, of frequent, prayer; and never to omit duty for fear of suffering. But, alas, how unhappy are most princes in the information and advices which they receive! What is done from a conscientious regard to God is represented as done in contempt of their authority: and they are often decoyed into that which is furthest from their intentions. Their flatterers, and their vain-glorious humour, plunge them into fearful depths of vexation and torment. But God wonderfully preserves his faithful worshippers; he is a present help in their trouble, and will stand by them in the hour of temptation. And it is kind in such as share his bounty readily to overlook the fault of their unwilling injuries. But dreadful is the danger of their malicious accusers and persecutors. They shall fall into the pit which they had digged for others. The Lord is known by the judgments which he executes, and can make even Heathens publish his honours.

CHAP. VII. Ver. 1, 8, 11, 12, 17—25. The tempestuous sea denotes this world filled with contention, violence, and confusion. To represent their emptiness and gradual decay, the four successive monarchies had been represented by a terrible image seen in a forgotten dream. Here, to represent their mischievous nature, they are represented as ravenous beasts. The LION, with eagle's wings plucked, and his heart turned into the heart of a man, represents the Chaldean monarchy, strong and despotic, rapid in his conquests; but quickly after Nebuchadnezzar's death all dismembered, weakened, and dispirited. The BEAST raising itself on one side, having three ribs in its mouth, and devouring much flesh, represents the Medo-Persian monarchy, fierce and savage, but at last leaping up from the side of Persia, carrying its conquests and luxuries, raising up itself on the side of Persia, carrying its conquests almost only to the westward, conquering the three kingdoms of Lydia, Chaldeans, and Egypt, and making fearful slaughter and spoil, especially among the Greeks. The LEOPARD, with four wings and four heads, marked the Grecian monarchy, agile, crafty, and spotted by a mixture of vices and virtues;—upon Alexander astonishingly rapid in its conquests; and, after his death, partitioned into the four kingdoms of Macedonia, Lesser Asia, Syria, and Egypt. The fourth beast, different in form, and dreadfully terrible and strong, with iron teeth and ten horns, represented the Roman empire, which, in a most fearful manner, by powerful armies, conquered and tyrannized over the known world for many ages, and at last was divided into ten different kingdoms or states. The LITTLE HORN, which sprung up after the rest, and plucks up three of the former, and which had eyes like the eyes of a man, and a mouth speaking great things, is the papal authority, which arose from small beginnings, and, dispossessing three of the Italian powers, became a civil as well as an ecclesiastical principality; and which is noted for craft, circumspection, and vigilance; blasphemous boasting of their own excellencies and prerogatives, even against God, his laws and ordinances; for making proud decrees to bind men's consciences; and for the persecution of his people.—It continues 1260 years, three times, or years, and an half, in prophetic language;—and, on account of it, Rome, the seat thereof, will be at last destroyed:—whereas though Chaldeans, Persians, and Greeks, had their imperial power taken from them, long remained a people.

Ver. 9, 10, 13, 14, 18, 22, 26, 27, represent JEHOVAH as judging and condemning to ruin these monarchies, especially the Roman, that the gospel kingdom of his Son might be established in the world. His white robes denote his unspotted righteousness and holiness in all his proceedings. His white hairs represent his eternity, venerable Majesty, and the ripeness of his counsels. His fiery throne his awful scrutiny and fearful condemnations. Its burning wheels and fiery stream denote the swift execution of his sentences and fearful severity of his judgments. His numerous ministers are his angels and the agents in his providence. The opening of the books denotes the exact discovery he makes of men's works, and the infinite equity and regularity of his decisions. The power here given to the Son of man implies not only his ascension into heaven, but his authority to destroy the Roman and Antichristian powers, in order that his gospel church may fill the whole world, especially in the millennium.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. VII.—Thrice happy is that retirement from business and courts which is filled up with intimate fellowship with God, and with discoveries of the secrets of his covenant and providence! What a troubled, unsettled, ever changing, and noisy world is ours made by the ambitious and contentious men who dwell in it! But all their empires, established by iniquity, 13 I saw in the night visions, and, behold, ¹one like the Son of man came with the clouds of heaven, and came to the Ancient of days, and ²they brought him near before him.

14 And there ¹was given him dominion, and glory, and a kingdom, that all people, nations, and languages, should serve him: his dominion ²is ³an everlasting dominion, which shall not pass away, and his kingdom ⁴that which shall not be destroyed.

15 ¶ I Daniel ¹was grieved in my spirit in the midst of ²my ³body, and the visions of my head troubled me.

16 I came near unto ¹one of them that stood by, and ²asked him the truth of all this. So he told me, and made me know the interpretation of the things.

17 These great beasts, which are four, are ¹four kings, which shall arise ²out of the earth.

18 But the saints of the ¹Most High shall take the kingdom, and possess the kingdom for ever, even for ever and ever.

19 Then I would know the ¹truth of the fourth beast, which was diverse ²from all the others, exceeding dreadful; whose teeth ³were of iron, and his nails of brass; which devoured, brake in pieces, and stamped the residue with his feet;

20 And of the ten horns that ¹were in his head, and of the other which came up, and before whom three fell; even of that horn that had eyes, and a mouth that spake very great things, ²whose look ³was more stout than his fellows.

21 I beheld, and the same horn ¹made war with the saints, and prevailed against them;

22 ¹Until the Ancient of days came, and ²judgment was given to the saints of the Most High; and ³the time came that the saints possessed the kingdom.

23 Thus he said, The fourth beast shall be ¹the fourth kingdom upon earth, which shall be diverse from all kingdoms, and shall devour the whole earth, and shall tread it down and break it in pieces.

24 And the ¹ten horns out of this kingdom are ten kings that shall arise: and ²another shall rise after them; and he shall be diverse from the first, and he shall subdue three kings.

25 And he shall ¹speak great words against the Most High, and shall ²wear out the saints of the Most High, and think ³to change times and laws: and they shall be given into his hand until ¹a time and times and the dividing of time.

26 ¹But the judgment shall sit, and they shall take away his dominion, to consume and to destroy ²it unto the end.

27 And ¹the kingdom and dominion and the greatness of the kingdom under the whole heaven, shall be given to the people of the saints of the Most High, whose kingdom is an everlasting kingdom; and ²all ³dominions shall serve and obey him.

28 Hitherto is the end of the matter. As for me Daniel, my thoughts ¹much troubled me, and my countenance changed in me: but ²I kept the matter in my heart.

CHAP. VIII.

Contains (1) Daniel's vision of the ram and he-goat, and the little horn of the latter, so mischievous to the people of God for a time: 1—14, (2) The angel's interpretation of it to him, as meaning—the ram, the Medo-persian empire—the he-goat, the Grecian king—and the little horn, Antiochus Epiphanes, a Syro-grecian king, who would terribly persecute the Jews and their religion, and miserably perish; 15—25: which events he attests as certain, and charges Daniel, who was much affected thereby, to conceal them; 26, 27, [See Introduction, chap. iv. sect. xii. xvii.]

IN the third year of the reign of king Belshazzar a vision appeared unto me, even unto me Daniel, after that which appeared unto me ¹at the first.

2 And I saw ¹in a vision; and it came to pass, when I saw, that I ²was at ³Shushan in the palace, which is in the province of ⁴Elam; and I saw in a vision, and I was by the river of Ulai.

3 Then I lifted up mine eyes, and saw, and, behold, there stood before the river ¹a ram which had two ²horns; and the two horns ³were high; but ⁴one ⁵was higher than ⁶the other, and the higher came up last.

4 I saw the ram ¹pushing westward, and northward, and southward; so that no beasts might stand before him, neither ²was there ³any that could deliver out of his hand; but he did according to his will, and became great.

5 And, as I was considering, behold an ¹he-goat came from the west on the face of the whole earth, and ²†touched not the ground: and the goat ³had ⁴a notable horn between his eyes.

6 And he came to the ram that had two horns, which I had seen standing before the river, and ran unto him in the fury of his power.

7 And I saw him come close unto the ram, and he was moved with ¹choler against him, and smote the ram, and brake his ²two horns: and there was no are but contemptible things before the eternal God, and mischievous and destructive to one another! Infinite is the glory and majesty, the power and equity of the Most High; and certain, but tremendous, his appearance for the ruin of his opposers and the establishment of his church! Yea the reproach of Jesus' cross is effectually wiped away in his solemn exaltation to glory; and shall be in the glory of his church, especially in the millennial and heavenly state. O how affecting are noted revelations from God! There is great need to search into their meaning by prayer and meditation; and, conscious of our weakness, to consult such as can instruct us. And if we ask we shall find. If we run to and fro in diligent search, we shall understand knowledge.

CHAP. VIII. Ver. 3—8, 20—22. The RAM with two horns, of which the last sprung was the highest, pushing westward, northward, and southward, and without any effectual resistance, denotes the empire of the Medes and more powerful Persians, which pushed its conquests all along from the Euxine sea and the Hellespont on the north to the river Indus on the south, and as far as African Ethiopia and Lydia on the west, containing, in all, about 1,600,000 square miles. The he-goat, which came flying from the west and had a notable horn between his eyes, denotes the Grecian monarchy under Alexander, marching forces with power in the ram to stand before him, but he cast him down to the ground, and stamped upon him: and there was none that could deliver the ram out of his hand.

8 Therefore the he-goat waxed very great: and when he was strong the great horn was broken; and for it came up four notable ones toward the four winds of heaven.

9 And out of one of them came forth a little horn, which waxed exceeding great, toward the south, and toward the east, and toward the pleasant land.

10 And it waxed great, even to the host of heaven; and it cast down some of the host and of the stars to the ground, and stamped upon them.

11 Yea, he magnified himself even to the prince of the host, and by him the daily sacrifice was taken away, and the place of his sanctuary was cast down.

12 And an host was given him against the daily sacrifice by reason of transgression, and it cast down the truth to the ground; and it practised and prospered.

13 ¶ Then I heard one saint speaking; and another saint said unto that certain saint which spake, How long shall be the vision concerning the daily sacrifice, and the transgression of desolation, to give both the sanctuary and the host to be trodden under foot?

14 And he said unto me, Unto two thousand and three hundred days; then shall the sanctuary be cleansed.

15 ¶ And it came to pass, when I, even I Daniel had seen the vision, and sought for the meaning, then, behold there stood before me as the appearance of a man.

16 And I heard a man's voice between the banks of Ulai, which called, and said, Gabriel, make this man to understand the vision.

17 So he came near where I stood: and when he came I was afraid, and fell upon my face: but he said unto me, Understand, O son of man; for at the time of the end shall be the vision.

18 Now, as he was speaking with me, I was in a deep sleep on my face toward the ground: but he touched me, and set me upright.

19 And he said, Behold, I will make thee know what shall be in the last end of the indignation: for at the time appointed the end shall be.

20 The ram which thou sawest having two horns are the kings of Media and Persia.

21 And the rough goat is the king of Grecia: and the great horn that is between his eyes is the first king.

22 Now that being broken, whereas four stood up for it, four kingdoms shall stand up out of the nation, but not in his power.

23 And in the latter time of their kingdom, when the transgressors are come to the full, a king of fierce countenance, and understanding dark sentences, shall stand up.

24 And his power shall be mighty, but not by his own power: and he shall destroy wonderfully, and shall prosper, and practise, and shall destroy the mighty and the holy people.

25 And through his policy also he shall cause craft to prosper in his hand; and he shall magnify himself in his heart, and by peace shall destroy many: he shall also stand up against the prince of princes; but he shall be broken without hand.

26 And the vision of the evening and the morning, which was told, is true: wherefore shut thou up the vision, for it shall be for many days.

27 And I Daniel fainted, and was sick certain days; afterward I rose up, and did the king's business: and I was astonished at the vision, but none understood it.

CHAP. IX.

Here (1) Immediately after the overthrow of the Chaldean empire Daniel finding that the time of the deliverance of the Jews was at hand, fasts and prays for it, penitently confessing their sins, justifying God's severities, and pleading for the speedy accomplishment of his promises; 1—19. (2) God, by the angel Gabriel, graciously assures him that his requests for the Jews' deliverance should be granted; 20—23: and informs him of the time and work of the Messiah upon earth, and of the fearful and lasting ruin, dispersion, and miseries, of the Jewish nation for their obstinate rejection of him; 24—27.

IN the first year of Darius the son of Ahasuerus, of the seed of the Medes, who was made king over the realm of the Chaldeans;

2 In the first year of his reign I Daniel understood by books the number of the years, whereof the word of the LORD came to Jeremiah the prophet, that he would accomplish seventy years in the desolations of Jerusalem.

3 ¶ And I set my face unto the LORD God, to seek by prayer and supplications, with fasting, and sackcloth, and ashes:

4 And I prayed unto the LORD my God, and made my confession, and said, O LORD, the great and dreadful God, keeping the covenant and mercy to them

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. VIII.—The people of God have often enjoyed the most glorious liberty in their souls when their bodies have been held in captivity. But those who abuse others may quickly expect the like treatment. God quickly stops the career of ambitious men. And little do they, who risk both soul and body in amassing power or wealth, know who shall enjoy them. If ever God's people suffer, their sins are the cause. They, who slight or abuse the privileges of God's sanctuary, deserve to be deprived of them. But no wicked persecutor has any more power than the Lord permits. His hand must be observed even in all the enterprizes of his enemies. And it is comfortable to reflect that he looks on the persecution of his church as against himself: and that, though her adversaries may be severe, they cannot be lasting. In his time her privileges shall be restored, and sanctuary cleansed, and her most crafty and powerful enemies fearfully destroyed. It is proper, however, that perplexed souls should consult Jesus the wonderful Counsellor; and that gracious souls should be deeply affected with the church's distress, but never so as to disqualify them for the duties of their station.

that love him, and to them that keep his commandments ;

5 ^kWe have sinned, and have committed iniquity, and have done wickedly, and have rebelled, even by departing from thy precepts and from thy judgments :

6 Neither have we hearkened unto thy servants the prophets, which spake in thy name to our kings, our princes, and our fathers, and to all the people of the land.

7 O LORD, ^mrighteousness [†]belongeth unto thee, but unto us ⁿconfusion of faces, as at this day : to the men of Judah, and to the inhabitants of Jerusalem, and unto all Israel, ^othat are near, and ^{that} are far off, through all the countries whither thou hast driven them, because of their trespass that they have trespassed against thee.

8 O LORD, ^pto us ^{belongeth} confusion of face, to our kings, to our princes, and to our fathers, because we have sinned against thee.

9 To the LORD our God ^{belong} mercies and forgivenesses, ^tthough we have rebelled against him ;

10 Neither have we obeyed the voice of the LORD our God, to walk in ^{his} laws, which he set before us by his servants the prophets.

11 Yea, ^{all} Israel have transgressed thy law, even by departing, that they might not obey thy voice ; therefore ^{the} curse is poured upon us, and the oath that is written in the law of Moses the servant of God, because we have sinned against him.

12 And ^{he} hath confirmed his words, which he spake against us and against our judges that judged us, by bringing upon us a great evil : for under the whole heaven ^{hath} not been done as hath been done upon Jerusalem.

13 As ^{it} is written in the law of Moses, all this evil is come upon us : yet ^{made} we not our prayer before the LORD our God, that we might turn from our iniquities and understand thy truth.

14 Therefore hath the LORD ^{watched} upon the evil, and brought it upon us : for ^{the} LORD our God is righteous in all his works which he doth ; for we obeyed not his voice.

15 And now, O LORD our God, ^{that} hast brought thy people forth out of the land of Egypt with a mighty hand, and hast ^{gotten} thee ^{renown}, as at this day ; we have sinned, we have done wickedly.

16 ¶ O LORD, according to all ^{thy} righteousness, I beseech thee, let thine anger and thy fury be turned away ^{from} thy city Jerusalem, thy holy mountain : because for ^{our} sins, and for the iniquities of our fathers, Jerusalem and thy people ^{are become} ^a reproach to all ^{that} are about us.

17 Now therefore, O our God, ^{hear} the prayer of thy servant, and his supplications, and cause thy face to shine upon thy sanctuary that is desolate, for the LORD's sake.

18 O my God, ^{incline} thine ear, and hear ; open thine eyes, and behold our desolations, and the city ^{which} is called by thy name : ^{for} we do not ^{present} our supplications before thee for our righteousnesses, but for thy great mercies.

19 O Lord, ^{hear} ; O Lord, forgive ; O Lord, hearken and do ; ^{defer} not, for thine own sake, O my God : for thy city and thy people are called by thy name.

20 ¶ And ^{whiles} I was speaking, and praying, ^{and} confessing my sin and the sin of my people Israel, and presenting my supplication before the LORD my God ^{for} the holy mountain of my God ;

21 Yea, ^{whiles} I was speaking in prayer, even the man ^{Gabriel}, whom I had seen in the vision at the beginning, being caused to ^{fly} ^{swiftly}, ^{and} touched me ^{about} the time of the evening oblation.

22 And he ^{informed} me, and talked with me, and said, O Daniel, I am now come forth ^{to} give thee skill and understanding.

23 ^{At} the beginning of thy supplications the ^{commandment} came forth, and I am come to shew ^{thee} ; for thou ^{art} ^{greatly} beloved : therefore understand the matter, and consider the vision.

24 ^{Seventy} weeks are determined upon thy people and upon thy holy city, ^{to} finish the transgression, and ^{to} make an end of sins, and to make reconciliation for iniquity, and ^{to} bring in everlasting righteousness, and ^{to} seal up the vision, and ^{prophecy}, and ^{to} anoint ^{the} most holy.

25 ^{Know} therefore and understand, ^{that} from ^{the} going forth of the commandment to restore and to build Jerusalem unto ^{the} Messiah the prince ^{shall be} seven weeks, and threescore and two weeks. The street ^{shall be} built again, and the ^{wall}, even ⁱⁿ troublous times.

26 And after threescore and two weeks, ^{shall} Messiah be cut off, ^{but} not for CHAP. IX. Ver. 24-26. That these verses relate to the manifestation of Jesus Christ to fulfil all righteousness, and make full atonement for the sins of his people, to fulfil all the ancient types and prophecies, and to receive the Holy Ghost above measure himself, and miraculously pour him out upon his followers, for the restraining of iniquity, and the introduction of remarkable holiness into the world, among both Jews and Gentiles, is generally agreed. That each of the weeks mentioned denotes seven years, a day for a year, Ezek. iv. 6 ; and that the whole of the numbers is intended to point out the time of our Saviour's appearance, is also agreed. In applying the weeks there has been great difference among calculators : but it is enough that they must all fix the conclusion of the weeks near the time of our Saviour's death. From Ezra's commission, by Artaxerxes Longimanus, in the 7th year of his reign, to restore the affairs of the Jewish church and state, to the death of Christ, is precisely 70 weeks, or 490 years. From Nehemiah's commission to rebuild the wall of Jerusalem, in the 20th year of Artaxerxes, to the death of Christ, is 490 lunar years and a little more ; or perhaps precisely 490 to the rejection of the Jews and calling of the Gentiles. From Ezra's commission to Nehemiah's finishing his reformation might be precisely seven weeks, or 49 years ; thence to John Baptist's manifestation (by his ministry) of Christ as come, 62 weeks, or 434 years ; thence to Christ's death another week, or seven years ;—490 in all. Perhaps too, from Julius Cesar's edict, for the Jews to repair and fortify their cities, to Christ's birth, might be precisely 49 years ; and as much from Herod's building of the inner temple to Christ's baptism ; and as much from his finishing the outer temple to Christ's death.

CHAP. X.

Begins Daniel's last vision; and represents (1) His solemn fasting and humiliation before he received it; 1—3. (2) The glorious appearance of Christ to him, with the deep impression which it made upon him; 4—9. (3) The encouragement given him by an angel to expect a satisfactory and useful revelation of future events; and that he would be able to sustain the glory of the vision, and understand what should be revealed; 10—21.

IN the third year of Cyrus king of Persia a thing was revealed unto Daniel, whose name was called Belteshazzar; and the thing was true, but the time appointed was long; and he understood the thing, and had understanding of the vision.

2 In those days I Daniel was mourning three full weeks.

3 I ate no pleasant bread, neither came flesh nor wine in my mouth, neither did I anoint myself at all, till three whole weeks were fulfilled.

4 And in the four and twentieth day of the first month, as I was by the side of the great river, which is Hiddekel;

5 Then I lifted up mine eyes, and looked, and behold, a certain man clothed in linen, whose loins were girded with fine gold of Uphaz:

6 His body also was like the beryl, and his face as the appearance of lightning, and his eyes as lamps of fire, and his arms and his feet like in colour to polished brass, and the voice of his words like the voice of a multitude.

7 And I Daniel alone saw the vision; for the men that were with me saw not the vision; but a great quaking fell upon them, so that they fled to hide themselves.

8 Therefore I was left alone, and saw this great vision, and there remained no strength in me: for my comeliness was turned in me into corruption, and I retained no strength.

9 Yet heard I the voice of his words. and, when I heard the voice of his words, then was I in a deep sleep on my face, and my face toward the ground.

10 And, behold, an hand touched me, which set me upon my knees and upon the palms of my hands.

11 And he said unto me, O Daniel, a man greatly beloved, understand the words that I speak unto thee, and stand upright: for unto thee am I now sent. And when he had spoken this word unto me I stood trembling.

12 Then said he unto me, Fear not, Daniel: for from the first day that thou didst set thine heart to understand, and to chasten thyself before thy God, thy words were heard, and I am come for thy words.

13 But the prince of the kingdom of Persia withstood me one and twenty days: but lo Michael, one of the chief princes, came to help me; and I remained there with the kings of Persia.

14 Now I am come to make thee understand what shall befall thy people in the latter days: for yet the vision is for many days.

15 And when he had spoken such words unto me I set my face toward the ground, and I became dumb.

16 And, behold, one like the similitude of the sons of men touched my lips: then I opened my mouth, and spake, and said unto him that stood before me, O my lord, by the vision my sorrows are turned upon me, and I have retained no strength.

17 For how can the servant of this my lord talk with this my lord? for, as for me, straightway there remained no strength in me, neither is there breath left in me.

18 Then there came again and touched me one like the appearance of a man, and he strengthened me.

19 And said, O man greatly beloved, fear not; peace be unto thee, be strong, yea, be strong. And when he had spoken unto me I was strengthened, and said, Let my lord speak; for thou hast strengthened me.

20 Then said he, Knowest thou wherefore I come unto thee? and now will I return to fight with the prince of Persia: and, when I am gone forth, lo, the prince of Grecia shall come.

21 But I will shew thee that which is the prayers of his people, and gives them more than they ask. And with great humility and serious consideration ought such favours to be received! Necessary, great, and glorious, and fixed in every circumstance, is Jesus' incarnation, his union with the Holy Ghost, his labours and death for sinners: and terrible the vengeance incurred by his obstinate despisers. But great is the mercy that, when some circumstances in scripture are left in great obscurity, the principal things are expressed so plainly that he that runs may read and understand them.

CHAP. X. Ver. 5, 6. Christ's clothing of fine linen denotes his righteousness as our surety, and his holy and righteous government. His golden girdle denotes his excellency, faithfulness, and readiness to fulfil his work. His body as the beryl denotes him as beautiful, the Lord from heaven. His countenance as lightning denotes his awful majesty. His eyes as lamps of fire, denote his infinite knowledge, terrible to his enemies. His arms and feet as polished brass denote his almighty power to uphold his church and tread down her enemies. His loud voice his terrible judgments and powerful spread of his gospel. 13, 20. The angel Gabriel had to baffle the attempts of Cambyses, Cyrus' son, or of some evil angel at the Persian court, who laboured to stir up mischief

In the last week, ver. 27, the covenant was confirmed with many, and the daily sacrifice abolished, either by Christ's ministrations, and the conversion of multitudes to him by the covenant of grace, and by his rendering useless all the typical sacrifices by his death; or near forty years afterward, when Titus made leagues of peace with sundry of the Asian nations, that he might have the more leisure to make war against the Jews; by which their temple was destroyed, their civil and ecclesiastical constitution overthrown, and themselves generally murdered or driven from the country; under the dreadful effects of which they have remained for above 1700 years past. [See Introduction, chap. iv. sect. xviii.]

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. IX.—The near fulfilment of God's promises animates the believing mind to earnest prayer for it. But, alas, how shameful and criminal is the conduct that exposes God's people to his righteous judgments, which so exactly correspond with his threatenings! The desolations of God's sanctuary are a great grief to gracious souls. But it is an animating encouragement to prayer to consider his readiness to forgive sins, his ability to supply our wants, and that he has done so much for his people in former times, and can glorify his name, his Christ, his justice and mercy, and his relation to us, in our deliverance! Yea, God sometimes makes immediate and sensible returns to

And xii. continue the vision, and exhibit a system of prophecies, reaching to the end of the world. Here is foretold (1) The establishment of the Grecian empire upon the ruins of the Persian, and the sudden partition of it into four kingdoms; 1—4. (2) The transactions of the principal two of these four; viz. of Egypt on the south, and Syria on the north of Canaan, especially with respect to one another; 5—20. (3) The rise, restlessness, and mischievous conduct, of Antiochus Epiphanes against the Egyptians and Jews; 21—29. (4) Either the further mischievous conduct of Antiochus, and his miserable end; or rather of the Persian Heathens and Antichristian empires; 30—39, 44, 45: and the ravages made upon the latter by the Saracens from the south, and Turks from the north-east; 40—45. against the Jews, and had none to assist him herein but Jesus Christ, or some principal angel.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. X.—The slow advances of God's work of deliverance in his church deeply affect the minds of his faithful saints. And, let God turn back our captivity on earth as he will, this world will be still a valley of tears. But Jesus kindly manifests his glory to humble, importunate, and solemn supplicants. Oh how unnumbered are his excellencies! And the faith and sense of his love ought to banish all slavish dread, which would indispose us for hearing his words. What insignificant and polluted nothings are the best of men before God; and in their own view, when they behold him! But graciously his power and promises support his people under their terrors and grievances. As the entrance of their prayers is pleasant to him, so the entrance of his word is quickening to them. And we ought to be patient under present trials, lest God should send heavier ones. Though kings on earth and devils from hell be against us, it is enough if JEHOVAH, if Jesus, and his angels, care for and protect us.

CHAP. XI. Ver. 1, Should have stood in the preceding chapter; and means that Gabriel had encouraged and excited Darius the Mede and Cyrus to release 9 So the king of the south shall come into his kingdom, and shall return into his own land.

10 But his sons *shall be stirred up, and shall assemble a multitude of great forces: and one shall certainly come and overflow, and pass through: then shall he return, and be stirred up even to his fortress.

11 And the †king of the south shall be moved with choler, and shall come forth and fight with him, even with the king of the north: and he shall set forth a great multitude; but the multitude shall be given into *his hand.

12 And when he hath taken away the multitude his heart shall be lifted up, and he shall cast down many ten thousands; but he shall not be strengthened by it.

13 For the king †of the north shall return, and shall set forth a multitude greater than the former, and shall certainly come †after certain years with a great army and with much riches.

14 And in those times there shall many stand up against the king of the south: also the robbers of thy people shall exalt themselves to establish the vision, but they shall fall.

15 So the king of the north shall come, and cast up a mount, and take *the most fenced cities: and the arms of the south shall not withstand, neither †his chosen people, neither shall there be any strength to withstand.

16 But he that cometh against him shall do according to his own will, and none shall stand before him: and he shall stand in the †glorious land, which by his hand shall be consumed.

17 He shall also set his face to enter with the strength of his whole kingdom, and upright ones with him; thus shall he do: and he shall give him the *daughter of women, corrupting her: but she shall not stand on his side, neither be for him†.

18 After this shall he turn his face unto the †isles, and shall take many: but †a prince for his own behalf shall cause the reproach offered by him to cease; without his own reproach he shall cause it to turn upon him.

19 Then he shall turn his face toward the fort of his own land: but he shall stumble and fall, and not be found.

kingdom; but within few days he shall be destroyed, neither in tanger, nor in battle.†

21 ¶ And in his ||estate shall stand up a vile person, to whom they shall not give the honour of the kingdom: but he shall come in peaceably, and obtain the kingdom by flatteries.

22 And with the arms of a flood shall they be overflown from before him, and shall be broken; yea, also the prince of the covenant.

23 And after the league made with him he shall work deceitfully; for he shall come up, and shall become strong with a small people.

24 He shall enter peaceably even upon the fattest places of the †province: and he shall do that which his fathers have not done, nor his fathers' fathers; he shall scatter among them the prey, and spoil, and riches; yea, and he shall forecast his devices against the strong holds, even for a time.

25 And he shall stir up his power and his courage against the †king of the south with a great army; and the king of the south shall be stirred up to battle with a very great and mighty army; but he shall not stand: for they shall forecast devices against him.

26 Yea, they that feed of the portion of his meat shall destroy him, and ||his army shall overflow: and many shall fall down slain.

27 And both these kings' *hearts shall be to do mischief; and they shall speak lies at one table; but it shall not prosper: for yet the end shall be at the time appointed.

28 Then shall he return †into his land with great riches; and his heart shall be against the holy covenant; and he shall do exploits, and return to his own land.

29 At the time appointed he shall return, and come toward the south; but it shall not be as the former, or as the latter.

30 ¶ For the ships of Chittim shall come against him; therefore he shall be grieved and return, and have indignation against the holy covenant: so shall he do; he shall even return, and have intelligence with †them that forsake the holy covenant.

31 And arms shall stand on his part, and they shall pollute the sanctuary of strength, and shall take away the daily sacrifice, and they shall place the abomination that maketh desolate.

32 And such as do wickedly against the covenant shall he corrupt by flatteries: but the people that do know their God shall be strong, and do exploits.

33 And they that understand among the people shall instruct many: yet they shall fall by the sword, and by flame, by captivity, and by spoil, many days.

34 Now when they shall fall they shall be holpen with a little help; but many shall cleave to them with flatteries.

35 And some of them of understanding shall fall to try ||them, and to purge, and to make them white, even to the time of the end: because it is yet for a time appointed.

36 ¶ And the king shall do according to his will; and he shall exalt himself, and magnify himself above every god, and shall speak marvellous things against the God of gods, and shall prosper till the indignation be accomplished: for that that is determined shall be done.

37 Neither shall he regard the God of his fathers, nor the desire of women, nor regard any god; for he shall magnify himself above all.

38 But in his estate shall he honour the God of †forces: and a god whom his fathers knew not shall he honour with gold and silver, and with precious stones and pleasant things.

39 Thus shall he do in the most strong holds with a strange god, whom he shall acknowledge and increase with glory: and he shall cause them to rule over many, and shall divide the land for gain.

40 ¶ And at the time of the end shall the king of the south push at him: and the king of the north shall come against him like a whirlwind, with chariots, and with horsemen, and with many ships; and he shall enter into the countries, and shall overflow and pass over.

41 He shall enter also into the glorious land; and many countries shall be overthrown: but these shall escape out give him a terrible defeat; which, issuing in Ptolemy's rage against the Jews and his abandoning himself to luxury, shall conduce to the hurt of his kingdom. —Ptolemy dying, and leaving his son Epiphanes an infant, Antiochus, assisted by part of the Jews, shall march a great army into Egypt, and ravage the country; and, after bribing his daughter Cleopatra to murder him, he shall marry her to young Ptolemy Epiphanes of Egypt: but she proving faithful to her husband, her father, disappointed of his designs on the kingdom of Egypt, shall, in his rage, attack and take many of the isles and coasts of the Egean sea, now the east part of the Mediterranean. But the Romans, whom he now insults, in invading their allies and treating their ambassadors with contempt, shall stop his career; and, after many shameful defeats, oblige him to quit Lesser Asia, pay all the expenses of the war, and give his own son for a pledge of the payment. Retiring into his kingdom, he shall be murdered at Elymais, in his attempt to rob a temple of Jupiter. His elder son Seleucus Philopator shall be famous for nothing but for oppressing his people with taxes to pay the Roman debts; and shall, after a short reign, be poisoned by Heliodorus his treasurer. 21—29. He shall be succeeded by his despicable, debauched, and frantic brother, Antiochus Epiphanes, who shall have long lived at Rome as an hostage for the payment of his father's debt. Not by right, but by flattering the Syrians, Romans, Pergamenians, and others, he shall procure the Syrian crown, and get the better of all his opposers. And, by scattering among his subjects the spoils taken from his opposers, he shall firmly attach them to his interests. After fixing himself on his throne, he shall march his mighty army against Ptolemy of Egypt, his cousin; and by the help of traitors, shall rout his forces. And, after making a league with him, which neither party intend to keep, he shall return home to Syria, terribly murdering the Jews, and ravaging their country in his way. Not long after, he shall again invade Egypt with a formidable army, but without success. 30—35. For the Roman ambassadors, arriving in Macedonian ships, shall prohibit him from proceeding against Ptolemy, whom they shall have taken into their protection. Enraged herewith, he shall return home; and, by fearful murder and persecutions, shall attempt to abolish the Jewish religion or extirpate their nation. And, assisted by apostate Jews, he shall abolish the daily sacrifice, and make their temple a sink of idolatry, whoredom, and other wickedness.—While many of the Jews suffer for their religion, Matthias and his sons, called Maccabees, shall take arms; and, by a multitude of valiant encounters, shall defeat the Syro-grecians, retake and purify the temple, and restore the true worship of God. But some understand these six verses of the Romish Heathens, and their persecution of the Christians. 36—45. Some understand these verses also of Antiochus' pride, insolence, blasphemy, introduction of new deities, and his brutal murder of women and children; and of his ravaging Canaan, Egypt, and the countries about; till at length he was embarrassed by a Parthian war from the east, and at last miserably destroyed by God. But they, at least chiefly, represent the Romish Antichrist as exalting himself above magistrates, angels, and even the divine persons, prohibiting marriage, and regardless of the God of primitive Christians and of Heathen idols, setting up angels and departed saints, or consecrated waters, as protectors of countries, cities, and societies, and as harassed by the Saracens, and afterwards more terribly by the Turks, who have conquered the west of REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. XI.—Infinitely perfect is God's insight into futurities. Often riches are kept for the hurt of the owners! Yea, all things here are but vanity and vexation of spirit! While God in his providences sets up one and pulls down another, exactly answerable to his purpose, men's lusts render this world a tremendous scene of ravage and murder. And God often exalts the worst of men to render them scourges to sinners, and especially his own people. And none are more bitter persecutors than apostates from the truth. While God singularly honours those that cleave to him in an evil day, he permits their opponents to rush forward in wickedness, till becoming impudent in impiety, he can no longer delay their tremendous destruction. And how marvellous a confirmation of our faith is it to find some scripture predictions of contingent events more particularly circumstantiated than in any particular history of them!

CHAP. XII. 1—3. Jesus Christ shall preserve his people under, and at last deliver them from, the terrible harassments of Antiochus, Romish Heathens, Antichrist, Turks, &c.; and at the last day he will reward them according to their faithfulness and usefulness. 4, 9, 10. These predictions shall never be fully understood before the fulfilment. And, as there will be then a mixture of persons good and bad, it will be only the former who will be bettered by these troubles, or who, by diligent observation, will understand the fulfilled predictions. 7, 11, 12. The time, times, and an half, or 1260 days, denote the 1260 years of Antichrist's reign. Thirty years of terrible wars at the destruction of Antichrist bring it to 1290; and, by the end of 1335, we expect the millennium will be introduced in its full glory. 9, 13. Daniel must rest contented with the discoveries which he had obtained, and prepare for the eternal state, in the assurance of happiness and honour in it.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. XII.—Seasonable and effectual are Jesus' assistance, protection, deliverances, and comforts. He is a present help in times of trouble to his people. And to all his chosen sheep he gives eternal life, and none shall pluck them out of his hand. O how great is the happiness of saints, and especially of faithful ministers, in the resurrection and in the eternal state! But on the contrary, inexpressible the infamy and ruin of the wicked! Neither angels nor saints know any thing more of future events but as God is pleased to reveal them. Yet, by humble searching of the scriptures and careful observation of providences, every prediction will at length appear plain. And it is Christ to whom we must apply for all necessary illumination. Never must we, except by death, and the last judgment, expect complete deliverances all at once. And it is not the curious scrutinizer into God's secrets, but the firm believer of his promises and observer of his laws, who may then expect safety and happiness.

THE PROPHECY OF HOSEA.

This book and the eleven following were, by the Jews, comprehended in one volume, called the Lesser Prophets. Hosea began his public work about A. M. 3196, and continued in it about 70 years; and lived to see most of what he had foretold fulfilled in the misery and ruin of the ten tribes of Israel. His style is concise and sententious; in some places very obscure, and in others clear and pathetic. His general scope is to convince the Hebrews of their sins, excite them to repent, and prevent their own destruction, and to denounce the judgments of God against such as should remain obstinate. But with these he intermixes some very evangelical promises; chap. i. 7, 10, 11; and ii. 1, 7, 14—23; and iii. 5; and v. 15; and vi. 1—3, 11; and xi. 8, 9; and xiii. 4, 9, 10, 14; and xiv. 1—8; which indeed almost all respect the happy restoration of the Jews in the glorious Millennium. In the first three chapters he instructs by signs; in the rest by discourses only.

N. B. In this, and other prophecies, Ephraim and Israel denote the ten tribes, as distinguished from the kingdom of Judah and Benjamin.

CHAP. I.

Here, after the title of the book, Hosea, (1) By marrying a wife who afterwards played the harlot, represents to the Israelites their base and idolatrous apostasy from God, who had espoused them to himself as his people; 2, 3. (2) By naming her children Jezreel, Lo-ruhamah, and Lo-ammi, he represents God's cutting off the family of Jehu, and his wrathfully punishing the ten tribes of Israel, and casting them out from covenant relation; 4—6, 8, 9. (3) He foretells the miraculous deliverance of the Jews from the Assyrians, and the restoration of them and the Israelites after the captivity under Zerubbabel, and especially in the apostolic and millennial periods under Jesus Christ; 7, 10, 11.

THE word of the LORD that ^acame unto Hosea the son of Beer, ^bin the days of Uzziah, Jotham, Ahaz, and Hezekiah, kings of Judah, and in the days of Jeroboam the son of Joash king of Israel.

2 ¶ The beginning of the word of the LORD by Hosea. And the LORD said to Hosea, Go, ^dtake unto thee a wife of whoredoms and children of whoredoms: for the land ^ehath committed great whoredom, departing from the LORD.

3 So he went and took ^fGomer the daughter of Diblaim, which conceived and bare him a son.

4 And the LORD said unto him, Call his name ^gJezreel; for yet a little while, and I will ^havenge the ⁱblood of Jezreel upon the house of Jehu, and ^bwill cause to cease the kingdom of the house of Israel.

5 And it shall come to pass at that day that ⁱI will break the bow of Israel in the valley of Jezreel.

6 ¶ And she conceived again, and bare a daughter. And God said unto him, Call her name ^kLo-ruhamah: for [‡]I will no more have mercy upon the house of Israel; ^{||} but I will ¹utterly take them away.

EXPLANATORY NOTES.—CHAP. I. Ver. 4. In executing God's judgments on the family of Ahab, 2 Kings ix. x. Jehu only aimed at gratifying his own ambition and cruelty; and therefore his conduct is justly punished, as murder, upon his own family, and the throne of Israel taken from them.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. I.—God can easily preserve his ministers in the very worst of times, and make them steadily to serve him either in honour or dishonour. And it becomes them to use very diversified methods, in order to convince hardened sinners, and warn them to flee from the wrath which is to come. God sovereignly destroys the instruments of his wrath when his work with them is finished. And there is no warding off the strokes of his vengeance. They who depart from him weaken, and bring certain ruin on, themselves. If God's mercy be once taken from men, they are irrecoverably miserable. And 7 But ^mI will have mercy upon the house of Judah, and will save them ⁿby the LORD their God, and will not save them by bow, nor by sword, nor by battle, by horses, nor by horsemen.

8 ¶ Now, when she had weaned Lo-ruhamah, she conceived and bare a son.

9 Then said God, Call his name ^oLo-ammi: for ye are not my people, and I will not be your God.

10 ¶ Yet the number of the children of Israel shall be as the sand of the sea, which cannot be measured nor numbered: ^aand it shall come to pass that, ^{*}in the place where it was said unto them, Ye are not my people, there it shall be said unto them, Ye are the sons of the living God.

11 Then shall the children of Judah and the children of Israel be gathered together, and appoint themselves one head, and they shall come up out of the land: ^efor great shall be the day of Jezreel.

CHAP. II.

Much coincides with the former. (1) God charges the Israelites with their idolatrous whoredom, forgetfulness of himself, and their obligations to him; 1, 2, 5, 8. (2) He threatens to take from them that plenty of outward mercies wherewith they had served their idols, and to abandon them to certain ruin; 3, 4, 6, 7, 9—13. But (3) Promises at last to return to them in mercy, after the captivity in Babylon and present dispersion; 14: to cure them of their wonted idolatry and wickedness; 7, 16, 17: and for their complete safety, to render them his people, make them share the blessings of his covenant; 18—20, 23: and bestow upon them all necessary benefits and comforts temporal or spiritual; 15, 21, 22.

SAY ye unto your brethren, ^aAmmi; and to your sisters, ^bRuhamah.

2 Plead with your mother, plead: ^cfor she is not my wife, neither am I her husband • let her therefore put away her they who in works deny God may expect to be disowned by him at last. But our salvation is solely owing to his sovereign grace. And if we cleave to God in a day of defection he will save us in a day of trouble. Thrice happy are they who, adopted into his family, have Jesus for their spiritual Head, and go up from this world to their heavenly rest. Happy are the apostolic and millennial periods, and especially that of the last judgment, in which multitudes of Jews and Gentiles shall follow after him as the Head of his redeemed church.

CHAP. II. Ver. 1, might have been connected with the preceding chapter, intimating that, at that general restoration, the Hebrews will again be adopted as God's people, and share his peculiar favour. 2—4. And let the pious Israelites, or Jewish converts to Christianity, earnestly plead with their nation, which have practically abandoned my worship and service, and which I am just ejecting whoredoms out of her sight, and her adulteries from between her breasts;

3 Lest I strip her naked, and set her as in the day that she was born, and make her as a wilderness, and set her like a dry land, and slay her with thirst.
4 And I will not have mercy upon her children; for they be the children of whoredoms.
5 For their mother hath played the harlot; she that conceived them hath done shamefully: for she said, I will go after my lovers, that give me my bread and my water, my wool and my flax, mine oil and my drink.
6 Therefore, behold, I will hedge up thy way with thorns, and make a wall, that she shall not find her paths.
7 And she shall follow after her lovers, but she shall not overtake them; and she shall seek them, but shall not find them: then shall she say, I will go and return to my first husband, for then was it better with me than now.
8 For she did not know that I gave her corn, and wine, and oil, and multiplied her silver and gold, which they prepared for Baal.
9 Therefore will I return, and take away my corn in the time thereof, and my wine in the season thereof, and will recover my wool and my flax given to cover her nakedness.
10 And now will I discover her flewdness in the sight of her lovers, and none shall deliver her out of mine hand.

CHAP. III.

By the kind dealing of an husband with an adulterous wife is represented (1) The deplorable manner in which Israel at that time abandoned themselves to idolatry and drunkenness; 1. (2) The debased and enslaved condition to which they, and at last the Jews, would be reduced in their long captivity; 2—4. (3) Their gracious reformation in the latter days; 5.

THEN said the LORD unto me, Go yet, love a woman beloved of her friend, yet an adulteress, according to the love of the LORD toward the chil-from their peculiar relation to me, to repent of, and reform from, their idolatries and other beloved abominations, lest I quickly deprive them of all their privileges, render their country desolate, themselves miserable captives, and, without mercy, continue my vengeance upon their posterity for many generations. 5—13. For since they, with impudent obstinacy, depend on Heathen alliances and idols, as if these had procured them their enjoyments, I will bring them into inextricable perplexities and miseries, that they shall not be able to accomplish their idolatrous or wicked designs. And, neither idols nor idolatrous allies being able to help them, they shall return to their God, who anciently heaped so many favours on their ancestors. And, because they refuse to own me as the bestower of those outward things wherewith they make and worship idols, I will deprive them of these things; and, by my fearful judgments, effectually and uncontrollably manifest their fearful wickedness to all the nations around, turn all their joy into mourning, all their plenty into miserable poverty, and give their substance to furious enemies, render their country desolate, and thus severely punish their idolatries. 14—18. Nevertheless, I, who brought their fathers out of Egypt into the wilderness, and entered into covenant with them, will at last deliver them from their captivity and dispersion, and, to their great comfort, bring them through all difficulties into their own land, and make them to rejoice in my salvation, as their fathers did on their having passed through the Red sea; and I will effectually determine them to renounce their idolatry and apostasy, and solemnly and cordially to acknowledge me alone as the Lord their gracious God. I will effectually protect them from every temporal or spiritual enemy and danger, 19—23; and, through the righteousness of my Son, I will, in infinite equity, wisdom, love, mercy, and faithfulness, render them my people by an everlasting covenant, and make them to know and acknowledge me as their God, fulfilling all my gracious promises. I will make all things in heaven and earth to concur in promoting their temporal, spiritual, and eternal welfare. Yes, I will graciously multiply their children; and, notwithstanding their long and fearful rejection, both Jews and Gentiles shall be rendered my peculiar people, sincere, bold, and open, professors of the gospel of Christ.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. II.—Our relation to God, and dependance on him, exceedingly aggravates our rebellion against him; and yet God will renew his grant of that relation. O how loth he is to give up his professing people! They who love him ought therefore with great earnestness to expostulate with backsliding brethren, in order to convince them of their sin, warn them of their danger, and to persuade them to repent of, and reform from, their sins; and not only to put away the grosser acts, but even the most inward and beloved abominations. If men abuse God's temporal favours in the service of idols, or accept them as received from such, it is but just that he should deprive them of them; and that he should mar the fields and flocks of those who have profaned his ordinances. But how sovereign are his mercies! Where sin and its punishments had abounded, grace much more abounds. God allures those by his gospel grace who justly deserve his everlasting destruction. And distress and fear, as well as foretastes of his kindness, promote spiritual gladness and detestation of idols. And, O, thrice blessed is it to have JEHOVAH our reviver and comforter, our cleanser from all idols, our protector from every enemy, our gracious, faithful, and everlasting husband, our enricher, our God, and our ALL! In view of this let my soul, hedged in by his providence and all allured by his kindness, cast out her idols, and claim JEHOVAH as my own; that, in Christ, I may have his grace, mercy, and peace, multiplied unto me! Adoring the grace, which first chose, espoused, and drew my heart, let me, in communion with his people cordially and solemnly take him to be my God for ever, and my guide even unto death!

CHAP. III. Ver. 2. Hosea's purchasing back his whorish wife at the price of a slave. denotes that base and disgraceful bondage in which the Israelites should long continue; 3, 4. This shews that the Israelites and Jews should, in the most deplorable manner, continue many ages without either civil or ecclesiastical establishment, neither worshipping the true God aright, nor professing regard to the idols of the nations. 5. But, after the captivity, and especially in the beginning of the glorious Millennium, shall all the Hebrew tribes, through the marvellous kindness of God, be converted to the Christian faith and true worship and fear of God.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. III.—It is very difficult to instruct or reclaim hardened professors. Precept must be upon precept, and sign upon sign. And the kindness of God seems long lost upon obstinate sinners. Sharply he must afflict them, even while he waits to be gracious: and long and disgraceful distress must teach them to value his kind returns. But happy are those afflictions which restrain us from using sinful means of relief, or which restrain us from following after idols. And thrice happy is it when both favours and frowns effectually draw us to Jesus Christ and his service. It is only in him that we can find JEHOVAH as ours, or taste of his heart-constraining goodness.

CHAP. IV. Ver. 1—5. Let the ten tribes of Israel know assuredly that God, highly provoked with their hypocrisy, fraud, and falsehood, their uncharitableness and cruelty, their wilful or slothful ignorance of divine things, and by their presumptuous profane swearing, perjury, murder, theft, and adultery, the repeated, and every where frequent, murders of their kings and others, will, by sword, famine and pestilence, render their country most miserable and desolate.

But it is to no purpose to warn or reprove them, they are so hardened and obstinate, and are ready to fly in the face of the best authorized reprovers. Therefore they and their false prophets shall be destroyed together, and their civil constitution shall be utterly broken, and the people murdered or dragged into captivity. 6—11. Since the priests neglect to instruct the people, and reject or forget the law of God, I will exclude them and their children from the office and benefit of the priesthood; and since, as their numbers, wealth, and power, increase, they become more daring in their impieties, I will strip them of all their possessions and honours, and render them miserable and contemptible captives. And since they, with eagerness and pleasure, pamper themselves with the flesh of the people's sin-offerings, and even encourage them to sin, that their gain may abound; therefore shall priests and people, already alike in ignorance, intemperance, and profaneness, be quickly alike involved in fearful punishments. Their food being withdrawn or cursed, they shall be pinched with hunger. Their whoredoms shall not increase their families, nor their idolatries nor sinful alliances their strength;—For they have openly cast off all regard to me and my law; their whoredoms, idolatries, drunkenness, and luxury, rendering them quite stupid and besotted. 12—14. Though they profess to be my people, they consult their wooden idols, and divine things by the falling of their staves. Instigated by the devil and their own idolatrous inclinations, they have renounced their dependance on me; and so abandoned themselves to idolatry that there is scarcely a top of an hill, or a cluster of trees, where they do not worship some idol: and therefore will I give them up to the basest uncleanness and whoredom, even in the worship of their idols, their daughters and wives being encouraged thereto by the example of their fathers and husbands:—in consequence of which, this besotted nation shall plunge themselves into ruin. 15—19. committed whoredom continually: her rulers with shame do love, Give ye.

CHAP. V.

Contains (1) a solemn warning to the Israelites and Jews; 1, 8. (2) An indictment for crimes, viz. the bad example of their priests and princes, and their persecution of the godly; 1, 2: idolatry and whoredom; 3, 4: pride; 5: treacherous alliances with heathens, or application to them for help; 13: tyranny of princes, and tame subjection of subjects; 10, 11. (3) Denunciation of punishment for these sins, all known to God; 3, viz. that they should fall in their crimes; 5: their wealth be devoured, and themselves oppressed; 7, 11: that they should be forsaken of God, and their sacrifices and prayers contemned; 6: their land be wrathfully desolated; 9, 10: and be ruined by less sensible, and then by more fearful and public, calamities; 12, 14. (4) A promise, that, after long distress, they should seek and find God favourable; 15.

HEAR ye this, O priests; and hearken, ye house of Israel; and give ye ear, O house of the king; for judgment is toward you, because ye have been a snare on Mizpah, and a net spread upon Tabor.

2 And the revolvers are profound to make slaughter, though I have been a rebuker of them all.

3 I know Ephraim; and Israel is not hid from me: for now, O Ephraim, thou committest whoredom, and Israel is defiled.

4 They will not frame their doings to turn unto their God; for the spirit of whoredoms is in the midst of them, and they have not known the LORD.

5 And the pride of Israel doth testify to his face: therefore shall Israel and Ephraim fall in their iniquity; Judah also shall fall with them.

6 They shall go with their flocks and with their herds to seek the LORD; but they shall not find him; he hath withdrawn himself from them.

7 They have dealt treacherously against the LORD; for they have begotten strange children: now shall a month devour them with their portions.

8 Blow ye the cornet in Gibeah, and the trumpet in Ramah: cry aloud at Beth-aven, after thee, O Benjamin.

9 Ephraim shall be desolate in the day of rebuke: among the tribes of Israel have I made known that which shall surely be.

10 The princes of Judah were like them that remove the bound: therefore I will pour out my wrath upon them like water.

11 Ephraim is oppressed and broken in judgment, because he willingly walked after the commandment.

12 Therefore will I be unto Ephraim as a moth, and to the house of Judah as rottenness.

13 When Ephraim saw his sickness, and Judah saw his wound, then went Ephraim to the Assyrian, and sent to king Jareb: yet could he not heal you, nor cure you of your wound.

14 For I will be unto Ephraim as a lion, and as a young lion to the house of Judah: I, even I, will tear and go away; I will take away, and none shall rescue him.

15 I will go and return to my place till they acknowledge their offence and seek my face: in their affliction they will seek me early.

Israelites have abandoned themselves to idolatry, let not the Jews copy their example, nor come near any of their idolatrous temples at Gilgal or Bethel, nor profane the name of the Lord by using it lightly, or attributing it to idols, or any way mixing his worship with idolatry or superstition:—for these Israelites are become quite headstrong and untractable in their apostasy from God to idols; and therefore shall their short-lived prosperity, under Jeroboam II. and Pekah, quickly issue in a miserable dispersion through the Assyrian empire. They are so violently addicted to idolatry, that it is needless for ministers to rebuke, conscience to check, providences to restrain or afflict, or my Spirit to strive any more with them. Their drink-offerings and other services are quite abominable to me: and the wine which they have intemperately drunk turns sour on their stomach. They are perpetually occupied in whoredom and idolatry; and nothing can be obtained from their judges but by the force of shameful bribery: therefore shall the Assyrians hurry them into a miserable captivity and lasting dispersion, in which they shall, with shame, see their folly in trusting to idols and departing from God.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. IV.—Alas, what unhappy discord sin sows between God and men! But they, who have lost the true knowledge of God, generally proceed from evil to worse. And profane ministers and magistrates are ordinarily ringleaders in guilt, and will rejoice in the wickedness of those under their charge, if it but add to their gain.—But it is just that God should withdraw his mercies from such as abuse them, and heap upon obstinate transgressors one plague after another;—that rebels against the light of his word should perish in their ignorance;—that ignorant and scandalous ministers should be exposed to peculiar misery and shame;—that what is unlawfully gained should be blasted with a curse, and that with which we have dishonoured God shall be turned to our shame;—and that sharers in sin should be sharers in punishment! Men will go the most dreadful lengths in sin when abandoned to their own hearts' lust: every one will then keep another in countenance, and their dreadful crimes will at last be made a distinguished branch in their punishment. And, when apostasy is general, there is great need to guard against the most distant compliances with it. It is hard to forbear the devil's service if we walk on his ground, or lose a proper reverence for God. And dreadful is the danger of complying with that which so quickly hurries men into sudden, unavoidable, and everlasting, ruin.

CHAP. V. Ver. 1, 2.—Seriously take warning, ye priests, Israelites, and princes, of the fearful, but just, judgments of God impending over you, because, like hunters and fowlers upon the mountains, ye have endeavoured by all means to ensnare men to idolatry and ruin; and, notwithstanding manifold rebukes by my prophets and providences, have, by subtle contrivances and specious pretences, oppressed and murdered your opposers. 3—7. But I am fully acquainted with all your wickedness, your idolatries and whoredoms, and how, through ignorance of me, ye are obstinately addicted to your apostasy and wickedness. Your pride is openly avowed, and your insolence in sin is manifested in your very looks; therefore shall ye be quickly destroyed by civil wars, and at last ruined by the Assyrians, in which the Jews shall partly share along with you. Nor shall either multitudes of sacrifices or of prayers avail to appease or turn away my wrath from you: but, since you have treacherously transgressed my command, in marrying Heathens, and bringing up your children as Heathens, the Assyrians shall, in a short time, devour both you and your estates. 8—10. Be warned, O ye Jews, that the Assyrians having desolated the country of the ten tribes, will render you miserable. They shall be utterly ruined, as I have often warned them by my prophets. And, since the princes of Judah have disregarded the bounds fixed by my law, and seized on their neighbour's property, therefore shall the Assyrians and others, as instruments of my wrath, overflow and sweep them away. 11—15. As a just punishment of the Israelites' ready compliance with the idolatrous laws of Jeroboam and his successors, they are terribly oppressed by their unrighteous and tyrannical magistrates; and my judgments shall gradually and insensibly waste the kingdoms of Israel and Judah; and, perceiving their weakness, they shall apply to the Assyrians for help; who will distress and ruin, instead of helping, them. And I, by their means, will in the most fearless and furious manner, destroy them and bereave them of their wealth. And, forbearing to help them, I will, for a time, leave them under the power of their troubles, till at last they be made candidly to acknowledge their offences, and earnestly supplicate my favour.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. V.—No station can protect men from God's vengeance, and no secrecy can conceal sin from his notice. But as they who allure men to sin are plagues to all around them, they may expect redoubled judgments. And none are more subtle and barbarous oppressors and persecutors than apostates, who sin against much light and love. They who treacherously revolt from God, and educate their children in idolatry, may expect to have themselves, and all they have quickly destroyed. And nothing more certainly presages destruction than pride and impudence in sinning. If men will not be humbled for their sins, they must perish in them. If men will make this world their portion, they may expect to have it rendered a means of their ruin. The destruction of one sinful nation should, but seldom does, make all their neighbours repent of their wickedness. God's threatenings become serious and awful in their fulfilment: and it forbodes ill when wicked laws are readily obeyed; when judgments are discerned, but not their cause; and when, under lesser judgments, men are not reformed, but fly to human aids. All means of relief prove fruitless except God bless them; and to trust to them but draws on heavier judgments. It is only in fellowship with God that men can be truly happy; and it is only in the way of acknowledging our offences, and of earnest prayer, that we can expect the returns of his favour.

will heal us; he hath smitten, and he will bind us up.

2 After two days will he revive us: in the third day he will raise us up, and we shall live in his sight.

3 Then shall we know, if we follow on to know the LORD: his going forth is prepared as the morning; and he shall come unto us as the rain, as the latter and former rain unto the earth.

4 ¶ O Ephraim, what shall I do unto thee? O Judah, what shall I do unto thee? for your goodness is as a morning cloud, and as the early dew it goeth away.

5 Therefore have I hewed them by the prophets; I have slain them by the words of my mouth: and thy judgments are as the light that goeth forth.

6 For I desired mercy, and not sacrifice; and the knowledge of God more than burnt-offerings.

7 But they like men have transgressed the covenant: there have they dealt treacherously against me.

8 Gilead is a city of them that work iniquity, and is polluted with blood.

9 And as troops of robbers wait for a man, so the company of priests murder in the way by consent; for they commit lewdness.

10 I have seen an horrible thing in the house of Israel: there is the whoredom of Ephraim; Israel is defiled.

11 ¶ Also, O Judah, he hath set an harvest for thee when I returned the captivity of my people.

12 ¶ Ephraim is like a silly dove without heart: they call to Egypt, they go to Assyria.

13 ¶ When they shall go, I will spread my net upon them; I will bring them down as the fowls of the heaven; I will chastise them as their congregation hath heard.

14 ¶ Ephraim was discovered, and the wickedness of Samaria: for they commit falsehood; and the thief cometh in, and the troop of robbers spoileth without.

15 ¶ And they consider not in their hearts that I remember all their wickedness: now their own doings have beset them about; they are before my face.

16 ¶ They make the king glad with their wickedness, and the princes with their lies.

17 ¶ They are all adulterers, as an oven heated by the baker, who ceaseth from raising after he hath kneaded the dough, until it be leavened.

18 ¶ In the day of our king the princes have made him sick with bottles of wine: he stretched out his hand with scorn.

19 ¶ For they have made ready their heart like an oven, whiles they lie in wait: their baker sleepeth all the night; in the morning it burneth as a flaming fire.

20 ¶ They are all hot as an oven, and have devoured their judges; all their kings are fallen; there is none among them that calleth unto me.

21 ¶ Ephraim, he hath mixed himself among the people; Ephraim is a cake not turned.

22 ¶ Strangers have devoured his strength, and he knoweth it not: yea, grey hairs are here and there upon him, yet he knoweth not.

23 ¶ And the pride of Israel testifieth to his face: and they do not return to the LORD their God, nor seek him for all this.

24 ¶ Ephraim also is like a silly dove without heart: they call to Egypt, they go to Assyria.

25 ¶ When they shall go, I will spread my net upon them; I will bring them down as the fowls of the heaven; I will chastise them as their congregation hath heard.

CHAP. VIII.

Continues (1) Loudly to set forth the Israelites' sins; 1, 3, 12, 14: particularly in setting up kings without God; 4: and idols against God; 4—6, 11: and in courting alliances with their heathen neighbours; 8—10: though all this while they kept up a profession of religion and relation to God; 2, 13, 14. (2) To annex punishment to these sins;—that God would bring the Assyrians upon them; 1, 3: would blast all their projects, and disappoint all their hopes of assistance from allies; 6—9: weaken their strength; 14: disregard their sacrifices, and reckon with them for their sins; 15.

by my prophets, debase and distress them. 13. Their apostasy from me, and rebellion against my laws, shall issue in their fearful and lasting ruin. For, though I have often delivered them in straits, they have set up idols in my room, contradicted my oracles, or entertained me with hypocritical pretences and promises of reformation. 14. Yea, even when, in their beds or idol-temples, they pitifully mourned under their calamities, they never heartily supplicated me: and, while they eagerly desired corn and wine to satisfy their lust, they continued in their rebellion against me. 15. Whether I weakened them by adversity, or strengthened them by prosperity, they contrived how to displease me more and more by their idolatrous and wicked courses. 16. And, even when they pretend to repent and turn to me, all is mere dissimulation;—therefore shall their princes, who have blasphemed me and reviled my prophets, be miserably destroyed by the Assyrians or conspirators; and all their applications to the Egyptians for help shall but issue in a derision of their calamities.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. VII.—Alas, how men oppose JEHOVAH's kindness to themselves, and obstinately dare to discredit the threatenings of God! but his ruinous judgments will at last convince them that he remembers their works. Palaces and courts are in general nests of abominations. And infernal influence and lustful fire furiously hurry sinners into whoredom and wickedness, while with surprising care and contrivance they wait for opportunities of gratifying their desires. And awful is their case who in trouble restrain prayer before God. Unnecessary connection with the wicked is very ensnaring and ruinous to religion and liberty; and God often makes such companions the instruments of punishing us. While stupidity under lesser judgments presages greater ones, application to heathens for help hastens them forward. Either pride, or they who indulge it, must be infallibly ruined. And nothing can be more provoking to God than to see those, whom he has kindly warned, returning him hatred for his love. No wonder he detests the prayers of such as seek nothing but carnal enjoyments to gratify their lusts. And, if even the greatest deal deceitfully with God, or outrageously with men, they themselves shall be rendered miserable and contemptible.

CHAP. VIII. Ver. 1. Loudly and earnestly warn these Israelites, who profess to be my people, that the Assyrians shall quickly and unavoidably tear, murder, and destroy them, because they have violated their covenant-obligations to me, and rebelled against my commandments. 2. In their distress they will indeed profess to acknowledge me for their God. 3. But, since they have practically rejected me and my worship, and cast off any due regard to my laws, the Assyrians shall pursue, murder, and carry them captive. 4. Without any regard to my commandment, they have set up what kings and governors they pleased; and, to their own ruin, have made themselves idols of silver and gold. 5. But the idol calf, which they have placed at Samaria, Dan, Beth-el, or any where else, instead of protecting these obstinate sinners, provokes me to abandon them to their enemies. 6. According to their own invention, not any command of mine, the craftsman formed that merely pretended deity; and quickly shall it, unable to protect itself, be broken to pieces. 7. In their idolatrous courses and Heathen alliances, they but hasten upon themselves fearful miseries; and any appearance of success, which they have for a while, shall but tempt the Assyrians to invade and ruin their country. 8. They shall certainly be spoiled and devoured; and the poor remains of them, in a most despicable condition, be dispersed among the Heathens of Assyria and the places adjacent. 9, 10. Their headstrong application to the Assyrians for help shall but issue in their unhappy captivity. The allies, whom they have procured at great expense, shall turn their enemies, and besiege them in their cities. And the vexatious tribute, imposed upon them by Pul, the powerful monarch of Assyria, is but a prelude to far greater calamities. 11. The multitudes of idolatrous altars which they have erected, instead of atoning for their sin, or preventing their punishment, shall increase both. 12. I have, in the most clear and instructive manner, revealed to them my oracles, directing them in every thing important in time or eternity; but they have quite disregarded my institutions, and abused my prophets, as setters forth of strange doctrines or insignificant fables. 13. Their sacrifices, which, without inward piety, they pretend to offer to me, but feast on themselves, I regard as no better than dead carrion; yea, they but hasten the punishment of their sins, and their flight into Egypt, for fear of the Assyrians. 14. Forgetful of their Maker and God, and regardless of his laws, the Israelites build temples for their idols, and the Jews fortify their cities, to secure themselves from the enemy. But the Assyrians or Chaldeans shall, ere long, burn and destroy them all.

CHAP. IX.

Here, (1) For their idolatry, the Israelites are threatened with famine, captivity, an unsettled state, want of divine ordinances, destruction of their persons, and desolation of their country; 1—6. (2) For the wickedness of their prophets, and their own, by which they were filling up the iniquities of their fathers, they are condemned to sudden destruction; 7—10. (3) For contempt of God's word and rod, corruption of his worship, and wickedness of their rulers, they and their children are condemned to almost utter destruction and a miserable captivity; 11—17.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. VIII.—Ministers had need to be extremely bold and earnest in warning sinners. Men's own sins are their destroyers. God never casts off any till they cast off him. They who break his covenant of friendship, expose themselves to the devouring rage of all around. Nor will any profession of relation to, or knowledge of, God, avail those who in works deny him. The idolizing of creatures makes way for the destruction of both them and ourselves; and, however gradually God's judgments may come, they will fall irresistibly at last. None are more despicable than professed Christians who have degenerated into profaneness. And the helps that men court instead of God will but prove the means of their ruin. If the great doctrines and laws

REJOICE not, O Israel, for joy, as other people: for thou hast gone a whoring from thy God; thou hast loved a reward upon every corn floor.

2 The floor and the wine press shall not feed them, and the new wine shall fail in her.

3 They shall not dwell in the LORD's land; but Ephraim shall return to Egypt, and they shall eat unclean things in Assyria.

4 They shall not offer wine-offerings to the LORD, neither shall they be pleasing unto him: their sacrifices shall be unto them as the bread of mourners: all that eat thereof shall be polluted: for their bread for their soul shall not come into the house of the LORD.

5 What will ye do in the solemn day, and in the day of the feast of the LORD?

6 For lo they are gone, because of destruction: Egypt shall gather them up, Memphis shall bury them: the pleasant places for their silver, nettles shall possess them: thorns shall be in their tabernacles.

7 The days of visitation are come, the days of recompence are come; Israel shall know it: the prophet is a fool, the spiritual man is mad, for the multitude of thine iniquity and the great hatred.

8 The watchman of Ephraim was with my God; but the prophet is a snare of a fowler in all his ways, and hated in the house of his God.

9 They have deeply corrupted themselves, as in the days of Gibeah: therefore he will remember their iniquity, he will visit their sins.

10 I found Israel like grapes in the wilderness: I saw your fathers as the first ripe in the fig tree at her first time: but they went to Baal-peor, and separated themselves unto that shame; and their

of his word be disregarded, no sacrifices, however costly, no forms of religion, can avail, but to aggravate our guilt or hasten our ruin. And neither temples nor fortifications can protect in the day of his wrath.

CHAP. IX. Ver. 1. Do not vainly imagine, ye Israelites, that your prosperity will be as secure and lasting as that of other nations, for your iniquities are greater: ye have treacherously revolted from JEHOVAH, your God, to idols; and, reckoning your enjoyments their gifts, ye have honoured them with the tithes and first fruits belonging to JEHOVAH. 2. Therefore blasting or mildew, or the ravages of the enemy, shall rob you of your abused blessings, and leave you pining for want. 3. No longer shall ye continue in Canaan, but part of you, as fugitives and vagabonds, shall retire into Egypt, and the rest be carried captive into Assyria, to live in slavery and idolatry. 4. Nor shall ye be qualified, nor have any opportunity, to present any offerings to God that will be accepted; for ye shall have no access to bring your meat-offerings, or sacrifices for your sins, into my temple. 5. Under your cruel oppression, ye shall have neither time nor liberty to keep any of your solemn feasts. 6. And, while such of you as flee into Egypt, or the countries adjacent, are cut off by sword, famine, and pestilence, your stately and expensive houses shall be turned into heaps of rubbish. 7. Quickly ye shall see and feel those dreadful, but richly-deserved, judgments. Ye, who mocked the prophets of God as fools and madmen, shall find that your false prophets were such, when ye are abandoned of God for your inexpressible wickedness and great hatred of him and his worship, and even of one another. 8. Once ye had prophets who were zealous for me, and faithfully declared my messages: but now, whatever they pretend, your false prophets do, by their doctrine and example, ensnare you into sin and punishment, being haters of, and hated by, God, as they seduce and deter men from his worship and service; nay, are detested in the very temple of their idols. 9. Like the miscreants of Gibeah, ye are generally arrived at the highest pitch of lewdness, cruelty, and contempt of me, therefore will I speedily punish you in an exemplary manner. 10. Once I delighted in your fathers in the wilderness, blessed and watched over them as my chosen people; but they ungratefully apostatized to the shameful worship of Baal-peor, drawn into the snare by whorish women; and ever since ye and your fathers have multiplied and worshipped idols, as your lusts and fancies directed you. 11, 12. Your present blossoms of prosperity shall quickly leave you; and, partly by miscarriages, curdy deaths, ravage, and murders of the enemy, your multitudes of which ye abominations were according as they loved.

11 As for Ephraim, their glory shall fly away like a bird, from the birth, and from the womb, and from the conception.

12 Though they bring up their children, yet will I bereave them, that there shall not be a man left: yea, wo also to them when I depart from them!

13 Ephraim, as I saw Tyrus, is planted in a pleasant place: but Ephraim shall bring forth his children to the murderer.

14 Give them, O LORD: what wilt thou give? give them a miscarrying womb and dry breasts.

15 All their wickedness is in Gilgal; for there I hated them: for the wickedness of their doings I will drive them out of mine house; I will love them no more: all their princes are revolters.

16 Ephraim is smitten, their root is dried up, they shall bear no fruit: yea, though they bring forth, yet will I slay even the beloved fruit of their womb.

17 My God will cast them away, because they did not hearken unto him: and they shall be wanderers among the nations.

CHAP. X

Here, (1) For unfruitfulness, selfishness, hypocrisy, and idolatry, in their worship, the Israelites are threatened with the destruction of their images and altars; 1, 2, 5, 6, 8. (2) For false swearing, treachery, and injustice, in their civil government, they are threatened with its ruin; 3, 4, 7. (3) For imitating their fathers in obstinacy and ingratitude, and for carnal security, they are threatened with sharp and debasing judgments; 9—11; and with utter ruin, except they repent; 12—15.

ISRAEL is an empty vine; he bringeth forth fruit unto himself: according to the multitude of his fruit he hath increased the altars; according to the goodness of his land they have made goodly images.

2 Their heart is divided; now shall they be found faulty; he shall break down their altars; he shall spoil their images.

boast shall be almost utterly destroyed; and dreadful and lasting shall be your miseries when I withdraw my protection. 13. Your country seems as well replenished and fortified as Tyre itself: but your children shall be destroyed by the Assyrians. 14. Ye had therefore better have no children than bring them up for the slaughter. 15. Gilgal, where I so remarkably blessed your fathers, and where my tabernacle once stood, is become notorious for idolatry and other wickedness. Therefore I hate them, and will expel them from my land and church, and will for many ages pursue them with the tokens of my vengeance, their princes are revolters from my worship, and break through all the rules of justice and honesty. 16, 17. I will therefore utterly destroy them, root and branch; and, for their obstinate rebellion, cast them away into a miserable captivity and dispersion among the Heathens.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. IX.—It is absurd to rejoice when sin reigns in us, guilt burdens our conscience, and God's wrath hangs over our head. If we idolize our created enjoyments, or bestow them upon the service of the devil, it is but just that God should deprive us of them. It is but just that apostates from God's service should be expelled from his land; that they who despise his ordinances should be deprived of them. And, if sin turn populous countries into desolations, the sinful inhabitants may expect destruction, flee where they will. The appointed season of God's judgments will bring to light and punish their abominations. Nor have any a more awful influence in ripening nations for ruin than villainous clergymen. If sinners will imitate their fathers in wickedness, they may expect to draw on themselves the most fearful destruction. If they separate themselves to wickedness, God will separate them to punishment. If they follow their lusts, God will withdraw his protection, and usher in a flood of calamities. If they educate their children in sin, God will destroy them in wrath. The crosses which children often occasion more than counterbalance the comfort of them. And no misery is greater than to be deserted, hated, and rejected by God. But thrice happy are they, in the worst of times, who have God for their God and their ALL.

CHAP. X. Ver. 1. The Israelites, destitute of true goodness, have done nothing for my glory, but have been intent only upon gratifying their own lusts; and, the more their wealth increased, the more they multiplied their idolatries, and their heart is divided between me and their idols; and mutual contentions rage among them; but their guilt shall quickly issue in their desolation; and REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. X.—A selfish spirit defrauds God of his due honours. Nothing can be more criminal than to multiply our sins as God increases his favours: and nothing more just than for God to deprive us of that which we employ in the service of Satan. No inward treachery or dissimulation escapes his notice: highly he detests all deceit in oaths, covenants, and vows, and all injustice in civil dealings or judgments.—If we make creatures our idols, it but hastens their destruction. And, if God's grace destroy not the love of sin in us, his providence will destroy the fuel of sinful lusts around us. It is kind in God to chastise men, that he may not destroy them. He often punishes with hardships those who have indulged themselves in luxurious pleasures. And men's rewards or punishments are framed answerably to their virtue or vice. But, alas, what barbarous work, what dreadful and unexpected calamities, hath sin introduced!

CHAP. XI. When your nation was extremely debased, and unable to help themselves, I fixed upon it for my peculiar people, and, by my special providence, brought them out of Egypt by the hand of Moses and Aaron; and I will hereafter bring forth my Son Jesus Christ from thence. Ver. 2. But such was their ingratitude, that, the more my prophets exhorted and invited them to repentance and holy obedience, the more contrarily they walked, and obstinately abandoned themselves to Heathenish idolatries. 3. I tenderly conducted them through the Arabian wilderness, and supported and carried them through every difficulty: but they seemed insensible of, and never cordially acknowledged my kind removal of judgments which they had deserved, and my preservation from dangers. 4. By every endearing motive and constraining influence, suited to their rational nature, I allured them to a stedfast obedience; I delivered them from their repeated oppressions by the Egyptians and under the Judges; and, both in the wilderness and in Canaan, provided them with every necessary enjoyment. 5, 6. But since, notwithstanding my favours, they obstinately persist in their wickedness, and trust to their own devices, I will put an end to their alliances with, or their fleeing for shelter to, the Egyptians, by giving them into the hand of the Assyrians, who shall desolate their cities and villages, and carry the survivors into a miserable captivity. 7. For they are so obstinate in their idolatries, that, let my prophets invite and entreat them as they will to forsake their idols and return to me, scarcely any regard 8 ¶ How shall I give thee up, Ephraim? how shall I deliver thee, Israel? how shall I make thee as ^aAdmah? how shall I set thee as Zeboim? mine heart is turned within me, my repentings are kindled together.

9 I will not execute the fierceness of mine anger, I will not return to destroy Ephraim; for I am God, and not man; the Holy One in the midst of thee; and I will not enter into the city.

10 They shall walk after the LORD: he shall roar like a lion: when he shall roar, then the children shall tremble from the west.

11 They shall tremble as a bird out of Egypt, and as a dove out of the land of Assyria: and I will place them in their houses, saith the LORD.

12 ¶ Ephraim compasseth me about with lies, and the house of Israel with deceit: but Judah yet ruleth with God, and is faithful with the saints.

13 ¶ Ephraim saith, I will not return to the LORD: for I have feared the word of the LORD.

14 ¶ Ephraim saith, I will not return to the LORD: for I have feared the word of the LORD.

15 ¶ Ephraim saith, I will not return to the LORD: for I have feared the word of the LORD.

16 ¶ Ephraim saith, I will not return to the LORD: for I have feared the word of the LORD.

17 ¶ Ephraim saith, I will not return to the LORD: for I have feared the word of the LORD.

18 ¶ Ephraim saith, I will not return to the LORD: for I have feared the word of the LORD.

19 ¶ Ephraim saith, I will not return to the LORD: for I have feared the word of the LORD.

20 ¶ Ephraim saith, I will not return to the LORD: for I have feared the word of the LORD.

21 ¶ Ephraim saith, I will not return to the LORD: for I have feared the word of the LORD.

22 ¶ Ephraim saith, I will not return to the LORD: for I have feared the word of the LORD.

23 ¶ Ephraim saith, I will not return to the LORD: for I have feared the word of the LORD.

24 ¶ Ephraim saith, I will not return to the LORD: for I have feared the word of the LORD.

25 ¶ Ephraim saith, I will not return to the LORD: for I have feared the word of the LORD.

26 ¶ Ephraim saith, I will not return to the LORD: for I have feared the word of the LORD.

27 ¶ Ephraim saith, I will not return to the LORD: for I have feared the word of the LORD.

28 ¶ Ephraim saith, I will not return to the LORD: for I have feared the word of the LORD.

29 ¶ Ephraim saith, I will not return to the LORD: for I have feared the word of the LORD.

30 ¶ Ephraim saith, I will not return to the LORD: for I have feared the word of the LORD.

31 ¶ Ephraim saith, I will not return to the LORD: for I have feared the word of the LORD.

32 ¶ Ephraim saith, I will not return to the LORD: for I have feared the word of the LORD.

33 ¶ Ephraim saith, I will not return to the LORD: for I have feared the word of the LORD.

34 ¶ Ephraim saith, I will not return to the LORD: for I have feared the word of the LORD.

35 ¶ Ephraim saith, I will not return to the LORD: for I have feared the word of the LORD.

36 ¶ Ephraim saith, I will not return to the LORD: for I have feared the word of the LORD.

37 ¶ Ephraim saith, I will not return to the LORD: for I have feared the word of the LORD.

38 ¶ Ephraim saith, I will not return to the LORD: for I have feared the word of the LORD.

39 ¶ Ephraim saith, I will not return to the LORD: for I have feared the word of the LORD.

40 ¶ Ephraim saith, I will not return to the LORD: for I have feared the word of the LORD.

41 ¶ Ephraim saith, I will not return to the LORD: for I have feared the word of the LORD.

42 ¶ Ephraim saith, I will not return to the LORD: for I have feared the word of the LORD.

43 ¶ Ephraim saith, I will not return to the LORD: for I have feared the word of the LORD.

44 ¶ Ephraim saith, I will not return to the LORD: for I have feared the word of the LORD.

4 Yea, he had power over the Angel, and prevailed: he wept, and made supplication unto him: he found him in Beth-el, and there he spake with us; 5 Even the LORD God of hosts, the LORD is his memorial.

6 Therefore turn thou to thy God; keep mercy and judgment, and wait on thy God continually.

7 ¶ He is a merchant, the balances of deceit are in his hand: he loveth to oppress.

8 And Ephraim said, Yet I am become rich, I have found me out substance: in all my labours they shall find none iniquity in me that were sin.

9 And I, that am the LORD thy God from the land of Egypt, will yet make thee to dwell in tabernacles, as in the days of the solemn feast.

10 I have also spoken by the prophets, and I have multiplied visions, and used similitudes, by the ministry of the prophets.

11 Is there iniquity in Gilead? surely they are vanity: they sacrifice bullocks in Gilgal; yea, their altars are as heaps in the furrows of the fields.

12 And Jacob fled into the country of Syria, and Israel served for a wife, and for a wife he kept sheep.

13 And by a prophet the LORD brought Israel out of Egypt, and by a prophet was he preserved.

14 Ephraim provoked him to anger; most bitterly: therefore shall he leave his blood upon him; and his reproach shall his LORD return unto him.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. XIII.—Humility, especially towards God, is the infallible road to honour and happiness; but forsaking God and following idols the certain path to death and destruction. When men have once set off in a course of sin, they generally wax worse and worse. And, as holiness is the honour and stability of persons and societies, sin is the shame, and will be the ruin, of any people. No solid or lasting comfort is any where to be found but in God himself: and his help in a time of need is doubly kind and useful, and never to be forgotten. But, alas, his mercies are often fearfully abused, to the terrible and irresistible ruin of the impenitent! Obstinacy in sin is the grossest self-murder: but in JERUSALEM our God, our Saviour, our King, the very worst may find abundant relief. And sad would be our case if he were not better to us than we are to ourselves. Unprofitable is every thing that we get without his blessing. And exact is the account he keeps of our sins against the time of his judgments. With great care he chastens his people, that they may not be destroyed. And sinners do but foolishly rush forward into dreadful and everlasting ruin by delaying their repentance. But O how astonishing is the freedom and fulness of salvation! May our hearts for ever glow with gratitude, and our lips for ever utter praise, to that kind Redeemer who so loved us, and gave himself to death and the grave for us!

CHAP. XIV. Ver. 1. But, notwithstanding all the misery ye have brought upon yourselves by your sins, return, by faith and repentance, to me, who have granted myself to you in the gospel as your reconciled God. 2. Earnestly beg that I may pardon your guilt, mortify your corruptions, accept you into favour, adopt you into my family, and bestow upon you all necessary blessings, that may fill your hearts and months with grateful praise. 3. Solemnly renounce all carnal confidence in foreign forces, military preparations, or lying idols, and trust only in me, as the helper of the helpless outcasts. 4. And I, as one graciously reconciled in Christ, will, in free mercy, pardon your iniquities, reform you from your evil courses, remove the judgments which ye have deserved, and confer upon you unmerited favours. 5—7. And not only will I, by my favourable dispensations of providence, after the captivity in Babylon, and especially in the millennium, render you glorious, well established, numerous, and every way prosperous, useful, and respected as a nation; but, by the gracious influences of CHAP. XIII. While you Israelites retained any fear of the true God, and awful regard to his messages, ye prospered and were revered. But since ye abandoned yourselves to the grossest idolatries, ye have been in a declining condition. Ver. 2. And yet ye are still racking your minds and exhausting your wealth, to make and serve new idols; and your rulers are making new laws as to their worship. 3. Therefore shall ye, as utterly despicable and worthless, be quickly, easily, and universally, ruined, murdered, and carried captive by the Assyrians. 4. And, however ungratefully ye have disowned me the gracious God and Saviour of your fathers, ye shall find at last that none else can avail you as a God to protect and deliver you. 5. In the wilderness, where was nothing but dangers and wants, I carefully supplied your fathers with every thing necessary and comfortable, and adopted them for my peculiar people. 6. But they had scarcely entered Canaan, and enjoyed its plentiful product, when they attended to nothing but the gratification of their proud and sensual lusts. 7, 8. Therefore will I give you up to the furious, irresistible, unavoidable, sudden, barbarous, and ruinous, ravages of the Assyrian troops. 9. By your sins ye have brought all this misery on yourselves; but in and by me, your Almighty God and Saviour, and no other, can ye have protection, support, or deliverance. 10, 11. What avail now your kings and other magistrates, of whom ye were once so fond, as if better governors than me? Both the giving and the removing of your kings have been generally the fruits of my displeasure with you, and contributed to ruin you. 12. And your iniquities have all been kept in reserve by me, to be brought forth and punished in due season. 13. Dreadful distress and anguish shall therefore suddenly come upon you. And yet, alas, stupid and thoughtless, ye take no more pains than a still-born child by an earnest repentance to extricate yourselves from the troubles which ye feel, or have reason to fear. 14. In mere sovereignty I will therefore prevent your utter destruction, and will infallibly at last restore you from the lowest depths of misery. Nay, by my own death, I will ransom multitudes of mankind from all their misery of every form, and give them a glorious resurrection to everlasting life. 15, 16. But before this take place the Assyrians shall invade your populous and wealthy country, shall lay it desolate, seize on your wealth, destroy your wicked capital, and in the most barbarous and inhuman manner murder the inhabitants.

my word and Spirit, will render you fruitful, flourishing, and well established, in the beauties of holiness. Your converts shall greatly increase in number, and grow in knowledge and grace; and their gracious endowments and holy conversation shall be steady, persevering, delightful, and engaging to all around. They who enjoy the ordinances of my grace, shall be thereby converted; and, after their afflictions become more fruitful in holiness, to the edification and comfort of all around them. 8. While ye with abhorrence shall renounce all your idolatries, I will graciously hear your prayers, bless, protect, and save, you; and from me shall all your happiness and holiness be derived. 9. But it is only they who, being taught of God, seriously inquire into these things that shall understand them: for his oracles and ordinances, and dispensations of providence, are all right, holy, just, and good; and the righteous will walk in them, obedient to his will, and submissive to his providence; but proud, obstinate, and inconsiderate, sinners will take occasion from them to fall into wickedness and ruin.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. XIV.—Awfully ruinous is sin; and very necessary a gospel repentance for it: and nothing more effectually leads to this than a firm faith in God's gospel grant of himself to us as our God. Great is the condescension that God should instruct us what to pray for, and how to pray, as well as readily grant our requests. And happy and delightful is it to deal with a God of infinite mercy and goodness; for all his promises are answerable to the necessities and prayers of those whom he instructs. Marvellous is the change made on persons and societies by his all-powerful grace, and kind the notice which he takes of his people's penitential resolutions! He is the gracious fountain and root of all blessings and spiritual influences to them. And there is great need therefore seriously to consider his oracles and providences; and what different use is made thereof. To the humble enquirer they are the savour of life unto life—but of death unto death to every impenitent transgressor!

THE PROPHECY OF JOEL.

Whether Joel prophesied in Judea before Hosea and Amos prophesied in Israel, and foretells the plagues of locusts and drought which Amos laments; chap. vii.: or after the Israelites were carried captive into Assyria, we cannot determine. His prophecy contains (1) A representation of Judea, as terribly plagued by swarms of locusts, and other insects, and great drought, intermixed with calls to solemn repentance and promises of deliverance; i. ii. 1—17. (2) Predictions of the glorious blessings to the gospel church in the apostolic and millennial periods, and of ruin to her and the Jews' enemies; ii. 28—32. iii.

CHAP. I.

(1) Describes an unparalleled devastation of the country by locusts, caterpillars, &c. 1—7. (2) Calls besotted drunkards, and all ranks, sharing of its sad effects, to consider and bewail it; 5, 8—13. (3) Calls them to solemn fasting, on account of that famine and drought which the prophet and the very beasts already bewailed; 14—20.

15 Alas for the day! for the day of the LORD is at hand; and as a destruction from the Almighty shall it come.

16 Is not the meat cut off before our eyes, yea, joy and gladness from the house of our God?

17 The seed is rotten under their clods, the garners are laid desolate, the barns are broken down; for the corn is withered.

18 How do the beasts groan! the herds of cattle are perplexed because they have no pasture; yea, the flocks of sheep are made desolate.

19 O LORD, to thee will I cry: for the fire hath devoured the pastures of the wilderness, and the flame hath burned all the trees of the field.

20 The beasts of the field cry also unto thee: for the rivers of waters are dried up, and the fire hath devoured the pastures of the wilderness.

CHAP. II.

(1) Further describes the terrible devastation of the country by the locusts and caterpillars, which might likewise be emblematical of that made by the Assyrians; 1—11. (2) Solemnly calls and directs the afflicted Jews how to repent, fast, and pray for deliverance; 12—17. (3) Promises that, on their repentance, God would remove the locusts, repair the damage which they had done, and restore plenty of every necessary blessing; 18—27. Foretells the erection of the Redeemer's kingdom among all nations, by the out-pouring of the Holy Ghost upon all ranks, in the apostolic and millennial periods; but attended with terrible judgments upon their Jewish, Antichristian, and other opposers; 28—32.

BLOW ye the trumpet in Zion, and sound an alarm in my holy mountain: let all the inhabitants of the land tremble: for the day of the LORD cometh, for it is nigh at hand;

2 A day of darkness and of gloominess, a day of clouds and of thick darkness, as the morning spread upon the mountains: a great people and a strong: there hath not been ever the like, neither shall be any more after it, even to the years of many generations.

3 A fire devoureth before them, and behind them a flame burneth: the land is as the garden of Eden before them, and behind them a desolate wilderness; yea, and nothing shall escape them.

4 The appearance of them is as the appearance of horses; and as horsemen, so shall they run.

5 Like the noise of chariots on the tops of mountains shall they leap, like the noise of a flame of fire that devoureth the stubble, as a strong people set in battle array.

6 Before their face the people shall be much pained: all faces shall gather blackness.

7 They shall run like mighty men; they shall climb the wall like men of war; and they shall march every one on his ways, and they shall not break their ranks:

8 Neither shall one thrust another; they shall walk every one in his path: and when they fall upon the sword they shall not be wounded.

9 They shall run to and fro in the city; they shall run upon the wall; they shall climb up upon the houses; they shall enter in at the windows like a thief.

10 The earth shall quake before them; the heavens shall tremble; the sun and the moon shall be dark, and the stars shall withdraw their shining:

11 And the LORD shall utter his voice before his army: for his camp is very great: for he is strong that executeth his word: for the day of the LORD is great and very terrible; and who can abide it?

12 ¶ Therefore also now, saith the LORD, Turn ye even to me with all your heart, and with fasting, and with weeping, and with mourning.

13 And rend your heart and not your garments, and turn unto the LORD your God; for he is gracious and merciful, slow to anger, and of great kindness, and repenteth him of the evil.

14 Who knoweth if he will return and repent, and leave a blessing behind him, even a meat-offering and a drink-offering unto the LORD your God?

15 ¶ Blow the trumpet in Zion, sanctify a fast, call a solemn assembly:

16 Gather the people, sanctify the congregation, assemble the elders, gather the children and those that suck the breasts: let the bridegroom go forth of his chamber, and the bride out of her closet.

17 Let the priests, the ministers of the LORD, weep between the porch and the altar; and let them say, Spare thy people, O LORD, and give not thine heritage to reproach, that the heathen should rule over them: wherefore should they say among the people, Where is their God?

18 ¶ Then will the LORD be jealous for his land, and pity his people.

19 Yea, the LORD will answer and say unto his people, Behold, I will send you corn, and wine, and oil, and ye shall be satisfied therewith: and I will no more make you a reproach among the heathen:

20 But I will remove far off from you the northern army, and will drive him into a land barren and desolate, with his face toward the east sea, and his hinder part toward the utmost sea; and his stink shall come up, and his ill savour shall

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. I.—God's judgments and mercies ought to be carefully observed and remembered. Nor need we wonder if he deprive us of the mercies which we have sinfully abused, or make even the weakest insects the victorious instruments of his wrath. It is hard to part with created comforts, once idolized. But certain is their shame who labour only for perishing provision; and sad their sorrow at last who place all their happiness in the delights of sense! Alas, how wide-spread is the havoc made by men's sin! And it is a lamentable case when poverty disqualifies for the public service of God. National judgments call for national humiliation and importunate prayers. And in the way of our duty we may hope that God will meet us in mercy. But hardened must that heart be which trembles not when God's judgments are every where before our eyes; and the very animals around us bewail the disaster. Yet God's ministers must be deeply affected themselves, even though they cannot affect their hearers.

EXPLANATORY NOTES. CHAP. II. Ver. 1, 2, 10, 11, 30, 31. The devastations of the locusts, and the dreadful destruction of the Jews by the Romans, are described in this awful manner, because the former presaged the invasions of the Assyrians, and the latter were preludes of Christ's awful appearance to the last judgment.

21 ¶ Fear not, O land, be glad and rejoice; for the LORD will do great things.

22 Be not afraid, ye beasts of the field; for the pastures of the wilderness do spring, for the tree beareth her fruit, the fig tree and the vine do yield their strength.

23 Be glad then, ye children of Zion, and rejoice in the LORD your God; for he hath given you the former rain moderately, and he will cause to come down for you the rain, the former rain, and the latter rain in the first month.

24 And the floors shall be full of wheat, and the fats shall overflow with wine and oil.

25 And I will restore to you the years that the locust hath eaten, the canker worm, and the caterpillar, and the palmer worm; my great army which I sent among you.

26 And ye shall eat in plenty, and be satisfied, and praise the name of the LORD your God, that hath dealt wondrously with you: and my people shall never be ashamed.

27 And ye shall know that I am in the midst of Israel, and that I am the LORD your God, and none else: and my people shall never be ashamed.

28 ¶ And it shall come to pass afterward, that I will pour out my spirit upon all flesh: and your sons and your daughters shall prophesy, your old men shall dream dreams, your young men shall see visions:

29 And also upon the servants and upon the handmaids in those days will I pour out my spirit.

30 And I will shew wonders in the heavens and in the earth, blood, and fire, and pillars of smoke.

31 The sun shall be turned into darkness, and the moon into blood, before the great and the terrible day of the LORD come.

32 And it shall come to pass, that whosoever shall call on the name of the LORD shall be delivered: for in mount Zion and in Jerusalem shall be deliverance, as the LORD hath said, and in the remnant whom the LORD shall call.

CHAP. III.

Contains predictions (1) Of God's reckoning with his enemies—the Philistines, Phœnicians, Assyrians, Chaldeans, Syro-grecians, Romans, Antichristians, and Turks—for the injuries done to his Jewish or Christian people, and his returning them on their own head; 1—8. (2) Of his judging all nations when ripened in guilt, publicly confounding impenitent sinners and comforting his people; 9—17. (3) Of the provision which he has made for

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. II.—It is very needful that ministers should warn sinners of the fatal consequences of their conduct. But the rareness of tremendous judgments wonderfully discovers the infinite patience and mercy of God. How dangerous is it to rebel against JEHOVAH, who by a nod can muster even an army of insects able to ruin the mightiest nations on earth! No one can either withstand, support under, or flee from his incensed wrath. And but little comfort can the luminaries of heaven afford us when their Maker frowns.—Extraordinary judgments call to extraordinary fasting and prayer; and all private joys ought to give place to public sorrows for sin or its fruits. In all solemn worship ministers ought to lead the way; and every penitent should be careful to perform whatever may prevent the reproach of Christ and his church, and promote the plentiful and purer enjoyment of his ordinances, as a principal benefit. But no fasting can avail us, unless the heart be broken and melted by God's kindness, and turned to him. Mercy is all we need ask; and his glory, as interested in our salvation, is a sufficient plea. He will certainly hear when

FOR, behold, in those days, and in that time, when I shall bring again the captivity of Judah and Jerusalem,

I will also gather all nations, and will bring them down into the valley of Jehoshaphat, and will plead with them there for my people and for my heritage Israel, whom they have scattered among the nations, and parted my land.

3 And they have cast lots for my people; and have given a boy for an harlot, and sold a girl for wine, that they might drink.

4 Yea, and what have ye to do with me, O Tyre, and Zidon, and all the coasts of Palestine? will ye render me a recompence? and, if ye recompense me, swiftly and speedily will I return your recompence upon your own head;

5 Because ye have taken my silver and my gold, and have carried into your temples my goodly pleasant things:

6 The children also of Judah and the children of Jerusalem have ye sold unto the Grecians, that ye might remove them far from their border.

7 Behold, I will raise them out of the place whither ye have sold them, and will return your recompence upon your own head:

8 And I will sell your sons and your daughters into the hand of the children of Judah, and they shall sell them to the Sabeans, to a people far off: for the LORD hath spoken it.

9 Proclaim ye this among the Gentiles: prepare war, wake up the mighty men, let all the men of war draw near, let them come up:

10 Beat your plough shares into swords, and your pruning hooks into spears: let the weak say, I am strong.

11 Assemble yourselves, and come, all ye heathen, and gather yourselves together round about: thither cause thy mighty ones to come down, O LORD.

12 Let the heathen be wakened, and come up to the valley of Jehoshaphat: for there will I sit to judge all the heathen round about.

13 Put ye in the sickle, for the harvest is ripe; come, get you down, for the press is full, the fats overflow, for their wickedness is great.

14 Multitudes, multitudes in the valley of decision: for the day of the LORD is near in the valley of decision.

his people cry: and he can easily remove our plagues, renew our comforts, and give us an heart to give him the glory of his work. An abundance of outward comforts are a great mercy, when by them our hearts are enlarged in love and thankfulness to God the bestower. And especially when together with them our spiritual knowledge and faith are increased. By the most gracious, almighty, and awful exertions of power, is Jesus' kingdom erected in the world or in the hearts of men. And thrice happy are they, in the worst of times, who are interested in his everlasting salvation. Rejoice then, ye Gentiles, that, by the Holy Ghost sent down from heaven, ye are admitted members of his gospel church; and that, though clouds and darkness be round about him in the destruction of Jews, Heathens, and Antichristians, yet mercy and truth go before his face!

judgment of God will be fearfully manifested. The valley of Jehoshaphat denotes the place where the Lord will destroy them, as he did the enemies of Jehoshaphat in the valley of Berachah, 2 Chr. xx. 1—26.; and may be the same as Armageddon, Rev. xiv. 14, 16.; or Hamon-gog, Ezek. xxxix. 4—11.; or the valley before Jerusalem, Zech. xiv. 4. Amidst the terrible commotions, attending the fall of Antichrist and Mahometism, the Lord will remarkably comfort, protect, and strengthen, his people, particularly the newly converted Jews; and their church and nation shall be singularly holy; neither polluted by unclean persons nor doctrines, nor molested by enemies. And great shall be the abundance of ordinances, spiritual blessings, and gracious influences suited to both strong and weak believers. Yea, by means of the preached gospel, the most barren places 16 The LORD also shall roar out of Zion, and utter his voice from Jerusalem; and the heavens and the earth shall shake: but the LORD will be the hope of his people, and the strength of the children of Israel.

17 So shall ye know that I am the LORD your God, dwelling in Zion my holy mountain: then shall Jerusalem be holy; and there shall no strangers pass through her any more.

18 ¶ And it shall come to pass in that day, that the mountains shall drop down new wine, and the hills shall flow with milk, and all the rivers of Judah shall flow with waters; and a fountain shall come forth of the house of the LORD, and shall water the valley of Shittim.

19 Egypt shall be a desolation, and Edom shall be a desolate wilderness, for the violence against the children of Judah, because they have shed innocent blood in their land.

And, while the Egyptians, Edomites, and other inveterate enemies of the church, shall be destroyed, the Jews and people of God shall enjoy undisturbed repose; for he, who dwells among them and in them, will pardon their guilt, and deliver them from the power and filth of their sins.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. III.—The most kind and obliging often find others unkind and unneighbourly. And no sweetness of temper or conduct can soften the enmity of the wicked. But dreadful is their danger who injure the people of God; for without fail, and in great fury, especially at the last day, will God reckon with them! But when wicked men are cast down his people shall be lifted up in comfort, holiness, and safety.—How delightful shall this world be when all the corners of it shall be filled with the knowledge, glory, and grace, of the Lord! And still more happy the eternal state, in which God and the Lamb shall be ALL and IN ALL!

THE PROPHECY OF

AMOS

Amos was a native of Judea; chap. i. and vii. 14: and began to prophesy along with Hosea, about 800 years before Christ. After denouncing ruin to the neighbouring heathens, who had been bitter enemies to the Hebrews, he calls the Israelites, and sometimes the Jews, to account for their idolatry, ingratitude, violence, treachery, oppression, incorrigibleness, uncleanness, contempt of the sabbath, worldliness; &c. i—viii: and concludes, predicting the establishment of the gospel church in the apostolic and millennial periods.

EXPLANATORY NOTES. CHAP. I. Ver. 2. The avenging judgments of that God, who dwells in his temple on Mount Zion, shall, in a terrible manner, lay waste all the countries around, however fertile and populous. 3, 6, 9, 11, 13. Three, four, or seven, transgressions denote that they have filled up the measure of their iniquities. 4, 7, 10, 12, 14. Fire denotes furious enemies and destructive judgments. 3—5. Because the Syrians, whose capital is Damascus, have, to all their other wickedness, added the terrible oppression and murder of the Hebrews on the east of Jordan, I will cause the Assyrians to destroy their cities and forts, murder their people and princes the sceptre from the house of Eden: and the people of Syria shall go into captivity unto Kir, saith the LORD.

6 ¶ Thus saith the LORD, For three transgressions of Gaza, and for four, I will not turn away the punishment thereof: because they carried away captive the whole captivity, to deliver them up to Edom:

7 But I will send a fire on the wall of Gaza, which shall devour the palaces thereof:

8 And I will cut off the inhabitant from Ashdod, and him that holdeth the sceptre from Ashkelon, and I will turn mine hand against Ekron; and the remnant of the Philistines shall perish, saith the Lord God.

9 ¶ Thus saith the LORD, For three transgressions of Tyrus, and for four, I will not turn away the punishment thereof: because they delivered up the whole captivity to Edom, and remembered not the brotherly covenant:

10 But I will send a fire on the wall of Tyrus, which shall devour the palaces thereof.

11 ¶ Thus saith the LORD, For three transgressions of Edom, and for four, I will not turn away the punishment thereof: because he did pursue his brother with the sword, and did cast off all pity, and his anger did tear perpetually, and he kept his wrath for ever:

12 But I will send a fire upon Teman, which shall devour the palaces of Bozrah.

13 ¶ Thus saith the LORD, For three transgressions of the children of Ammon, and for four, I will not turn away the punishment thereof: because they have ripped up the women with child of Gilead, that they might enlarge their border:

14 But I will kindle a fire in the wall of Rabbah, and it shall devour the palaces thereof, with shouting in the day of battle, with a tempest in the day of the whirlwind:

15 And their king shall go into captivity, he and his princes together, saith the LORD.

CHAP. II.

Denounces destructive judgments (1) Against the Moabites for their barbarity; 1-3. (2) Against the Jews for their contempt of God's revealed laws, and their idolatry; 4, 5. (3) Against the Israelites for their injustice, oppression, whoredom, and use of ill-gotten goods in their worship; 6-8: all ungratefully committed, notwithstanding great favours, spiritual advantages, and means of grace received from God; 9-12: and which highly provoked him, and would infallibly ruin themselves; 13-16.

¶ Thus saith the LORD, For three transgressions of Moab, and for four, I will not turn away the punishment and carry the poor remains captives to Media. 6-8. Because the Philistines have completed their wickedness, by apprehending the Hebrews in their distress, and giving them up to the cruel Edomites, I will, by the Assyrians, Chaldeans, Maccabees, and others utterly destroy their cities, rulers, and people. 9-15. For their treachery and cruelty, the Edomites and Ammonites shall be served in like manner.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. I.—No person need be ashamed of a mean, if honest, original. God can qualify the meanest for the most honourable work. But dreadful is the case of the mightiest nations when the measure of their iniquities is filled up, and the hour of God's judgment is come. Nothing more hastens their destruction than their oppression or murder of the saints, or implacable enmity against near relations. Walls, palaces, cities, or armies, are alto-thereof: because he burned the bones of the king of Edom into lime:

2 But I will send a fire upon Moab, and it shall devour the palaces of Kerioth: and Moab shall die with tumult, with shouting, and with the sound of the trumpet:

3 And I will cut off the judge from the midst thereof, and will slay all the princes thereof with him, saith the LORD.

4 ¶ Thus saith the LORD, For three transgressions of Judah, and for four, I will not turn away the punishment thereof: because they have despised the law of the LORD, and have not kept his commandments, and their lies caused them to err, after the which their fathers have walked:

5 But I will send a fire upon Judah, and it shall devour the palaces of Jerusalem.

6 ¶ Thus saith the LORD, For three transgressions of Israel, and for four, I will not turn away the punishment thereof: because they sold the righteous for silver, and the poor for a pair of shoes;

7 That pant after the dust of the earth on the head of the poor, and turn aside the way of the meek: and a man and his father will go in unto the same maid, to profane my holy name:

8 And they lay themselves down upon clothes laid to pledge by every altar, and they drink the wine of the condemned in the house of their god.

9 ¶ Yet destroyed I the Amorite before them, whose height was like the height of the cedars, and he was strong as the oaks, yet I destroyed his fruit from above, and his roots from beneath.

10 Also I brought you up from the land of Egypt, and led you forty years through the wilderness, to possess the land of the Amorite.

11 And I raised up of your sons for prophets, and of your young men for Nazarites. Is it not even thus, O ye children of Israel? saith the LORD.

12 But ye gave the Nazarites wine to drink, and commanded the prophets, saying, Prophecy not.

13 Behold, I am pressed under you, as a cart is pressed that is full of sheaves.

14 Therefore the flight shall perish from the swift, and the strong shall not strengthen his force, neither shall the mighty deliver himself.

15 Neither shall he stand that handleth the bow; and he that is swift of foot shall not deliver himself; neither shall he that rideth the horse deliver himself.

gether ineffectual to withstand the power of God's wrath. And they who spitefully, covetously, and cruelly, thought to drive out others, are often themselves driven out from their dwellings

CHAP. II. Ver. 6-8. The most insignificant bribes can carry a cause against the most righteous of the poor. They greedily pant after the small substance which the poor or the meek possess, and insolently trample upon and plunder them. Fathers and sons incestuously commit whoredom with the same woman, to the great dishonour of my name, which they profess. Contrary to law, they detain the pledges of the poor, and use them as carpets, whereon to prostrate themselves, or to feast or sleep in, before their idolatrous altars; and their drink-offerings are purchased by the fines of those whom they had unjustly condemned.

(1) Warns the stupidified Israelites that their peculiar relation to God ensured their punishment; that they could expect no fellowship with him without reconciliation and repentance; that the denunciations of judgment, which they had heard, were his infallible messages; 1—8. (2) Summonses their heathen neighbours and themselves to take notice that, for their riots, their oppression, and dishonesty, their country should be invaded by the Assyrians, their altars and houses destroyed, and themselves murdered or made captives; 9—15.

6 Shall a ^{trumpet} be blown in the city, ^{and the people} †not be afraid? shall there be ^{evil} in a city, †and the LORD hath not done ^{it}?

7 Surely the Lord God will do nothing, but he ^{revealeth} his secret unto his servants the prophets.

8 ^{The lion hath roared, who will not fear? the Lord God hath spoken, who can but prophesy?}

9 ¶ ^{Publish in the palaces at Ashdod, and in the palaces in the land of Egypt, and say, Assemble yourselves upon the mountains of Samaria, and behold the great tumults in the midst thereof, and the} *oppressed in the midst thereof.

10 For ^{they know not to do right,} saith the LORD, who ^{store up violence and} †robbery in their palaces.

11 Therefore thus saith the Lord God, ^{An adversary there shall be even round about the land; and he shall bring down thy} ^{strength} from thee, and thy palaces shall be spoiled.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. II.—Alas, how horrid are the barbarities of war! But, if sinners perish who sinned without law, apostates from God, and rebels against his revealed laws, may expect double vengeance! Nothing is too horrid for hardened professors. If once men violate their consciences for any advantage, they will soon do it for a very trifling one. And no injury in God's reckoning is more abominable than what is done to the meek, who will not, or to the poor, who cannot, resent it. Great is the kindness of God in what he has done for us, and in raising up ministers and patterns of holiness in our families. But, alas, how apt are men to forget mercies received, and to seduce ministers and saints into scandal! The consciences of sinners testify that it is not for want, but through the abuse of the means of grace they are so wicked! And the obstinacy of professors in many and highly aggravated crimes is infinitely provoking to God, and infallibly ruinous to themselves.

CHAP. III. Ver. 2, 3. You only have I chosen to be, and used as, my peculiar people; and therefore your punishment shall be exemplary, because ye have sinned against clearer light and higher obligations than others: nor need you expect that I will behave towards you as a friend and benefactor while you continue acting in direct contradiction to my nature and laws. 4—8. God would not issue forth such terrible denunciations of judgment unless he had you in view, as being by your sins the proper objects thereof, and intended to punish you. Not by chance, but by his special providence, these judgments are inflicted; nor shall they be either prevented or removed, but upon your repentance. These warnings ought to awaken you out of your stupidity, since no punishments can be inflicted but by the will and power of God: and, since he manifests his purposes to his prophets, they must faithfully declare his messages, that sinners may fear and repent. 11, 12. The Assyrians shall invade you on every side, murder your valiant men, take your strong cities, and plunder your wealth: ye shall be butchered, or driven into captivity, like sheep; and very few, even of those who hide themselves under beds, or in secret holes, shall escape.

Here (1) The powerful Israelites, for their oppression of the poor, are condemned to destruction and captivity by the Assyrians; 1—3: and idolaters abandoned to their idolatry; 4, 5. (2) Notwithstanding their incorrigibility under former judgments, of famine, drought, blasting, pestilence, and fire from heaven, the people in general are called to humble themselves before him, in the view of terrible judgments or the approaching Messiah, as they cannot withstand his almighty power; 6—13.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. III.—How dignified is the church of God! But just and severe are her corrections when her privileges are abused. Obstinacy in sin effectually separates us from a favourable God. And terrible, but certain, preludes of wrath to impenitent sinners are the threatenings of his word and providence. His terrors are not phantoms, raised to frighten the weak, ignorant, or superstitious, but awful realities, which will come to pass. And transgressions most surely ensnare men in nets of guilt and misery, from which only God's almighty grace, bringing them to repentance, can deliver them. In all our troubles the hand of God must be acknowledged. He never strikes into ruin, till, having warned in vain, sinners prove incorrigible; and then his warnings but aggravate their condemnation. Manifest is his justice in their destruction, who have outrageously sinned in opposition to multiplied means of grace, and who have accustomed themselves to wickedness till they consent to or approve it. If we provoke him with our offences, he will oppress us with his vengeance; and nothing will be able to prevent our ruin, unless we repent. Yea, the things which we had idolized, or had abused to iniquity, shall be ruined along with us.

CHAP. IV. Ver. 1—3. Hear, ye wealthy and potent rulers of Israel, dwelling in Samaria, the capital, who oppress the poor, and sell them for slaves, or determine the cause against them that ye may feast on the price; therefore God hath irrevocably determined that the Assyrians shall murder and carry you into captivity, like so many small fish; and the walls of your city being broken down, part of you shall flee to the mountains, or shut up yourselves in the palace, but all to no purpose. The fugitives shall be pursued, and the high fortress laid low. 4, 5. And, since you are so addicted to your idolatrous worship at ye not returned unto me, saith the LORD.

7 And also 'I have withholden the rain from you when there were yet three months to the harvest: and 'I caused it to rain upon one city, and caused it not to rain upon another city: one piece was rained upon, and the piece whereupon it rained not withered.

8 'So two or three cities wandered unto one city, to drink water; 'but they were not satisfied: 'yet have ye not returned unto me, saith the LORD.

9 'I have smitten you with blasting and mildew: †when your gardens, and your vineyards, and your fig trees, and your olive trees, increased, 'the palmer worm devoured them: yet have ye not returned unto me, saith the LORD.

10 'I have sent among you the pestilence †after the manner of Egypt: 'your young men have I slain with the sword, 'and have taken away your horses; and 'I have made the stink of your camps to come up unto your nostrils: yet have ye not returned unto me, saith the LORD.

11 I have overthrown some of you, as God overthrew 'Sodom and Gomorrah; and ye were 'as a fire-brand plucked out of the burning: 'yet have ye not returned unto me, saith the LORD.

12 Therefore 'thus will I do unto thee, O Israel; and, because I will do this unto thee, 'prepare to meet thy God, O Israel.

13 For, lo, 'he that formeth the mountains, and createth the ‖wind, and 'declareth unto man what is his thought, that maketh the morning 'darkness, and 'treadeth upon the high places of the earth, the LORD the 'God of hosts is his name.

Directs (1) What preparation the Israelites should make for God's coming, viz. Seek him, and not idols; 4—8: seek and love what is good, and hate evil; 14, 15. (2) Why they must make this preparation. 1. Their present condition was very deplorable; 1—3. 2. Their sin had brought them into it; 7, 10—12. 3. In seeking and finding God, they would attain happiness; 8, 9, 14.

4. Neglect to seek him would provoke him to destroy them; 5, 6, 13, 16, 17. 5. Nothing but seeking him would preserve them; not their profane contempt of judgments; 18—20: nor their external devotions; 21—24: nor their long possession of church privileges, nor their sacred observances, mingled with heathenish idolatry; 25—27.

HEAR 'ye this word which I take up against you, even a 'lamentation, O house of Israel.

2 The 'virgin of Israel 'is fallen, 'she shall no more rise: she 'is forsaken upon her land, there is none to raise her up.

Beth-el and Gilgal, pursue it in all its branches, devoting that to idols which is due to me, till ye have ripened yourselves for the most fearful and inevitable destruction. 12, 13. Some have been destroyed by fire from heaven, or some terrible judgment; and you who remain were saved with great difficulty, and are still in danger.—Therefore, whether I bring on you some more terrible judgment, or introduce the promised Messiah, prepare for the event by faith and repentance.—In vain ye will dare to contemn or oppose me, who am the Almighty Creator, the omniscient beholder of hearts and every subtle contrivance; and able to turn the most flourishing prosperity into misery, and to tread down the proudest opposers.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. IV.—God always in the end appears the patron of the injured. Great men often take infernal pleasure to render their inferiors miserable. And what they get by extortion is ordinarily expended on intemperance and luxury. But what is obtained by wickedness strangely perishes, and God turns men out of those rich enjoyments which they abuse to his dishonour, or renders them their plague, and nothing is more awful than his giving them up to their own hearts' lusts. In diversified forms, increasingly dreadful, God can punish and destroy his obstinate adversaries: and he can wonderfully distinguish men in his mercies or judgments. Whether therefore he add to his ven-

3 For thus saith the Lord God, 'The city that went out by a thousand shall leave an hundred, and that which went forth by an hundred shall leave ten, to the house of Israel.

4 ¶ 'For thus saith the LORD unto the house of Israel, 'Seek ye me, and ye shall live:

5 But 'seek not Beth-el, nor enter into Gilgal, and pass not to Beer-sheba: for 'Gilgal shall surely go into captivity, and Beth-el shall come to nought.

6 'Seek the LORD, and ye shall live, lest he break out like 'fire in the 'house of Joseph, and devour it, and there be 'none to quench it in Beth-el.

7 Ye who 'turn judgment to worm-wood, and leave off righteousness in the earth,

8 Seek him that maketh the 'seven stars and Orion, and 'turneth the shadow of death into the morning, and maketh the day dark with night: that 'calleth for the waters of the sea, and poureth them out upon the face of the earth; the LORD is his name;

9 That 'strengtheneth the †spoiled against the strong, so that the spoiled shall come against the fortress.

10 They 'hate him that rebuketh in the gate, and they abhor him that speaketh uprightly.

11 Forasmuch therefore as your 'treading is upon the poor, and ye take from him 'burdens of wheat: 'ye have built houses of hewn stone, but ye shall not dwell in them; ye have planted †pleasant vineyards, but ye shall not drink wine of them.

12 For 'I know your 'manifold transgressions and your mighty sins: 'they afflict the just, they 'take †a bribe, and 'they turn aside the poor 'in the gate from their right.

13 Therefore the prudent 'shall keep silence in that time; for it is an 'evil time.

14 'Seek good, and not evil, that ye may live: and so the LORD, the God of hosts, shall be 'with you, as ye have spoken.

15 'Hate the evil, and love the good, and 'establish judgment in the gate: 'it may be that the Lord God of hosts will be gracious unto the 'remnant of Joseph.

16 Therefore the LORD the God of geance, or sovereignly meet me in mercy, let me prepare for his coming, all awed by his greatness and his glory.

CHAP. V. Ver. 2, 3. The kingdom of Israel, once so flourishing, and never heretofore subdued by enemies, shall irrevocably fall into extreme misery, without any to help her. And scarcely a tenth part of the people shall remain to be carried captive. 4—6. Turn to me, by faith, repentance, and reformation, and ye shall be preserved from ruin and continue prosperous; or, at least, in the end be saved with an everlasting salvation;—lest the vengeance of God break forth among the descendants of Joseph, and other fellow tribes, as devouring fire, which none of your idols can quench. 7—9. Ye who pervert justice, to the great grief of the injured, and who neglect all regard to equity in your administrations and practice, turn to him, who, as governor of the heavenly influences, can give you rain; as the Disposer of day and night, can change your condition at his pleasure; as Ruler of the rain, can either comfort or ruin you; and who can enable the weak to encounter their mighty enemies, and besiege and take their strong holds. 12, 13. Biassed by bribes, your judges give sentence against the poor, be their cause ever so good and clear. And, since ye so incorrigibly abound in wickedness, that God's judgments must be executed upon you, wise and godly persons must forbear reproving you, and silently adore, hosts, the LORD, saith thus; ¹Wailing shall be in all streets; and they shall say in all the highways, Alas! alas! and they shall call the husbandman to mourning, and such as are skilful of lamentation to wailing.

17 ²And in all vineyards shall be wailing; for I will pass through thee, saith the LORD.

18 Wo unto you that ³desire the day of the LORD! to what end is it for you? the day of the LORD is darkness, and not light.

19 ⁴As if a man did flee from a lion and a bear met him; or went into the house, and leaned his hand on the wall, and a serpent bit him.

20 Shall not the day of the LORD be darkness, and not light? even very dark, and no brightness in it?

21 ⁵I hate, I despise your feast days, and I will not ⁶smell in your solemn assemblies.

22 Though ye offer me burnt-offerings and your meat-offerings, I will not accept them: neither will I regard the ⁷peace-offerings of your fat beasts.

23 Take thou away from me ⁸the noise of thy songs, for I will not hear the melody of thy viols.

24 But ⁹let judgment run down as waters, and righteousness as a mighty stream.

25 ¹⁰Have ye offered unto me sacrifices and offerings in the wilderness forty years, O house of Israel?

26 But ¹¹ye have borne ¹²the tabernacle of your Moloch and Chiun your images, ¹³the star of your god, which ye made to yourselves.

27 ¹⁴Therefore will I cause you to go into captivity beyond Damascus, saith the LORD, whose name is the God of hosts.

CHAP. VI.

Represents (1) The sinners of Israel and Judah contemning God's threatenings and the judgments which were already begun, confiding in their privileges and power; 1—3, 13: and wallowing in carnal pleasures; 1, 3—6. (2) The God of Israel solemnly declaring what terrible captivity, divine detestation, miserable deaths, and universal desolation, hung over their heads; 7—14.

WO ¹⁵to them that ¹⁶are at ease in Zion, and trust in the ¹⁷mountain of Samaria, which are named ¹⁸chief of the nations, to whom the house of Israel came.

2 ¹⁹Pass ye unto ²⁰Calneh, and see; and from thence go ye to ²¹Hamath the great:

not murmur at, these judgments. 15—24. Let justice be always administered with a steady and free course, and without any interruption. 16, 17. Dreadful wailing and anguish shall abound every where, even in the vineyards, where they were wont to be merry, on account of the general havoc that my judgments shall make. 18, 19. Ye, who scornfully wish to see the day of the Lord, shall quickly feel it, full of misery and perplexity, without any comfort: and so numerous shall be the calamities thereof, that if ye escape one ye shall fall into another. 25—27. Copying after the idolatry of your fathers in the wilderness, ye have neglected my service, and, with no small toil and expense, have carried about your idols, which could not move themselves: therefore I will make the Assyrians to carry you captives into Media, far beyond both Damascus and Babylon.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. V.—Sin has the most awful influence to reduce churches and nations. And often death or apostasy much diminishes church members. Yet nations and churches are ordinarily guilty of great and multiplied iniquities before God proceed to execute public judgments upon them. With great earnestness and expectation should we therefore seek after and wrestle with him while he may be found. And, if we live up to our prayers, we may expect our requests answered, and happiness in his presence. Great prudence, as well as grief, is necessary in times of singular wickedness and trouble. But it is presumptuous and dangerous to deride God's threatenings and judgments, for they will infallibly overtake the impenitent. How odious to him are hypocritical devotions! If we regard iniquity in our heart, and practise it in our life, no religious services will avail us. And they who obstinately refuse God's calls, shall at last be driven far enough from him in their wickedness.

then go down to ²²Gath of the Philistines: ²³be they better than these kingdoms? or their border greater than your border?

3 Ye that ²⁴put far away the evil day, and ²⁵cause the ²⁶seat of violence to come near;

4 ²⁷That lie upon beds of ivory, and ²⁸stretch themselves upon their couches, and eat the lambs out of the flock, and the calves out of the midst of the stall;

5 ²⁹That ³⁰chant to the sound of the viol, and ³¹invent to themselves instruments of music, ³²like David;

6 That drink ³³wine in bowls, and anoint themselves with the chief ointments: but they are not grieved for the ³⁴affliction of Joseph.

7 ³⁵¶ Therefore now ³⁶shall they go captive with the first that go captive; and the banquet of them that stretched themselves shall be removed.

8 ³⁷The Lord God hath sworn by himself, saith the LORD the God of hosts, ³⁸I abhor the excellency of Jacob, and hate his palaces: ³⁹therefore will I deliver up the city with ⁴⁰fall that is therein.

9 And it shall come to pass, if there remain ⁴¹ten men in one house, that they shall ⁴²die.

10 And a man's uncle shall take him up, and he that ⁴³burneth him, to bring out the bones out of the house, and shall say unto him that is by the sides of the house, ⁴⁴Is there yet any with thee? and he shall say, No. Then shall he say, ⁴⁵Hold thy tongue: for ⁴⁶we may not make mention of the name of the LORD.

11 For, behold, the LORD ⁴⁷commandeth, and he will smite the great house with ⁴⁸breaches, and the little house with ⁴⁹clefts.

12 ⁵⁰¶ Shall horses run upon the rock? will ⁵¹one plow there with oxen? for ⁵²ye have turned judgment into gall, and the fruit of righteousness into hemlock:

13 Ye who rejoice ⁵³in a thing of nought, who say, Have we not ⁵⁴taken to us horns by our own strength?

14 But, behold, ⁵⁵I will raise up against you a nation, O house of Israel, saith the LORD the God of hosts; and they shall afflict you ⁵⁶from the entering in of Hamath unto the ⁵⁷river of the wilderness.

CHAP. VI. Ver. 1. Wo to those wealthy Jews and Israelites who live in carnal security, as if Jerusalem and Samaria, their capital cities, could protect them from my judgments. 2. Behold, how those once-famed cities, Calneh in Chaldea, Hamath in Syria, and Gath in the country of the Philistines, lie in ruins, though they never sinned against such abundant favours as ye have done! 3—6. Ye keep the thoughts of approaching judgments out of your minds, or flatter yourselves that they never will come; and take all opportunities to commit injustice and oppression; and abandon yourselves to sloth, luxury, sensuality, carnal mirth, drunkenness, and pride; in no wise affected with the miseries inflicted on, or impending over, the ten tribes. 7—11. Therefore shall ye be quickly carried captive into Assyria, and miserably in want of necessary provision. With unrelenting detestation God will give up your palaces and cities to the ravaging enemies to be destroyed. And meanwhile the pestilence or famine shall cut off whole families, which their few surviving relations shall bury in astonishment, despairing of pity from God: and all ranks, great and small, shall be equally involved in the desolating calamity. 12—14. To no purpose do the prophets plead with you, hardened sinners, for your conversion and reformation. Ye have even rendered the civil administrations altogether unjust and oppressive. Ye rejoice in your idols, wealth, and power; and boast of your self-advancement, and your ability to defend yourselves: but, lo, as executioners of my just vengeance, the Assyrians, and afterwards the Chaldeans, shall ravage your whole country, and murder or take you captive, from one end of your land to the other.

THUS hath the Lord God shewed unto me; and, behold, he formed grasshoppers in the beginning of the shooting up of the latter growth; and, lo, it was the latter growth after the king's mowings.

2 And it came to pass, that, when they had made an end of eating the grass of the land, then I said, O Lord God, forgive, I beseech thee; by whom shall Jacob arise? for he is small.

3 The Lord repented for this: It shall not be, saith the Lord.

4 ¶ Thus hath the Lord God shewed unto me: and, behold, the Lord God called to contend by fire, and it devoured the great deep, and did eat up a part.

5 Then said I, O Lord God, cease, I beseech thee: by whom shall Jacob arise? for he is small.

6 The Lord repented for this: This also shall not be, saith the Lord God.

7 ¶ Thus he shewed me; and, behold, the Lord stood upon a wall made by a plumb line, with a plumb line in his hand.

8 And the Lord said unto me, Amos, what seest thou? And I said, A plumb line. Then said the Lord, Behold, I will set a plumb line in the midst of my people Israel: I will not again pass by them any more:

9 And the high places of Isaac shall be desolate, and the sanctuaries of Israel shall be laid waste; and I will rise against the house of Jeroboam with the sword.

10 ¶ Then Amaziah the priest of Beth-el sent to Jeroboam king of Israel, saying, Amos hath conspired against thee in the midst of the house of Israel; the land is not able to bear all his words.

11 For thus Amos saith, Jeroboam shall die by the sword, and Israel shall surely be led away captive out of their own land.

12 Also Amaziah said unto Amos, O thou seer, go, flee thee away into the land of Judah, and there eat bread, and prophesy there:

13 But prophesy not again any more at Beth-el: for it is the king's chapel, and it is the king's court.

14 ¶ Then answered Amos, and said to Amaziah, I was no prophet, neither was I a prophet's son; but I was an herdsman, and a gatherer of sycamore fruit.

15 And the Lord took me as I followed the flock; and the Lord said unto me, Go, prophesy unto my people Israel.

16 ¶ Now therefore hear thou the word of the Lord: thou sayest, Prophesy not against Israel, and drop not thy word against the house of Isaac.

17 Therefore thus saith the Lord, Thy wife shall be an harlot in the city, and thy sons and thy daughters shall fall by the sword, and thy land shall be divided by line; and thou shalt die in a polluted land; and Israel shall surely go into captivity forth of his land.

CHAP. VIII.

Turns the Israelites' laughter into mourning. (1) By a basket of summer fruits, seen in vision, is signified that the Israelites were ripened for the Assyrians to devour them, and would quickly be ruined; 1—3. (2) For their oppression of the poor, profanation of the sabbath, and injustice in traffic, is threatened their most ruinous and mournful destruction; 4—10. (3) For their idolatrous worship of their idols, in all the different parts of their country, is threatened an utter deprivation of all the oracles and ordinances of God; 11—14.

THUS hath the Lord God shewed unto me; and, behold, a basket of summer fruit.

2 And he said, Amos, what seest thou? And I said, A basket of summer fruit. Then said the Lord unto me, The end is come upon my people of Israel: I will not again pass by them any more.

3 And the songs of the temple shall be howlings in that day, saith the Lord God: there shall be many dead bodies in every place; they shall cast them forth with silence.

4 ¶ Hear this, O ye that swallow up the needy, even to make the poor of the land to fail,

5 Saying, When will the new moon be gone, that we may sell corn? and the sabbath, that we may set forth wheat, making the ephah small, and the shekel great, and falsifying the balances by deceit?

6 That we may buy the poor for silver, and the needy for a pair of shoes; yea, and sell the refuse of the wheat?

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. VII.—God executes diversified judgments upon obstinate sinners: and commonly directs his strokes in a gradual manner. Yet often the earnest supplications of God's ministers divert his vengeance for a time. And even the low and distressed case of nations and churches are a plea with his mercy. But at last utter, though just, destruction shall overtake the incorrigible revolvers from his law; and neither temples nor palaces can protect from ruin, but concur to render them more miserable. Furious persecution is the common reward of ministers' faithful warnings and fervent prayers from their wicked neighbours. And none are more ready to wrest their words and accuse and persecute them as traitors, than profane clergymen, as their fidelity and diligence are a standing reproach to themselves. They, who are prompted to all their religion by carnal hopes of provision or preferment, are apt to imagine every body as mean and selfish as themselves. But it is a great comfort, especially in evil times, for ministers to have had a clear call to their work. And if men, even the greatest, oppose them, God will attest their mission and messages in the fearful ruin of their enemies. And it is at our infinite hazard to attempt silencing even the weakest whom God hath commanded to speak.

CHAP. VIII. Ver. 4—6. By your oppression ye devour the substance of the poor, that they can scarcely preserve themselves in life; ye are weary of God's holy seasons, and desirous of their being over, that ye may return to your injustice, in making the measure wherewith you sell your corn too scanty, and causing pride. And, if we be once abandoned to carnal security, the examples of God's judgments all around us will scarcely affect us. A round of dissipation and luxury effectually alienates the mind from God, and shuts out every serious consideration, and every degree of sympathy with afflicted churches and nations! Pitiful are the darling pleasures of those who are abandoned of God. But fearful is their case when his wrath begins to burn against them. No external relations, church privileges, or temples, can prevent his judgments. He abhors the form of godliness which is separated from its power. Dreadful is the situation, when luxurious dissipation is exchanged for sword, pestilence, famine, captivity, and hell!—when terrible calamities but plunge men into diabolical astonishment and infernal despair; when all are generally miserable, and none left to comfort another!—and when obstinate perverters of justice, and proud boasters, are divinely abandoned to a merciless foe!

CHAP. VII. Ver. 1—9. These things were represented to Amos in a vision. The vermin not only consumed the fruits of the ground, but were an emblem of the Assyrian ravagers. The terrible lightning or drought dried up their rivers, and destroyed part of the people, or figured out the devastations begun by Tiglath-pileser in Gilead and Galilee. The straight wall signified the Hebrew nation, formed and regulated by the most just laws; and the plumb line denoted that their conduct was discovered as not answerable to their laws, and therefore God would no longer forbear to punish them.

7 The LORD hath sworn by ^m the excellency of Jacob, Surely ^a I will never forget any of their works.

8 Shall not the land ^a tremble for this, and every one mourn that dwelleth therein? and ^a it shall rise up wholly as a flood; and it shall be cast out and drowned, as by the flood of Egypt.

9 And it shall come to pass in that day, saith the Lord God, that ^a I will cause the sun to go down at noon, and I will darken the earth in the clear day:

10 And I will turn your ^a feasts into mourning, and all your songs into lamentation; and ^a I will bring up sackcloth upon all loins, and baldness upon every head; and I will make it ^a as the mourning of an only son, and the end thereof as a bitter day.

11 ¶ Behold, the days come, saith the Lord God, that I will send a famine in the land, not a famine of bread, nor a thirst for water, but ^a of hearing the words of the LORD:

12 And they shall wander ^a from sea to sea, and from the north even to the east; they shall run to and fro to seek the word of the LORD, and ^a shall not find it.

13 In that day shall ^a the fair virgins and young men faint for thirst.

2 ^a Though they dig into hell, thence shall mine hand take them; though they climb up to heaven, thence will I bring them down:

3 And, though they hide themselves in the top of Carmel, I will search and take them out thence; and, though they be ^a hid from my sight in the bottom of the sea, thence will I command the serpent, and he shall bite them:

4 And, ^a though they go into captivity before their enemies, thence will I command the sword, and it shall slay them: and ^a I will set mine eyes upon them for evil, and not for good.

5 And the Lord God of hosts is he that ^a toucheth the land, and it shall melt, ^a and all that dwell therein shall mourn: and it shall rise up wholly like a flood; and it shall be drowned, as by the flood of Egypt.

6 It is he that buildeth his ^a ^b ^c stories in the heaven, and hath founded his ^a troop in the earth; ^a he that calleth for the waters of the sea, and poureth them out upon the face of the earth: the LORD is his name.

8 Behold, ^a the eyes of the Lord God ^a are upon the sinful kingdom, and ^a I will destroy it from off the face of the earth; ^a saving that I will not utterly destroy the house of Jacob, saith the LORD.

the poor purchasers to give you more than just weight for the price, that, by your extortions, ye may force the poor to sell themselves to you for slaves, at a mere trifle, or oblige them to buy the very refuse of your grain. 7—10. God hath therefore sworn by himself that he will punish your wickedness by the most terrible and overwhelming judgments; and that your present prosperity shall, of a sudden, issue in the terrible destruction of your princes and people; and your luxurious and idolatrous revelling and mirth, in the most bitter mourning and anguish. 14. The sin of Samaria and manner of Beer-sheba denote idols worshipped there.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. VIII.—Whatever God shows us ought to be carefully observed. His patience wears out at length; and obstinate sinning must end in deplorable misery; and sinful mirth in howling and ignominious death. Yea, hopeless is the case when fearful calamities only render men sullen and peevish.—Carnal men heartily hate God and his ordinances. Sabbaths and holy duties are intolerable burdens; and merchandize, even the basest, is to them a cordial pleasure. Nor, when nations are ripening for ruin, do they ever fail to oppress God's poor people. But riches got by rapine will bring on ruin. And, let the oppressor be ever so high, the flood of God's wrath shall overwhelm him. They, who would not tremble for the sins of the land, shall tremble under its judgments. And, if men hate God's word and ordinances, they, and every impudent idolater, must expect to be deprived of them, and hastened into eternal misery.

CHAP. IX. Ver. 1. God's standing on the altar at Beth-el, and smiting the lintel, and cutting the posts, denote his treading down and destroying that and other idolatrous temples, together with the king, princes, priests, and people, that worshipped there. 5, 6. I, the Almighty former of heaven and earth, and all that is therein, and the Governor of seas and rains, will with the greatest ease ruin the whole country by the ravaging army of the Assyrians. 7. In my view, ye Israelites are no better than the black, barbarous, and idolatrous Ethiopians; and, though I brought you from Egypt, that is no more than what I did for the Philistines, or will do for the Syrians, who are mere heathens.

9. I will despise and afflict you, O ye Israelites and Jews, among all nations; but with such exact care, that not one elect person shall be ruined, or his existence prevented. 11, 12. After the return from Babylon the Jewish church and nation were re-established, and the Maccabees conquered the Edomites and neighbouring heathens. But by the coming of Christ the Church was restored, religion revived, and shone more gloriously than ever before; and Gentiles as well as Jews became the happy subjects of his government. 13. The harvest and vintage continuing till the next seed time, &c. denotes the amazing abundance of spiritual blessings in the apostolic and millennial periods. 14, 15. Their rebuilding the waste cities, &c. denotes the great deliverance from heathenish idolatry and corrupt lusts; and the abundant peace and prosperity, and fixed settlement, of the gospel church. These five last verses had a partial fulfilment among the Jews after their captivity in Babylon; and will have a more noted fulfilment among all the Hebrews in the glorious Millennium.

vity of my people of Israel, and they shall build the waste cities, and inhabit them; and they shall plant vineyards, and drink the wine thereof; they shall also make gardens, and eat the fruit of them.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. IX.—Obstinate wickedness issues at last in dreadful and unavoidable ruin. It avails not who may be for us if God be against us: where- ever we go, his eyes are upon us for evil; whatever we do, his hand can destroy us; and all creatures are at his command to execute his vengeance. Alas, how sins in- dulged turn professors of the true religion into worse than Heathens. And, if they abandon their peculiar holiness, God must strip them of their peculiar privileges. Nothing can be a more lying refuge than hopes of impunity in impenitency: and 15 And I will plant them upon their land, and they shall no more be pulled up out of their land which I have given them, saith the LORD thy God.

Jer. 23. 6. & 32. 41. Ezek. 34. 28. Joel 3. 20. Mic. 4. 4. Zeph. 3. 13. Is. 35. 10. & 60. 21.

never is ruin nearer than when men put it far from their thoughts. But mar- vellously God preserves his elect amidst the most fearful shakings, confusions, and miseries. When all seems desperate, he wonderfully revives his church, and blesses her with all spiritual blessings in Christ Jesus. And great shall be the glory of the millennial, and especially of the eternal period, in which not one good thing promised shall remain unfulfilled.

THE PROPHECY OF

O B A D I A H.

Obadiah seems to have prophesied along with Jeremiah, about A. M. 3417. His short prophecy contains (1) Threatenings against the Edomites, who may be considered as typical of Antichrist, and other implacable adversaries of the true church; viz. that their pride should be humbled; 1—4: their wealth plundered; 5—7: their wisdom insatuated; 7—9: their spiteful carriage towards God's distressed people avenged; 10—16. (2) Gracious promises to Israel, that they should subdue the Edomites and others; 17—20: and that Christ's kingdom should be erected by a great salvation; 21.

THE vision of Obadiah. Thus saith the Lord God concerning Edom; We have heard a rumour from the LORD, and an ambassador is sent among the heathen; Arise ye, and let us rise up against her in battle.

2 Behold, I have made thee small among the heathen: thou art greatly de- spised.

3 ¶ The pride of thine heart hath deceived thee, thou that dwellest in the clefts of the rock, whose habitation is high; that saith in his heart, Who shall bring me down to the ground?

4 Though thou exalt thyself as the eagle, and though thou set thy nest among the stars, thence will I bring thee down, saith the LORD.

5 If thieves came to thee, if robbers by night, (how art thou cut off!) would they not have stolen till they had enough? if the grape gatherers came to thee, would they not leave some grapes?

6^k How are the things of Esau searched out! how are his hidden things sought up!

7 All the men of thy confederacy have brought thee even to the border: the men that were at peace with thee have deceived thee, and prevailed against thee; they that eat thy bread have laid a wound under thee: there is none understanding in him.

8 Shall I not in that day, saith the LORD, even destroy the wise men out of Edom, and understanding out of the mount of Esau?

9 And thy mighty men, O Teman, shall be dismayed; to the end that every one of the mount of Esau may be cut off by slaughter.

10 ¶ For thy violence against thy brother Jacob shame shall cover thee, and thou shalt be cut off for ever.

11 In the day that thou stoodest on the other side, in the day that the stran- gers carried away captive his forces, and foreigners entered into his gates, and cast lots upon Jerusalem, even thou wast as one of them.

12 But thou shouldst not have looked on the day of thy brother in the day that he became a stranger; neither shouldst thou have rejoiced over the children of Judah in the day of their de- struction; neither shouldst thou have spoken proudly in the day of distress.

13 Thou shouldst not have entered into the gate of my people in the day of their calamity; yea, thou shouldst not have looked on their affliction in the day of their calamity, nor have laid hands on their substance in the day of their cala- mity;

14 Neither shouldst thou have stood in the cross way, to cut off those of his that did escape; neither shouldst thou have delivered up those of his that did remain in the day of distress.

15 For the day of the LORD is near dangerously deceive and ripen men for destruction. Their self-exaltation but tends to debase them ; their carnal confidences but betray them ; their wealth but allures their enemies to hunt out and destroy them ; their hired allies assist them to their ruin ; their understanding, not employed to keep them from sin, being infatuated, decoys them into danger ; the bravery of their warriors but serves to make the slaughter more universal ; their joys but issue in embittering their anguish ; their undutiful and barbarous conduct towards God's distressed people but fills up an uncommon cup of misery to themselves.—But marvelously connected are the confusion of Christ's impenitent foes, the deliverance of his church, and the conversion and purification of multitudes of sinners ; and great is the honour that Jesus obtains therein : Yea, if we suffer with him we shall also reign with him, and be glorified together.

THE PROPHECY OF

J O N A H.

This prophet was born in Gath-hepher, a city of Galilee, and prophesied about A. M. 3140. In some unwritten predictions he foretold the restoration of the kingdom of Israel by Jehoash and Jeroboam II. 2 Kings xiv. 25. But here we have the history of the warning which he gave to the heathen Ninevites. It contains remarkable manifestations of human infirmity and divine mercy connected. But the principal scope of it is to figure out Jesus Christ's interposition for guilty sinners, and the amazing and effectual spread of his gospel through the Gentile world.

(3) God's pursuit and arrest of him by a storm, in which he continued sleeping ; 4—6. (4) His disobedience discovered by the heathen mariners to be the cause of the storm ; 7—10. NOW ^athe word of the LORD came unto ^bJonah the son of Amittai, saying,

2 Arise, go to Nineveh that ^cgreat city, and cry against it ; for ^dtheir wickedness is come up before me.

3 But Jonah ^erose up to ^fflee unto ^fTarshish from the presence of the LORD, and went down to ^hJoppa ; and he found a ship going to Tarshish : so he paid the fare thereof, and went down into it, to go with them unto Tarshish from the presence of the LORD.

4 ¶ But the LORD ⁱsent out a great wind into the sea, and there was a mighty tempest in the sea, so that the ship [†]was like to be broken.

5 Then the mariners were afraid, and ^kcried every man unto his god, and ^lcast forth the wares that were in the ship into the sea, to lighten it of them. But Jonah was gone down into the sides of the ship ; and he lay, and ^mwas fast asleep.

6 So the shipmaster came to him, and said unto him, ⁿWhat meanest thou, O sleeper ? arise, ^ocall upon thy God, ^pif so be that God will think upon us, that we perish not.

7 And they said every one to his fellow, Come, and let us ^qcast lots, that we may know for whose cause this evil is upon us. So they cast lots, and ^rthe lot fell upon Jonah.

8 Then said they unto him, ^sTell us, we pray thee, for whose cause this evil is upon us : ^twhat is thine occupation ? and whence comest thou ? what is thy country ? and of what people art thou ?

(2) Jonah safely restored to dry land by the whale; 10.

THEN Jonah ^aprayed unto the LORD ^bhis God ^cout of the fish's belly,

2 And said, I ^dcried ^eby reason of mine affliction unto the LORD, and he ^fheard me; out of the belly of [†]hell cried I, and thou heardest my voice.

3 For thou ^hhadst cast me into the deep, in the [‡]midst of the seas; and [§]the floods compassed me about: all thy billows and thy waves passed over me.

4 Then I said, ^hI am cast out of thy sight; yet I will ⁱlook again toward thy holy temple.

5 The ^kwaters compassed me about, of heaven, which hath made the sea and the dry land.

10 Then were the men ^a'exceedingly afraid, and said unto him, ^a'Why hast thou done this? (for the men knew that he ^bfled from the presence of the LORD, because he had told them.)

11 ¶ Then said they unto him, ^c'What shall we do unto thee, that the sea [‡]may be calm unto us? for the sea [‡]wrought, and was tempestuous.

12 And he said unto them, ^d'Take me up, and cast me forth into the sea; so shall the sea be calm unto you: for I know that ^e'for my sake this great tempest is upon you.

13 Nevertheless, the men ^ftried hard to bring it to the land; [†]but they could not; for the sea wrought, and was tempestuous against them.

14 Wherefore they [§]cried unto the LORD, and said, We beseech thee, O LORD, we beseech thee, ^h'let us not perish for this man's life, and lay not upon us innocent blood: for thou, ⁱ'O LORD, hast done as it pleased thee.

15 So ^kthey took up Jonah, and cast him forth into the sea: and the sea [‡]ceased from her raging.

16 Then the men ^m'feared the LORD exceedingly, and ⁿoffered ⁿ'a sacrifice unto the LORD, and made ^ovows.

7 When my soul ^u'fainted within me ^v'I remembered the LORD; and ^v'my prayer came in unto thee into thine ^w'holy temple.

8 They that ^x'observe lying vanities for-sake their own mercy.

9 But ^y'I will sacrifice unto thee with the voice of thanksgiving; I will pay ^ythat that I have vowed. ^z'Salvation is of the LORD.

(3) Their solemn fasting, repentance, and reformation; 5—9. (4) God's revocation of his ruinous sentence, and preventing its execution; 10.

AND the word of the LORD came unto Jonah the ^a'second time, saying,

2 Arise, go unto ^b'Nineveh that great city, and ^c'preach unto it the preaching that I bid thee.

3 So ^dJonah arose, and went unto Nineveh, according to the word of the LORD. Now Nineveh was an ^e'exceeding ^f'great city of three days' journey.

4 And Jonah began to enter into the city a day's journey; and he cried, and said, ^g'Yet forty days, and Nineveh shall be overthrown.

5 ¶ So the people of Nineveh ^h'believed God, and ⁱ'proclaimed a fast, and put on sackcloth, from the greatest of them even to the least of them.

6 For word came unto ^k'the king of Nineveh, and he arose from his throne, and he laid his robe from him, and covered ^lhim with sackcloth, and ^l'sat in ashes.

7 And ^m'he caused it to be proclaimed and ⁿ'published through Nineveh, by the decree of the king and his ⁿnobles, saying, Let neither man nor beast, herd nor flock, taste any thing; let them not feed, nor drink water:

marks his dominion over, and direction of his creatures, and affords marvellous protection to his offending saints.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. II.—Many are forced to pray when and where they never expected. But no place can shut out a saint from communion with his God: nor need he doubt his nearness and willingness to help in a time of need. But how fearful is it to fall into the hands of the living God, even as a provoked Father! Into what hells, what depths, what pits of corruption, desertion, temptation, and affliction, may a saint be plunged! and be reduced, how near the brink of despair! But troubles should lead us directly to our God, and make us by faith call to mind his new covenant characters and promises. To expect happiness in sinful courses, or idolized creatures, is to forsake our own mercy. And, if we run from our proper work, we run from our substantial comforts. It is unreasonable, on this side hell, to indulge despair. For great is the power of God over all creatures: and infinite and unbounded his mercy towards penitent and praying offenders. But noted deliverances ought always to issue in high praises and thanksgivings, and in redoubled applications to our duty.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. I.—God's ministers must either send or bear his messages as he directs them. But even good men will often take the most foolish methods to evade difficult and dangerous duties. And providence may seem at first to favour their projects: but rebellion against God will at last awaken terrible storms in consciences and societies; and saints may become a plague to heathens themselves, and feed their rebukes for their wickedness and deep unconcern. In troubles it highly becomes us to inquire into the sinful cause. In sinning, we seldom think how mischievous the consequences may be: and in vain we indulge the most secret wickedness, when God can so easily discover it. Yea, shameful is it when ministers and saints are forced to confess their secret rebellions to his open enemies. But, when men are truly humbled for sin, they will readily submit to either shame or suffering for it. And, if sin has raised a storm, we never must hope for peace till it be removed by remission and repentance. Those who acknowledge their guilt with openness and grief are entitled to our deepest compassion. But even natural conscience, if awakened, will startle at the very appearance of murder. There is no striving against the counsels of God: his will must be done: and, if with prayer we follow his direction, we may trust him with the issue. While alarming providences produce short appearances of religion in sinners, God often strangely God: yea, let them turn every one from his evil way, and from the violence that is in their hands.

9 Who can tell if God will turn and repent, and turn away from his fierce anger, that we perish not?

10 ¶ And God saw their works, that they turned from their evil way; and God repented of the evil that he had said that he would do unto them, and he did it not.

CHAP. IV.

Lately we saw Jonah shunning his work, and God, even in his punishment, preserving him for it. Here we see him repining at the merciful success of it, and God tenderly convincing him of his folly. (1) Jonah outrageously frets at God's sparing the Ninevites on their repentance; and God gently reproves him; 1—4. (2) Jonah rages at the withering of his gourd, and justifies his conduct; and God improves his concern for the gourd, to convince him of the propriety of saving Nineveh; 5—11.

BUT it displeased Jonah exceedingly, and he was very angry.

2 And he prayed unto the LORD, and said, I pray thee, O LORD, was not this my saying, when I was yet in my country? Therefore I fled before unto Tarsish: for I knew that thou art a gracious God and merciful, slow to anger, and of great kindness, and repentest thee of the evil.

3 Therefore now, O LORD, take, I beseech thee, my life from me; for it is better for me to die than to live.

4 ¶ Then said the LORD, Dost thou well to be angry?

5 So Jonah went out of the city, and sat on the east side of the city, and there made him a booth, and sat under it in the shadow, till he might see what would become of the city.

6 And the LORD God prepared a gourd, and made it to come up over Jonah, that it might be a shadow over his head, to deliver him from his grief. So Jonah was exceeding glad of the gourd.

7 But God prepared a worm when the morning rose the next day, and it smote the gourd that it withered.

8 And it came to pass, when the sun did arise, that God prepared a vehement east wind: and the sun beat upon the head of Jonah, that he fainted, and wished in himself to die, and said, It is better for me to die than to live.

9 And God said to Jonah, Dost thou well to be angry for the gourd? And he said, I do well to be angry even unto death.

10 Then said the LORD, Thou hast had pity on the gourd, for the which thou hast not laboured, neither madest it grow: which came up in a night, and perished in a night:

11 And should not I spare Nineveh that great city, wherein are more than six score thousand persons that cannot discern between their right hand and their left hand, and also much cattle?

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. III.—God often tries the sincerity of men's repentance, by assigning to them that very work which they had formerly evaded: and marks his favours to true penitents in honouring them with important trusts. And it is a mercy even to be scourged into cheerful obedience. What alarming messages of unexpected wrath must God's ministers sometimes bear! And his word must not be bent either to the humours of preachers or hearers.—It bears a promising appearance when kings obtain proper notice of God's warnings, and seriously attend to them; when they and their subjects concur in repentance and reformation; and when believing fears of judgment and hopes of mercy jointly excite to it. While sinners are stirred up to prayer, there is hope in their end. God favourably regards even external reformation, that he may encourage to that which is truly evangelical.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. IV.—It is very dangerous to be under the power of a proud, peevish spirit. Men often pretend regard for God's honour, when they mind only their own; and fear disparagement without any ground. Alas! awful is the consideration that pride and passion should so affect even saints, that they should wish for death either to themselves or others, when they are very unripe for it; and rage at that very mercy of God which prevents their damnation. Yea, even create inconveniences to themselves, that they may get somewhat to complain of! How apt are men to be lifted up or cast down by a mere trifle. But, if they will vex themselves with imaginary miseries, it is but just that they be made to feel real ones. Ungoverned passions too often bear down reason and conscience, and make men to vindicate the most glaring absurdity and guilt, and outrageously fly out against both their God and their life. But infinite is the tenderness of God in taking such pains to convince and reclaim his froward children and servants. If we have pity on an earthly comfort, how absurd to quarrel with his pity to babes, to creatures endowed with immortal souls, and to all the works of his hands. But let me not bid adieu to this prophet, without beholding in him my once suffering and now glorified Redeemer. He, for our rebellion imputed to him, was pursued by the storm, was cast into the raging ocean of his Father's wrath, to procure for us an eternal calm of forgiveness and favour. After lying a part of three days in the grave, he was miraculously raised from the dead, and ascended to glory. And marvellously effectual was the publication of the gospel to multitudes of sinners, chiefly of the Gentiles, for their conviction, conversion, and eternal salvation.

THE PROPHECY OF

M I C A H.

This prophet began his predictions a little after Isaiah, and continued prophesying along with him about fifty years. His scope is to convince the Israelites, and especially the Jews, of their wickedness and danger, and so to bring them to repentance; chap. i—iii. vi. and vii. 1—6: and to comfort the people of God with promises of mercy and deliverance, of the incarnation of the Messiah, and the grace of the gospel through him; chap. ii, 12, 13; iv. v. and vii. 7—20.

CHAP. I.

After the title of the book, (ver. 1) contains (1) A solemn warning of the desolations impending over Israel and Judah for their abounding sins, particularly in their chief cities of Samaria and Jerusalem; 2—7. (2) A representation of the dreadful terror and anguish which should be occasioned by the Assyrian and Chaldean invasions; 8—16. [See Introduction, chap. iv sect. x. xiii.]

THE word of the LORD that came to Micah the Morasthite in the days of Jotham, Ahaz, and Hezekiah, kings of Judah, which he saw concerning Samaria and Jerusalem.

2 ¶ Hear, all ye people; hearken, O earth, and fall that therein is; and let the LORD God be a witness against you, the LORD from his holy temple.

3 For behold, the LORD cometh forth out of his place, and will come down and tread upon the high places of the earth.

4 And the mountains shall be molten under him, and the vallies shall be cleft, as wax before the fire, and as the waters that are poured down a steep place.

5 For the transgression of Jacob is all this, and for the sins of the house of Israel. What is the transgression of Jacob? is it not Samaria? and what are the high places of Judah? are they not Jerusalem?

6 Therefore I will make Samaria as an heap of the field, and as plantings of a vineyard: and I will pour down the stones thereof into the valley, and I will discover the foundations thereof.

7 And all the graven images thereof shall be beaten to pieces, and all the hires thereof shall be burned with the fire, and all the idols thereof will I lay desolate: for she gathered it of the hire of an harlot, and they shall return to the hire of an harlot.

8 Therefore I will wail and howl; I will go stripped and naked: I will make a wailing like the dragons, and mourning as the owls.

9 For her wound is incurable; for it is come unto Judah; he is come unto the gate of my people, even to Jerusalem.

10 ¶ Declare ye it not at Gath; weep ye not at all: in the house of Aphrah roll thyself in the dust.

11 Pass ye away, thou inhabitant of Saphir, having thy shame naked: the inhabitant of Zanaan came not forth in the mourning of Beth-ezel; he shall receive of you his standing.

12 For the inhabitant of Maroth waited carefully for good; but evil came down from the LORD unto the gate of Jerusalem.

13 O thou inhabitant of Lachish, bind the chariot to the swift beast: she is the beginning of the sin to the daughter of Zion: for the transgressions of Israel were found in thee.

14 Therefore shalt thou give presents to Moresheth-gath: the houses of Achzib shall be a lie to the kings of Israel.

15 Yet will I bring an heir unto thee, O inhabitant of Mareshah: the shall come unto Adullam the glory of Israel.

16 Make thee bald, and poll thee for thy delicate children; enlarge thy baldness as the eagle, for they are gone into captivity from thee.

17 Or the glory of Israel shall come, &c. [See Introduction, chap. iv. sect. xiii.]

CHAP. II.

Represents (1) The sins with which the Hebrews are charged;—covetousness, oppression, fraud, and violence; 1, 2: barbarous usage of women and other harmless persons; 8, 9: opposition to, and silencing of, God's prophets; 6, 7: delight in false prophecies; 11. (2) The judgments with which they are threatened;—debasing, derision, poverty, banishment; 3—5, 10: and utter ruin by the ravaging enemies; 12, 13. (3) Gracious promises of gathering, direction, and assistance, by the Messiah, chiefly in the apostolic and millennial periods; 12, 13. [See Introduction, chap. iv. sect. xiii.]

WO to them that devise iniquity, and work evil upon their beds! when the morning is light they practise it, because it is in the power of their hand.

2 And they covet fields, and take them by violence; and houses, and take them away: so they oppress a man and his house, even a man and his heritage.

3 Therefore thus saith the LORD, Behold, against this family do I devise an evil, from which ye shall not remove your necks; neither shall ye go haughtily: for this time is evil.

4 ¶ In that day shall one take up a parable against you, and lament with a doleful lamentation, and say, We be utterly spoiled: he hath changed the portion of my people: how hath he removed it from me! turning away he hath divided our fields.

5 Therefore thou shalt have none that shall cast a cord by lot in the congregation of the LORD.

6 ¶ Prophecy ye not, say they to them that prophecy: they shall not pro-

EXPLANATORY NOTES. CHAP. I. Ver. 1. Samaria and Jerusalem, the chief cities, denote the two kingdoms of Israel and Judah. 2—4. Hear, ye Israelites and Jews, nay, the nations around, and even the senseless earth, and let God manifest his indignation against you from heaven, if ye despise this warning. Behold JEHOVAH cometh to execute his just vengeance upon you, and to destroy your proud rulers and strong cities, and irresistibly to spread destruction and misery among all ranks in every place. 5—7. Your idolatry and other wickedness, which prevail in the two capitals, and thence spread through the whole kingdoms, are the cause: and therefore shall the Assyrians render Samaria a ruinous heap, and shall seize upon the idols thereof and their furniture, as a booty bestowed by their gods to reward the toils of the siege. 12—15. The inhabitants of the distressed cities earnestly longed for some news of deliverance; but the Assyrians marched up to Jerusalem itself.—Lachish, which first admitted the idolatries of the ten tribes, shall be peculiarly miserable.—The hired troops of the Philistines shall betray their trust.—The Assyrians shall plunder Mareshah, and pass on to Adullam, or even to Jerusalem. 8, 9, 16. Make therefore every possible demonstration of grief for the murder and captivity of thy people and the desolation of thy cities.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. I.—It is very hard to awaken obstinate sinners. But, if they will not hear God's voice, they must feel his hand; and nothing can protect them from his Almighty wrath. No judgments are inflicted but what our sins have deserved. And the more wicked persons or places be, the larger share in them must they expect. If great cities will be ringleaders in impieties, they must be made distinguished monuments of wrath. Nor need they expect that ever that which hires or tempts men to sin will long prosper. But even the messengers of God ought never to desire the evil day, but to bewail the punishment of sinners as well as the sufferings of saints. Nor should we ever gratify with tidings such as make merry with the sins or the sorrows of God's people. Alas! what shame, what contempt, what perplexity, what confusion, what anguish and misery, the most delicate sinners are exposed to at last! And, by the very sins which themselves introduced, men are effectually driven out of their countries, cities, houses, and property.

CHAP. II. Ver. 3—5, 10. The Assyrians, and after them the Chaldeans and Romans, shall invade, plunder and desolate your country, murder, and carry you into captivity, and give your inheritances to others, because of your wickedphesy to them, that they shall not take shame.

7 ¶ O thou that art named the house of Jacob, 'is the spirit of the LORD 'straitened? are these his doings? 'do not my words do good to him that walketh *uprightly?

8 'Even tof late my people is risen up as an enemy: ye pull off the robe †with the garment from them that pass by securely, as men averse from war.

9 *The ||women of my people have ye cast out from their pleasant houses; from their children have ye taken away my glory for ever.

13 The 'breaker is come up before them: 'they have broken up, and have passed through the gate, and are gone out by it: and 'their king shall pass before them, and the LORD on the head of them.

CHAP. III.

(1) Rebukes magistrates for their ignorance, hatred, and wilful perversion of judgment, covetousness, barbarous oppression, murder and barbarity; 1—4, 8—11: the prophets and priests, for their deceitful flattery and greediness of filthy lucre; 5—11: and all for their hypocrisy and carnal confidence; 11. (2) Threatens the rulers with God's contempt of their distressful supplications; 4: the prophets, with dismal distress, perplexity, and shame; 6, 7: and all of them with the utter and lasting destruction of Jerusalem and the temple by the Chaldeans and Romans; 12.

AND I said, 'Hear, I pray you, O heads of Jacob, and ye princes of the house of Israel; 'Is it not for you to know judgment?

ness. 6. Ye attempt to silence my faithful prophets, who declare to you your transgressions, and warn you of my judgments, that ye may repent; and therefore quickly no more pains shall be taken with you, to render you sensible of your sins. But ye encourage those lying impostors, who, to obtain a good living to themselves, prophesy to you of nothing but peace and plenty, answerable to your luxurious inclinations. 7. Ye who glory in your descent from the patriarch Jacob, but are very unlike to him, can ye stop the revelations of my spirit? or is the work of threatening a pleasure to me? Do not all my messages work for the real good of penitent and upright persons? 8—10. Lately, you Israelites, under Pekah, fearfully ravaged Judea, without any provocation, plundering the very poor, abusing the very women and children, and, by enslaving and selling them to the Heathens around, ye have for ever deprived them of my worship, privileges, and country: therefore shall ye in a little time be murdered in, or carried from, your own country, which ye have so much defiled by your wickedness. 12, 13. These verses, as connected with the preceding, seem to import, that God would gather the Israelites and Jews into their cities for the slaughter; and that the Assyrians, Chaldeans, and Romans, would break into them, and carry them and their kings into a dismal captivity. But, taking them as a promise, they mean that God would not only bring back the Jews and Israelites to Canaan, but would render his scattered people one flock under Jesus Christ, who, in consequence of his resurrection and ascension, would, in the apostolic and millennial periods, conquer both Jews and Gentiles, and bring them at last to eternal glory.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. II.—In vain do men think that they may do whatever they can, since no power is given for destruction, but for edification. And, if covetousness reign in men's hearts, compassion will be banished from it. The more design and deliberation men discover in their sinning, the more will God manifest his wisdom and power in the certainty, severity, notoriety, and answerableness, of their punishment. And no injuries does God more fearfully resent than those which are done to the harmless, the fatherless, and widows, who have least help in man. They who have used others fraudulently and violently, shall be so used themselves. And nothing can be more dreadful than to be cut off from the church of God and its exalted privileges. They, who

2 'Who hate the good, and love the evil; who 'pluck off their skin from off them, and their flesh from off their bones;

3 Who also eat the flesh off my people, and flay their skin from off them; and they break their bones, and chop them in pieces, as for the pot, and as flesh within the caldron.

4 'Then shall they 'cry unto the LORD, but he will not hear them: 'he will even hide his face from them at that time, as they have behaved themselves ill in their doings.

5 ¶ Thus saith the LORD concerning 'the prophets that make my people err, that 'bite with their teeth, and cry, Peace; and he that putteth not into their mouths, they even prepare war against him:

6 Therefore 'night shall be unto you, *that ye shall not have a vision; and it shall be dark unto you, †that ye shall not divine: and the sun shall go down over the prophets, and the day shall be dark over them.

7 Then 'shall the seers be ashamed, and the diviners confounded: yea, they shall all cover their 'lips; for there is 'no answer of God.

8 ¶ But truly 'I am full of power by the Spirit of the LORD, and of judgment, and of might, 'to declare unto Jacob his transgression, and to Israel his sin.

9 'Hear this, I pray you, ye heads of the house of Jacob, and princes of the house of Israel, that abhor judgment and pervert all equity.

10 They build up Zion with '† blood, and Jerusalem with iniquity.

11 'The heads thereof judge for reward, and 'the priests thereof teach for hire, and the prophets thereof 'divine for money: yet 'will they lean upon the LORD, ||and say, Is not the LORD among us? none evil can come upon us.

12 Therefore 'shall Zion for your sake be plowed as a field, and Jerusalem shall become heaps, and the mountain of the house as the high places of the forest.

were most haughty and secure in their prosperity; are generally the most dejected and desperate in their adversity. They who hate holiness hate reproof, and reckon faithful ministers a nuisance and a burden: and, being vicious and debauched, they wish to have ministers, and even a god, like themselves. But upright men delight in God's messages, whether promises or threatenings. Blessed be God that Jesus is our chief Shepherd; and, notwithstanding all the rage of hell and earth, he will gather the outcasts of Israel, render his gospel church extensive as the earth, and her members numerous as the sand by the sea shore; and, without losing one, bring them from sin, from death, and the grave, to the mansions above!

CHAP. III. Ver. 2, 3. They cruelly oppressed their subjects, and, by exactions and rapine, took all from them that they could, barbarously making their very lives a burden to them. 5—7. Because they by their flatteries seduce my people into wickedness for the sake of their own bellies, and hate and do all the mischief they can to my prophets, and all such as give them nothing; therefore such calamities shall come as will effectually refute their flatteries, and shamefully hinder them from foreseeing any thing good, either for themselves or others. 8. Called and inspired by the Spirit of God, I, regardless of all your opposition, faithfully and boldly charge you with your sins, and warn you of approaching judgments. 10—12. Since ye repair the temple and palace, and the houses or walls of Jerusalem, with the money which ye have procured by taking away the lives of the innocent, and then seizing on their estates; and that obtained by bribery: and since, notwithstanding the basest dishonesty in your respective stations, ye expect prosperity, because of the Lord's temple among you, and other external privileges; therefore shall your temple and holy city, for your wickedness, be by the Chaldeans, and especially the Romans, turned into heaps of rubbish, and an absolute desert.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. III.—Dreadful is the case of nations and churches when they who ought to be chief promoters of religion and virtue become ring-leaders in impiety. And they, who oppress or seduce others, infallibly prepare for themselves misery, contempt, and perplexity. Ministers have great need of

CHAP. IV.

Contains promises of the happy state of the gospel church, which should succeed the Jewish: that (1) She should be greatly enlarged by the accession of the Gentiles; 1, 2. (2) She should be protected in tranquillity and peace; 3, 4. (3) She should be kept close, constant, and faithful to God; 5. (4) That, under Christ's government, her grievances should be redressed; 6, 7. (5) That her dominion should be very large and flourishing; 8. (6) That her troubles should at length be brought to an happy issue; 9, 10. (7) That her enemies should be disquieted and destroyed by their own attempts against her; 11—13.

BUT in the last days it shall come to pass that the mountain of the house of the LORD shall be established in the top of the mountains, and it shall be exalted above the hills; and people shall flow unto it.

2 And many nations shall come and say, Come, and let us go up to the mountain of the LORD, and to the house of the God of Jacob, and he will teach us of his ways, and we will walk in his paths: for the law shall go forth of Zion, and the word of the LORD from Jerusalem.

3 ¶ And he shall judge among many people, and rebuke strong nations afar off; and they shall beat their swords into plow shares, and their spears into pruning hooks: nation shall not lift up a sword against nation, neither shall they learn war any more.

4 But they shall sit every man under his vine and under his fig tree; and none shall make them afraid: for the mouth of the LORD of hosts hath spoken it.

5 For all people will walk every one in the name of his god; and we will walk in the name of the LORD our God for ever and ever.

6 ¶ In that day, saith the LORD, I will assemble her that halteth, and I will gather her that is driven out, and her that I have afflicted;

7 And I will make her that halted a remnant, and her that was cast far off a strong nation: and the LORD shall reign over them in mount Zion from henceforth even for ever.

8 And thou, O tower of the flock, the strong hold of the daughter of Zion, unto thee shall it come, even the first dominion: the kingdom shall come to the daughter of Jerusalem.

9 Now why dost thou cry out aloud? is there no king in thee? is thy counselor perished? for pangs have taken thee as a woman in travail.

10 Be in pain, and labour to bring forth, O daughter of Zion, like a woman in travail: for now shalt thou go forth out of the city, and thou shalt dwell in the field, and thou shalt go even to Babylon: there shalt thou be delivered: there the LORD shall redeem thee from the hand of thine enemies.

11 ¶ Now also many nations are gathered against thee, that say, Let her be defiled, and let our eye look upon Zion.

12 But they know not the thoughts of the LORD, neither understand they his counsel: for he shall gather them as the sheaves into the floor.

13 Arise and thresh, O daughter of Zion: for I will make thine horn iron, and I will make thy hoofs brass: and thou shalt beat in pieces many people: and I will consecrate their gain unto the LORD, and their substance unto the LORD of the whole earth.

CHAP. V.

After a prediction of ruin to the Jews, by the Assyrians, and especially the Chaldeans and Romans, we have here great promises of (1) The incarnation of Christ; 2, 3. (2) His greatness and usefulness to his people, particularly the converted Gentiles; 3, 4. (3) His protection of his people, and destruction of the Assyrian, Chaldean, Syro-grecian, Roman, Antichristian, and other enemies. (4) The great increase and comfort of the church, chiefly by means of the Jews; 7. (5) The destruction of her enemies, who either harass or corrupt her; 8—15.

NOW gather thyself in troops, O daughter of troops: he hath laid siege against us: they shall smite the judge of Israel with a rod upon the cheek.

2 But thou, Beth-lehem Ephratah, though thou be little among the thousands of Judah, yet out of thee shall he come forth unto me, that is to be ruler in Israel; whose goings forth have been from of old, from everlasting.

3 Therefore will he give them up, desperate. 11—13. And however the Gentiles may insult you, O Jewish church and nation, in your distress by the Assyrians, Chaldeans, Syro-grecians, and Romans, and rejoice in hopes of your utter destruction, God shall, in prosecution of his secret purposes, gather them together to be destroyed, even by your means; and their spoil shall be consecrated to pious uses, and many of themselves be turned to the Lord. And however the Heathens, Antichristians, and Mahometans, insult the gospel-church, she shall at last be exalted on their ruins, and true Christians be enabled to destroy and tread under foot every opposer.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. IV.—Graciously has God set his promises and threatenings, the one over against the other. And glorious is our New Testament church, and regularly and firmly founded. What profitable instruction, light and conviction, peace and love, faithfulness, vigour, harmony, holiness, and comfort, abound in her! God graciously issues forth comforting promises before distress takes place, that his consolations may be ready for his afflicted people. And the extremity of trouble always issues in marvellous deliverances to the church and her members. Yea, in all her harassments and oppressions, her enemies and her God have very different ends. They aim at roining her and exalting themselves; and God aims at purifying, enlarging, and enriching her, and ruining them.

CHAP. V. Ver. 1, 2. Notwithstanding the Chaldeans, or others, who assemble themselves to destroy the cities and afflict the rulers of Judah, the Messiah, who was from eternity begotten by the Father, and constituted the covenant-head of an elect world, shall in due time be born in the small city of Beth-lehem-Judah, to be the great Ruler and Governor of the church. 3, 4. Nevertheless, the calamities of the Jewish nation shall be often repeated, till he be born of the Virgin, and multitudes of Gentile converts flow together unto him. Then, to his own and his Father's honour, he shall, in the most powerful mana clear call, and remarkable qualifications, to render them duly faithful and bold, in opposition to universally rampant corruptions. Nor must they respect even the greatest, but in God's name rebuke with all authority. No pretences of piety can consecrate wicked conduct; but often that which is good is rendered profane by the carnality of its principle, manner, and end. And, alas, often the sins of rulers hasten ruin upon both churches and nations!

CHAP. IV. Ver. 1—5. In the apostolic and millennial periods the gospel-church, represented by Zion and the temple, shall in all the kingdoms of the world, be most firmly and visibly established. Then shall multitudes of Gentiles every where earnestly excite one another to attend the ordinances, and embrace the doctrines of the gospel, issuing forth from Jerusalem in the ministration of the apostles, and other Jewish preachers: and, by his gracious influences and government, Jesus Christ shall introduce spiritual peace and holy conversation, and even civil concord, virtuous industry, and safety, among the nations, where murderous wars, idleness, and danger, had long prevailed. And though others should follow their idolatrous courses, in which they have been educated, we will constantly persevere in the faith, profession, worship, and obedience of the true God, in his strength, and according to the rule of his word. 6, 7. And not only shall the weak, dispirited, and scattered Jews, as the people of God, but the most weak and wretched sinners shall be every where gathered to Christ, and the very weakest of saints encouraged by him. 8. And, both in the apostolic and millennial periods, multitudes of Jews shall be among the first noted converts to the gospel-church. 9, 10. There is therefore no ground of desperate sorrow amidst your distresses, by the Assyrians, Chaldeans, or Romans; for, after ye have been reduced to the most miserable captivity, bondage, and dispersion, ye shall be marvellously delivered: and the deliverances of the gospel-church, from her Heathen and Antichristian persecutors, shall take place when her distress is at the greatest, and her case seemingly until the time that she which travaileth hath brought forth: then the remnant of his brethren shall return unto the children of Israel.

4 ¶ And he shall stand and feed in the strength of the LORD, in the majesty of the name of the LORD his God; and they shall abide: for now shall he be great unto the ends of the earth.

5 And this man shall be the peace when the Assyrian shall come into our land: and, when he shall tread in our palaces, then shall we raise against him seven shepherds and eight principal men.

6 And they shall waste the land of Assyria with the sword, and the land of Nimrod in the entrances thereof: thus shall he deliver us from the Assyrian when he cometh into our land, and when he treadeth within our borders.

7 And the remnant of Jacob shall be in the midst of many people as a dew from the LORD, as the showers upon the grass, that tarrieth not for man, nor waiteth for the sons of men.

8 ¶ And the remnant of Jacob shall be among the Gentiles in the midst of many people as a lion among the beasts of the forest, as a young lion among the flocks of sheep: who, if he go through, both treadeth down and teareth in pieces, and none can deliver.

9 Thine hand shall be lifted up upon thine adversaries, and all thine enemies shall be cut off.

10 And it shall come to pass in that day, saith the LORD, that I will cut off thy horses out of the midst of thee, and I will destroy thy chariots:

11 And I will cut off the cities of thy land, and throw down all thy strong holds:

12 And I will cut off witchcrafts out of thine hand, and thou shalt have no more soothsayers:

13 Thy graven images also will I cut off, and thy standing images out of the midst of thee; and thou shalt no more worship the work of thine hands:

14 And I will pluck up thy groves out of the midst of thee: so will I destroy thy cities.

15 And I will execute vengeance in anger and fury upon the heathen, such as they have not heard.

CHAP. VI.

Now the Hebrews must be convinced of their sinfulness, in order to make them prize and enjoy the gospel promises. (1) God ner, gather and govern, establish and perfect his gospel church. His kingdom shall be extended, and his honour advanced over the world. And not only shall he protect Jerusalem from the Assyrian invaders, but, in every age, shall defend his church from Heathen, Antichristian, or Mahometan enemies; and, by proper instruments in church or state, shall punish them with a fearful destruction.

7—9. And as, at the return from Babylon, and their present dispersion, the Jews shall be exceedingly blessed, and emboldened by God, and made a blessing to multitudes around them, and a terror to their opposers, so shall their preachers, in the apostolic and millennial periods, be remarkably useful in converting the Gentiles to Christ, but a terrible curse, and mean of destruction, to their opposers. 10, 11. I will purge them from all their former cor-ruptions; particularly their trusting in carnal confidences, horses, chariots, and fortifications, and from all divinations and idolatries: and terrible shall be the vengeance which I will execute upon the Assyrians, Chaldeans, Syro-grecians, solemnly upbraids them for their ungrateful requital of his ancient favours, in delivering them from Egypt, leading them through the wilderness, and turning Balaam's intended curse into a blessing; 1—5. (2) Represents the vain methods which sinners would take to recommend themselves to God's favour; 6—8. (3) Recommends the proper method of enjoying his favour, and behaving well under their troubles: 8, 9. (4) Denounces disappointment, famine, sword, and desolation, as the punishment of their injustice, falsehood, violence, and idolatry.

HEAR ye now what the LORD saith; Arise, contend thou before the mountains, and let the hills hear thy voice.

2 Hear ye, O mountains, the LORD's controversy, and ye strong foundations of the earth: for the LORD hath a controversy with his people, and he will plead with Israel.

3 O my people, what have I done unto thee? and wherein have I wearied thee? testify against me.

4 For I brought thee up out of the land of Egypt, and redeemed thee out of the house of servants; and I sent before thee Moses, Aaron, and Miriam.

5 O my people, remember now what Balak king of Moab consulted, and what Balaam the son of Beor answered him from Shittim unto Gilgal, that ye may know the righteousness of the LORD.

6 ¶ Wherewith shall I come before the LORD, and bow myself before the high God? shall I come before him with burnt-offerings, with calves of a year old?

7 Will the LORD be pleased with thousands of rams, or with ten thousands of rivers of oil? shall I give my first-born for my transgression, the fruit of my body for the sin of my soul?

8 He hath shewed thee, O man, what is good: and what doth the LORD require of thee, but to do justly, and to love mercy, and to walk humbly with thy God?

9 The LORD's voice crieth unto the city, and the man of wisdom shall see thy name: hear ye the rod, and who hath appointed it.

10 ¶ Are there yet the treasures of wickedness in the house of the wicked, and the scant measure that is abominable?

11 Shall I count them pure with the wicked balances, and with the bag of deceitful weights?

12 For the rich men thereof are full of violence, and the inhabitants thereof have spoken lies, and their tongue is deceitful in their mouth.

13 Therefore also will I make thee sick in smiting thee, in making thee desolate because of thy sins.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. V.—Behold the miseries of Israel and the disgrace of the family of David gloriously counterbalanced in the person, incarnation, mediation, and glory, of Christ! And grievous distresses and troubles making way for the most glorious benefits of redemption! Behold how extensive, glorious, peaceful, safe, and lasting, is his spiritual kingdom! They who attempt to ruin it but hasten their own destruction. Greatly useful were the Jews, and still shall be, in converting others to Christ, whom they have long so heartily hated. And with great readiness and boldness men act for God when animated by his Spirit. Yea, thrice happy are the churches when their enemies are destroyed and their internal corruptions removed!

CHAP. VII.

Here Micah, in the name of the church, (1) Bitterly bewails the woful decay of religion and good men; and that impiety and immorality had quite overwhelmed the nation, and trampled on every consideration of relation, duty, or interest; 1—6. (2) Comforts himself with the views of his interest in God, and the hopes of God's hearing his prayers, comforting and delivering him, and destroying his enemies; 7—10: and that, after long desolations, the country should be re-peopled by the scattered fugitives and captives; 11—13. (3) Upon his prayer for their restoration and happiness, he is assured by God of marvellous deliverances, and of the terrible destruction of the Assyrians, Chaldeans, Syro-grecians, Romans, Papists, and Turks; 15—17. (4) Triumphs in the mercy and truth of God, so abundant to pardon, so powerful to sanctify the soul, and faithful to perform his promises; 18—20.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. VI.—With solemn earnestness ought ministers to speak on God's behalf; and to inculcate the warnings, threatenings, charges and promises of God. In fearful controversies God pleads with his own people for their sins. And, if he graciously bestow good magistrates and teachers, and disappoint the plots of our enemies, vile and provoking is our ingratitude. Deep convictions of guilt or fondness of an enterprize, may occasion the most anxious inquiries after peace and pardon. And by the most costly expedients would men willingly procure these blessings. But not all the inventions of men can recommend us to God; and faith in Christ, and in God as our God in him, and a true repentance and real holiness, are preferable to every ceremonial service. Infinite then is the kindness of God in teaching us, both by his word and by his rod of afflictions. And great is the necessity of improving both, to promote our turning to God. Sinners, by their wickedness, infallibly bring multiplied calamities upon their own heads. And wicked rulers are awful plagues to nations and churches; for great multitudes will soon cleave to the very worst laws and customs.

CHAP. VII. Ver. 1—6. Alas! few upright men are now left in the country with whom I can conscientiously associate: and early religion and noted progress in holiness are scarcely to be found. Good and upright men are almost entirely gone out of this world: and almost every one is ready, for self-interest, to murder or oppress the most innocent, or most nearly related. Bent upon doing as much mischief as they can, their very princes and judges even impudently demand bribes, and, without sense of shame, they agree to perpetrate the most shocking mischiefs. The very best of them are mischievous and hurt-the daughter riseth up against her mother, the daughter-in-law against her mother-in-law: a man's enemies are the men of his own house.

7 ^k Therefore I will look unto the LORD: I will wait for the God of my salvation: my God will hear me.

8 ^m Rejoice not against me, O mine enemy: when I fall I shall arise; when I sit in darkness the LORD shall be a light unto me.

9 ^o I will bear the indignation of the LORD, because I have sinned against him, until he plead my cause and execute judgment for me: he will bring me forth to the light, and I shall behold his righteousness.

10 ^p Then she that is mine enemy shall see it, and shame shall cover her which said unto me, Where is the LORD thy God? mine eyes shall behold her: now shall she be trodden down as the mire of the streets.

11 ^q In the day that thy walls are to be built, in that day shall the decree be far removed.

12 ^r In that day also he shall come even to thee from Assyria, and from the fortified cities, and from the fortress even to the river, and from sea to sea, and from mountain to mountain.

13 ^s Notwithstanding the land shall be desolate, because of them that dwell therein, for the fruit of their doings.

14 ^t Feed thy people with thy rod, the flock of thine heritage, which dwell solitarily in the wood in the midst of Carmel: let them feed in Bashan and Gilead, as in the days of old.

15 ^u According to the days of thy coming out of the land of Egypt will I shew unto him marvellous things.

16 ^v The nations shall see, and be confounded at all their might: they shall lay their hand upon their mouth, their ears shall be deaf.

17 They shall lick the dust like a serpent, they shall move out of their holes like worms of the earth: they shall be afraid of the LORD our God, and shall fear because of thee.

ful; therefore shall God quickly plunge them into just and most inextricable miseries. So terribly treacherous are they become, that no one is safe in trusting even his nearest relations: nay, none are more to be suspected. 7—10. Therefore will I by faith and patience wait on the Lord, and pray and look for deliverance and safety from him alone, as my God in Christ; nor shall mine enemies have any reason to rejoice over and insult me, for the all-sufficient JESU-VAH shall support, comfort, and deliver me in all my troubles. I will therefore justify God, and submit to his corrections, as procured by my own iniquity, until he revenge the injuries done to me, and publicly own me as his, and honour me to behold the exertions of his equity, mercy, and faithfulness, and till the Assyrians, Chaldeans, Syro-grecians, Romans, Antichristians, and Mahometans, who have oppressed us, be altogether disgraced and ruined. 11—13. Though the country shall be desolated on account of the sins of the inhabitants, yet, whenever the time fixed in God's purpose, for relieving the nation, rebuilding Jerusalem or other cities, and for the re-establishment of the churches, comes, all restraints and hindrances shall be entirely taken out of the way, and the gospel preached over all the world; and not only shall the Jews return from all lands in which they have been dispersed, but Gentiles from all parts of the world shall be converted to Christ. 14. Lord, since thy peculiar people must be thus destroyed and scattered, do thou, as their Shepherd, care for, protect, direct, and provide for them as a nation separated from the world; and bring them back to their wonted habitations and happiness. 15—17. I the Lord will do as great things for them as I did when I brought their fathers out of the land of Egypt. And the Assyrians, Chaldeans, Syro-grecians, Romans, Papists, or Mahometans, shall in their turns be astonished at the wonderful deliverance of my people, and be trampled under their feet, and with terror submit themselves to their power. 18—20. Who is a God like unto thee in perfections, persons, purposes, relations, or works! Who so ready and abundant as thou art in pardoning the most aggravated iniquities of thy people? Thou wilt, in infinitely tender mercy, return to us, notwithstanding all our provocations, and wilt destroy the power of sin in us, and fully and irrevocably pardon all our iniquities: Yea, thou wilt perform all thy ancient promises, which were graciously made to Abraham, and confirmed to Jacob, and other patriarchs, by thy solemn and inviolable oath.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. VII.—Few are the eminently pious amidst the many notoriously wicked in times of general corruption. And where sin pre-compassion upon us, ^qhe will subdue our iniquities; and thou wilt ^rcast all their sins into the depths of the sea.

20 Thou ^swilt perform the truth to Jacob, and the mercy to Abraham, which thou hast sworn unto our fathers from the days of old.

vails what unnatural monsters of violence, fraud, injustice, and every thing horrid are formed by it. But universal contempt and violation of relative duties is a fearful presage of God's awful judgments, and a sad proof of prevalent corruptions. And under divine rebukes nothing is more proper than to consider our ways, repent of our sins, justify God, and look to him alone. His deliverance of his people will quickly issue in the contempt and ruin of his enemies. And every impediment of his salvation is easily removed in the day of his power and time of his love. Even after the most desolating judgments, he can easily assemble and restore his favourites. Quickly and graciously he answers those prayers which are presented to him for their re-establishment and prosperity; and marvellous things he performs for their relief. Thrice happy then and pleasant is it when he gets the glory, and men by faith take the comfort of his perfections, promises, and works.

THE PROPHECY OF N A H U M.

This prophet was a native of Elkosh, a city of Galilee, and appears to have prophesied about A. M. 3284, a little before Sennacherib invaded Judea, in order to comfort the Jews, with the hopes of the approaching destruction of the Assyrian army before Jerusalem, and afterwards of their empire, and of Nineveh the capital. [See Introduction, chap. iv. sect. x.]

CHAP. I.

After the title of the book, (ver. 1.) contains (1) a magnificent description of the glory of God in his just wrath against his enemies, and merciful kindness towards his people, and of his majesty and power in both; 2—8. (2) A denunciation of ruin to Sennacherib and his Assyrian army and idols, to the great comfort of Hezekiah and the Jews; 9—15.

EXPLANATORY NOTES. CHAP. I. Ver. 2, 3. From a zealous regard to his own honour and worship, God will not always suffer his people's enemies to escape his terrible judgments. However long he forbear, he will at last display his infinite power and tremendous equity in the punishment of the wicked, by sudden, perplexing, and unavoidable calamities. 4—6. At his pleasure he divides and dries up seas and rivers, blasts fruitful fields and forests into barrenness, shakes and overturns the mountains by earthquakes and, by droughts or lightnings, burns up the earth and its inhabitants. What persons, cities, or kingdoms, can then stand before the power of 6 ^lWho can stand before his indignation? and who can ^mabide in the fierceness of his anger? his fury is poured out ⁿlike fire, and the rocks are thrown down by him.

7 The LORD is ^ogood, a ^pstrong hold in the day of trouble; and he ^qknoweth them that trust in him.

8 But with an ^roverrunning flood he will make an utter end of the ^splace thereof, and ^tdarkness shall pursue his enemies.

9 ^uWhat do ye imagine against the LORD? ^vhe will make an utter end: affliction shall not rise up the second time.

10 For ^wwhile they be folden together as thorns; and while they are drunken as drunkards, ^xthey shall be devoured as stubble fully dry.

11 There is ^yone come out of thee that imagineth evil against the LORD: ^za wicked counsellor.

13 For now will I break his yoke from off thee, and will burst thy bonds in sunder.

14 And the LORD hath given a commandment concerning thee, that no more of thy name be sown: out of the house of thy gods will I cut off the graven image and the molten image: I will make thy grave, for thou art vile.

15 Behold upon the mountains the feet of him that bringeth good tidings, that publisheth peace; O Judah, keep thy solemn feasts, perform thy vows: for the wicked shall no more pass through thee; he is utterly cut off.

CHAP. II.

Now the obstinate Assyrians must be fully ruined. (1) To punish their invasion of Judea, and murdering and enslaving the Lord's people, the Medes and Chaldeans, with great and terrible military preparations, invade their country, and besiege and take Nineveh their capital; 1—6. (2) While the king, queen, or other inhabitants, attempt to flee for their life, or are carried captive, the city and country are spoiled of their wealth, and every one quite overwhelmed with grief and despair; 7—10. (3) While enemies insult and rejoice over the ruin of Nineveh and her Assyrian empire, God avows himself the Author of it; 11—13.

HE that dasheth in pieces is come up before thy face: keep the munition, watch the way, make thy loins strong, fortify thy power mightily.

2 For the LORD hath turned away the excellency of Jacob, as the excellency of Israel: for the emptiers have emptied them out, and marred their vine branches.

3 The shield of this mighty men is made red, the valiant men are in scarlet: the chariots shall be with flaming torches in the day of his preparation, and the fir trees shall be terribly shaken.

4 The chariots shall rage in the streets, they shall jostle one against another in the broad ways: they shall seem like torches, they shall run like the lightnings.

5 He shall recount his worthies: they shall stumble in their walk; they shall make haste to the wall thereof, and the defence shall be prepared.

6 The gates of the rivers shall be opened, and the palace shall be dissolved.

7 And Huzzab shall be led away captive; she shall be brought up, and city, and temple: but his victorious army, now fearless of danger, and great in numbers, shall be suddenly destroyed, and his family and idols quickly ruined, yea the whole Assyrian empire shall be reduced, and the people perish on account of their wickedness; and be buried before Jerusalem, or in the rubbish of their own cities. 12, 13, 15. No more shall the Assyrians afflict you, O ye Jews; no more shall they tyrannically oppress you: for I will utterly destroy them; that ye may be invited to; and have free access to observe your solemn festivals, as a presage of gospel solemnities.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. I.—It is terrible to have God as our enemy; but infinitely happy to have him as our friend. Great and daring provocations of him, and injuries done to his people, will certainly issue in men's great and irresistible destruction: yea, nothing more plainly presages their ruin than carnal security and self-confidence: and their plots against him but hasten it upon themselves and families. Men's pride always lay them low; and shameful sins bring on shameful punishments: but God's people shall be delivered from all their oppressors at last. And in this, but chiefly in the other world, they shall have blessed opportunities of celebrating the praises, and performing the solemn services, of JEHOVAH their gracious deliverer. And great is the mercy to a land when Gospel ordinances have free course and are glorified.

CHAP. II. Ver. 1, 2. Ye Assyrians, who have destroyed the kingdom of Israel and repeatedly harassed Judah, may now exert your whole power to protect your own country and cities; for the Medes and Chaldeans, those terrible destroyers of nations, have begun to invade and besiege you. 3, 4. Red in their apparel and armour, and ready to shed your blood, they shall enter your cities amidst torches and flames of fire, and shall, with the most terrible rapidity and fury, destroy whatever they meet with. 5, 6. While the choicest troops of her maids shall lead her as with the voice of doves, tabernaculating upon their breasts.

8 But Nineveh is of old like a pool of water: yet they shall flee away. Stand, stand, shall they cry; but none shall look back.

9 Take ye the spoil of silver, take the spoil of gold: for there is none end of the store and glory out of all the pleasant furniture.

10 She is empty, and void, and waste: and the heart melteth, and the knees smite together, and much pain is in all loins, and the faces of them all gather blackness.

11 Where is the dwelling of the lions, and the feeding place of the young lions, where the lion, even the old lion, walked, and the lion's whelp, and none made them afraid?

12 The lion did tear in pieces enough for his whelps, and strangled for his lionesses, and filled his holes with prey, and his dens with ravin.

13 Behold, I am against thee, saith the LORD of hosts, and I will burn her chariots in the smoke, and the sword shall devour thy young lions: and I will cut off thy prey from the earth, and the voice of thy messengers shall no more be heard.

CHAP. III.

Contains (1) Charges of murder, robbery, oppression, whoredom, idolatry, witchcraft, and universal wickedness, upon the Ninevites; 1, 4, 19. (2) Denunciations of correspondent punishments; 2, 3, 5—7. (3) Like desolations of Egypt and Ethiopia produced, as presages of the Assyrian's ruin; 8—10. (4) Declarations that no magnanimous bravery, impregnable forts, numerous armies, powerful princes, or mighty captains, should avail to prevent the Assyrians' ruin; 11—19.

WO to the bloody city! it is all full of lies and robbery; the prey departeth not:

2 The noise of a whip, and the noise of the rattling of the wheels, and of the prancing horses, and of the jumping chariots.

3 The horseman lifteth up both the bright sword and the glittering spear: and there is a multitude of slain, and a great number of carcases: and there is none end of their corpses: they stumble upon their corpses:

4 Because of the multitude of the whoredoms of the well-favoured harlot, the mistress of witchcrafts, that selleth

Media and Chaldea shall furiously attack your walls, ye shall exert yourselves for their defence: but the high swollen river shall open for them an entrance into the city, and assist them in its utter destruction. 7—10. Nineveh, and her inhabitants, shall be utterly disgraced; her fine ladies and warriors, who thought themselves secure, shall in great agonies of grief, hasten away, or be led captives: and, notwithstanding all that their generals can do to make them stand in their own defence, the numerous armies and inhabitants shall flee with the utmost precipitation. And, while the Assyrians are quite dispirited and overwhelmed with grief, the Medes and Chaldeans shall seize on their wealth, and reduce Nineveh to a heap of ruins. 11—13. The nations around shall rejoice to see Nineveh, in which their oppressive and murderous tyrants had long dwelt securely, and stored up their wealth, utterly destroyed. For the Lord will abandon their armies to destruction, and give up all their ill-gotten wealth into the hand of their enemies; and never more shall their messengers blaspheme my great name, or terrify the nations with their threatenings or oppressive demands.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. II.—Alas, what fearful punishment do injuries done to God's people incur! And at what expense and labour do men destroy one another! But terrible are the weakest nations when God animates them; and pitiful and dastardly the most mighty and numerous when he fights against them. Unavailing are honour, wealth, number, or valour, in the day of his wrath. And it is terrible to have our conscience laden with guilt in an evil day, in which every thing dear is taken from us. Awful is it for men to damn their souls by fraudulent attempts to aggrandize themselves and families: and dreadful is the case of oppressors, murderers, and blasphemers, when God rises up to punish them, and when death and hell shut their mouths!

deceived, and spoiled, the nations around; and, by their infernal and artful devices, have subjected them to their government, and drawn them into their idolatries. 2, 3, 5—7. The Medes and Chaldeans, many of whom fight on horses and in chariots, shall rout your armies, enter your cities, and fill your streets with multitudes of corpses: and I will render you utterly miserable and disgraced in the view of all around, without any to pity your case. 8—10. Learn from the fate of No in Egypt what you may certainly expect: though famed for the number of its inhabitants, naturally impregnable, and supported by the huge armies of almost all the north-east parts of Africa, nevertheless you Assyrians sacked it, murdering the infants, carrying captive the rest, and dividing the great men for slaves. 11—15. Ye shall be stupified with overwhelming miseries, rendered quite incapable of helping yourselves, buried in contempt and ruin, and obliged to beg assistance against the Medes and Chaldeans. Your strong holds shall, almost at the first onset, fall into the hands of the enemy; your armies and people shall be dispirited, and desert their stations, leaving all the passages quite open; and all the toilsome reparations of your walls shall be to no purpose: even in your strong holds ye shall be burnt by the fire, or slain by the sword. 15—19. The prodigious numbers of your troops, and of hired soldiers, shall but devour your wealth, and then shift for themselves. Your tributary kings and mercenary commanders will promise you help, but quickly desert you whenever danger appears. Your generals and noble warriors shall be infatuated, dispirited, or murdered, and your armies and people scattered among the nations, without any one to protect or relieve them; nor shall your capital or empire be ever restored; and all the nations, whom you have oppressed, shall rejoice to hear of your destruction.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. III.—Enormous wickedness ordinarily attends great confluences of men. And curses, shame, contempt, and destruction, are the certain and final issue. Little reason then have men to be proud of what can be so quickly taken from them, or rendered their plague. But if our companions in guilt or grandeur have been ruined, it is time for us to take warning and repent. And, if God be against us, who can be for us! Useless are all means of preservation in the day of his wrath. Unstable are the most exalted stations on earth. And they, who have rendered others miserable, will certainly be themselves reduced to misery at last.

THE PROPHECY OF

H A B A K K U K.

This prophet might prophesy about the same time with Jeremiah, or perhaps during the reign of Manasseh. After complaining of the wickedness of the Jews and Chaldeans, he is divinely informed of their respective ruin: and in his prayer celebrates the power and majesty of God, and professes his joy in him.

EXPLANATORY NOTES.—CHAP. I. Ver. 2-4. Lord, how long must I complain to thee of the oppression and other wickedness which every where prevail, before thou takest any course to restrain it and deliver the oppressed? Why is my lot cast in such times and places, in which I must always behold such injuries, oppressions, and groundless contentions? and in which, through delay of just punishment, men harden themselves in their wickedness, and grow worse and worse? Thy law is contemned and disobeyed, and common justice is scarcely ever executed; but the wicked, by their numbers or influence, quite overpower and oppress the godly, and pervert judgment as much as they please. 5-11. Behold, with terror and astonishment, how I, who am now punishing the Heathen nations, will shortly punish you with a more tremendous destruction, which ye will never believe till ye feel. By my direction, the cruel, fierce, and dreadful Chaldeans, who shall rule every thing according to their own will, shall furiously invade your country, seize your wealth, and murder or enslave your persons. Regardless of all the opposition that you can make, they shall destroy or lead captive your princes, and waste your cities: and, puffed up by their conquests, Nebuchadnezzar and his subjects shall become more and more insolent, self-confident, and idolatrous, ascribing their victories to their idols. 12-19. O everlasting God, who hast for many ages been the God of the Jews by peculiar covenant relation, and who wilt not utterly destroy us, thou wilt indeed raise up these Chaldeans to correct us, but thy infinite holiness can never permit thee to approve their wicked designs. Why then wilt thou give them success, in treacherously oppressing and destroying thy own people? Alas! why wilt thou permit men to act as stupid and savage animals, which, without any order or government, destroy such as are better or weaker than themselves? And who therefore ascribe all their success, wealth, and honour, to their own power and policy? Wilt thou then always permit them to hoard up what they have gotten, and to proceed in their murder and devastations!

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. I.—Faithful ministers must often bear heavy messages of wrath to God's professing people. And it is grievous to them to behold hold evil, and canst not look on iniquity: wherefore lookest thou upon them that deal treacherously, and holdest thy tongue when the wicked devoureth the man that is more righteous than he?

14 And makest men as the fishes of the sea, as the creeping things that have no ruler over them?

15 They take up all of them with the angle, they catch them in their net, and gather them in their drag; therefore they rejoice and are glad.

16 Therefore they sacrifice unto their net, and burn incense unto their drag: because by them their portion is fat, and their meat plenteous.

17 Shall they therefore empty their net, and not spare continually to slay the nations?

CHAP. II.

In answer to Habakkuk's complaints, God here (1) Declares that, after he had sufficiently tried the faith of his people, and distinguished hypocrites from saints, he would reckon with the proud Chaldeans by the Medes and Persians, and bring them to ruin for their oppressions and murders; 1-8. (2) Denounces fearful curses against them and their companions in wickedness;—as being greedy of wealth and honour; 9-11: oppressive raisers of estates by injustice and robbery; 12, 13, 17: promoters of drunkenness, or destroyers of others; 15-17: and worshippers of idols; 18, 19. (3) Promises that by these judgments he would spread the knowledge and awe of himself among the nations; 14, 20.

I WILL stand upon my watch, and set me upon the tower, and will watch to see what he will say unto me, and what I shall answer when I am reproved.

2 And the LORD answered me, and said, Write the vision, and make it plain upon tables, that he may run that readeth it.

3 For the vision is yet for an appointed time, but at the end it shall speak, and not lie: though it tarry, wait for it; because it will surely come, it will not tarry.

4 Behold, his soul which is lifted up is not upright in him: but the just shall live by his faith.

5 Yea also, because he transgresseth by wine, he is a proud man, neither keepeth at home, who enlargeth his desire as hell, and is as death, and cannot iniquity abound, while they can do nothing to repress it. Especially to see men diabolically turn tormentors of one another. In the most fearful manner vengeance follows wickedness; and violence is returned for violence, and fraud for fraud. And success in sin tempts men to become more and more wicked. But happy is it in evil times to have the eternal God our own, and on our side, by special covenant; and to live in the firm faith of the holiness and equity of his whole providential dispensations, and that sin shall not always escape unpunished. And it is highly becoming to ascribe due praise to him, let men injure us as they will.—Sound and well-established principles are great supports to a distressed mind; and, though God correct his people, yet he will not utterly destroy them. Whatever difficulties we therefore apprehend in God's providences, we must cast all our care upon him, and wait patiently for his salvation. Instruments of God's wrath may for a time bring awful desolation among men. But, however little account they make of men's lives, God will at last reckon with such conquerors as the most arrant robbers and most bloody murderers of mankind.

CHAP. II. Ver. 1-4. I resolved to wait patiently for God's answer to my own bold complaints, that, instructed by him, I might be able to answer others who quarrel with his judgments. And the Lord commanded me to write his declarations in the plainest manner, that every person might receive proper instruction from them: and, since they will not be quickly fulfilled, it behoves us patiently to wait for them, as they will certainly be accomplished in their proper season, without so much as a moment's unnecessary delay. And it is by men's patient waiting that their sincerity will be tried. They who despise the promise, discredit the promise, and proudly quarrel with the providence, of God: or who, drawing back from him, depend on their own devices; manifest their hearts to be unsound: but they who are justified by faith in Jesus' righteousness shall persevere in their duty, living by faith on his promises. 5-8. Contains Habakkuk's prayer, in which he (1) Earnestly begs that God would help and relieve his afflicted people; 1, 2. (2) Calls to mind God's glorious and gracious appearances for the Israelites, in bringing them out of Egypt and into Canaan. 3—15. bouring nations, shall be punished in their turn, and be derided by their slaves and tributaries, as ruined by their extent of power and heaps of ensnaring and defiling wealth. For the barbarous Medes and Persians shall quickly and unexpectedly plunder and destroy these Chaldean spoilers and murderers of the Jews and the nations around.

9—11. Dreadful judgments await those who by unjust acquisitions think to aggrandize and establish themselves and families, and to build stately palaces and forts for themselves. Bloody cruelty and oppression will issue in the disgrace and ruin of the guilty and their families: and the very materials of their houses, procured by unjust methods, shall cry to God for vengeance against them.

12—14. Dreadful curses shall overtake them who build or fortify Babylon, or any other city, by that which they have gotten by plunder, injustice, or murder: and all their fatiguing labours shall be of no avail when the Persians shall enter by the gates and destroy the inhabitants: for God shall, in the most alarming manner, glorify himself before all nations in the destruction of Babylon, as well as in our redemption, thereby prefigured. 15—17. Dreadful miseries shall befall the Chaldeans and others, who are instruments of ruining other nations, and who abandon themselves to beastly drunkenness. Their drunkenness, attended by the fearful judgments of God, shall subject them to disgrace, contempt, and misery; and the violence which they committed against God's temple and people shall issue in their own cruel destruction by the barbarous Medes and Persians.

18—20. Nor shall their idols, by which they misrepresent the true God, in the least help them in the day of their distress; yea, their worship thereof shall bring fearful misery upon them. But JEHOVAH, the God of Israel, is in his church and in heaven, always ready to help his people: Let men therefore every where adore his perfections, and ponder, admire, and submit to, his providences.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. II.—In evil times it is best to wait upon God, believe his word, and watch against temptation. And they who preach his truths should make them as plain as possible. God has fixed the best time for his works; and never does he defer them a moment beyond it. But it is only by faith in his promise we can patiently wait his time of performance: and it is only they, who are justified in and live by the faith of Christ, who persevere in their duty.—Nothing more effectually seduces men from God than a proud heart. But with the greatest ease God overthrows the mightiest monarchs and empires: and easily he reduces to ruin the most covetous, imperious, drunken, and murderous of mankind. Alas! that men are often so senseless that, when they have much, they would still have more; and that they often ruin themselves and families by doing injuries to others! Yea, often they provoke God to give them up to dishonour by their abominable works. And strange is it that, in trouble, men will seek any where for relief but to God. But, if they will not be taught by his word, he will force them to know and acknowledge his judgments; and, notwithstanding all opposition, will shew himself victorious over all his enemies.

CHAP. III. Ver. 2. Terrified by thine answers to my former complaints, Lord, I beseech thee to support thy people under these calamities, and under their captivity give them some tokens of thy favour, and some mitigation of trouble. 3, 4. How wonderful were thy appearances for thy people on former occasions! At the giving of the law on mount Sinai the whole firmament shone with the rays of thy glory, and the earth rang with thy praise; and yet that was but a very scanty manifestation of thy power. 5, 6. By divers plagues thou didst destroy the Egyptians and Canaanites. And, taking up thy abode in the ark, thou didst expel the latter, and gave their land to thy people. The mightiest giants and best fortified cities were forced to yield; and thy dispensations are, in every age, powerful and gracious. 7. The Midianites, who trembled at the earthquakes occasioned by the descent on mount Sinai, were afterwards marvelously destroyed by Phinehas and Gideon. 8—10. Not from any displeasure

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. III.—Attentive hearing of God's word animates to prayer. And, even under tokens of his wrath, we must never despair of his mercy: there is enough of it in his stores—in his heart. Nor ought we to neglect observing his former providences of mercy or judgment. Even in his most majestic manifestations, he has the salvation of his people chiefly at heart; and all creatures are ready to assist in promoting it. If he then be our leader, our assistant, no enemies can withstand us. And if God, from regard to his promise, did so much to Israel, what will he not do in the work of our redemption through Christ? Let me therefore never indulge slavish fear. If I enjoy created comforts, let me not fix my heart upon them; and if I want them, let me always rejoice in my unchangeable ALL IN ALL, the great God my Saviour.
Thus the worst of times may be the best for my soul.

THE PROPHECY OF

Z E P H A N I A H.

This prophet flourished about A. M. 3390, along with Jeremiah. His scope is to foretell the desolation of Judah and Jerusalem by the Chaldeans, and to point out the causes of it, to denounce God's wrath against the nations which assisted in, or rejoiced over the calamities of the Jews; and to predict the glory of the Jewish nation after the captivity in Babylon and their present dispersion, and of the gospel church thereby prefigured.

cir. 612.

CHAP. I.

After an account of the prophet and date of his mission, we have
(1) Denunciations of utter destruction to Judah and Jerusalem, particularly to such as worshipped idols and neglected the worship of God; 2—6. (2) Calls to submit silently to the judgments, because the wicked only would be punished; 7—9, 12, 17: and to howl, because the judgments would extend to all ranks and all places, and would be most terrible and unavoidable; 10—18.

cut off man from off the land, saith the LORD.

4 'I will also stretch out mine hand upon Judah, and upon all the inhabitants of Jerusalem; and I will cut off ^ethe remnant of Baal from this place, and the name of the Chemarims with the priests;

5 And ^bthem that worship the host of heaven upon the house tops; and them that worship, and ^bthat swear [†]by the LORD, and that swear by ^kMalcham;

6 And them that are ^bturned back from the LORD; and those that ^mhave not sought the LORD, nor inquired for him.

7 ⁿHold thy peace at the presence of the Lord God: for the ^oday of the LORD is at hand: for ^pthe LORD hath prepared a sacrifice, ^qhe hath ^{||}bid his guests.

8 And it shall come to pass, in the day of the LORD's sacrifice, that ⁱI will ^{*}punish the princes, and the king's children, and all such as are clothed with ^sstrange apparel.

9 In the same day also will I punish all those that ^lleap on the threshold, who ^ufill their masters' houses with violence and deceit.

10 And it shall come to pass ^xin that day, saith the LORD, that there shall be ^ythe noise of ^aa cry from the ^zfish gate, and an howling from the second, and a great crashing from ^athe hills.

11 ^bHowl, ye inhabitants of [†]Maktesh, for all the merchant people are cut down; all they that bear silver are cut off.

12 And it shall come to pass at that time that I will ^csearch Jerusalem with candles, and punish the men that are ^dsettled on their lees; that say in their heart, ^eThe LORD will not do good, neither will he do evil.

13 ^fTherefore their goods shall become a booty, and their houses a desolation: they shall also build houses, but ^gnot inhabit them; and they shall plant vineyards, but not drink the wine thereof.

14 ^hThe great day of the LORD is near, it is near, and hasteth greatly, even ^kthe voice of the day of the LORD: ^lthe mighty man shall cry there bitterly.

15 That day is ^ma day of wrath, a day of trouble and distress, a day of wasteness and desolation, a day of darkness and gloominess, a day of clouds and thick darkness, and Malcham, or Molech, together: and some, who had been zealous in Josiah's reformation, had apostatized to idolatry.

7. The slaughtered Jews were the sacrifice to God's just vengeance; and the Chaldeans were the guests appointed by God not only to slay them, but to feed upon and devour their wealth and substance.

5. They who leap on the threshold are either idolatrous priests, who jumped over the thresholds of their temples; or rather servants, who insolently entered the houses of pretended malefactors, to plunder them for their masters.

12. God will manifest and punish the most secret abominations, particularly of those who, from Atheistical principles, are become hardened and secure in wickedness. 14—18. These expressions denote the terrible, confounding, ruinous, and desolating, nature of the Chaldean and Roman invasions.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. I.—The wrath of God makes fearful havoc in a nation or kingdom; and burns hottest against apostate professors and hypocrites. These refusers of Christ's atoning sacrifice, must themselves fall a sacrifice to the provoked vengeance of God: nor can any rank or station save from his stroke. Yea every sin, secret or open, is taken into his account, as a ground of their punishment. Gaudy apparel and ill-gotten gains speedily 16 A ^aday of the trumpet and alarm against the fenced cities, and against the high towers.

17 And I will bring distress upon men, ^othat they shall walk like blind men, ^pbecause they have sinned against the LORD: and ^qtheir blood shall be poured out as dust, and their flesh as the dung.

18 ^rNeither their silver nor their gold shall be able to deliver them in the day of the LORD's wrath; but ^sthe whole land shall be devoured by the fire of his jealousy: for he shall make even a speedy ^triddance of all them that dwell in the land.

CHAP. II.

Contains (1) An earnest exhortation to the Jews to search out and repent of their sins, and implore God's favour and grace, in order to avert or mitigate his anger; 1—3. (2) Denunciations of desolating judgments to the neighbouring nations, which had or would assist in helping forward the calamities of the Hebrews, particularly the Philistines; 4—7: the Moabites and Ammonites; 8—11: the Ethiopians and Assyrians; 12—15. [See Introduction, chap. iv. sect. i—xi.]

3 ^gSeek ye the LORD, all ye ^hmeek of the earth, which have wrought his judgment; seek righteousness, seek meekness: ⁱit may be ye shall be hid in the day of the LORD's anger.

4 ¶ ^kFor Gaza shall be forsaken, and Ashkelon a desolation: they shall drive out Ashdod ^lat the noon day, and Ekron shall be rooted up.

5 Wo unto the inhabitants of the sea coasts, the nations of the Cherethites! the word of the LORD is against you: O Canaan, the land of the Philistines, I will even destroy thee, that there shall be no inhabitant.

6 And the sea coast shall be ^mdwelling and cottages for shepherds, and folds for flocks.

7 And ⁿthe coast shall be for ^othe remnant of the house of Judah; they shall feed thereupon; in the houses of Ashkelon shall they lie down in the evening: ^{*}for the LORD their God ^pshall visit them, and turn away their captivity.

help on their destruction. Alas, how terrible is it to fall into the hands of an angry God! How awakening to infidels themselves, who had racked their wits to silence their consciences, that they might enjoy their guilty pleasures undisturbed! But, if periods of judgments be so dreadful, what must be the great day of the Lord! How will it strike sinners dumb with horror, and consume them as with fire! And all earthly enjoyments will be then altogether ineffectual for their relief.

CHAP. II. Ver. 1—3. O nation, careless about, and odious to, God, search yourselves diligently, and assemble together in solemn fasting, before the appointed day of his vengeance overtake you, which shall unavoidably hurl you out of your land and miserably destroy you. Ye poor afflicted, and humble souls, who have obeyed his laws, and observed his ordinances, implore his favour, and supplicate increase of grace and holiness:—thus, it may be, ye shall not perish with your wicked countrymen. 4—7. WO to her that is filthy and polluted, to the oppressing city!

2 She obeyed not the voice: she received not correction: she trusted not in the LORD: she drew not near to her God.

3 Her princes within her are roaring lions: her judges are evening wolves; they gnaw not the bones till the morrow.

4 Her prophets are light and treacherous persons: her priests have polluted the sanctuary, they have done violence to the law.

5 The just LORD is in the midst thereof; he will not do iniquity: every morning doth he bring his judgment to light, he faileth not; but the unjust knoweth no shame.

6 I have cut off the nations: their towers are desolate; I made their streets waste, that none passeth by: their cities are destroyed, so that there is no man, that there is none inhabitant.

7 I said, Surely thou wilt fear me, thou wilt receive instruction; so their dwelling should not be cut off, howsoever I punished them: but they rose early, and corrupted all their doings.

8 Therefore wait ye upon me, saith the LORD, until the day that I rise up to the prey: for my determination is to gather the nations, that I may assemble the kingdoms, to pour upon them mine indignation, even all my fierce anger: for all the earth shall be devoured with the fire of my jealousy.

9 For then will I turn to the people a pure language, that they may all call upon the name of the LORD, to serve him with one consent.

10 From beyond the rivers of Ethiopia my suppliants even the daughter of my dispersed, shall bring mine offering.

11 In that day shalt thou not be ashamed for all thy doings wherein thou hast transgressed against me: for then I will take away out of the midst of thee them that rejoice in thy pride, and thou shalt no more be haughty because of my holy mountain.

12 I will also leave in the midst of thee an afflicted and poor people, and they shall trust in the name of the LORD.

13 The remnant of Israel shall not do iniquity, nor speak lies; neither shall a deceitful tongue be found in their mouth: for they shall feed and lie down, and none shall make them afraid.

14 ¶ Sing, O daughter of Zion; shout,

The Ethiopians on the south, and Assyrians on the north-east, shall also be murdered by the Chaldeans and other instruments of my vengeance. And the now famous, fearless, and haughty, city of Nineveh, shall be reduced to an heap of ruins, to the astonishment and joy of the nations which they have oppressed.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. II.—Sin renders the highest professors useless and odious before God. And there is great need of self-examination, and solemn humiliation and prayer, when his judgments hang over our head. How terrible are the corrections of God's own people! But little reason have their enemies to rejoice thereat, for their calamities will issue in the ruin of their injurers. Pride, insolence, and carnal mirth, must at last give place to debasement, anguish, death, and damnation! Yea, sinners are often fearfully recompensed in this world, and their places of abode marked with wrath. What then must be their eternal misery in hell!

CHAP. III. Ver. 1-4. Dreadful miseries await Jerusalem, which is quite filled with wickedness, violence, and oppression. Most of the inhabitants pay no regard to God's laws, warnings or corrections: they trust not in him, but in their Heathen allies and idols: and, regardless of his covenant relation to them, they neither pray to nor worship him. Their princes and judges are rapacious and cruel oppressors. Their prophets are light, frothy, and treacherous to God and men. Their priests profane the sanctuary, and pervert the law, by their false glosses or bad examples. 5-7. Though I, who in infinite righteousness am an hater of all iniquity, am among them in mine ordinances to observe their conduct: and, though I have long and repeatedly warned them by my prophets, and by making examples of impenitent sinners, yet still they continue impudent and obstinate in their sin: and though, for their warning, I have executed my desolating judgments on other nations, that so I might not be obliged to destroy them, yet, instead of repenting, they have become more wicked. 8-13. Nevertheless, wait ye on me, till by desolating judgments I have destroyed the wicked from among you, and have even destroyed the wicked nations from the world: for after that I will, by my grace, effectually renew your heart and life, and make you unanimously to concur in worshipping me. Gathered from the most distant countries, ye shall humbly present to me your thanksgivings; and returned to your own land, no more shall ye undergo the reproach and punishment of your former sins. They that prided themselves in their peculiar relation to God, and their outward privileges and ordinances, shall be cut off; and, in their stead, I will raise up a generation of persons, meek and humble under their troubles, who shall trust in my promises, believe on my Son, and; being renewed in their hearts, shall detest falsehood and all other wickedness, and shall be encouraged to an upright and holy conversation by the protection which I will afford them. 14-19. Rejoice greatly, O Jews, take courage, and abound in piety, for I the Lord will remove your troubles, and destroy your Chaldean and other enemies. I will, as your God and King take pleasure in saving and perpetually shewing favours to you. But these promises chiefly relate to the conversion of multitudes of Jews and Gentiles, and their noted harmony, purity, comfort, peace, and honour, in the gospel church, especially in the millennial state. [See Introduction, chap. iv. sect. xvii—xix.]

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. III.—Alas! what terrible wickedness against

God and men abounds among apostate professors! And it is truly lamentable when they, who ought to have been the principal patterns of and encouragers to piety, become the most obstinate ringleaders in wickedness of every kind. Churches and nations, obdurate in guilt, must be made monuments of wrath. But, where sin has abounded, how grace much more abounds! An Almighty God can easily pardon and reform his people, and cut off their enemies. And, when taught and drawn by him, how pleasantly they flock to Jesus Christ and his church; and their very troubles contribute to engage their hearts. In his times of promise and days of power, God graciously puts an end to his people's troubles, bestows the tokens of his presence, delights in them to do them good, comforts their mourners, recovers their weakest captives, and restores, with advantage, their wonted honours.

THE PROPHECY OF HAGGAI.

The thirteen preceding prophets had flourished before, or during the Jews' captivity in Babylon. This and the two following prophesied after their return to Canaan. Haggai began his public work in the 16th year after their return; and his scope is to encourage them to proceed in rebuilding the temple of God. He continued prophesying about four months; chap. i. 1, 15; and ii. 1, 10, 20.

CHAP. I.

After an account of the date and direction, contains (1) God's sharp reproof of the dilatoriness of the returned Jews in rebuilding his temple, while they repaired their own houses, which had provoked God to punish them with a famine; and an exhortation earnestly to resume and finish that work; 1—11. (2) An account of their ready obedience, and of the Lord's further animating and encouraging them to their work; 12—15.

IN the second year of Darius the king, in the sixth month, in the first day of the month, came the word of the LORD by Haggai the prophet unto Zerubbabel the son of Shealtiel governor of Judah, and to Joshua the son of Josedech the high priest, saying,

2 Thus speaketh the LORD of hosts, saying, This people say, The time is not come, the time that the LORD's house should be built.

3 Then came the word of the LORD by Haggai the prophet, saying,

4 Is it time for you, O ye to dwell in your ceiled houses, and this house lie waste?

5 Now therefore, thus saith the LORD of hosts, Consider your ways.

6 Ye have sown much, and bring in little: ye eat, but ye have not enough.

ye drink, but ye are not filled with drink: ye clothe you, but there is none warm: and he that earneth wages earneth wages to put it into a bag with holes.

7 Thus saith the LORD of hosts, Consider your ways.

8 Go up to the mountain, and bring wood, and build the house; and I will take pleasure in it, and I will be glorified, saith the LORD.

9 Ye looked for much, and, lo, it came to little; and when ye brought it home I did blow upon it. Why? saith the LORD of hosts. Because of mine house that is waste, and ye run every man unto his own house.

10 Therefore the heaven over you is stayed from dew, and the earth is stayed from her fruit.

11 And I called for a drought upon the land, and upon the mountains, and upon the corn, and upon the new wine, and upon the oil, and upon that which the ground bringeth forth, and upon men, and upon cattle, and upon all the labour of the hands.

12 ¶ Then Zerubbabel the son of Shealtiel, and Joshua the son of Josedech the high priest, with all the remnant of the people, obeyed the voice of the LORD their God, and the words of Haggai the prophet; as the LORD their God had sent him; and the people did fear before the LORD.

13 Then spake Haggai the LORD's messenger in the LORD's message unto the people, saying, I am with you, saith the LORD.

14 ¶ And the LORD stirred up the spirit of Zerubbabel the son of Shealtiel governor of Judah, and the spirit of Joshua the son of Josedech the high priest, and the spirit of all the remnant of the people; and they came, and did work in the house of the LORD of hosts their God, 15 In the "four and twentieth day of the sixth month, in the second year of Darius the king.

CHAP. II.

Contains three messages from God, encouraging the Jews who rebuilt his temple; in which he assures them (1) That, however inferior it might be in external glory to that which had been formerly built by Solomon, yet the presence of his Spirit and of the incarnate Messiah in it would render it more glorious in spiritual respects; 1—9. (2) That, though their sinful delay to rebuild it had rendered them unclean in his sight, and prevented their prosperity, yet, now that they had earnestly applied to it, they should henceforth be blessed in their crops; &c. 10—19. (3) That for a reward of his activity therein, Zerubbabel should be a favourite of heaven, a type and ancestor of the Messiah, whose kingdom should be established upon the ruins of all opposition; 20—23.

IN the "seventh month, in the one and twentieth day of the month, came the word of the LORD by the prophet Haggai, saying,

2 "Speak now to Zerubbabel the son of Shealtiel governor of Judah, and to Joshua the son of Josedech the high priest, and to the residue of the people, saying,

3 Who is left among you that saw this house in her first glory? and how do ye see it now? is it not in your eyes in comparison of it as nothing?

4 Yet "now be strong, O Zerubbabel, saith the LORD; and be strong, O Joshua, son of Josedech the high priest; and be strong, all ye people of the land, saith the LORD, and work; for I am with you, saith the LORD of hosts:

5 According to the word that I covenanted with you when ye came out of Egypt, so my Spirit remaineth among you: fear ye not.

6 For thus saith the LORD of hosts, Yet once, it is a little while, and I will shake the heavens and the earth, and the sea, and the dry land;

7 And I will shake all nations, and the desire of all nations shall come; and I will fill this house with glory, saith the LORD of hosts.

8 "The silver is mine, and the gold is mine, saith the LORD of hosts.

9 "The glory of this latter house shall be greater than of the former, saith the LORD of hosts: and in this place will I give peace, saith the LORD of hosts.

10 ¶ In the "four and twentieth day of the ninth month, in the second year of Darius, came the word of the LORD by Haggai, the prophet, saying,

11 Thus saith the LORD of hosts, Ask now the priests concerning the law, saying,

12 If one bear holy flesh in the skirt of his garment, and with his skirt do touch bread, or pottage, or wine, or oil, or any meat, shall it be holy? And the priests answered and said, No.

13 Then said Haggai, If "one that is unclean by a dead body touch any of these, shall it be unclean? And the priests answered and said, It shall be unclean.

14 Then answered Haggai, and said. So is this people, and so is this nation before me, saith the LORD; and so is every work of their hands; and that which they offer there is unclean.

15 And now, I pray you, consider from this day and upward, from before a stone was laid upon a stone in the temple of the LORD:

16 "Since those days were, when one came to an heap of twenty measures there were but ten: when one came to the press fat for to draw out fifty vessels out of the press, there were but twenty.

17 "I smote you with blasting, and with mildew, and with hail, in all the labours of your hands; yet ye turned not to me, saith the LORD.

18 Consider now from this day and upward, from the four and twentieth day of the ninth month, even from the day that the foundation of the LORD's temple was laid, consider it.

19 Is the seed yet in the barn? yea, as yet the vine, and the fig tree, and the pomegranate, and the olive tree, have not brought forth: from this day will I bless you.

20 ¶ And again the word of the LORD came unto Haggai, in the four and twentieth day of the month, saying,

21 Speak to Zerubbabel governor of Judah, saying, I will shake the heavens and the earth;

22 And I will overthrow the throne of kingdoms, and I will destroy the strength of the kingdoms of the Heathen, and I will overthrow the chariots, and those that ride in them; and the horses and their riders shall come down, every one by the sword of his brother.

23 In that day, saith the LORD of REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. I.—Lukewarm professors are easily checked in their reforming attempts. If civil powers do not encourage them they imagine it is not a proper season: and it will require both prophets and plagues to stir them up to their duty. Uncertain, unsubstantial, and unsatisfying, are all the enjoyments of wealth. And it is very unlike saints to prefer temporal advantages to the honour of Christ and welfare of his church. But none ever gain by withholding from pious uses; nor can reformation be ever expected till men consider their ways. It is pleasant to be employed in that work in which God delights. And, if he direct us by his word, awe our conscience and animate our heart by his Spirit, we shall then cheerfully apply to it: and, the more negligent we have been, the more diligent we ought to be. God will graciously work with such as readily apply themselves to their duty. And if he be with us we need wish no more.

EXPLANATORY NOTES. CHAP. II. Ver. 6, 7, 21, 22. Not only was the Jewish church and state repeatedly shaken by manifold disasters, but the nations around were shaken and overturned by the rise and fall of the Persian, Grecian, and Roman empires, to make way for Christ's incarnation and Gospel church. And they will be further shaken by the fall of the Antichristian and Mahometan powers to make way for his universal reign on earth. 7. Christ is the desire of all nations; infinitely desirable in himself, and desired and embraced by all that know him; and his presence filled the second temple with glory. 8. If I regarded outward splendour, I could easily furnish gold and silver to render this temple magnificent. 12—14. As legal holiness is not so easily communicated as legal uncleanness, so your sacrifices do not sanctify you; but your sinful hearts, and neglect to build my temple, debase your offerings, and bring a curse on your labours. 23. Zerubbabel, but chiefly Christ, is a signet, God's precious favourite, who is intrusted with all power, and sealed as the Head of his church, and who seals it to the day of redemption.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. II.—The peculiar time of God's messages and mercies ought to be remarked, and beautiful is every one in its season.—If we be hearty in God's work, he will give us all necessary encouragement. If, amidst external discouragements we act for him with vigour, we cannot but succeed. If Christ and his Spirit be with us, nothing need discourage us. He will work all our work in us, and perfect that which concerneth us. He will provide all our necessary expenses. He will shake and overturn nations, in order to establish his church and her privileges. He will extirpate idolatries, that himself, and his oracles and ordinances, may be ALL in ALL: and his presence will secure peace and tranquillity. God's ministers must assist, not interfere with, one another. For it will require great pains to render men duly sensible of their spiritual maladies and the proper remedies for them. Sinful pollution is much easier communicated and spread than holiness. It is not living among saints that will render us holy in God's sight: and our inward corruptions and sinful misconduct often render our works, which are materially good, unacceptable to God. The more we expect from creatures, the more we shall be disappointed: but, the more firmly we expect from the new covenant, the more shall we enjoy. If we take no care of God's interest, we cannot expect that he will take care of ours: but, if we make conscience of duty, we may look for his gracious rewards. If we honour him, he will favour, protect, and honour, us. Nor need we be dismayed at the ruin of the wicked, since it is but the earnest of deliverances to the church.

THE PROPHECY OF

Z E C H A R I A H.

Haggai had not quite finished his instructions when he received Zechariah for his assistant. His scope is to direct and encourage the returned Jews. After a solemn call to repentance, he relates nine encouraging or alarming visions which he had seen; chap. i—vi. And, in three sermons, directs their practice, and foretells their trials and deliverances, and those of the gospel church, till the end of the world; chap. vii—xiv.

CHAP. I.

After the date of the prophecy, (1) Calls the sinful Jews to repent of their sins and turn to God; 2—6. (2) By the vision of a man riding on and attended by horses among myrtle-trees, and interceding for Jerusalem's welfare, is represented Christ's presence with and protection of his Jewish church, and his securing their future prosperity; 7—17. (3) By the vision of four horns, destroyed by four carpenters or smiths, is represented the destruction of the Jews' enemies by instruments raised up by God; 18—21.

IN the eighth month, in the second year of Darius, came the word of the LORD unto Zechariah the son of Barachiah, the son of Iddo the prophet, saying,

2 The LORD hath been sore displeased with your fathers.

3 Therefore say thou unto them, Thus saith the LORD of hosts, Turn ye unto me, saith the LORD of hosts, and I will turn unto you, saith the LORD of hosts.

4 Be ye not as your fathers, unto whom the former prophets have cried, saying, Thus saith the LORD of hosts, Turn ye now from your evil ways, and from your evil doings: but they did not hear nor hearken unto me, saith the LORD.

5 Your fathers, where are they? and the prophets, do they live for ever?

6 But my words and my statutes, which I commanded my servants the prophets, did they not take hold of your fathers? and they returned and said, Like as the LORD of hosts thought to do unto us, according to our ways, and according to our doings, so hath he dealt with us.

7 Upon the four and twentieth day of the eleventh month, which is the month Sebat, in the second year of Darius, came the word of the LORD unto Zechariah the son of Barachiah, the son of Iddo the prophet, saying,

8 I saw by night, and, behold, a man riding upon a red horse; and he stood among the myrtle trees that were in the bottom; and behind him were there red horses, speckled, and white.

9 Then said I, O my Lord, what are these? And the angel that talked with me said unto me, I will shew thee what these be.

10 And the man that stood among the myrtle trees answered and said, These are they whom the LORD hath sent to walk to and fro through the earth.

11 And they answered the angel of the LORD that stood among the myrtle trees, and said, We have walked to and fro through the earth, and, behold, all the earth sitteth still, and is at rest.

12 Then the angel of the LORD answered and said, O LORD of hosts, how long wilt thou not have mercy on Jerusalem, and on the cities of Judah, against which thou hast had indignation these threescore and ten years?

13 And the LORD answered the angel that talked with me with good words and comfortable words.

14 So the angel that communed with me said unto me, Cry thou, saying, Thus saith the LORD of hosts, I am 'jealous for Jerusalem and for Zion with a great jealousy.

15 And I am very sore displeased with the Heathen that are 'at ease: for I was but 'a little displeased, and they 'helped forward the affliction.

16 Therefore thus saith the LORD, 'I am returned to Jerusalem with mercies: my house shall be built in it, saith the LORD of hosts, and a line shall be stretched forth upon Jerusalem.

17 Cry yet, saying, Thus saith the LORD of hosts, 'My cities through 'prosperity shall yet be spread abroad, and the LORD shall yet 'comfort Zion, and shall yet 'choose Jerusalem.

18 ¶ Then lifted I up mine eyes, and saw, and, behold, four 'horns.

19 And I said unto the angel that talked with me, 'What be these? And he answered me, These are the horns which have 'scattered Judah, Israel, and Jerusalem.

20 And the LORD shewed me four 'carpenters.

21 Then said I, What come these to do? And he spake, saying, These are the horns which have scattered Judah, so that no man did lift up his head: but these are come to fray them, to cast out the horns of the Gentiles, which 'lifted up their horn over the land of Judah to scatter it.

CHAP. II.

(1) By the vision of Christ, as a man going forth to measure Jerusalem, is represented the restoration, populousness, safety, and glory, of Jerusalem and the gospel church; 1—5. (2) The Jews, who remained in Chaldea, are called quickly to return to their own land, that they might not be involved in the impending calamities of the Babylonians by Darius, &c. 6—9. (3) The Jews in Canaan are required to rejoice, in hope of God's presence and favours, and of the conversion of the Gentiles, chiefly to the gospel church; 10—12. (4) All men are warned not to prescribe to or limit God, but patiently to wait for the fulfilment of his promises; 13.

I 'LIFTED up mine eyes again, and looked, and, behold, 'a man with a measuring line in his hand.

2 Then said I, Whither goest thou? And he said unto me, 'To measure Jerusalem, to see what is the breadth thereof, and what is the length thereof.

3 And, behold, the angel that 'talked with me went forth, and 'another angel went out to meet him,

4 And said unto him, Run, speak to this 'young man, saying, 'Jerusalem shall be inhabited as towns without wrath and mercy. The myrtle trees in the bottom denote the Jews and other saints preserved in debasement and trouble. 18—21. The horns may represent the Samaritans, Arabians, Ammonites, and Philistines; or the four empires of Chaldea, Persia, Greece, and Rome: and the carpenters may denote Joshua, Zerubbabel, Ezra, Nehemiah, and other Jewish deliverers or protectors; or even the four empires, which destroyed one another.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. I.—The law must be preached as an introduction to the gospel. The past judgments of God upon sinners ought to be improved by us as warnings to avoid imitation of their sins. And the view of his almighty power ought to animate us to a speedy and serious repentance. It is happy to have him for a friend, but terrible to have him our adversary. No pattern ought to be copied in contempt of, and disobedience to, him. And no safety can be expected in obstinate wickedness. No unbelief can falsify God's word. If we receive not his promises, he will execute his threatenings upon us. But how closely Jesus Christ cleaves to his people in all their debasement and distress! He is ready to teach his servants, or employ his angels or ministers, for their relief. And, while most of mankind remain unconcerned under the curse of God, and the power of the devil, seasonably and effectually he intercedes for his people. Hereby is ensured to his church the destruction of all their cruel and brutal enemies, and comfort and happiness to themselves. And, let Satan find as many and as powerful agents to oppress the church as he will, Christ will find enough to resist and destroy them.

CHAP. II. Ver. 4, 5. Multitudes of houses shall be built without the walls, walls, for the multitude of men and cattle therein:

5 For I, saith the LORD, 'will be unto her a wall of fire round about, and will be the glory in the midst of her.

6 ¶ 'Ho, ho, come forth, and flee from the land of the north, saith the LORD; for 'I have spread you abroad as the four winds of the heaven, saith the LORD.

7 'Deliver thyself, O Zion, that dwellest with the daughter of Babylon.

8 For thus saith the LORD of hosts, After the 'glory hath he sent me unto 'the nations which spoiled you; for he that 'toucheth you toucheth the apple of his eye.

9 For, behold, 'I will shake mine hand upon them, and they shall be a spoil to their servants: and 'ye shall know that the LORD of hosts hath sent me.

10 ¶ 'Sing and rejoice, O daughter of Zion: for, lo, I come, and I 'will dwell in the midst of thee, saith the LORD.

11 And 'many nations shall be joined to the LORD in that day, and shall be my people: and I will dwell in the midst of thee, and thou shalt know that the LORD of hosts hath sent me unto thee.

12 And the LORD shall 'inherit Judah, his portion in the holy land, and shall choose Jerusalem again.

13 * Be silent, O all flesh, before the LORD: for he is 'raised up out of 'his holy habitation.

CHAP. III.

(1) By a vision in which Joshua the high priest is represented as accused by Satan, but protected by Christ; 1, 2: as appearing in filthy garments, but purely arrayed by an angel; 2—5: is represented the restoration and establishment of the Jewish priesthood and church; 6, 7. (2) Joshua and his fellow priests are declared typical of Christ, whose incarnation and abundant qualifications should issue in pardon and peace to his people; 8—10.

AND 'he shewed me 'Joshua the high priest standing before 'the Angel of the LORD, and *Satan 'standing at his right hand 'to resist him.

2 And the 'LORD said unto Satan, 'The LORD rebuke thee, O Satan, even the LORD that hath 'chosen Jerusalem, rebuke thee: is not this a 'brand plucked out of the fire?

and all live in peace and safety, as God himself will effectually protect them: and his presence in his ordinances will be their distinguished honour. 6—9. Ye, who yet remain scattered here and there in Chaldea, hasten to your own country; for scarcely shall my glory have taken possession of the temple at Jerusalem, when I will further revenge the injuries done to you upon the inhabitants of Babylon, and reduce them into a state of bondage to the Medes and Persians, who were lately their tributaries.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. II.—The more we have seen of divine things, the more we should search into them. Nor need we fear that room for new converts will ever be wanting in the church. Yea, thrice happy is it when multitudes are joined to the Lord, and have him for their protector and glory! Alas! that such multitudes, through unbelief, should be so averse to leave their bondage, and share the liberty of Christ! But no dispersion or slavery can hinder his redressing the grievances of his people, or avenging their injuries. Infinitely tender is his sympathy towards them in their distress: and plainly he marks his and his servants' mission in the seasonable fulfilment of his promises and threatenings. Nothing on earth can more rejoice gracious souls than to behold the church restored to her privileges, enlarged by the accession of multitudes, and blessed with the presence of God. And in every thing, especially in his great works, we ought silently to adore and wait for him.

CHAP. III. Ver. 1, 2. Satan laboured, by accusations and other means, to render Joshua's ministrations for himself and his people unsuccessful. But Christ, in his Father's name, rebuked the devil, and defended Joshua and the

CHAP. IV.

After Zechariah is awakened, 1; A vision of a golden candlestick, having its seven lamps supplied with oil from two growing olive trees, represents that, by Christ and his Spirit, or Christ in his two natures, or his offices of Priest and King, Zerubbabel and his assistants should, notwithstanding all difficulties and want of human help, be enabled to finish the building of the temple; 2—14.

AND the angel that talked with me came again and waked me, as a man that is wakened out of his sleep, 2 And said unto me, What seest thou? And I said, I have looked, and, returned remnant of Jews, as persons graciously preserved under, and delivered from, manifold dangers and trials of affliction. 3—5. Joshua's filthy garments represented the sinfulness and miseries of himself and his people; and his change of raiment, the pardon of, and reformation from, their sins, and their advancement to glory and honour. 7. If Joshua conducts himself well, the high priesthood shall be continued with him and his descendants, and he shall be highly respected by his fellow ministers, and at last admitted to the blessed fellowship of angels and glorified saints. 8. Joshua and his fellow priests were monuments of God's marvellous deliverance from captivity, and were typical of Christ, who, as man, growing up amidst weakness, and bringing forth glory to God, and happiness to men, is called the BRANCH. 9. This stone represents Christ as the only foundation laid in Zion, regarded by beholders unnumbered, endowed by God with all eminent gifts and graces, and made perfect by sufferings and glory, that he may be the source of the justification and sanctification of the whole church, and of all the happiness and safety of his people.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. III.—Satan never fails to resist and discourage as far as he can the faithful ministers and worshippers of God. But Christ is our present helper in time of need. And he will be graciously pitiful to our infirmities, and ready to relieve. With him narrow escapes from imminent danger are preludes of, and may be pleas for further favours. No sinful or distressing pollutions can break his covenant with us. And, if our hearts be upright with him, he will bear with our infirmities, and reward our services done in faith. There is sufficient virtue in him to change both our state and nature: and great and lasting will be the honours of his faithful servants.—But how infinitely marvellous are the incarnation, person, and office, of our Redeemer! Infinitely marvellous were God's preparations of him for his debased and honourary work, as the only Saviour of men. And infinitely delightful are the pardons, sanctification, peace, rest, and holy fellowship, which his people enjoy through him.

behold, a candlestick all of gold, with a bowl upon the top of it, and his seven lamps thereon, and seven pipes to the seven lamps, which are upon the top thereof;

3 And two olive trees by it, one upon the right side of the bowl, and the other upon the left side thereof.

4 So I answered and spake to the angel that talked with me, saying, What are these, my lord?

5 Then the angel that talked with me answered and said unto me, Knowest thou not what these be? And I said, No, my lord.

6 Then he answered and spake unto me, saying, This is the word of the LORD unto Zerubbabel, saying, Not by might, nor by power, but by my Spirit, saith the LORD of hosts.

7 Who art thou, O great mountain? before Zerubbabel thou shalt become a plain: and he shall bring forth the headstone thereof with shoutings, crying, Grace, grace unto it.

8 Moreover, the word of the LORD came unto me, saying,

9 The hands of Zerubbabel have laid the foundation of this house; his hands shall also finish it: and thou shalt know that the LORD of hosts hath sent me unto you.

10 For who hath despised the day of small things? for they shall rejoice, and shall see the plummet in the hand of Zerubbabel with those seven; they are the eyes of the LORD, which run to and fro through the whole earth.

11 Then answered I, and said unto him, What are these two olive trees upon the right side of the candlestick and upon the left side thereof?

12 And I answered again, and said unto him, What be these two olive branches which through the two golden pipes empty the golden oil out of themselves?

13 And he answered me, and said, Knowest thou not what these be? And I said, No, my lord.

14 Then said he, These are the two anointed ones that stand by the LORD of the whole earth.

CHAP. IV. Ver. 2, 3, 11, 14. The candlestick denotes the church curiously framed, pure, precious, and durable; the seven lamps her ministers and members; the two olive trees, Christ in his natures or offices, or he and his Spirit in their new covenant stations; the oil, gifts and graces; and the pipes for conveying it, the ordinances of the gospel. 6—10. Not by human, but divine assistance, shall Zerubbabel, notwithstanding all the attempts of the heathens to hinder him, happily and triumphantly finish the building of the temple: and even you, who have had low thoughts of the beginning of this work, shall rejoice when you see him carrying it on prosperously, and marvellously assisted by my all-seeing, all-preserving, and governing Providence. And in like manner shall Jesus Christ, notwithstanding all the opposition of hell and earth, from age to age build up his gospel church, though by weak instruments, to the great comfort of his people.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. IV.—Not only must the Holy Ghost exhibit to us divine things, but must also make us observe them. And it is desirable to understand God's manifestations of himself in his word, ordinances, and providences: yea, great is the shame that we are so slow of heart to conceive of them. Yet in parables we may often understand their scope, though we should not clearly understand every circumstance of them. No want of human helps can hinder God's work. Nay, they are often withheld that his power and grace may have all the glory. Silent progress will issue in triumphant shoutings. What takes its rise from, may safely be committed to the care of, his grace. He will never forsake the work of his hands. And, while fulfilment of predictions attests their divine original, the smallest beginnings of his work ought never to be despised. It is inexpressibly comfortable to see magistrates and ministers active in building the church, and God himself making all his providences to concur for her welfare, while Jesus and his Spirit, by ordinances and oracles, pour down their influences upon her ministers and members.

CHAP. V.

Contains visions of wrath. (1) By a large flying roll is represented that, even amidst all the mercies formerly promised, such as continued wicked and profane should, together with their families, be fearfully cursed and punished; 1—4. (2) By a leaden burden, and carrying of an ephah, is represented that, when the body of the Jewish nation should become obstinately and enormously wicked by their rejection of Christ, they should be suddenly, unavoidably, and miserably destroyed and dispersed for many generations; 5—11. [See Introduction, chap. iv. sect. xviii.]

THEN I turned, and lifted up mine eyes, and looked, and, behold, a flying roll.

2 And he said unto me, What seest thou? and I answered, I see a flying roll; the length thereof is twenty cubits, and the breadth thereof ten cubits.

3 Then said he unto me, This is the curse that goeth forth over the face of the whole earth: for every one that stealeth shall be cut off as on this side according to it; and every one that sweareth shall be cut off as on that side according to it.

4 I will bring it forth, saith the LORD of hosts, and it shall enter into the house of the thief, and into the house of him that sweareth falsely by my name; and it shall remain in the midst of his house, and shall consume it with the timber thereof and the stones thereof.

5 ¶ Then the angel that talked with me went forth, and said unto me, Lift up now thine eyes, and see what is this that goeth forth.

6 And I said, What is it? And he said, This is an ephah that goeth forth. He said moreover, This is their resemblance through all the earth.

7 And, behold there was lifted up a talent of lead: and this is a woman that sitteth in the midst of the ephah.

8 And he said, This is wickedness. And he cast it into the midst of the ephah: and he cast the weight of lead upon the mouth thereof.

9 Then lifted I up mine eyes, and looked, and, behold, there came out two women, and the wind was in their wings: for they had wings like the wings of a stork: and they lifted up the ephah between the earth and the heaven.

10 Then said I to the angel that talked with me, Whither do these bear the ephah?

11 And he said unto me, To build it an house in the land of Shinar: and it shall be established, and set there upon her own base.

CHAP. V. Ver. 6—11. The ephah, a large measure, denotes that they would fill up a very large measure of iniquity every where before God would execute his judgments upon them. The woman sitting in the ephah denotes the Jewish nation awfully abandoned to wickedness. The talent of lead, for covering the mouth of the ephah, denotes the dreadful and unavoidable weight of their calamities. The two winged women, who carried the ephah, denote the Roman armies destroying the Jews, and carrying them into a miserable and lasting captivity. Their fixing an house for it in the land of Shinar imports that the dispersion of the Jews by the Romans would be as miserable, and much more lasting, than the captivity in Babylon.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. V.—Fearful is the curse which all men are under by nature; and which will find them out, go where they will, if they continue without Christ. Thieves and profane swearers, those brethren in sin, are infamous and self-destroying wretches. And unavoidable, insupportable, and lasting, is the wrath of God, which falls upon obstinate transgressors, and especially apostates from his true worship.

5 And the angel answered and said unto me, These are the four spirits of the heavens, which go forth from standing before the LORD of all the earth.

6 The black horses which are therein go forth into the north country; and the white go forth after them; and the grizzled go forth toward the south country.

7 And the bay went forth, and sought to go, that they might walk to and fro through the earth: and he said, Get you hence, walk to and fro through the earth. So they walked to and fro through the earth.

8 Then cried he upon me, and spake unto me, saying, Behold, these that go toward the north country have quieted my spirit in the north country.

CHAP. VI. Ver. 1—8. The brazen mountains may denote the unchangeable counsels of God, from which every thing in churches or nations originates; or the seeming difficulties in the first rise of events. The four chariots, drawn by horses of different colours, may represent the diversified dispensations of Providence in acts of mercy or wrath; or the angels of God as every where throughout the world ministering therein; or the apostles and ministers of Christ as actuated by his Spirit, and ministering in what relates to the church; or the four successive empires in the world. The red horses represented the bloody Chaldeans; the black, the Persians, who executed God's vengeance in conquering Chaldea, called the north country; the white, the rapidly victorious Greeks; and the grizzled and bay horses, the Romans at last mingled with the ravaging Goths, who especially carried their conquests to the south. [See Introduction, chap. iv. sect. xi—xv.] 13. The counsel of peace denotes the covenant of grace between Christ and his Father; and the gospel of our salvation, in which Christ's priestly and kingly offices are so gloriously connected. 14. The crowns remained in the temple a memorial of the liberality of those four men who had contributed the materials, and a figure of the future glory of Christ.

AND it came to pass, in the fourth year of king Darius, that the word of the LORD came unto Zechariah in the fourth day of the ninth month, even in Chisleu :

2 When they had sent unto the house of God Sherezzer, and Regem-melech, and their men, * to pray before the LORD,

3 And to speak unto the priests which were in the house of the LORD of hosts, and to the prophets, saying, Should I weep in the fifth month, separating myself as I have done these so many years?

4 ¶ Then came the word of the LORD of hosts unto me, saying,

5 Speak unto all the people of the land, and to the priests, saying, When ye fasted and mourned in the fifth and seventh month, even those seventy years, did ye at all fast unto me, even to me?

6 And when ye did eat, and when ye did drink, did ye eat for yourselves, and drink for yourselves?

7 ¶ Should ye not hear the words which the LORD hath cried by the former prophets, when Jerusalem was inhabited and in prosperity, and the cities thereof round about her, when men inhabited the south and the plain?

8 ¶ And the word of the LORD came unto Zechariah, saying,

9 Thus speaketh the LORD of hosts, saying, * Execute true judgment, and shew mercy and compassions every man to his brother :

10 And oppress not the widow, nor the fatherless, the stranger, nor the poor; and let none of you imagine evil against his brother in your heart.

11 But they refused to hearken, and pulled away the shoulder, and stopped their ears, that they should not hear.

12 Yea, they made their hearts as an adamant stone, lest they should hear the law, and the words which the LORD of hosts hath sent in his spirit by the former prophets: therefore came a great wrath from the LORD of hosts.

13 Therefore it is come to pass that, as he cried and they would not hear, so they cried and I would not hear, saith the LORD of hosts :

14 But I scattered them with a whirlwind among all the nations whom they knew not. Thus the land was desolate after them, that no man passed through nor returned: for they laid the pleasant land desolate.

CHAP. VIII.

Contains (1) Great and glorious promises of God's care for, and presence with, his people; reforming their manners, giving them long life, peace, and prosperity, and bringing other captives from Chaldea and Egypt to dwell at Jerusalem and enjoy his ordinances; 1—8: of turning the famine, trouble, and reproaches which they had suffered, into plenty, safety, and honour; 9—15: of turning their mournful fasts into joyful feasts; 18, 19: and of enlarging their church by multitudes of Gentile proselytes; 20—23. But this last chiefly refers to the calling of the Gentiles into the gospel church in the apostolic and millennial age. (2) Directions how to improve these promised blessings in the most exact regard to truth and equity, ardent affection to, and peace with, one another, and a reverential and religious regard to their oaths; 16, 17, 19.

AGAIN the word of the LORD of hosts came to me, saying,

2 Thus saith the LORD of hosts, I was jealous for Zion with great jealousy, and I was jealous for her with great fury.

3 Thus saith the LORD, I am returned unto Zion, and will dwell in the midst of Jerusalem; and Jerusalem shall be called a city of truth; and the mountain of the LORD of hosts the holy mountain.

4 Thus saith the LORD of hosts, There shall yet old men and old women dwell in the streets of Jerusalem, and every man with his staff in his hand * for very age.

5 And the streets of the city shall be full of boys and girls playing in the streets thereof.

6 Thus saith the LORD of hosts, If it be marvellous in the eyes of the remnant of this people in these days, should the yoke of God's laws, and obstinately rebelled against all his warnings, and would not even patiently hear his messages; yea, by a course of presumptuous sinning, they rendered their hearts quite obdurate and impenetrable to conviction, neither regarding the law of Moses, nor the instructions of the prophets which succeeded him in Israel.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. VII.—It is an honour for great as well as small to reverence the messengers and ordinances of God, to supplicate his favours, and to ask his directions. Every man ought to be employed answerably to his station and gifts; and, in cases of conscience, none ought to be more able and ready than God's ministers, whose daily business it is to search his word. And, if God afflict, it is time for us to humble ourselves under his mighty hand. Religious customs should neither be introduced nor altered, without serious and mature deliberation: and never ought we to inquire into our duty, without being willing to hear our faults charged home on our consciences. But, alas, it is too common to make our own inclination, and not God's law, our rule; our pleasure, profit, or honour, not his glory, our end in our actions, whether natural, civil, or religious. All the faithful messengers of God, in every age, remarkably harmonize in the leading truths and duties of religion. And, in practical religion, strict equity, tender compassion, and brotherly kindness, are ingredients of the highest importance. Yet, alas! how obstinately many professors neglect them, and practise the opposite vices! And fatal and answerable are the punishments which they incur thereby.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. VI.—From what immutably-fixed decrees all the events of Providence originate: nor can any opposition prevent their execution. In the most august and awful manner are they carried on; and angels and ministers are honoured to be the instruments. Diversified, ever varying, divinely actuated, admirably connected, and strangely mixed, are their parts! And God takes pleasure in every motion of them; particularly in taking vengeance upon the most noted enemies of his church. It is honourable to help forward good works by our purse, even when we cannot do it in our persons: nor shall the generosity of such be unremembered by God. But how transcendently glorious is our blessed Mediator, upon whose head are many crowns, which can never totter nor be taken off! Marvellous and useful are his administrations in erecting and managing his church; and to himself shall all the glory and honour of his work redound. Yea, under him, in virtue of the new covenant and gospel, both Jews and Gentiles are happily and divinely united into his mystical body the church.

CHAP. VII. Ver. 5, 6. In the fast of the fifth month they lamented the burning of the city and temple by the Chaldeans. In the fast of the seventh they bewailed the murder of Gedaliah, whom the Chaldeans made governor over their poor brethren which were left in Judea. But in neither did they fast in a right manner, or with a view to God's glory; and so their fasts were no more acceptable to God than their common eating and drinking to gratify their own sensual appetites. 11, 12. Like unruly bullocks, they refused to be under it also be ^gmarvellous in mine eyes? saith the LORD of hosts.

7 Thus saith the LORD of hosts, Behold, ^hI will save my people from the east country and from [†]the west country;

8 And ⁱI will bring them, and they shall dwell in the midst of Jerusalem: and ^kthey shall be my people, and I will be their God in truth and in righteousness.

9 ¶ Thus saith the LORD of hosts, ^lLet your hands be strong, ye that hear in these days these words by the mouth of the prophets, who were in the day that the foundation of the house of the LORD of hosts ^mwas laid, that the temple might be built.

10 For before these days ⁿthere was no hire for man, nor any hire for beast; ^oneither was there any peace to him that went out or came in, because of the affliction: for I set all men every one against his neighbour.

11 But ^pnow I will not be unto the residue of this people as in the former days, saith the LORD of hosts.

12 For ^qthe seed shall be ^{*}prosperous, the vine shall give her fruit, and the ground shall give her increase, and the heavens shall give their dew: and I will cause the ^rremnant of this people ^{to}possess all these things.

13 And it shall come to pass, that, as ye were ^sa curse among the heathen, ^tO house of Judah, and house of Israel; so will I save you, and ye shall be ^aa blessing: ^ufear not, but let your hands be strong.

14 For thus saith the LORD of hosts, ^vAs I thought to punish you when your fathers provoked me to wrath, saith the LORD of hosts, and I repented not;

15 ^wSo again have I thought in these days to do well unto Jerusalem, and to the house of Judah: fear ye not.

16 ¶ These are the things that ye shall do; ^xSpeak ye every man the truth to his neighbour: [†]execute the ^ojudgment of truth and peace in your gates:

17 ^yAnd let none of you imagine evil in your hearts against his neighbour; and ^zlove no false oath: for all these are things that [†]I hate, saith the LORD.

18 ¶ And the word of the LORD of hosts came unto me, saying,

19 Thus saith the LORD of hosts, ^gThe fast of the fourth month, and the fast of the fifth, and the fast of the seventh, and the fast of the tenth, shall be to ^hthe house of Judah [†]joy and gladness, and cheerful ⁱfeasts; therefore love the truth and peace.

20 Thus saith the LORD of hosts, ^k*It* shall yet come to pass, that there shall come people, and the inhabitants of many cities:

21 And the inhabitants of one city shall go to another, saying, Let us go ^{*}speedily to [†]pray before the LORD, and to seek the LORD of hosts: I will go also.

22 Yea, many people and strong nations shall come to seek the LORD of hosts in Jerusalem, and to pray before the LORD.

23 Thus saith the LORD of hosts, In those days it shall come to pass that ^lten men shall take hold ^mout of all languages of the nations, even shall ⁿtake hold of the skirt of him that is a Jew, saying, ^oWe will go with you; for we have heard that God is with you.

Begins a new sermon; and contains (1) Predictions of dreadful desolations to Syria, Phenicia, and the land of the Philistines, by the Persians, Greeks, Jews, and others; while the Jews should be marvellously protected; 1—8. (2) Predictions of Christ's humble appearance on earth, and erecting, by spiritual means, a glorious and peaceful church of Jews and Gentiles saved by his blood; 9—12. (3) Predictions of the Jews' resistance to, and victory over, the Syro-grecians and Turks; but especially of the spiritual victories of the gospel church over heathens and antichristians, and of their honour and plentiful provision; 12—17. THE ^aburden of the word of the LORD ^bin the land of Hadrach, and Damascus shall be the rest thereof: ^cwhen the eyes of man, as of all the tribes of Israel, shall be toward the LORD.

2 And ^dHamath also shall border thereby; ^eTyrus and Zidon, though it be ^fvery wise.

3 And Tyrus did build herself ^ga strong hold, ^hand heaped up silver as the dust, and fine gold as the mire of the streets.

4 ⁱBehold, the LORD will cast her out, and he will smite her power in the sea, and she shall be devoured with fire.

5 ^kAshkelon shall see it, and fear; ^lGaza also shall see it, and be ^mvery sorrowful; and Ekron, for her expectation shall be ashamed; and the king shall perish from Gaza, and Ashkelon shall not be inhabited.

6 And ⁿa bastard shall dwell in Ashdod; and ^oI will cut off the pride of the Philistines.

7 And ^pI will take away his ^{*}blood out of his mouth, and his abominations from between his teeth; but ^qhe that remaineth, even he shall be for our God, and he shall be as a governor in Judah, and Ekron as a Jebusite.

8 And ^rI will encamp about mine house because of the army, because of him that passeth by, and because of him that returneth; and ^sno oppressor shall pass through them any more: for now ^thave I seen with mine eyes.

Powerfully ought these to engage our hearts to our duty, however difficult or dangerous. And nothing should be dearer to us than the worship of God and the winning of others to Christ.

CHAP. IX. Ver. 7. The Philistines shall be disabled from murdering and plundering the Jews; nay, shall be subdued by the Maccabees, and many of them turned to the Lord. 8. I will marvellously protect the Jews, while Greeks, Syro-grecians, and Egypto-grecians, repeatedly march their armies

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. VIII.—God's new covenant relations, gracious presence, and everlasting love, are sources of abundant benefits to his people: and the blessings of time, as well as of eternity, inseparably and closely follow sincere reformation from sin. Great is the mercy, when children are so healthy, so safe from alarms of war, so well nourished, and so kindly affectioned, as in companies to follow their innocent diversions; and when none other amuse themselves with such trifles: and especially when God gathers sinners to his church, and solemnly and practically acknowledges them his people. God can easily reverse the unhappy state of nations and churches, and turn their howlings into shouts of praise and transports of joy. And he can delightfully gather his

CHAP. X.

Continues the subject. Here the Jews are (1) Directed to eye God, and not idols, in every event, whether natural, afflictive, or comfortable; 1—4. (2) Encouraged to expect strength, success, and victorious deliverance at last, in all their struggles with the Greeks; and that, in their present dispersion, they shall be multiplied, preserved, and at last happily brought back to their own land, notwithstanding all that Turkish or other enemies can do to oppose them; and there live in piety and safety; 3—12. But the whole is a figure of God's strengthening, saving, comforting, through Canaan. 10. Wars and carnal confidences shall be extirpated; and, by the preaching of the gospel among the Gentiles, shall Christ's kingdom be extended, not only over all Canaan, but the whole world. 11. And, as the Lord, according to his promise, brought you up out of Chaldea, where ye had neither hope nor happiness, so shall he, by the blood of Christ, the condition of the covenant of grace, bring multitudes out of their state of heathenism, sinfulness, and misery. 12. Let not only those who remain in Chaldea hasten to Canaan, in hopes of redoubled blessings, sufficient to balance their past miseries; but let those, who are in a state of heathenism and unregeneracy, in the faith of the gospel promises hasten to Jesus Christ, the only Saviour and Refuge. 13—17. I will enable the Jews to withstand, subdue, and rout, their Syro-greecian and Turkish enemies with great slaughter, and render themselves honoured and powerful; yea, by means of Jewish preachers, I will go forth, conquering the nations, however learned or valiant, to Jesus Christ: and, while the redeemed and especially faithful ministers, are marvellously protected and honoured, persons of all ranks shall, with admiration of his glory and goodness, richly partake of his fulness.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. IX.—Fearful destructions await the disturbers of God's church. Their punishment may be in part delayed, but is never forgotten. Yet what sovereign grace appears in the conversion of the despicable remains of the people of his curse! And it promises well when men are turned from idols to the living God. Though Christ's little flock be in the midst of devourers, his protection can render them safe. Infinite is his excellency, ability, and suitableness, to save sinners, even the chief. No case on this side hell is too desperate for his almighty power and grace: and his answerableness to our sinfulness and misery ought to animate our speedy flight to him for deliverance. When he, as the Captain of salvation, prepares and arms his calling, and preserving his gospel church, recovering them from Antichrist, and reforming them, by his grace. [See Introduction, chap. iv. sect. xix.]

instruments, an easy and notable victory is secured for his followers: and the ruin of enemies contributes to their honour and comfort. And great is their joy in himself and his grace, while they plentifully share of his fulness.

CHAP. X. Ver. 1—4. But, though the Lord has promised plenty, ye must supplicate him for rains to effect it. Indulge yourselves therefore no more in idolatry and divination, which have so disappointed your fathers; and occasioned their miserable captivity and my wrathful destruction of their princes and priests. I have now recovered you from your captivity, and made you strong and courageous, and have joined you together as a body civil and ecclesiastic, and enabled you to defend yourselves and even harass your enemies: and quickly I will send you the Messiah, to found, fasten together, and defend, his gospel church, and destroy her enemies. 5—10. Not only shall the Jews under the Maccabees valiantly defend themselves, and even enlarge their power, but, especially in the beginning of the millennium, they shall be wonderfully assisted by God; and, after long and marvellous preservation and increase in their miserable dispersion, they and the ten tribes shall, with great joy, be brought back to Canaan, and there serve the Lord; while the Assyrians, Egyptians, and Turks, who had formerly murdered and oppressed them, shall be debased and ruined. And in like manner shall God, by his lively and animated gospel ministers, call and subdue the Gentile nations to Christ, mercifully recover them from their long continued idolatries and delusions, render them his peculiar people, strengthen and comfort them by the influences of his Spirit, and effectually call them into his church, and thereby render her exceedingly extensive and numerous, and shall remove all obstacles, whether heathenish or antichristian, out of their way, and render them strong and active, regular and lively, Christians.

CHAP. XI.

(1) Predicts the destruction of Jerusalem and the temple, of the great men and rulers, and the common people of Judea, by the Syro-grecians, but especially by the Romans; 1—3. (2) Before their ruin by the Romans they, when very wicked and ripe for destruction, are delivered into the care of Christ, to be fed by his preached gospel; 4—7. (3) By the breaking of his staves of beauty and bands is represented his abandoning the whole nation, except a few of the poorer sort, to unbelief and dreadful ruin, and to mutual contentions, to avenge their contempt of him, setting a price on his life, &c. (4) While their rulers are infatuated, and become cruel oppressors, and are at last ruined, they are abandoned to the cruelty of the Romans, and other destroyers, for many ages; 15—17.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. X.—In our prayers we must follow the promises, and attend the providences, of God, requesting mercies both suitable and seasonable. And in this let us look to God only. Wandering after strange gods will but expose us to disappointment and trouble. Whether things distress or comfort us, it is God who directs them. All the power, that is either for us or against us, is of Him. His people become powerful and courageous when he affords them his assistance and presence. By him all enemies are easily overcome and obstacles removed. At his effectual call multitudes gather into his church from places the most distant. Marvellous then are her comforts, numbers, power, and preservation. And courageous, upright, and evangelical, the walk of her members. Nothing is wanting where JEHOVAH is our strength, our song, and our salvation.

CHAP. XI. Ver. 1—3. Lebanon may denote the temple, Jerusalem, or even Judea in general. Fir trees, cedars, oaks, shepherds, lions, may denote their great men, valiant soldiers, and cruel rulers. The forest may denote Jerusalem, or the common people, unfruitful in holiness, but numerous, entangling, and dangerous. The pride of Jordan may denote all Judea overrun by the Roman armies, which enraged their rulers, even as the overflow of Jordan enraged the lions which lodged in its banks. 4, 7, 11. For about forty years before their last dispersion, Jesus Christ personally, and by his harbinger and apostles, called the Jews to himself; and many of the poorer sort were converted, and rendered poor in spirit; and, by following his directions in leaving their country and fleeing to Pella eastward of Jordan, most of them were preserved from the common ruin. 5, 6, 8, 9. The Jews were partly destroyed by the cruelty and violence of their own governors, by their intestine divisions, and by the Roman emperor, whom they had avowed for their king in opposition to Jesus Christ. Their princes, priests, and prophets, and the three sects of Pharisees, Sadducees, and

And I took unto me two staves; the one I called Beauty, and the other I called Bands; and I fed the flock.

8 Three shepherds also I cut off in one month; and my soul loathed them, and their soul also abhorred me.

9 Then said I, I will not feed you: that that dieth, let it die; and that that is to be cut off, let it be cut off; and let the rest eat every one the flesh of another.

10 And I took my staff, even Beauty, and cut it asunder, that I might break my covenant which I had made with all the people.

11 And it was broken in that day: and so the poor of the flock that waited upon me knew that it was the word of the LORD.

12 And I said unto them, If ye think good, give me my price; and if not, forbear. So they weighed for my price thirty pieces of silver.

13 And the LORD said unto me, Cast it unto the potter: a goodly price that I was prized at of them. And I took the thirty pieces of silver, and cast them to the potter in the house of the LORD.

14 Then I cut asunder mine other staff, even Bands, that I might break the brotherhood between Judah and Israel.

15 And the LORD said unto me, Take unto thee yet the instruments of a foolish shepherd.

16 For, lo, I will raise up a shepherd in the land, who shall not visit those that be cut off, neither shall seek the young one, nor heal that that is broken, nor feed that that standeth still: but he shall eat the flesh of the fat, and tear their claws in pieces.

17 Wo to the idle shepherd that leaveth the flock! the sword shall be upon his arm, and upon his right eye: his arm shall be clean dried up, and his right eye shall be utterly darkened.

Begins a new sermon; in which the condition of the Jewish nation, after the captivity and present dispersion, and of the gospel church in the apostolic and millennial periods, is further represented. Here is promised (1) That all the attempts of their enemies to destroy them would but issue in their own danger and ruin; 1—4, 6, 9. (2) That, trusting in the Lord, they should subdue their opposers, and even the weakest of them be marvelously saved and strengthened by God; 5, 7, 8. (3) That, to Herodians, together with the three civil factions, all haters of God, and detested by him, were cut off one after another; and the nation in general abandoned to sword, famine, pestilence, and miserable captivity. 10, 14. The breaking of these staves may denote his renouncing all claim to them as his peculiar people, and dissolving all connection of government and affection among them; or his entire removal of the ordinances of the gospel from them, which were means of honourably uniting them to the church, and to one another in love. 15—17. They were given up to corrupt teachers and pretended messiahs, who, by their false doctrines, &c. cruelly murdered their souls, preyed upon their substance, and decoyed them into ruinous calamities; and to civil rulers whether of their own nation, or of the Romans, Persians, Antichristians, Turks, &c. who miserably oppressed them.—Yea, these teachers and rulers did but render themselves miserable in the issue.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. XI.—Awfully alarming are the falls of cities, churches, or nations, or even of persons eminent in station. And dreadful and desperate is the condition of nations and churches when their rulers become oppressors and murderers, and when hearers become pleased with clerical monsters of wickedness. Before the most ruinous judgments God often tries men with the offered grace of his gospel. And great is the mercy if even the poorer sort embrace it and repent, when the rich and great pour contempt upon it. But dreadful is the case if the final offers of grace do but occasion men's impenitence and obstinate wickedness. And great is their misery, whose churches are dissolved and abandoned by heaven. Mutual contentions and common calamities quickly issue in their destruction. God justly gives up the refusers of his Son into the hands of unfaithful ministers, deceitful impostors, and unmerciful princes! And dreadful is the guilt of such, and certain and fearful their plagues.

prepare them for, and help them to improve; these mercies, they should be blessed with a spirit of prayer, faith, and remarkable repentance for sin; 10—14.

THE burden of the word of the LORD for Israel, saith the LORD, who stretcheth forth the heavens, and layeth the foundation of the earth, and formeth the spirit of man within him.

2 Behold I will make Jerusalem a cup of trembling unto all the people round about, when they shall be in the siege both against Judah and against Jerusalem.

3 And in that day will I make Jerusalem a burdensome stone for all people: all that burden themselves with it shall be cut in pieces, though all the people of the earth be gathered together against it.

4 In that day, saith the LORD, I will smite every horse with astonishment, and his rider with madness: and I will open mine eyes upon the house of Judah, and will smite every horse of the people with blindness.

5 And the governors of Judah shall say in their heart, The inhabitants of Jerusalem shall be my strength in the LORD of hosts their God.

6 In that day will I make the governors of Judah like a hearth of fire among the wood, and like a torch of fire in a sheaf; and they shall devour all the people round about, on the right hand and on the left: and Jerusalem shall be inhabited again in her own place, even in Jerusalem.

7 The LORD also shall save the tents of Judah first, that the glory of the house of David and the glory of the inhabitants of Jerusalem do not magnify themselves against Judah.

8 In that day shall the LORD defend the inhabitants of Jerusalem; and he that is feeble among them at that day shall be as David; and the house of David shall be as God, as the Angel of the LORD before them.

9 And it shall come to pass in that day that I will seek to destroy all the nations that come against Jerusalem.

10 And I will pour upon the house of David, and upon the inhabitants of Jerusalem, the spirit of grace and of supplications: and they shall look upon me whom they have pierced, and they shall mourn for him as one mourneth for his only son, and shall be in bitterness for him as one that is in bitterness for his first-born.

11 In that day shall there be a great mourning in Jerusalem, as the mourning of Hadadrimmon in the valley of Megiddon.

12 And the land shall mourn every family apart: the family of the house of David apart, and their wives apart: the family of the house of Nathan apart, and their wives apart:

13 The family of the house of Levi apart, and their wives apart: the family of Shimei apart, and their wives apart.

14 All the families that remain, every family apart, and their wives apart.

CHAP. XIII.

Here is further promised (1) A noted exhibition of Christ and his Spirit in the gospel, for remission to the guilty and sanctification to the unholy; 1. (2) An effectual extirpation of idols, and of false doctrines and teachers, even by their own nearest relations; 2—6. (3) That the terrible sufferings and desertion of Christ should issue in the effectual salvation of many, both Jews and Gentiles, while the bulk of the Jewish nation should be destroyed; 7—9.

In that day there shall be a fountain opened to the house of David, and to the inhabitants of Jerusalem, for sin and for uncleanness.

2 And it shall come to pass in that day, saith the LORD of hosts, that I will cut off the names of the idols out of the land, and they shall no more be remembered: and also I will cause the prophets and the unclean spirit to pass out of the land.

3 And it shall come to pass, that when any shall yet prophesy, then his father and his mother that begat him shall say unto him, Thou shalt not live; for thou speakest lies in the name of the LORD: and his father and his mother that begat him shall thrust him through when he prophesieth.

4 And it shall come to pass in that day, that the prophets shall be ashamed every one of his vision, when he hath prophesied; neither shall they wear a rough garment to deceive:

5 But he shall say, I am no prophet, I am an husbandman; for man taught me to keep cattle from my youth.

6 And one shall say unto him, What are these wounds in thine hands? Then he shall answer, Those with which I was wounded in the house of my friends.

7 Awake, O sword, against my Shepherd, and against the man that is my Fellow, saith the LORD of hosts: smite the Shepherd, and the sheep shall be scattered: and I will turn mine hand upon the little ones.

strengthened, protector, and peace-making governor, is the Lord and his Christ! And this happy is it when the destruction of enemies is attended with an out-pouring of the Holy Ghost upon all ranks great and small; and when magistrates and ministers are patterns to others in evangelical, bitter, and particular, humiliation for sin.

CHAP. XIII. Ver. 2—6. Such shall be the zeal for extirpating idolatry and false teachers, that many of these, ashamed of their impostures, shall lay aside the pretences and habit of prophets, and shall apply themselves to common labours; and shall pretend that the marks of idols in their hands, or the corrections which they have received for their attempting to deceive, were obtained by some other means, and for some other miscarriages. 7—9. The tremendous sufferings of the Messiah, God in human nature, the chief Shepherd and Governor of the church, while his disciples are scattered from him, shall quickly issue in marvellous favours to them, and other Jews of the poorer sort: for though, in their destruction by the Romans, the far greater part shall, on account of their

CHAP. XII. Ver. 1—9. These promises began to be accomplished in the victories of the Jews over the Syro-grecians, and other enemies, in the time of the Maccabees; but will be more fully accomplished in the destruction of the Turks, who shall attack the Jews when newly returned from their present dispersion. They have also an accomplishment in the Lord's making all the attempts of Jews, Heathens, or Antichristians, against his gospel-church, to issue in their own destruction, and the glorious deliverance and protection of his people. And in both cases deliverances, temporal or spiritual, are attended with a plentiful effusion of the Spirit and deep repentance for sin. 10—14. [See Introduction, chap. iv. sect. xviii. xix.]

He will effectually render his church and ministers a terror to all their opposers, as he hath done from age to age. For easily he can infatuate the counsels, and enfeeble the courage and strength, of their enemies. Happy are they whose the land, saith the LORD, 'two parts therein shall be cut off, and die; but the third shall be left therein.

9 'And I will bring the third part through the fire, and will refine them as silver is refined, and will try them as gold is tried: 'they shall call on my name, and I will hear them: 'I will say, It is my people; and they shall say, The Lord is my God.

CHAP. XIV.

Foretells that (1) The terrible afflictions of the Jews by the Syro-grecians, Romans, and Turks, and of the gospel church by the Heathens, Antichristians, and Mahometans, should, by the interposing power of God, issue well at last; 1—7. (2) Not only Judea and Jerusalem should be happily delivered, rebuilt, and repeopled, but, by the spread of the gospel, and the influences thereof, the kingdom of Christ should be erected, and his spiritual Jerusalem every where enlarged, happily repeopled, and her members rendered devout and holy; 8—11, 16, 20, 21. (3) The obstinate opposers of his church, and neglecters of his worship, should be terribly punished; 12—19. [See Introduction, chap. iv. sect. xviii. xix.]

BEHOLD, 'the day of the Lord cometh, and thy spoil shall be divided in the midst of thee.

2 For 'I will gather all nations against Jerusalem to battle; and the city shall be taken, and the houses rifled, and the 'women ravished, and 'half of the city shall go forth into captivity, and the 'residue of the people shall not be cut off from the city.

3 ¶ Then shall the LORD go forth, 'and fight against those nations as when he fought in the day of battle.

4 And his feet 'shall stand in that day upon the mount of Olives, which is before Jerusalem on the east; and the mount of Olives shall cleave in the midst thereof toward the east and toward the west, and there shall be 'a very great valley; and half of the mountain shall remove toward the north, and half of it toward the south.

5 And ye shall flee to the valley of 'the mountains; †for the valley of the mountains shall reach unto Azal: yea, ye shall flee like as ye fled from before the 'earthquake in the days of Uzziah king of Judah: and 'the LORD my God shall come, and all the 'saints with thee.

6 And it shall come to pass in that day, that the light shall 'not be †clear nor †dark:

7 But *it shall be 'one day which shall be known to the LORD, not day nor night: but it shall come to pass that at 'evening time it shall be light.

8 And it shall be in that day that 'living waters shall go out from Jerusalem: half of them toward the 'former sea, and half of them toward the hinder sea: in summer and in winter shall it be.

9 'And the LORD shall be king over all the earth: in that day shall there be one LORD, and his name one.

10 'All the land shall be †turned as a plain from Geba to Rimmon south of Jerusalem: and it 'shall be lifted up, and †inhabited in her place, from Benjamin's gate unto the place of the first gate, unto the corner gate, and from the tower of Hananeel unto the king's wine presses.

11 And men shall 'dwell in it, and there shall be 'no more utter destruction; but Jerusalem †shall 'be safely inhabited.

12 ¶ 'And this shall be the plague wherewith the LORD will smite all the people that have fought against Jerusalem: 'Their flesh shall consume away while they stand upon their feet, and their eyes shall consume away in their holes, and their tongue shall consume away in their mouth.

13 And it shall come to pass in that day, 'that a great tumult from the LORD shall be among them; and they shall lay hold every one on the hand of his neighbour, and his hand shall rise up against the hand of his neighbour.

14 'And *Judah also shall fight †at Jerusalem; and 'the wealth of all the heathen round about shall be gathered together, gold, and silver, and apparel, in great abundance.

15 'And so shall be the plague of the horse, of the mule, of the camel, and of the ass, and of all the beasts that shall be in these tents, as this plague.

16 ¶ And it shall come to pass, that every one that is left of all the nations which came against Jerusalem shall 'even go up from year to year to worship the obstinacy in rejecting him, be utterly destroyed or reduced to misery, yet a remnant in that age, and especially in the millennial period, shall, through much tribulation, be turned to, claimed by, and openly avow, the promised Messiah.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. XIII.—Full forgiveness and reformation are closely connected with true faith and gospel repentance. Nor is any guilt or stain so deep, but Jesus, freely offered in the gospel, by his blood, his Spirit, and work, can effectually wash it out. Yea, nothing more effectually dislodges idols, devils, and impostors, than the plain and powerful exhibition and application of a crucified Christ, as made of God unto us wisdom, righteousness, sanctification, and redemption.—Thrice happy is it when all ranks, in their respective callings, concur to promote reformation, and to extirpate false worship and delusion; and when regular censures and punishments make false teachers sensible and ashamed of their sin, and return to their duty. But how infinitely glorious is our Redeemer! Tremendous were the sufferings which he endured from his Father's just vengeance for our sin. And his death effectually issues in mercy, even to his deserters, betrayers, and murderers. By the most fearful calamities God often promotes the purification and happiness of his chosen people, and the establishment of his gospel and church in the world. And it is God's apprehending of us by his grace that makes us apprehend him by faith and seek him by fervent prayer.

CHAP. XIV. Perhaps this chapter had the first step of its fulfilment in the signal victories of the Maccabees over the Syro-grecians, who had taken Jerusalem by force, and ravaged the country; and in the restoration of Jerusalem, and the reformation of religion that followed. But it had a more signal fulfilment in the destruction and dispersion of the Jewish nation by the Romans; afterwards of the heathen empire of Rome by the Goths; and the spread of the gospel, and erection, enlargement, or prosperity of the Christian church, which attended the same. Yet it will have a further accomplishment in God's destroying the Turks, who shall attack the newly-returned Jews, and in the prosperity and reformation of the Jewish nation attending the same; in his destroying the Antichristian and Mahometan powers, when making their final attack upon the Christians; and in the powerful spread of the gospel, the subjection of all nations to Christ, and the remarkable devotion and holiness of church members, in the millennial period. And it will have its last step of fulfilment in God's destroying the armies of Gog and Magog, which attack his church, in the end of the millennium, and in the final extirpation and damnation of the wicked at the last day, and the glories of the new heaven and new earth in the eternal state.

4, 5. In consequence of Christ's ascension, he shall be manifested in the gospel preached by his apostles, according to the commission given them on mount Olivet; and the ceremonial worship shall be removed, and Jews and Gentiles, having equal admission, shall, in multitudes, eagerly flee to the Redeemer, and unite in the gospel church. 6, 7. For a time the condition of the Jews shall neither be happy nor absolutely miserable: for a time the ceremonies shall not seem wholly abolished; nay, for many ages, the Christian church shall have but a mixed lot of prosperity and adversity; but the Lord shall graciously take notice of and manage all; and at last, in the millennium, great shall be the prosperity and purity of the Jewish nation and gospel church. 8, 9. Issuing forth from Jerusalem and the church of God, the gospel shall, amidst prosperity and adversity, be preached by the apostles and others, in all quarters of the world, till all nations be turned to the Lord: and men renouncing all their idolatries and delusions, shall harmoniously unite in the faith, profession, and obedience, of Christ. 10, 11. Every obstacle of conversion, and every noted abomination, shall be removed; and the Jews, happily settled in Canaan, shall gloriously and safely share the privileges of the gospel church. 12—15. By signal judgments, and mutual contentions, the opposers of the Jews and Christians shall be infatuated and destroyed, and their wealth left for a spoil, to enrich those whom they had attempted to destroy. 16—19. Wars shall be exchanged for serious devotions; or, even in their war and most common employments, men shall act from gracious and holy motives, in an holy manner, and to holy ends.—And the church shall be purged from all apparently unclean and mercenary ministers and professors.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. XIV.—Judgments commonly begin at the house of God: where then shall the ungodly and sinner appear at last? Scarcely ever do nations or armies prosper much after they have imbrued their hands in the blood of God's people. Thrice happy is the gospel church, which hath Jesus Christ for her superintendant and her root, in which both Jews and Gentiles cordially unite! Open is the access to her, made by his ascension and published gospel: and with great earnestness ought men to flee into her. It is new covenant-relation to God that can alone render us happy amidst manifold commothat come not up to keep the feast of tabernacles.

tions. And let providences be ever so dark and intermixed, if our God knows and manages them, they will all issue in a comfortable manner.—It is a great honour to be a mother of churches, from whence gospel messengers, oracles, ordinances, and influences, do spread into the world and render the whole an united kingdom of Jesus Christ. Remarkable deliverances of the church are generally attended with terrible ruin to her opposers; if one plague answer not, another is inflicted: and it is for the honour of Jesus' grace that the remnant of such are often converted by his Spirit, and saved by his blood. Divine influences effectually rectify men's devotions, with respect to their Object, Mediator, manner, and seasons. And, if men contemn and neglect the ordinances of God and means of grace, they forfeit not only the blessings of salvation but even of common providence. But thrice happy shall be the blessed millennium, when holiness shall not only shine forth in every devotion, but even in the most ordinary business, and every thing be used as devoted to the service of Christ.

THE PROPHECY OF

M A L A C H I.

Malachi seems to have prophesied about A. M. 3600, contemporary with, or quickly after, the government of Nehemiah. His principal scope is to reprove the Jews for their neglect or profanation of God's ordinances; their sacrilege, heathen marriages, and other abominations; and to warn them of the approaching incarnation of the Messiah.

3 Behold, I will corrupt your seed, and spread dung upon your faces, even the dung of your solemn feasts; and none shall take you away with it.

late, and fruitful in nothing but serpents. 10, 11. Since ye are so mercenary that, notwithstanding all that I have allotted to you as a reward, ye can scarcely think of shutting a door in my temple without some special hire, ye may withhold your sacrifices. I have provided for myself a people among the Gentile nations, to worship and to honour me with spiritual sacrifices, of their persons, praises, thanksgivings and alms-deeds.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. I.—Great is the sovereignty of divine grace with respect to persons and nations, in favouring and saving some, and in rejecting and destroying others for their sins. But if once ingratitude towards God prevail in the heart, nothing will appear too base to be done to or said of him. No greatness in him will awe, no relation engage, and no law will influence, nay, nor even self-interest move, us to serve him aright: and none are ever more noted profaners of God's worship than careless clergymen.—Let Britain beware! Let our behaviour correspond to God's distinguishing kindness and peculiar relations to us! Let bitter repentance, reverential fear, upright obedience, and fervent and holy devotions, prevent God's removing his gospel kingdom from us to another nation, and his executing his fearful and ruinous curse upon us!

CHAP. II. Ver. 2—4. I will take your earthly enjoyments from you, or render them useless or hurtful to you. I will cause to rot, or otherwise spoil, your seed corn, will disdainfully reject your persons and services, and transfer you to foreign places, and even to hell, in your sins. Thus shall ye be convinced that

4 And ye shall know that I have sent this commandment unto you, that my covenant might be with Levi, saith the LORD of hosts.

5 My covenant was with him of life and peace; and I gave them to him for the fear wherewith he feared me and was afraid before my name.

6 The law of truth was in his mouth, and iniquity was not found in his lips: he walked with me in peace and equity, and did turn many away from iniquity.

7 For the priests' lips should keep knowledge, and they should seek the law at his mouth: for he is the messenger of the LORD of hosts.

8 But ye are departed out of the way: ye have caused many to stumble at the law: ye have corrupted the covenant of Levi, saith the LORD of hosts.

9 Therefore have I also made you contemptible and base before all the people, according as ye have not kept my ways, but have been partial in the law.

10 Have we not all one father? hath not one God created us? why do we deal treacherously every man against his brother, by profaning the covenant of our fathers?

11 Judah hath dealt treacherously, and an abomination is committed in Israel and in Jerusalem; for Judah hath profaned the holiness of the LORD which he loved, and hath married the daughter of a strange god.

12 The LORD will cut off the man that doth this, the master and the scholar, out of the tabernacles of Jacob, and him that offereth an offering unto the LORD of hosts.

13 And this have ye done again, covering the altar of the LORD with tears, with weeping, and with crying out, insomuch that he regardeth not the offering any more, or receiveth it with good will at your hand.

14 Yet ye say, Wherefore? Because the LORD hath been witness between thee and the wife of thy youth, against whom thou hast dealt treacherously: yet is she thy companion, and the wife of thy covenant.

15 And did not he make one? yet had he the residue of the spirit. And wherefore one? that he might seek || Or excellency.

I have warned you in this manner in order that my covenant of priesthood might continue with the tribe of Levi. 5—9. To reward the piety and zeal of their ancestors, I chose them and their posterity by a lasting covenant to be my ministers; and they, according to the law of their office, served me with sincerity and diligence; and, by their example and instructions, turned many from their wicked courses. But ye, instead of instructing the people from my word, lead them aside by your doctrine and example, and make them to abhor my service, and thus violate the terms on which ye hold your office: I will therefore punish your impiety and partiality in your decisions, by rendering you openly contemptible. 10—12. Though, by having one father, Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, and one God, ye are all brethren in both a natural and spiritual relation, yet ye betray and deceive one another. Violating God's covenant of peculiarity with your nation, ye have acted treacherously and abominably, in profaning this institution of marriage, and your own persons, which are devoted to God, by marrying heathen women, worshippers of idols: therefore will the Lord punish you, both priest and people. 13—16. Moreover, by your cruelty, in divorcing or ill treating your Jewish wives, ye force them to attend their sacrifices with bitter mournings, instead of praises and thanksgivings, so that I cannot but detest your oblations, having been a witness of the solemn vow which you made to them in marriage, never to neglect, reject, nor suffer any to rival, them; and also of your treacherous usage of them.—Did not I, in creation, make only one wife for Adam, though I could as easily have created thousands? And for this reason that thus an offspring might be produced in lawful wedlock, and trained up in my fear. Take heed therefore to your hearts and affections, that none of you treacherously neglect, abuse, desert, or divorce his lawful wife, or take another in her room: for I hate all such injurious divorces, whatever pretences ye may attempt to cover them with. 17. Ye have also provoked me, and wearied my patience, by your discontented murmurings, at my providence: and by your declaring that wicked persons were as much regarded by me as the most pious; at least, that I was very slow and negligent in the punishing of such wretches.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. II.—Abandoned clergymen are generally most furious in impiety. No law can bind, no vow can hold, no motive engage, no pattern attract, them to their duty; no example or denunciation of wrath deter them from sin. It is indeed very honourable to be God's messengers in promoting the salvation of mankind, and to confirm our doctrines by our holy lives. But greatly offensive and reproachful to God, and hurtful to men's souls, are ministers unfaithful and unholy. They lose their credit and comfort, and bring fearful curses upon themselves and all that they have. Yea hateful is the conduct of professors, and especially ministers, when they profane the institutions of God, violate his laws, dishonour their character, and pour contempt on their fellow professors, by unhallowed marriages with Heathens and profane persons. But, if men deal treacherously with God, no wonder they deal treacherously and abusively with their nearest relations. And scarcely anything can be more barbarous than to use wives ill. In marriages, great regard ought to be paid to the raising up of a godly seed to serve the Redeemer. And every one that would act well must carefully take heed to his spirit.—No wonder that men's conduct is profane and treacherous when their principles are atheistical and blasphemous, and when they tempt God by stifling the convictions of his word, and justify themselves by murmurs at, and misrepresentations of, his providence. But denials and derision of God will but issue in the destruction of presumptuous sinners.

CHAP. III Ver i John Baptist proclaimed that the Messiah was come in a godly seed. Therefore ^ktake heed to your spirit, and let none deal ^ltreacherously against the wife of his youth.

16 For the LORD the God of Israel saith * that he ^mhateth † putting away: for one covereth violence with his garment, saith the LORD of hosts: therefore take heed to your spirit, that ye deal not treacherously.

17 ¶ Ye have ⁿwearied the LORD with your words. Yet ye say, ^oWherein have we wearied him? when ye say, ^pEvery one that doth evil is good in the sight of the LORD, and he delighteth in them; or, ^qWhere is the God of judgment?

CHAP. III.

(1) Foretells the coming of John Baptist, and the incarnation and ministry of Christ, with the comfort and sanctification attending it to saints, and the terror and ruin to obstinate sinners; 1—6. (2) Reproves the Jews for their corruption of God's ordinances and their sacrilegious robbing him of his dues; and, by a solemn charge and promise of mercy, calls them to repent and reform; 7—12. (3) Describes the wickedness of such as spake against God, and the righteousness and blessedness of such as spake for him; 13—18.

BEHOLD, ^aI will send my messenger, and he shall prepare the way before me: and ^bthe LORD, whom ye seek, shall suddenly come to his temple; even the Messenger of the covenant, whom ye delight in: behold, he shall come, saith the LORD of hosts.

2 But ^cwho may abide the day of his coming? and who shall stand when he appeareth? for he is like a refiner's fire, and like fuller's sope:

3 And he shall sit ^das a refiner and purifier of silver: and he shall purify the sons of Levi, and purge them as gold and silver, that they may offer unto the LORD an offering in righteousness.

4 Then ^eshall the offering of Judah and Jerusalem be pleasant unto the LORD, as in the days of old, and as in ^fformer years.

5 And ^gI will come near to you to judgment; and I will be a swift witness ^hagainst the sorcerers, and against the adulterers, and against false swearers, and against those that ⁱoppress the hireling in his wages, the widow, and the fatherless, and that turn aside the stranger from his right, and ^hfear not me, saith the LORD of hosts.

6 For I am the LORD, ⁱI change not; ^ktherefore ye sons of Jacob are not consumed.

7 ¶ Even from the days of your fathers ye are gone away from mine ordinances, and have not kept them. ^mReturn unto me, and I will return unto you, saith the LORD of hosts. But ye said, ⁿWherein shall we return?

8 ¶ Will a man ^orob God? yet ye have robbed me. But ye say, Wherein have we robbed thee? in tithes and offerings.

9 Ye ^pare cursed with a curse: for ye have robbed me, even this whole nation.

10 ^qBring ye all the tithes into the storehouse, that there may be meat in mine house; and ^rprove me now herewith, saith the LORD of hosts, if I will not open you the ^swindows of heaven, and ^tpour you out a blessing, ^uthat there shall not be room enough to receive it.

11 And I will rebuke the ^vdevourer for your sakes, and he shall not ^wdestroy the fruits of your ground; neither shall your vine cast her fruit before the time in the field, saith the LORD of hosts.

12 And ^xall nations shall call you blessed: for ye shall be a delightful land, saith the LORD of hosts.

13 ¶ Your words have been ^ystout against me, saith the LORD. Yet ye say, ^zWhat have we spoken so much against thee?

14 Ye have said, ^aIt is vain to serve God: and what profit is it that we have kept ^bhis ordinance, and that we have walked ^cmournfully before the LORD of hosts?

15 And now we call the ^dproud happy; yea, ^ethey that work wickedness ^fare set up; yea, they that tempt God are even delivered.

16 ¶ Then they that ^gfeared the LORD ^hspake often one to another: and the LORD hearkened, and heard it, and ⁱa book of remembrance was written before him for them that feared the LORD, and that thought upon his name.

17 And ^jthey shall be mine, saith the the flesh, and called the Jews to prepare for his manifestation of himself by faith and repentance.—Christ came in the flesh while the second temple was standing, and honoured it with his presence and ministrations. Though he was the same in nature, and equal in personal dignity, with his Father, he, as Mediator, was sent by him to declare and attest his will to men, and purchase and promote their salvation. The godly rejoiced in his person, incarnation, and work;—and even the wicked Jews were pleased with it, as they conceived hopes of temporal advantages thereby; 2—4. Yet few of the Jews will relish his coming when it shall take place; for they will be offended at his appearances and doctrines, to their own destruction: for his instructions and his conduct will tend to separate the precious from the vile, to sanctify the former and destroy the latter; and he will purify his ministers and people from their errors in doctrine, corruptions in worship, and unholiness in practice, that their services may be agreeable to his law, and accepted of God through him, as well as those of their pious ancestors. 5, 6. I will speedily call you to an account for your sins; and, by punishing you, manifest that I have taken notice of them; and this ye may as certainly expect as I am the unchangeable JEHOVAH, who, according to my promises to your fathers, have hitherto refrained from punishing you according to your deserts. 8—12. Notwithstanding my being God, and your God, ye have robbed me of my tithes and offerings, and have thereby procured a curse, which, all through the land, hath blasted your crops. But let my justly-required oblations be brought to my temple, and I will abundantly bless you with refreshing and fructifying rains, and plentiful increase; and I will restrain caterpillars, locusts, drought, mildew, and blasting, and everything else that destroys the fruits of the earth: and all the nations around shall reckon you singularly happy, and worthy to be the object of their love and admiration, on account of your peace, plenty, and holy religion. 13—15. Some of you have indeed presumptuously quarrelled at my service and providences, as if the zealous observance of my laws did profit no one; as if the most proud and daring contemners of me and my service, and the most notorious workers of wickedness, were the only, at least the most, prosperous persons in the nation. 16—18. Yet know assuredly that I exactly observe, and infallibly remember,

Then shall the most stupid and presumptuous of you be forced to observe and feel the difference that my providence puts between my righteous servants and the wicked contemners of my worship and service.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. III.—Unbounded is the excellency of Jesus' person and work ; and great the joys, the blessings, and the terrors, which attend his coming. His word and Spirit have the most purifying influence on his chosen. But, alas, dreadful is the destruction of those that despise him and do the work of the devil. Great are the pleasures which they enjoy that seek and find Christ in his temple and in his ordinances. And it is by justification and sanctification that all the saints are consecrated spiritual priests unto God,—JEHOVAH's unchangeableness secures the destruction of his enemies and the preservation of his people. Yet, alas, what fearful wickedness against God and men is to be found amongst hypocritical professors ! But wickedness most surely ruins, and robbery either of God or men, renders men still more poor and miserable. If we withhold their dues from God, or from his poor, he will make us to pay dear for it at last. Nor can his straitening us, to punish our robbery, ever excuse it. He must be served, not with our leavings, but with the first fruits of our increase. And, if by trusting in him we be liberal to him, we shall find ourselves gainers at last. If we honour and delight in him, he will make us an honour and delight before all around us ; while presumptuous sinners, after a short prosperity, shall be eternally miserable. In evil times, therefore, when vice is daring, let us be bold and active in the cause of religion. If the servants of Satan dare to harden one another in sin, why should not Christ's servants encourage one another in holiness ! He will honourably mark, kindly remember, and graciously reward, all our services.

2 ¶ But unto you that ^dfear my name shall the ^eSun of righteousness arise with healing in his wings ; and ye shall ^fgo forth and grow up as calves of the stall.

3 And ye shall ^gtread down the wicked ; for they shall be ashes under the soles of your feet ^hin the day that I shall do this, saith the LORD of hosts.

CHAP. IV. Ver. 1, 3. The wicked shall be terribly, suddenly, and unavoidably, destroyed by God's judgments, both parents and children ; while the righteous shall triumph over them. 2. Jesus, the enlightener, quickener, and comforter, of his people, shall appear in the flesh, and in the gospel, to heal sinners by his word, his blood, and Spirit, of all their spiritual diseases, and to make them beautifully increase in grace and holiness. 5. John Baptist is called Elijah, because like him in his appearances, work, and success. The time of Christ's manifestation is called great, as he made great alteration in the form and ordinances of the church ; and dreadful as, by rejecting him, the Jews brought on themselves dreadful destruction. 6. The work of John Baptist was to reconcile all their differences, by directing all parties to Christ as the only Saviour, that so the ruin of their nation might be prevented.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. IV.—The fire of God's wrath makes fearful work upon obstinate sinners, when ripened for it. But great is the joy, light, comfort, vigour, and victory over enemies, which believers find in the approaches and discoveries of Christ to their souls. And lasting are the honours of his faithful ministers. If we wish for happiness, or further knowledge of his will, let us adhere strictly to what he has commanded. And never let us complain for want of light as long as we have the oracles of God. The light of divine truth continues constant in the church ; but the revelations thereof and spiritual instructions therein, were and shall be gradually increased as occasion requires. The manifestations of the great God our Saviour are indeed events of vast importance. And the happiness or misery of mankind are deeply concerned therein. But what a marvellous turn may one man, remarkably assisted of God, give to the affairs of churches or nations ! And dreadful are the curses, desolations, and miseries, which await those sinners that harden themselves against the distinguished means of God's grace.

THE GOSPEL ACCORDING TO S T. M A T T H E W.

Nothing is of more importance, nothing more deserves a plain and fully-attested account, than the birth, life, death, and resurrection, of our Redeemer, on which the eternal honour of God and the salvation of men so marvellously depend, and in which the scope and principal predictions of the Old Testament are so manifestly fulfilled. In the four gospels now before us these things are plainly related, fully attested, and the accounts all deeply marked, not only with the utmost candour of the writers, but with the infallible direction and infinite authority of the Holy Ghost. Matthew and Luke trace our Saviour's history from his conception in the womb to his glorious ascension. Mark and John begin their accounts with his public appearances at his baptism and as a minister of the circumcision. Matthew and Mark (who often shortens, but sometimes adds to, Matthew's accounts) chiefly insist on his acts. Luke, and especially John, on the divine discourses which he delivered. But, in all, the miracles which he wrought, the instructions which he inculcated, the conduct which he uniformly pursued, and the manner in which he endured what he suffered, plainly demonstrate him the Son of God and Saviour of the world. Matthew, Mark, and Luke, seem to have written their histories of Christ about thirty years after his death, without having previously seen one another's narrative.

[Any apparent contradictions are reconciled by an orderly arrangement, as in INTRODUCTION, chap. v. and what is explained in one gospel is not explained in those which follow.]

CHAP. I.

(1) Manifests Christ to be the promised seed of Abraham, Judah, Jesse, and David, by his legal and royal genealogy from Abraham in 42 generations; 1—17. (2) His conception and birth of a virgin is divinely attested by an angel to Joseph, and his name and office declared; 18—25.

THE ^abook of the generation of Jesus Christ, ^bthe son of David, ^cthe son of Abraham.

2 ^dAbraham begat Isaac; and ^eIsaac begat Jacob; and ^fJacob begat Judas and his brethren;

3 And ^gJudas begat Phares and Zara of Thamar; and ^hPhares begat Esrom; and Esrom begat Aram;

4 And Aram begat Aminadab; and Aminadab begat ⁱNaasson; and Naasson begat Salmon;

5 And Salmon begat Booz of ^kRachab; and ^lBooz begat Obed of Ruth; and Obed begat Jesse;

6 And ^mJesse begat David the king; and ⁿDavid the king begat Solomon of her that had been the wife of Urias;

7 And ^oSolomon begat Roboam; and Roboam begat Abia; and Abia begat Asa;

8 And ^pAsa begat Josaphat; and Josaphat begat Joram; and Joram begat Ozias;

9 And ^qOzias begat Joatham; and Joatham begat Achaz; and Achaz begat Ezekias;

10 And ^rEzekias begat Manasses; and Manasses begat Amon; and Amon begat Josias;

11 And ^sJosias begat ^tJechonias and his brethren, about the time they were carried away to Babylon;

12 And after they were brought to Babylon ^uJechonias begat Salathiel; and Salathiel begat Zorobabel;

13 And Zorobabel begat Abiud; and Abiud begat Eliakim; and Eliakim begat Azor;

14 And Azor begat Sadoc; and Sadoc begat Achim; and Achim begat Eliud;

15 And Eliud begat Eleazar; and Eleazar begat Matthan; and Matthan begat Jacob;

16 And Jacob begat ^vJoseph the husband of Mary, of ^wwhom was born Jesus, who is called Christ.

17 So all the generations from Abraham to David are fourteen generations, and from David until the carrying away into Babylon are fourteen generations; and from the carrying away into Babylon unto Christ are fourteen generations.

18 ¶ Now the ^xbirth of Jesus Christ was on this wise: When as his mother Mary was espoused to Joseph, before they came together, she was found with child ^yof the Holy Ghost.

19 Then Joseph her husband, being a just man, and not willing to make her ^za public example, was minded to put her away privily.

20 But, while he thought on these things, behold, ^athe angel of the Lord appeared unto him in a dream, saying, Joseph, thou son of David, fear not to take unto thee Mary thy wife; for that which is ^bconceived in her ^cis of the Holy Ghost.

21 ^dAnd she shall bring forth a son, and thou shalt call his name JESUS: ^efor he shall save his people from their sins.

22 Now all this was done that ^fit EXPLANATORY NOTES. CHAP. I. Ver. 1—17. In this genealogy of Christ, by his supposed father, we have four women inserted, three of them Gentiles; and Bathsheba, an adulteress; to discover him as the Saviour of the Gentiles and of the greatest sinners. The three immediate descendants of Joram by Athaliah are omitted, to mark the curse of God upon unhallowed marriages to the third and fourth generation. 18, 10. Mary's espousal to Joseph prevented the imputation of bastardy to her son, and secured her an assistant to bring him up.—Joseph was afraid of marrying an unchaste woman on the one hand; or on the other of publicly exposing to be stoned one whom he hoped might be innocent.

CHAP. II.

Represents (1) The solicitous inquiry of some wise Gentiles after Christ, with the information and direction given them by king Herod; 1—8. (2) Their guidance to him at Bethlehem by a star; their worship of, and liberal donations to him, and their return homeward; 9—12. (3) The divinely directed flight of Christ and his parents into Egypt, to avoid the intended cruelty of Herod; 13—15. (4) Herod's barbarous murder of the infants about Bethlehem, in order to murder Christ among them; 16—18. (5) Christ and his parents divinely directed, return from Egypt to the land of Israel, and retire to Nazareth in Galilee; 19—23.

NOW, when Jesus was born in Beth-lehem of Judea, in the days of Herod the king, behold, there came wise men from the east to Jerusalem.

2 Saying, Where is he that is born king of the Jews? for we have seen his star in the east, and are come to worship him.

3 ¶ When Herod the king had heard these things he was troubled, and all Jerusalem with him.

4 And, when he had gathered all the chief priests and scribes of the people together, he demanded of them where Christ should be born.

5 And they said unto him, In Beth-lehem of Judea: for thus it is written by the prophet,

6 And thou Bethlehem, in the land of Juda, art not the least among the princes of Juda; for out of thee shall come a Governor that shall rule my people Israel.

7 Then Herod, when he had privily called the wise men, inquired of them diligently what time the star appeared.

8 And he sent them to Bethlehem, and said, Go, and search diligently for the young child; and when ye have found him bring me word again, that I may come and worship him also.

9 ¶ When they had heard the king they departed; and, lo, the star, which they saw in the east, went before them, till it came and stood over where the young child was.

10 When they saw the star they rejoiced with exceeding great joy.

11 ¶ And when they were come into the house they saw the young child with Mary his mother, and fell down, and worshipped him: and when they had opened their treasures they presented unto him gifts; gold, and frankincense, and myrrh.

12 And, being warned of God in a dream that they should not return to Herod, they departed into their own country another way.

13 And, when they were departed, behold, the angel of the Lord appeareth to Joseph in a dream, saying, Arise, and take the young child and his mother, and flee into Egypt, and be thou there until I bring thee word: for Herod will seek the young child to destroy him.

14 †When he arose he took the young child, and his mother by night, and departed into Egypt;

15 And was there until the death of Herod; that it might be fulfilled which was spoken of the Lord by the prophet, saying, Out of Egypt have I called my son.

16 ¶ Then Herod, when he saw that he was mocked of the wise men, was exceeding wroth, and sent forth and slew all the children that were in Beth-lehem, and in all the coast thereof, from two years old and under, according to the time which he had diligently inquired of the wise men.

17 Then was fulfilled that which was spoken by Jeremy the prophet, saying, 18 In Rama was there a voice heard, lamentation, and weeping, and great mourning; Rachel weeping for her children, and would not be comforted because they are not.

19 ¶ But, when Herod was dead, behold, an angel of the Lord appeareth in a dream to Joseph in Egypt, 20 Saying, Arise, and take the young child and his mother, and go into the land of Israel: for they are dead who sought the young child's life.

21 And he arose, and took the young child and his mother, and came into the land of Israel.

22 But, when he heard that Archelaus did reign in Judea in the room of his father Herod, he was afraid to go thither: notwithstanding, being warned of God in a dream, he turned aside into the parts of Galilee:

23 And he came and dwelt in a city called Nazareth, that it might be fulfilled which was spoken by the prophets, He shall be called a Nazarene.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. I.—Though long delays of God's favours may much exercise our patience, they do not in the least weaken his promises. Full and convincing is the evidence that our Jesus is the true Messiah, the Saviour of Jews and Gentiles, males and females, of sinners, even the chief. Marvellous was the providence of God, that he should prepare him his holy manhood, through and from such abominable persons and acts. But strange alterations take place in the temporal condition and moral qualities of families in a few generations. How miraculous was our Saviour's conception and birth, and how honourably testified! With great wisdom and prudence God conducted every circumstance thereof, to his honour, and to the happiness of those concerned. Yet they, who receive remarkable honours from God, may expect remarkable trials; but, if we keep a good conscience, God will maintain, or in due time vindicate, our honour. It is very comely when piety towards God, fidelity towards men, and tenderness of our reputation go together. And in suspicious cases we should always hope the best, and depend upon God for such solution of our doubts as may enable us to proceed with freedom and comfort. But nothing can more enliven a perplexed mind than discoveries of Jesus Christ as the great God-man, who effectually saves from sin and wrath.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. II.—How deep was the debasement, and early the sufferings, of our Redeemer! and yet attended with the honours of an extraordinary star directed to him; the devout visit of the wise men; and the repeated directions of God concerning him. How early the Gentiles begin their gathering to Shiloh! and often they, who live farthest from the means of grace, are first converted. Even in extraordinary appearances of nature, we ought to inquire after God's mind and will: and, if we be earnestly desirous to know and find Christ, neither pains nor perils will hinder us. Nothing produces so great an hatred of Christ and his kingdom as ignorance of their nature and design. And it is awful when repeated directions concerning him do but make men the more deceitful and desperately murderous. Adorable is the providence of God, which disappoints the devices of his crafty, powerful, and cruel, enemies, and turns them

(2) The baptism of Jesus by John at Jordan, and the solemn attestation of his person by the Holy Ghost and his Father; 13—17.

IN those days came John the Baptist, preaching in the wilderness of Judea, 2 And saying, Repent ye; for the kingdom of heaven is at hand.

3 For this is he that was spoken of by the prophet Esaias, saying, The voice of one crying in the wilderness, Prepare ye the way of the Lord, make his paths straight.

4 And the same John had his raiment of camel's hair, and a leathern girdle about his loins; and his meat was locusts and wild honey.

5 ¶ Then went out to him Jerusalem, and all Judea, and all the region round about Jordan,

6 And were baptized of him in Jordan, confessing their sins.

7 ¶ But, when he saw many of the Pharisees and Sadducees come to his baptism, he said unto them, O generation of vipers, who hath warned you to flee from the wrath to come?

8 Bring forth therefore fruits meet for repentance:

9 And think not to say within yourselves, We have Abraham to our father: for I say unto you that God is able of these stones to raise up children unto Abraham.

10 And now also the ax is laid unto the root of the trees: therefore every tree which bringeth not forth good fruit is hewn down, and cast into the fire.

11 I indeed baptize you with water unto repentance; but he that cometh after me is mightier than I, whose shoes I am not worthy to bear: he shall baptize you with the Holy Ghost, and with fire:

12 Whose fan is in his hand, and he into means or occasions of verifying his predictions and executing his purposes. He takes delight to encourage and direct young converts, who are ready humbly to give to Jesus themselves and all that they have. And the more nearly any are connected with Christ, the more divine protection and direction they may expect; and the more readily and cheerfully must God be obeyed. Into what monsters of wickedness has sin transformed some men! And wicked rulers will never want wicked instruments to act by. Children, life, lands, and all other created enjoyments, are certain sorrows, but very uncertain comforts. Let my care be to have God as my portion, and to live with him as my Father and companion, go where I will.

CHAP. III. Ver. 2.—The kingdom of heaven often denotes the gospel dispensation; but sometimes the heavenly glory, or the work of grace in the heart. 7—10. Ye hypocritical Pharisees and irreligious Sadducees, who, like your father the devil, are full of malignant enmity to all real goodness, who hath instigated you to apply for my baptism, as a mean of escaping the temporal and eternal judgments to which ye are so exposed? Bring forth therefore good works in heart and life, suitable to the nature, and evidential of the sincerity, of your repentance, or else my baptism will do you no service. Imagine not that your not being profane Gentiles, but descendants of Abraham, will secure you from God's vengeance: for he will rather raise up a seed of believing and obedient followers of Abraham out of these Gentile soldiers, or even these stones, than save any of you who persist in your sins. God is now giving you the last trial. If ye reject the Messiah and his gospel offers, which shall soon be presented to you, his judgments, which are now waiting, shall quickly destroy your nation, and cast you into temporal and eternal miseries, on account of your wickedness. 11, 12. By my baptism, I am but attempting to prepare you for the infinitely more worthy Messiah, who will pour out upon you his Holy Spirit in a miraculous manner, and whose operations will be enlightening, warming, powerful, and purifying. He, by his infinite knowledge, by his gospel doctrines, and by his gracious and awful providences, will purify his Jewish church, and separate the precious from the vile; admitting every sincere believer into his will thoroughly purge his floor, and gather his wheat into the garner: but he will burn up the chaff with unquenchable fire.

13 ¶ Then cometh Jesus from Galilee to Jordan unto John, to be baptized of him.

14 But John forbade him, saying, I have need to be baptized of thee, and comest thou to me?

15 And Jesus answering, said unto him, Suffer it to be so now; for thus it becometh us to fulfil all righteousness. Then he suffered him.

16 And Jesus, when he was baptized, went up straightway out of the water: and, lo, the heavens were opened unto him, and he saw the Spirit of God descending like a dove, and lighting upon him:

17 And, lo, a voice from heaven, saying, This is my beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased.

CHAP. IV.

Drops John Baptist, and represents the newly-baptized and attested Jesus. (1) As long fasting, violently tempted by Satan, and honourably victorious; 1—11. (2) As beginning to preach in Galilee and the places adjacent; 12—17. (3) As calling disciples to attend him, — Peter and Andrew, James and John; 18—22. (4) As miraculously healing multitudes, and greatly followed by the people for his cures and instructions; 23—25.

THEN was Jesus led up of the spirit into the wilderness to be tempted of the devil.

2 And, when he had fasted forty days and forty nights, he was afterward an hungered.

3 And, when the tempter came to him, he said, If thou be the Son of God, command that these stones be made bread.

4 But he answered and said, It is written, Man shall not live by bread alone, but by every word that proceedeth out of the mouth of God.

5 Then the devil taketh him up into the holy city, and setteth him on a pinnacle of the temple,

6 And saith unto him, If thou be the Son of God, cast thyself down: for it is written, He shall give his angels charge concerning thee; and in their hands they gospel church and heavenly mansions, and casting out unbelievers, as light and vain, worthless and unprofitable, into everlasting miseries on earth and eternal torments in hell.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. III.—No place on earth can shut us out from the visits of divine grace. And often the sweetest intercourse with God is enjoyed when we are most withdrawn from the world. Ministers should accommodate themselves to the circumstances in which God places them. They who call others to self-denial, mourning for sin, and mortification of it, must shew themselves as examples; and they who have experienced spiritual pleasures, must look upon carnal delights and enjoyments with an holy indifference. Thorough convictions of the horrible nature of sin, and of the vanity of earthly things, are good preparations for readily receiving the gospel. Even ministers and ordinances are but empty things without Christ. But the faithful work of ministers, and the almighty influences of God, are necessary to gain him admission into men's hearts. And it is the promises and power of the gospel which chiefly induce men to sincere grief for their sins. Yet, alas, multitudes often seem fond of hearing the gospel, while few really believe it: and most men are ready to rest in external professions or privileges, without any experience of the power of religion. Indispensable is the necessity of true repentance, marked by an holy life, under the influence of the Holy Ghost: and happy for ever are they who are once partakers of this grace! But awfully miserable are they who remain hypocritical and unfruitful hearers! Their day of grace soon comes to an end, when they shall be separated from the godly, and cast into endless destruction. God puts great honour upon such as, through a real sense of their own unworthiness, seek to shun it.—But what delight Jesus took to fulfil all righteousness, required from him as our Surety, and to honour all his Father's institutions! And great was the delight of JEHOVAH and his Spirit to qualify him for, and bear witness to, his work. May my soul, therefore, entertain the most exalted and endearing thoughts of him, as the Son of God and my Saviour, as the Father's beloved, in whom I am accepted to eternal life.

7 Jesus said unto him, 'It is written again, "Thou shalt not tempt the Lord thy God."

8 "Again the devil taketh him up into an exceeding high mountain, and sheweth him all the kingdoms of the world, and the glory of them;

9 And saith unto him, All these things will I give thee if thou wilt fall down and worship me.

10 Then saith Jesus unto him, "Get thee hence, Satan: for it is written, "Thou shalt worship the Lord thy God, and him only shalt thou serve."

11 "Then the devil leaveth him, and behold, angels came and ministered unto him.

12 ¶ "Now, when Jesus had heard that John was *cast into prison, he departed into Galilee;

13 "And, leaving Nazareth, he came and dwelt in Capernaum, which is upon the sea-coast, in the borders of Zabulon and Nephthalim:

14 "That it might be fulfilled which was spoken by Esaias, the prophet, saying,

15 "The land of Zabulon, and the land of Nephthalim, by the way of the sea beyond Jordan, Galilee of the Gentiles:

16 The people which sat in darkness saw great light: and to them who sat in the region and shadow of death light is sprung up.

17 ¶ "From that time Jesus began to preach, and to say, Repent, for the kingdom of heaven is at hand.

18 ¶ "And Jesus, walking by the sea of Galilee, saw two brethren, Simon, called Peter, and Andrew his brother, casting a net into the sea: for they were fishers.

19 And he saith unto them, "Follow me, and I will make you fishers of men.

20 And they straightway left their nets, and followed him.

21 And, going on from thence, he saw other two brethren, James the son of Zebedee, and John his brother, in a ship with Zebedee their father, mending their nets: and he called them.

22 "And they immediately left the ship, and their father, and followed him.

23 ¶ And Jesus went about all Galilee, teaching in their synagogues, and preaching the gospel of the kingdom, and healing all manner of sickness and all manner of disease among the people.

24 And his fame went throughout all Syria. And they brought unto him all sick people that were taken with divers diseases and torments, and those which were possessed with devils and those which were lunatic, and those that had the palsy; and he healed them.

25 And there followed him great multitudes of people from Galilee, and from Decapolis, and from Jerusalem, and from Judea, and from beyond Jordan.

CHAP. V.

And the two following, contain our Saviour's famed sermon on the mount; in which (1) He pronounces as blessed, the poor in spirit, the mourners, the meek, those who earnestly desire righteousness, the merciful, the pure in heart, the peace-makers, and the persecuted; 1—12. (2) Directs his disciples, by their good instruction and example, carefully to edify their neighbours and obey his extensive and irrevocable law; 13—20. (3) Vindicates that law from the false glosses of the Jewish doctors, particularly with respect to murder; 21—26: uncleanness; 27—32: swearing; 33—37: retaliation; 38—42: and, brotherly love; 43—48.

AND, seeing the multitudes, he went up into a mountain: and, when he was set, his disciples came unto him.

2 And he opened his mouth, and taught them, saying,

3 "Blessed are the poor in spirit: for theirs is the kingdom of heaven.

4 "Blessed are they that mourn: for they shall be comforted.

5 "Blessed are the meek: for they shall inherit the earth.

6 "Blessed are they which do hunger and thirst after righteousness: for they shall be filled.

7 "Blessed are the merciful: for they shall obtain mercy.

8 "Blessed are the pure in heart: for they shall see God.

9 "Blessed are the peace makers: for they shall be called the children of God.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. IV.—Astonishing is the love of our Redeemer, who so wrestled in prayer, so struggled with the temptations of Satan, so laboured in teaching and healing sinners of mankind,—all for the sake of his enemies, and that he might succour them that are tempted! It is necessary that preachers be fitted for their work by remarkable endowments of the Holy Ghost, solemn prayers and fasting, and even by experience of manifold temptations. And never is Satan more ready to harass souls, than immediately after solemn fellowship with God, or while employed in extraordinary devotion. He leaves no circumstance unimproved for his purpose: and nothing is too horrid, atheistical, unbelieving, murderous, or idolatrous, for him to insist on; nor any worldly advantages too great for him to promise. If therefore we hope to defeat him, we must undertake it not by carnal reasoning, but by a believing use of the oracles of God answerable to his temptations. And God and his angels take pleasure to honour those who faithfully resist Satan. In vain do sinners attempt to stop the gospel of Christ. If one preacher be laid aside by death or imprisonment God can raise up another more excellent: and, if some thrust the gospel from them, he will make others gladly to receive it!—Infinite is the excellency and usefulness of our Redeemer in publishing the gospel; in enlightening the world by his truth; in healing diseases unnumbered of soul and body; in dispossessing devils, and raising up ministers to win sinners to himself. No natural unfitness can hinder his qualifications, and no obstinacy can withstand his call. May the grace of his kingdom induce multitudes to repentance, and his instructions make many light in the Lord. May his grace afford us pastors according to his own heart, by whose ministrations many may be converted to himself.

CHAP. V. Ver. 3. Truly happy they are, and shall be, who are sensible of their own ignorance, sinfulness, and insufficiency, and depend on God's free grace for instruction, forgiveness, and supply; and whose hearts are so weaned from the riches, honours, and pleasures, of this life, that they readily submit to God's disposals, and part with every thing temporal for the gospel's sake; for they have a full and everlasting interest in all the riches and honours of the kingdom of grace here, and of the kingdom of glory hereafter. 4. Happy are they who evangelically mourn under a deep sense of their own sinfulness of heart and life, and the miseries to which they are thereby exposed, and for the dishonour done to God by others, or the miseries inflicted on them;—for they shall, in due season, be revived by the comforts of the Holy Ghost, and shall at last enter into the full and everlasting joy of their Lord. 5. Happy are they who, sensible of their own unworthiness and of God's great goodness, readily submit to his will in all things, without murmuring, and who are gentle and patient to their fellow-creatures, hardly provoked, and easily appeased: for they, with God's friendship, and with inward satisfaction in their own minds, shall enjoy whatever of the good things of this world are most for their real advantage, and shall have their happy share in the new heavens and the new earth. 6. Happy are they who highly value, and earnestly desire and apply, my imputed righteousness for their justification, and my word and Spirit for the sanctification of their nature: for their desires shall be granted, and their souls eternally filled with all possible graces and comforts. 7. Happy are they who, from an unfeigned faith in God's special mercy to themselves, are tender-hearted towards others, readily forbearing severities, forgiving injuries, pitying and relieving the distressed; for God, in his unbounded kindness, will reward them with mercies inexpressibly more valuable. 8. Happy are they whose religion is pure and undefiled, whose hearts are purified by faith, their consciences washed in the blood of Jesus from guilt, their natures and tempers rendered holy by his Spirit, and who allow themselves in no hypocrisy, pride, or sensuality; for they shall enjoy delightful fellowship with God here, and the full and immediate vision and enjoyment of him for ever. 9. Happy, and that eternally, shall they be who, being reconciled to God through Christ, have his peace filling their hearts, and rendering them earnestly diligent to maintain and promote peace in every society they are connected with, as far as they can, in a consistence with truth and holiness; for this manifests them to be the children of God, who shall 11 'Blessed are ye when men shall revile you, and persecute you, and shall say all manner of evil against you falsely for my sake.'

12 'Rejoice, and be exceeding glad: for great is your reward in heaven: for so persecuted they the prophets which were before you.'

13 'Ye are the salt of the earth: but, if the salt have lost his savour, wherewith shall it be salted? it is thenceforth good for nothing but to be cast out, and to be trodden under foot of men.'

14 'Ye are the light of the world. A city that is set on an hill cannot be hid.'

15 Neither do men light a candle, and put it under a bushel, but on a candlestick; and it giveth light unto all that are in the house.

16 Let your light so shine before men, that they may see your good works and glorify your Father which is in heaven.

17 'Think not that I am come to destroy the law or the prophets; I am not come to destroy, but to fulfil.'

18 For verily I say unto you, 'Till heaven and earth pass, one jot or one tittle shall in no wise pass from the law, till all be fulfilled.'

19 'Whosoever therefore shall break one of these least commandments, and shall teach men so, he shall be called the least in the kingdom of heaven: but whosoever shall do and teach them, the same shall be called great in the kingdom of heaven.'

20 For I say unto you, That, except your righteousness shall exceed the righteousness of the scribes and Pharisees, ye 'shall in no case enter into the kingdom of heaven.'

21 '¶ Ye have heard that it was said by them of old time, 'Thou shalt not kill: and whosoever shall kill shall be in danger of the judgment:'

22 But 'I say unto you, That 'whosoever is angry with his brother without a cause shall be in danger of the judgment: and whosoever shall say to his brother, 'Raca, shall be in danger of the council: but whosoever shall say, 'Thou fool, shall be in danger of hell fire.'

23 'Therefore, if thou bring thy gift to the altar, and there rememberest that thy brother hath ought against thee;

24 Leave there thy gift before the altar, and go thy way; first be reconciled to thy brother, and then come and offer thy gift.'

25 'Agree with thine adversary quickly whiles thou art in the way with him: lest at any time the adversary deliver thee to the judge, and the judge deliver thee to the officer, and thou be cast into prison.'

26 Verily I say unto thee, 'Thou shalt by no means come out thence till thou hast paid the uttermost farthing.'

27 '¶ Ye have heard that it was said by them of old time, 'Thou shalt not commit adultery:'

28 But I say unto you, 'That whosoever looketh on a woman to lust after her, hath committed adultery with her already in his heart.'

be openly and eternally owned as such, and enjoy all the privileges that belong to the adoption of sons. 10—12. Happy are they who, with faith and patience, undergo the severest persecutions for their adherence to me, my truths, and ways: for they are interested in, and shall enjoy, all the blessings of the gospel and of the heavenly state.—Do ye, therefore, my disciples, reckon it a real happiness, and rejoice and glory in it, if, while ye live soberly, righteously, and godly, ye be reproached and persecuted for preaching my gospel, and following my example in holiness; for God will graciously reward you, and make even your troubles work for you an exceeding and eternal weight of glory: and know, for your encouragement, that in this path of persecution all the ancient prophets, those favourites of heaven, travelled to, and obtained their heavenly, their distinguished rewards. 13 Ye are appointed by your instructions and example, to spread abroad the savour of my knowledge wherever ye go, to reform the world, and preserve it from utter corruption and ruin. If therefore your hearts be gracious, your doctrines sound, and your lives exemplary, ye will be the blessed means of purging out corruptions in faith and manners, and of making multitudes of converts acceptable to God and useful to men. But, if ye degenerate into unfaithful, cold, and carnal tempers, corrupt notions, and licentious lives, ye will become the most unprofitable, worthless, and contemptible of men. 14—16. Ye are appointed, in the most public manner, to spread abroad the light of my gospel in a dark world, and, by your instructions and example, to direct sinners into the way of salvation. Take care therefore that your doctrine and conversation shine with such lustre and purity before all men wherever ye go, that by means thereof they, under the influence of divine grace, may be brought to esteem, acknowledge, and admire the great excellency of real religion, as displayed in you, and to embrace and practise it themselves, to the glory of your heavenly Father. 17, 18. Think not that I am come to abrogate the moral law, or to set aside the writings of the Old Testament, or to teach any thing contrary thereto. No, my great aim and work is to confirm them. I am come to explain, enforce, and establish the moral law, as an everlasting rule of righteousness, and to vindicate it from the injurious glosses which have been put upon it. I am come to fulfil all its precepts and its penalty, as a broken covenant, in the room of elect sinners; and, in so doing, to answer all the types, accomplish the prophecies and promises, and to fill up all the defects, of the Old Testament dispensation. For I assure you, in the most solemn manner, that no part of the typical ceremonies, or of the Old Testament predictions, shall be left unfulfilled, and no obligation of the moral law shall ever be set aside. And, as I myself will persevere in the most exact obedience till the last moment of my humbled life, so will I excite and enable my followers to persevere in their obedience till the end of the world. 19. Whoever therefore shall wilfully set aside and transgress even the least of these moral commands, or teach or encourage others to do so, shall be held unworthy to be a subject, and much more an officer, in the gospel church, or of admission into the heavenly glory: and he who, from a principle of faith and love, shall conscientiously respect all these commandments, and teach and encourage others to do so, shall be highly honoured among my subjects and servants. 20. I assure you that, unless ye be interested in my complete fulfilment of the law in your stead, and unless your personal conformity to the law be more excellent, spiritual, and extensive, than that of the highest Pharisaical pretenders to holiness, ye can never be admitted to the blessings of the kingdom of grace here, or of glory hereafter. 21, 22. For, to give you some specimens of their defective interpretations and observances of the moral law, they pretend that there is no disobedience to the ancient command prohibiting murder, and adjudging murderers to death, but in wilfully and unjustly taking away a man's life. But such is the spirituality and extent of this commandment, that whosoever indulges rash, wrathful, and causeless anger, or a malicious and revengeful temper, is, in God's account, guilty of murder in his heart, and thereby exposed to his righteous judgment: and whoever in pride and passion revile their neighbours, as worthless empty wretches, or as prophane reprobate brands of hell, involve themselves in still deeper guilt, and ought to be punished by men, but shall not escape the far more severe and everlasting vengeance of God. 23, 24. Never therefore presume to perform any act of religious worship, or to hope for its acceptance with God, while ye indulge yourselves in causeless and sinful anger, or in evil speaking; but, if ye have offended a brother, first humbly confess your fault, ask his pardon, and satisfy him for the wrong you have done him, and then present your devotions to God, in hopes of forgiveness and acceptance. 25, 26. And, as both God and your brother are jointly offended, without delay embrace the reconciliation which God offers you in his promises, and be reconciled to your offended brother while ye are in the way of mercy, lest death cut you off in your sins, and drag you to the tribunal of God, that ye may be condemned and cast into hell, from whence ye can never be released, since the satisfaction of divine justice for your sins can never be there completed. 27—30. The scribes and Pharisees pretend that nothing else is prohibited by the ancient commandment respecting adultery, but a man's actually lying with a woman who is not his wife. But I assure you that, according to the mind of God in this precept, every man who looks upon any woman with unchaste desires after her, and contrivances how to accomplish them, is guilty of adultery in his heart, though he has not had opportunity to commit it in fact: and therefore, if this, or any other sin, should be ever so dear, apparently pleasant, or profitable, to you, and though it should require great self-denial, and be very painful for you to part with it; yet, as the loving, harbouring, or practising it, would defile and endanger your soul, offend God, and expose you to his everlasting wrath, mortify, detest, and abhor it without delay: it is better to suffer the greatest uneasiness and temporal loss in so doing, than that your whole man

33 ¶ Again, ye have heard that it hath been said † by them of old time, 'Thou shalt not forswear thyself, but shalt per-form unto the Lord thine oaths:

34 But I say unto you, 'Swear not at all: neither by heaven, for it is God's throne;

35 Nor by the earth, for it is his foot-stool; neither by Jerusalem, for it is *the city of the great King.

36 Neither shalt thou swear by thy head, because thou canst not make one hair white or black.

37 ' But let your communication be, Yea, yea; Nay, nay: for whatsoever is more than these *cometh of evil.

38 ¶ Ye have heard that it hath been said, 'An eye for an eye and a tooth for a tooth:

should be eternally tormented in hell on account of your indulging and practis-ing it. 33—37. Your scribes and Pharisees pretend that the ancient com-mand relative to swearing prohibits only the breach of such oaths as are sworn by God himself, or the swearing by his name in ordinary conversation: but I assure you that it prohibits the swearing by any creature, and the violation of such oaths as are sworn by them, since God is represented in, and connected with, every creature ye can swear by. Do not therefore swear at all by crea-tures, or in common conversation, but merely affirm or deny things as they really are: for all other means to gain credit to what you say, in the common affairs of life, proceed from the devil and your own sinful habits or lusts, and imply that yourselves are unworthy to be believed, or that your hearers are unreasonably incredulous. 38—42. The ancient law, prescribed only for the direction of magistrates, in the retaliation of injuries done by their subjects one to another, is understood by your scribes and Pharisees as if it warranted private persons to indulge a malicious temper, and revenge themselves in law suits or otherwise: but I admonish and charge you never to avenge yourselves by ren-dering evil for evil; and, in lesser matters, bear even repeated affronts and inju-ries with patience, rather than retaliate in a contentious, revengeful, and furious manner:—and, as far as ye can without embarrassing your own worldly circum-stances, be always ready, by giving or lending, to relieve the necessities of others, especially if they humbly apply to you for help. 43—48. Your scribes and Pharisees have further pretended that the ancient law of loving your neighbours warrants you to hate all those who are not of your kindred and reli-gion: but, though ye ought never to approve the wickedness of your enemies, I solemnly charge you to love their persons as partakers of the same human nature with yourselves, speak good of them as far as ye justly can, and heartily wish them all temporal and eternal happiness; take all opportunities of doing good to them, and earnestly pray for their conversion and salvation, who hate, curse, despitefully use, and persecute you, that ye may appear the genuine children of that God, and perfectly conform to his image, who is so graciously liberal of his providential favours, even to his wicked and unreasonable enemies of mankind: for if ye only love them who are affectionate and kind to you, or be friendly to those of your own kindred, religion, or party, what peculiar excel-lency is in that conduct, or what gracious reward can ye expect for it? It is no

46 'For, if ye love them which love you, what reward have ye? do not even the *publicans the same?

47 And 'if ye salute your brethren only, what do you more than others? do not even the publicans so?

48 ¶ 'Be ye therefore perfect, even as your Father which is in heaven is perfect.

CHAP. VI.

Having cautioned his hearers against the Pharisees' loose exposi-tions of God's law, he here gives warning against their reigning corruptions in practice; particularly, (1) Hypocrisy and vain glory in giving of alms; 1—4: in prayer; 5—8: and teaches what to pray for and how; 9—13: especially in a spirit of for-giveness; 14, 15: and in fasting; 16—18. (2) Against worldly-mindedness—in the choice of their portion and master, as that would ruin them; 19—24: or, in their cares, as that would dis-honour God and disquiet their minds; 25—34.

TAKE heed that ye do not your *alms before men, to be seen of them: otherwise ye have no reward *of your Father which is in heaven.

2 Therefore 'when thou dost thine alms, 'do not sound a trumpet before thee, as the hypocrites do, in the syna-gogues, and in the streets, that they may have glory of men. Verily I say unto you, they have 'their reward.

3 But, when thou dost alms, let not thy left hand know what thy right hand doth:

4 'That thine alms may be in secret and thy Father, who 'seeth in secret, himself shall reward thee *openly.

5 ¶ And, 'when thou prayest, thou shalt not be as the hypocrites are: for they love to pray standing in the syna-gogues, and in the corners of the streets, that they may be seen of men. Verily I say unto you, they have their reward.

6 But thou, when thou prayest, 'enter into thy closet; and, when thou hast shut thy door, pray to thy Father who is in secret, and thy Father, who seeth in secret, *shall reward thee openly.

more than even the worst of men think themselves obliged to, by the common ties of gratitude, nature, or society. Study therefore to have your principles and behaviour greatly superior to all this, and rising to the highest resemblance of your heavenly Father, whose tender mercies are over all his works, in the displays of his goodness and all his other moral perfections.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. V.—Carnal men have very mistaken views of real happiness: it is vain to expect it without being made truly holy. But what a rich variety of blessings the gospel provides for the followers of Christ, under their numerous sorrows, persecutions, reproaches, fears and dangers, to animate and encourage their holy desires, faith and hope, meekness and patience, humi-lity, love, self-denial, peace, and joy. And marvellous is their happiness in the full enjoyment of God! Delightful are the hints of gospel grace given by our Saviour, which were to be more clearly manifested after his ascension to heaven. And great glory to God, honour to themselves, and profit to their neighbours, do professors, and especially ministers, bring forth when they act in due charac-ter. How indispensable and broad, how holy, just, and good, are all the com-mandments and oracles of God! And great is his grace, and excellent his right-eousness, who magnified and made them honourable in the room of guilty men. It is highly necessary to be clothed with his righteousness, endowed with his grace, and conformed to his pattern, in every good word or work. But base is their temper, criminal their conduct, and fearful their danger, who attempt to relax the obligation, or contract the obedience, of God's law. And it is impos-sible to have fellowship with him, or have our services accepted by him, while we indulge hatred of brethren, or any other sinful lust. Yea, great reverence of God, and his name and ordinances; great chastity and purity of heart and life; universal mortification of indwelling lusts, and dominion over our appetites and passions; a sacred guard upon our speech; and forbearance under injuries; a diffusive beneficence to mankind, and imitation of our heavenly Father; are necessary to manifest us Christians indeed! Are these, my soul, the laws of the great God my Saviour, and I so unlike them? Are these the laws by which I shall quickly be judged, and do I so little regard them? Let these considera-tions quicken my soul, and animate me to more serious attention and exact conformity.

7 But when ye pray use not vain repetitions, as the heathen do; for they think that they shall be heard for their much speaking.

8 Be not ye therefore like unto them: for your Father knoweth what things ye have need of before ye ask him.

9 After this manner therefore pray ye: "Our Father who art in heaven, 'Hallowed be thy name.

10 'Thy kingdom come. 'Thy will be done in earth as it is in heaven.

11 'Give us this day our daily bread.

12 'And forgive us our debts, as we forgive our debtors.

13 'And lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil, "For thine is the kingdom, and the power, and the glory, for ever. Amen.

14 ¶ "For, if ye forgive men their trespasses, your heavenly Father will also forgive you:

15 But, if ye forgive not men their trespasses, neither will your Father forgive your trespasses.

16 ¶ Moreover, "when ye fast, be not as the hypocrites, of a sad countenance: for they disfigure their faces, that they may appear unto men to fast. Verily I say unto you, they have their reward.

17 But thou, when thou fastest, "anoint thine head and wash thy face;

18 That thou appear not unto men to fast, but unto thy Father who is in secret: and thy Father, who "seeth in secret, shall reward thee openly.

19 ¶ "Lay not up for yourselves treasures upon earth, where moth and rust doth corrupt, and where thieves break through and steal:

20 "But lay up for yourselves treasures in heaven, where neither moth nor rust doth corrupt, and where thieves do not break through nor steal:

21 "For where your treasure is there will your heart be also.

22 ¶ "The light of the body is the eye: if therefore thine eye be single, thy whole body shall be full of light.

23 But, if "thine eye be evil, thy whole body shall be full of darkness. If therefore the light that is in thee be darkness, "how great is that darkness!

24 ¶ "No man can serve two masters: for either he will hate the one and love the other; or else he will hold to the one and despise the other. Ye cannot serve God and "mammon.

25 Therefore I say unto you, "Take no thought for your life, what ye shall eat, or what ye shall drink; nor yet for your body, what ye shall put on. Is not the life more than meat, and the body than raiment?

26 "Behold the fowls of the air: for they sow not, neither do they reap nor gather into barns; yet your heavenly Father feedeth them. Are ye not much better than they?

27 "Which of you by taking thought can add one cubit unto his "stature?

28 And "why take ye thought for raiment? Consider the lilies of the field, how they grow; they toil not, neither do they spin:

29 And yet I say unto you, that even "Solomon in all his glory was not arrayed like one of these.

30 Wherefore, if God so clothe the grass of the field, "which to day is and to-morrow is cast into the oven, shall he not much more clothe you, O ye "of little faith?

31 Therefore take no thought, saying, What shall we eat? or what shall we drink? or wherewithal shall we be clothed?

CHAP. VI. Ver. 7, 8. Though in prayer ye may very properly repeat some important and affecting terms to express the fervent requests of your hearts, and, on some occasions, enlarge your supplications or thanksgivings; yet never multiply words merely to spin out your prayers, or as if ye were praying to heathen idols, which are inattentive, unable, or unwilling, to understand or answer your requests; for your heavenly Father, who loves you, and takes pleasure in blessing you, is thoroughly acquainted with all your wants and desires. 9—13. Therefore, drawing near to him with reverence and confidence, as children to a Father, infinitely kind and exalted, able and ready to help you and others around you, and acknowledging your own unworthiness, weakness, sinfulness, wants, and dangers, entreat and plead that he would, by his grace, enable you and others to glorify him in all things, whereby he makes himself known; and that he would dispose all things in the church and world to his own glory; that Satan's dominion in the world and the hearts of men may be destroyed, and the kingdom of grace set up in the gospel dispensation, and daily advanced, by the bringing of multitudes into the church and into a state of real fellowship with Christ, preserving them therein, and increasing their knowledge, comfort, and holiness, till at length they be admitted to an eternal triumph in the kingdom of glory: that, by his grace, ye and others may be enabled to know, obey, and submit to his will in all things, as glorified saints and holy angels do in heaven: and that of his free gift, even in the most perilous times, ye may receive a competent portion of the good things of this life, and his blessing with them; and that, for Christ's sake, he may freely pardon all your sins of omission and commission in heart and life, by which ye have forfeited all enjoyments, and owe a debt of satisfaction to his injured law and justice, especially as his mercy is so infinitely superior to your's, whom, by his grace, he has enabled from the heart to forgive the injuries done to you: and that he would either keep you from being tempted to sin, or support and deliver you when ye are tempted. And take all your encouragement in prayer from God's own perfections, characters, and promises, and in all your prayers praise him for what he is, what he has done, is doing, or will do: and let both prayers and praises be offered up with earnest desire, and in full assurance of being acceptably regarded. 14, 15. And remember that your hearty forgiving of injuries done you is of inexpressible importance in your supplications; for, if God's grace enable you to do this, it is a certain evidence of your being his children, whose iniquities he is engaged, by covenant and promise, to pardon: but, if ye indulge an implacable and revengeful temper, which makes you averse to forgive injuries done against you, your prayers for pardon are a contradiction to the design of the gospel, and a mocking of God, and ye in vain expect that he will be merciful in pardoning your infinitely greater provocations against himself. 16—18. When ye keep a private fast, on a religious account, never affect to make it known to the world around you, by demure looks, disfigured faces, or slovenly airs, that ye may be extolled as wonderfully pious and mortified men. But, instead thereof, conceal your work as much as ye can from the world, and let it lie between God and your soul, in great searchings of heart, ingenuous confessions of sin, deep contrition and humiliation for it, and in serious meditation and solemn prayer. Then shall your all-seeing heavenly Father publicly own and bless you in this world and in that which is to come. 19—24. Never let your chief care and pains be exerted in getting and hoarding up earthly treasures, which are so perishing and apt to be lost, or even to endanger your lives; but chiefly esteem and labour to enjoy the favour of God, the graces of his Spirit, and the complete enjoyment of him hereafter, which are heavenly treasures that can neither perish nor be taken from you. For whatever you reckon your chief treasure will command your thoughts and affections, aims and pursuits; and ye will be either earthly or heavenly minded, and all your happiness either mean and perishing, or great and everlasting, according as earthly or heavenly things are the chief good in your account. Ye have therefore great need of a true spiritual judgment in making your choice; for if, the heart being weaned from this world, your mind has a right and clear discerning of the excellency of spiritual things, all the other faculties of your soul will be well directed in their pursuits after them. But if, through an inordinate affection to the world, your mind be blind or biassed with respect to spiritual things, the other faculties of your soul will, to your inexpressible hurt, be misguided and perverted by it: and remember that as no man can, at one and the same time, heartily, truly, and perseveringly, serve two masters of contrary tempers, commands, and interests, no more can your hearts and lives be at once devoted to the service of God, and seeking after the riches, gains, and treasures of this world. 25—30. Never be anxiously or distrustfully careful about the necessities or conveniences of this present life; but, in the way of dutiful diligence in your callings, quietly depend upon God for what he, in his infinite wisdom, sees best for you: for if, without your care, he gave you your life and being, which are more valuable, why not trust him for whatever is necessary to support them in his service? Will your heavenly Father, who, without their anxious care or labour, provides necessary food for the fowls of the air, ever neglect to provide for you, his dear children and redeemed servants? And, when all your anxious care cannot add to the height of your body or the length of your life, why should ye not entirely rely on the all-giving and all-governing providence of God to nourish and preserve them? And, with respect to your raiment, if God so protect and gloriously adorn the flowers of the field, which are so quickly to wither and be burnt, what a shameful weakness of faith it betrays in you to doubt of his providing proper raiment for you, who are made and redeemed for infinitely more noble and lasting purposes? 31—34. Never therefore, as if ye were mere heathens, be distracted and torn to pieces with anxious cares about your food, raiment, or other temporal enjoyments; but quietly and firmly depend on your heavenly Father, who knows your necessities, and has given you his promises that he will supply you with every thing truly good and useful. And let it be your first and principal concern to mind what pertains to the glory of God and the eternal salvation of your own souls, as set before you in the gospel: seek, without delay, all the

CHAP. VII.

In this latter part of his sermon, our Saviour (1) Prescribes rules concerning censures and reproofs; 1—6. (2) Encourages to pray to God for whatever we need; 7—11. (3) Urges strict honesty in our dealings with men, and earnestness in religion towards God; 12—14. (4) Warns against countenancing false teachers; 15—20. (5) Represents the necessity of universal obedience to God's law, built upon union to himself as our foundation, who is in us the hope of glory; 21—27. After which we have the impression made by his discourse on his hearers; 28, 29.

JUDGE *not, that ye be not judged. 2 * For with what judgment ye judge ye shall be judged: and with what measure ye mete it shall be measured to you again.

3 * And why beholdest thou the mote that is in thy brother's eye, but considerest not the beam that is in thine own eye?

4 * Or how wilt thou say to thy brother, Let me pull out the *mote out of thine eye; and, behold, a †beam is in thine own eye?

5 Thou hypocrite, first cast out the beam out of thine own eye; and then shalt thou see clearly to cast out the mote out of thy brother's eye.

6 ¶ *Give not that which is holy unto the dogs, neither cast ye your pearls before swine, lest they trample them under their feet, and turn again and rend you.

7 ¶ *Ask, and it shall be given you: seek, and ye shall find: knock, and it shall be opened unto you:

rich advantages of his kingdom of grace and glory; seek that imputed righteousness, by which ye are entitled to the same, and that implanted grace and holiness of conversation which qualifies you for the enjoyment of the eternal blessedness in heaven; and then ye may safely trust God to provide for you the necessities of life. Be therefore content with such things as ye have, and never distress your minds with fears about future wants and troubles in this world. For God has promised that as your days are, so your strength shall be: and ye will always find enough of present trouble to exercise all the grace ye have at the time.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. VI.—Alas what a general and powerful evil is pride! Fearfully it spreads into and corrupts men's actions, even those which are good in themselves. But no religious exercise can be truly sincere and acceptable to God that does not flow from union to and regeneration by Christ. Without sanctified and upright hearts, bodily service will profit nothing, but to procure men's empty applause. And in all our prayers we must view God as our Father in Christ, and prefer the concerns of his glory to our own comforts. Never must we draw our encouragement in prayer from any thing but from God himself: and never must we pray under the power of malice, hatred or envy of our neighbour; nor give our alms, pray, or fast, but with a view to his glory as our chief end. Insignificant, perishing, and uncertain, are all the advantages of this world, when compared with the great, the solemn, and eternal realities of the heavenly inheritance. Surely then it is highly absurd to be eager in our contrivances and labours, hopes and fears, wishes and cares about them, while we are so indolent and unmoved about the things of God. If we are interested in Jesus' kingdom and righteousness, it is very unbecoming to distrust our divine Father, and torment ourselves with anxious cares about the necessities of life. Will the God, who largely sheds his bounty on fowls, on flowers, deny what is necessary to his redeemed children, to whom he has given his Son—given himself?

CHAP. VII. Ver. 1, 2. Never be rash, unmerciful, or severe, in suspecting, judging, or censuring, the conduct, designs, and especially the eternal state of others, lest ye provoke them to be as severe against you, and even provoke God to pass judgment without mercy upon you: for in the same manner that ye deal with others in judging them ye must expect to be dealt with by them, and especially by God in the last judgment. 3—5. And how unreasonable and unrighteous is it for any of you readily to spy every little fault in your neighbour, and aggravate it with severity, while ye take no notice of, or even excuse, x-tenuate, and indulge much greater crimes in yourselves? or with what face, 8 For every one that asketh receiveth; and he that seeketh findeth; and to him that knocketh it shall be opened.

9 Or what man is there of you whom, if his son ask bread, will he give him a stone?

10 Or, if he ask a fish, will he give him a serpent?

11 If ye then, being *evil, know how to give good gifts unto your children, how much more shall your Father which is in heaven give good things to them that ask him?

12 * Therefore all things, whatsoever ye would that men should do to you, do ye even so to them: for this is the law and the prophets.

13 ¶ *Enter ye in at the strait gate: for wide is the gate, and broad is the way, that leadeth to destruction, and many there be which go in thereat:

14 † Because strait is the gate, and narrow is the way, which leadeth unto life, and few there be that find it.

15 ¶ *Beware of false prophets, who come to you in sheep's clothing, but inwardly they are ravening wolves.

16 *Ye shall know them by their fruits. Do men gather grapes of thorns, or figs of thistles?

17 Even so every good tree bringeth forth good fruit: but a corrupt tree bringeth forth evil fruit.

18 A good tree cannot bring forth evil fruit; neither can a corrupt tree bring forth good fruit.

19 *Every tree that bringeth not forth good fruit is hewn down, and cast into the fire.

20 Wherefore by their fruits ye shall know them.

or to what purpose, would ye offer to condemn, correct, or reprove your brother for lesser sins, while your own heart and life are corrupted, and your judgment blinded, with much more heinous crimes? What is this but the grossest hypocrisy, under pretence of zeal against sin? If therefore ye would be able with judgment and conscience, with decency, authority, and success, to reprove and reform others, begin with reforming yourselves. 6. And never unseasonably throw away the best counsels and reproofs, any more than the seals of God's covenant, upon hardened, profane, and incorrigible sinners, who will pour contempt upon them, and outrageously hate and persecute you on account of them. 7, 8. But, in order to qualify you for these and all other duties, be much employed in fervent, importunate, and persevering prayer, for direction and assistance: thus shall you receive from God your heavenly Father whatever blessings he has promised. 9—11. For if none of you however wicked or hard-hearted, would give a needy and importunate child that which is useless or destructive, how is it possible that your infinitely gracious God and Father can withhold what is good and needful from his fervently supplicant children? 12. And if God be so incomparably gracious to you, see that, in all your dealings with men, ye act in the same upright, just, and kind manner, as ye would reasonably wish them to act towards you, if they were in your circumstances and you in their's. 13, 14. And if you would be holy and happy members of my kingdom of grace or glory, ye must enter in at the strait gate of regeneration, faith, and repentance, however self-humbling and self-denying it be: for, as the entrance into or progress in sin and self-seeking, which leads to everlasting misery, is agreeable to the corrupt inclinations of men, multitudes follow after it to their eternal perdition: but the entrance into my kingdom by the new birth being painful and difficult, and the way of true gospel holiness, which leads to everlasting life, being disagreeable to flesh and sense, and beset with manifold tribulations, there are few that enter into and persevere in it. 15—20. Beware of false teachers, who pretend to lead you by an easy and wide path to everlasting happiness, and who, under a mask of sanctity, meekness, and concern for your welfare, remain under the power of their own lusts, and labour to make a prey of you to their own carnal ends and your everlasting destruction. By the evil tendency and influence of their doctrine, and by the pride, covetousness, or sensuality of their practice, ye may discern them from my faithful servants. For, according as men's inward and reigning principles are good or bad, such are, and must be, their designs and actions: and, however fair men's professions and appearances be, yet, if their inward principle of action are unsound, their doctrines erroneous, and their lives immoral, they are but plagues to the church, and shall, in the righteous judgment of God, be cut down by death and cast into everlasting burnings. 21—23. It is not even the highest profession kingdom of heaven: but he that doth the will of my Father who is in heaven.

22 Many will say to me in that day, Lord, Lord, have we not prophesied in thy name? and in thy name have cast out devils? and in thy name done many wonderful works?

23 And then will I profess unto them, I never knew you: depart from me, ye that work iniquity.

24 ¶ Therefore, whosoever heareth these sayings of mine, and doth them, I will liken him unto a wise man who built his house upon a rock:

25 And the rain descended, and the floods came, and the winds blew, and beat upon that house, and it fell not; for it was founded upon a rock.

26 And every one that heareth these sayings of mine, and doth them not, shall be likened unto a foolish man, who built his house upon the sand:

27 And the rain descended, and the floods came, and the winds blew, and beat upon that house; and it fell; and great was the fall of it.

28 And it came to pass, when Jesus had ended these sayings, the people were astonished at his doctrine:

29 For he taught them as one having authority and not as the scribes.

CHAP. VIII.

Having already had a general view of Christ's work and doctrine, we now begin to receive particular instances of it. Here (1) He cleanses a leper by a word, and forbids him to divulge it; 1—4. (2) Heals the centurion's palsied servant at a distance, and extols his master's faith; 5—13. (3) Heals Peter's mother-in-law of a fever, and many others; 14—18. (4) Discourages carnal and time-serving following of him; 19—22. (5) Stills a terrible storm by a word; 23—27. (6) Dislodges a multitude of devils from two madmen, and permits them to enter into and drown, two thousand swine; 28—34.

WHEN he was come down from the mountain great multitudes followed him.

2 And, behold, there came a leper and worshipped him, saying, Lord, if thou wilt, thou canst make me clean.

3 And Jesus put forth his hand, and touched him, saying, I will; be thou clean. And immediately his leprosy was cleansed.

4 And Jesus saith unto him, See thou tell no man; but go thy way, shew thyself to the priest, and offer the gift that Moses commanded, for a testimony unto them.

John 10. 37.

of regard to me as their Lord and Master, or a seeming fervency in calling on my name, that can manifest men real subjects in my kingdom of grace, or heirs of my kingdom of glory, but a cordial faith in my person and character, and unfeigned obedience to my heavenly Father's commands. In that awful day, in which I will judge the quick and the dead, many, who have preached as my ministers, and even wrought miracles in my name, shall have their hypocrisy and wickedness publicly exposed; and shall, as objects of my detestation, be, for their iniquities, banished from my blissful presence into everlasting misery. 24—27. Whoever therefore hears, seriously considers, embraces by faith and love, and acts according to, the doctrines which I have been delivering, shall have my unchangeable person and character for his foundation; and, whatever temptations and persecutions, doubts, fears, and dangers, may assault him in life or in death, his hope in me shall never make him ashamed. But he that hears them, without cordially believing and uprightly practising them, having nothing to support him in a time of temptation, danger, death, or judgment, but his empty hypocritical profession of religion, shall, to his dreadful disappointment, inevitably and miserably perish for ever. 29. He spake with surprising majesty and authority, and with an evidence of truth and importance, which could not be contradicted.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. VII.—All our religion should begin at home; and, instead of being uncharitably severe in censuring others, we should carefully look into our own hearts and ways, observe and condemn what is amiss in ourselves, and, through grace, labour to reform it. Let us then take heed, not only how, but also to whom, we give good counsels and reproves. With earnestness faith, and resignation, let us always address our heavenly Father for every necessary blessing: and let Jesus' law of honesty and kindness be the constant rule of all our conduct. It is a great blessing to the place, where

5 ¶ And when Jesus was entered into Capernaum, there came unto him a centurion, beseeching him,

6 And saying, Lord, my servant lieth at home sick of the palsy, grievously tormented.

7 And Jesus saith unto him, I will come and heal him.

8 The centurion answered and said, Lord, I am not worthy that thou shouldest come under my roof: but speak the word only, and my servant shall be healed.

9 For I am a man under authority, having soldiers under me: and I say to this man, Go, and he goeth: and to another, Come, and he cometh: and to my servant, Do this, and he doth it.

10 When Jesus heard it he marvelled, and said to them that followed, Verily I say unto you, I have not found so great faith, no, not in Israel.

11 And I say unto you, That many shall come from the east and west, and shall sit down with Abraham, and Isaac, and Jacob, in the kingdom of heaven:

12 But the children of the kingdom shall be cast out into outer darkness; there shall be weeping and gnashing of teeth.

13 And Jesus said unto the centurion, Go thy way: and, as thou hast believed, so be it done unto thee. And his servant was healed the self-same hour.

14 ¶ And, when Jesus was come into Peter's house, he saw his wife's mother laid, and sick of a fever.

15 And he touched her hand, and the fever left her: and she arose and ministered unto them.

16 ¶ When the even was come they brought unto him many that were possessed with devils; and he cast out the spirits with his word, and healed all that were sick:

17 That it might be fulfilled which was spoken by Esaias the prophet, saying, Himself took our infirmities, and bare our sicknesses.

18 ¶ Now, when Jesus saw great multitudes about him, he gave commandment to depart unto the other side.

19 And a certain scribe came and said unto him, Master, I will follow thee whithersoever thou goest.

Christianity is duly possessed and practised. But there is an indispensable necessity of heart-renewing grace, and of implanted principles of holiness, before our practice can be really good. The work of conversion is hard, but necessary. And there is need carefully to try those whom we receive as ambassadors of Christ, both with respect to the nature and tendency of their doctrine. What alarming lengths may men go in the church of Christ, and yet, being destitute of real holiness, eternally perish! We should dread the thoughts of following the multitude, lest we follow them to hell; or of building our hopes of happiness upon insufficient grounds, lest they fail us, to our final and aggravated destruction. Let nothing therefore short of an assured faith on the Son of God, attended with gospel holiness in all manner of conversation, satisfy us.

CHAP. VIII. Ver. 4. Christ often required the Jews, who were healed, to conceal his miracles, that he might manifest that he sought not his own glory; that he might not confound them with too great a blaze of miraculous power; and that he might not provoke his enemies too eagerly to attempt his ruin; but (perhaps as a token of his extending the gospel dispensation to the Gentiles) he never prohibited a Gentile to divulge them. 9. If I, a poor inferior officer, have such power over my soldiers, how much more canst thou, the Almighty Messiah, at thy pleasure, remove this distemper from my servant, where and whenever thou wilt? 10—12. Publicly declaring the wonderful strength of the Gentile centurion's faith he intimated that it forboded the gathering of multitudes of Gentiles from all quarters of the world into the gospel church, and new covenant state of grace and glory, as spiritual children of the ancient patriarchs; while their Jewish natural posterity who had been so long the peculiar people of God, should be cast off into lasting miseries on earth and eternal torments in hell. 17. His sympathy with the distressed was a part of his suffering; and his removal of the diseases was the fruit of his bearing our sins, and the punish-

20 And Jesus saith unto him, The foxes have holes, and the birds of the air have nests; but the Son of man hath not where to lay his head.

21 And another of his disciples said unto him, Lord, suffer me first to go and bury my father.

22 But Jesus said unto him, Follow me, and let the dead bury their dead.

23 ¶ And when he was entered into a ship his disciples followed him.

24 And, behold, there arose a great tempest in the sea, insomuch that the ship was covered with the waves: but he was asleep.

25 And his disciples came to him, and awoke him, saying, Lord, save us: we perish.

26 And he saith unto them, Why are ye fearful, O ye of little faith? Then he arose and rebuked the winds and the sea; and there was a great calm.

27 But the men marvelled, saying, What manner of man is this, that even the winds and the sea obey him!

28 ¶ And when he was come to the other side, into the country of the Gergesenes, there met him two possessed with devils coming out of the tombs exceeding fierce, so that no man might pass by that way.

29 And, behold, they cried out, saying, What have we to do with thee, Jesus thou Son of God? art thou come hither to torment us before the time?

30 And there was a good way off from them an herd of many swine feeding.

31 So the devils besought him, saying, If thou cast us out, suffer us to go away into the herd of swine.

32 And he said unto them, Go. And, when they were come out, they went into the herd of swine: and, behold, the whole herd of swine ran violently down a steep place into the sea, and perished in the waters.

33 And they that kept them fled, and went their ways into the city, and told every thing; and what was befallen to the possessed of the devils.

34 And, behold, the whole city came out to meet Jesus: and, when they saw him, they besought him that he would depart out of their coasts.

CHAP. IX

Represents Jesus' power and pity with respect (1) To the bodies of men in curing a palsy, to the grief of his enemies; 1—8: healing a bloody issue, and raising to life Jairus's daughter; 18—26: giving two blind men their sight; 27—31: casting out a dumb devil, for which he is blasphemed; 32—34: healing all manner of diseases; 35. (2) To men's souls, in forgiving sins; 2: calling Matthew, and conversing freely with publicans and sinners; 9—13: regulating the occasion of his disciples' fasting as they could bear it; 14—17: preaching to multitudes, and compassionately directing how to obtain preachers for them; 35—38.

AND he entered into a ship, and passed over, and came into his own city.

2 And, behold, they brought to him a man sick of the palsy, lying on a bed: and Jesus, seeing their faith, said unto the sick of the palsy, Son, be of good cheer, thy sins be forgiven thee.

3 And, behold, certain of the scribes said within themselves, This man blasphemeth.

4 And Jesus, knowing their thoughts, said, Wherefore think ye evil in your hearts?

5 For whether is easier to say, Thy sins be forgiven thee; or to say, Arise and walk?

6 But, that ye may know that the Son of man hath power on earth to forgive sins, (then saith he to the sick of the palsy), Arise, take up thy bed, and go unto thine house.

7 And he arose, and departed to his house.

8 But when the multitude saw it they marvelled, and glorified God, who had given such power unto men.

9 ¶ And as Jesus passed forth from thence he saw a man named Matthew, sitting at the receipt of custom: and he saith unto him, Follow me. And he arose, and followed him.

10 ¶ And it came to pass, as Jesus sat at meat in the house, behold, many publicans and sinners came, and sat down with him and his disciples.

11 And when the Pharisees saw it they said unto his disciples, Why eateth your Master with publicans and sinners?

12 But when Jesus heard that he said unto them, They that be whole need not a physician, but they that are sick.

13 But go ye and learn what that meaneth, I will have mercy and not sacrifice: for I am not come to call the righteous, but sinners, to repentance.

14 ¶ Then came to him the disciples of John, saying, Why do we and the Pharisees fast often, but thy disciples fast not?

15 And Jesus said unto them, Can the children of the bridechamber mourn as long as the bridegroom is with them? but the days will come when the bridegroom shall be taken from them, and then shall they fast.

Christ. For if such be our temper, we shall be excluded from the joys of heaven, and cast into all the darkness and horrors of hell! Base are their hearts who form excuses to keep them from his service, and who prefer their swine, their sordid gains and traffic, to him. But it is the truest wisdom, in all our sorrows, our fears, and our dangers, to apply to him, as able and willing to save us. And never shall such meet with a disappointment.

CHAP. IX. Ver. 5. Is it not as easy to remove the sinful cause as to remove the punishment? 12, 13. It is only they who are plagued with the guilt and corruption of sin that need the Physician of souls; and, the more sensible they are of their sinfulness and guilt, there is the more hope of doing them good.—God has declared that acts of compassion to others, and especially to their souls, in turning them from their sins, is more acceptable to him than the most costly observance of his own positive institutions. I am come into the world to reform and save, not righteous persons, but guilty and polluted sinners, even the chief; and that by convincing them of their sinfulness and danger, and their ment of them. 20. You must expect no worldly advantage by following me, who have not so much as any abode of my own to lodge in. 22. Better the dead should be unburied, or that sinners, dead in trespasses and sins, should bury them, than that my infinitely more important work should be hindered. 32. By this Jesus gave a sensible proof of the existence of evil spirits against the Sadducees, of the reality of the possession, and of the mercy of the dislodgment; and also punished the Jews for bringing up herds of swine.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. VIII.—How great is our Redeemer, who could make diseases, storms, and devils, obey him at pleasure! But marvellous was his debasement for our sakes, and tender his sympathy and compassion; and he now takes the greatest delight in the strength of faith, and in the gathering of the Gentiles to himself. But (awful thought!) our calling is balanced with the tremendous and lasting rejection of the long favourite people of God! Let us then not be high minded, but fear! Let us never take up with external privileges in the church, nor aim at any secular advantages in our following of 16 *No man putteth a piece of *new cloth unto an old garment: for that which is put in to fill it up taketh from the garment, and the rent is made worse.

17 Neither do men put new wine into old bottles: else the bottles break, and the wine runneth out, and the bottles perish: but they put new wine into new bottles, and both are preserved.

18 ¶ While he spake these things unto them, behold, there came a certain ruler, and worshipped him, saying, My daughter is even now dead: ^bbut come and lay thy hand upon her, and she shall live.

19 And ^cJesus arose, and followed him, and so did his disciples.

20 ¶ And, behold a woman, who was diseased with an ^dissue of blood twelve years, came behind him, and ^etouched the hem of his garment:

21 For she said within herself, If I may but touch his garment I shall be whole.

22 But Jesus turned him about, and when he saw her he said, ^fDaughter, be of good comfort, thy faith hath made thee whole. And the woman was made whole from that hour.

23 ¶ And when Jesus came into the ruler's house, and saw ^gthe minstrels and the people making a noise.

24 He said unto them, ^hGive place; for the maid is not dead, but sleepeth. And they laughed him to scorn.

25 But when the people ⁱwere put forth, he went in, and took her by the hand; and the maid arose.

26 And ^jthe ^kfame hereof went abroad into all that land.

27 ¶ And when Jesus departed thence two blind men followed him, ^lcrying, and saying, Thou son of David, have mercy on us.

28 And when he was come into the house the blind men came to him: and Jesus saith unto them, ^mBelieve ye that I am able to do this? They said unto him, Yea, Lord.

29 Then touched he their eyes, saying, ⁿAccording to your faith be it unto you.

30 ^oAnd their eyes were opened; and Jesus ^pstraitly charged them, saying, See that no man know it.

31 But they, when they were departed, spread abroad his fame in all that country.

32 ¶ As they went out, behold, they brought to him a dumb man possessed with a devil.

need of righteousness and grace. 15—17. Since, as your master John hath testified, I am the Bridegroom of the church, and consequently my disciples guests of the marriage feast, who are to rejoice with me, it would be very absurd for them to practise abstemious and mournful severities while I am with them. But, when I shall be taken from them by my death and ascension, the hardships and dangers to which they shall be exposed will render fasting and mourning seasonable for them. Such occasional duties must be proportioned to the circumstances of persons and things, otherwise they do more harm than good; and are rather attempts towards a legal and Pharisaical righteousness than any part of real religion.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. IX.—Quickly Jesus leaves them in wrath who would drive him from them; and readily relieves the wants of those who seek to him. But how manifest is his supreme God-head:—he knows men's secret thoughts, forgives their sins, heals their souls, removes palsies, unstops the ears of the deaf, opens the eyes of the blind, looses the tongue of the dumb, heals all manner of diseases, casts out devils, and raises the dead, with all the sovereignty, wisdom, and grace, the majesty and authority, of a God! Nothing is too hard, and nothing too great or good, for him to effect. None that apply to him for 33 And when the devil was cast out the dumb spake, and the multitudes marvelled, saying, ^rIt was never so seen in Israel.

34 But the Pharisees said, ^sHe casteth out devils through the prince of the devils.

35 ^tAnd Jesus went about all the cities and villages, teaching in their synagogues, and preaching the gospel of the kingdom, and healing every sickness, and every disease, among the people.

36 ¶ But when he saw the multitudes he was moved with compassion on them, because they ^ufainted, and were scattered abroad, ^vas sheep having no shepherd.

37 Then saith he unto his disciples, ^wThe harvest truly is plenteous, but the labourers are few:

38 ^xPray ye therefore the ^yLord of the harvest, that he would send forth labourers into his harvest.

CHAP. X.

Represents Jesus' appointment of his twelve disciples to labour with him in teaching the ignorant and healing the diseased multitudes; 1—4. (2) His instructions what they were to do, and to whom; how they must behave themselves, and in what method they must proceed; 5—15: what they should suffer, and from whom, and how to behave under it; 16—39. (3) His encouragement of them in their work, that they should be assisted and rewarded; 19, 20, 22, 32, 39: and that the rejectors of them should be severely punished and the receivers gloriously rewarded; 15, 40—42.

AND, ^awhen he had called unto him his twelve disciples, he gave them power ^bagainst unclean spirits, to ^ccast them out, and to heal all manner of sickness, and all manner of disease.

2 Now ^dthe names of the twelve apostles are these: The first, Simon, who is called Peter, and Andrew his brother; James the son of Zebedee, and John his brother;

3 ^ePhilip, and Bartholomew; Thomas, and Matthew the publican; ^fJames the son of Alphaeus, and Lebbeus, whose surname was ^gThaddeus;

4 Simon ^hthe Canaanite, and ⁱJudas Iscariot, who also betrayed him.

5 ¶ These twelve Jesus sent forth, and commanded them, saying, ^jGo not into the way of the Gentiles, and into any city of the Samaritans enter ye not:

6 ^kBut go rather to the lost sheep of the house of Israel.

7 And as ye go ^lpreach, saying, The kingdom of heaven is at hand.

8 Heal the sick, cleanse the lepers, raise relief, whether high or low, whether more or less wicked, are ever cast out. To sanctify and save the most notorious sinners is his peculiar delight. Tenderly he suits the duties of his disciples to their circumstances and strength, and vindicates them when they cannot answer for themselves. The stronger our faith in him is, the more profitable is it to ourselves, as well as honourable to him. And, the more of fervent prayer and the less of carnal contrivances are employed for a gospel ministry, the more faithful and successful it is likely to prove. Let me therefore, in every distress, however desperate, employ him as my helper and healer. Let me never scoff at his words, never envy him his honours, nor his people the liberties and privileges which he bestows upon them. Let me never imagine that my importunity can trouble him, or my sins debar me from him as a Saviour. Let neither shame nor death keep me from him. And, if my poverty be deep, and my case deplorable, let my faith be the stronger; so shall my deliverance be glorious. Let me admire his mighty works, glorify God on their account, and obey his calls to work or warfare; but never manifest my emptiness by boasting of my external devotions. And, while I follow Jesus myself, let me study to bring all my friends into acquaintance with him, and labour to have the whole earth filled with his glory.

the dead, cast out devils: freely ye have received, freely give.

9^m Provide neither gold, nor silver, nor brass, in your purses;

10 Nor scrip for your journey; neither two coats, neither shoes, nor yet staves: ⁿfor the workman is worthy of his meat.

11 And, into whatsoever city or town ye shall enter, inquire who in it is worthy; and there abide till ye go thence.

12 And when ye come into an house salute it.

13 ^aAnd, if the house be worthy, let your peace come upon it: but, if it be not worthy, let your peace return to you.

14 ^rAnd whosoever shall not receive you, nor hear your words, when ye depart out of that house or city shake off the dust of your feet.

15 Verily I say unto you, ^aIt shall be more tolerable for the land of Sodom and Gomorrha in the day of judgment than for that city.

16 ¶ ^tBehold, I send you forth as sheep in the midst of wolves: be ye therefore wise as serpents, and harmless as doves.

17 ^aBut beware of men; for they will deliver you up to the councils, and they will scourge you in the synagogues;

18 And ye shall be brought before governors and kings for my sake, for a testimony against them and the Gentiles.

19 ^aBut, when they deliver you up, take no thought how or what ye shall speak: for it shall be given you in that same hour what ye shall speak:

20 For it is not ye that speak, but the Spirit of your Father which speaketh in you.

21 ^rAnd the brother shall deliver up the brother to death, and the father the child: and the children shall rise up against their parents, and cause them to be put to death.

22 ^aAnd ye shall be hated of all men for my name's sake: ^abut he that endureth to the end shall be saved.

23 ^bBut, when they persecute you in this city, flee ye into another: for verily I say unto you, Ye shall not [†]have gone over the cities of Israel till the Son of man ^cbe come.

24 ^aThe disciple is not above his master, nor the servant above his lord.

25 It is enough for the disciple that he be as his master, and the servant as his lord: ^aif they have called the master of the house Beelzebub, how much more shall they call them of his household?

26 ^rFear them not therefore: ^afor there is nothing covered that shall not be revealed; and hid, that shall not be known.

27 What I tell you in darkness, that speak ye in light: and what ye hear in the ear, that preach ye upon the house-tops.

28 ^bAnd fear not them which kill the body, but are not able to kill the soul; but rather fear him who is able to destroy both soul and body in hell.

29 ^aAre not two sparrows sold for a farthing? and one of them shall not fall on the ground without your Father.

30 ^kBut the very hairs of your head are all numbered.

31 ^aFear ye not therefore, ye are of more value than many sparrows.

32 ^mWhosoever therefore shall confess me before men, him will I confess also before my Father which is in heaven.

33 ^aBut whosoever shall deny me before men, him will I also deny before my Father which is in heaven.

34 ^oThink not that I am come to send peace on earth: I came not to send peace, but a sword.

35 ^pFor I am come to set a man at variance against his father, and the daughter against her mother, and the daughter-in-law against her mother-in-law.

36 And a man's foes shall be they of his own household.

37 ^aHe that loveth father or mother more than me is not worthy of me: and he that loveth son or daughter more than me is not worthy of me.

38 ^rAnd he that taketh not his cross, and followeth after me, is not worthy of me.

39 He that findeth his life shall lose it: and he that loseth his life for my sake shall find it.

40 ¶ ^aHe that receiveth you receiveth me; and he that receiveth me receiveth him that sent me.

41 ^aHe that receiveth a prophet in the name of a prophet shall receive a prophet's reward; and he that receiveth a righteous man in the name of a righteous man shall receive a righteous man's reward.

42 ^aAnd whosoever shall give to drink unto one of these little ones a cup of cold water only in the name of a disciple, verily I say unto you, he shall in no wise lose his reward.

CHAP. X. Ver. 16. I send you forth as meek, harmless, and unable to defend yourselves, among furious and implacable men. Behave therefore with the utmost prudence, never giving any causeless provocation, nor needlessly exposing yourselves to danger: and be inoffensive, sincere, and meek, that ye may win upon some and turn away the wrath of others. 17. And, after all, never trust yourselves with wicked men, nor expect from them any thing better than persecution. 18. Your sufferings, on account of your professing and preaching my gospel, will be a public testimony to the truth of my doctrines, and of the inexcusable guilt of both Jews and Gentiles who reject them. 26, 27. Since ye must be partakers of my sufferings and glory in due order, never let any thing which your adversaries can do terrify you from, or discourage you in, your work: for your whole doctrine, and your integrity in professing and preaching it, shall be openly manifested to your honour as well as mine, in the spread and success of the gospel, and in the last judgment. Whatever therefore I privately teach you, preach ye to others, in the most plain, bold, and public manner. 34, 35. I am not come to spread outward peace and prosperity through the world, as many expect; nay, through the corruption of their own hearts, many will make my gospel of peace with God and men an occasion of terrible hatred and persecution against the steady believers and preachers of it. 37—39. And he that is not willing to incur hatred and persecution, even from his nearest relations, for the sake of my doctrines and institutions, and that he may follow my example, cannot be justly owned as one of my disciples, or expect a share in my eternal glory. He, who through the fear of man preserves his life and temporal advantages at the expence of his religion, his conscience, and regard to me, shall lose the blessing and true comfort of these, if not the things themselves, and shall fall short of eternal happiness; but he who risks or loses his temporal life, or the enjoyments of it through his conscientious adherence to my truths, shall find real happiness and comfort therein, and be graciously rewarded with everlasting life in the world to come. 40—42. Whatever kind reception your persons and doctrines meet with, shall be accounted as given to me and my Father: and whatever kindness is done to any of my ministers or disciples, as such, from faith in and regard to me, shall be richly and graciously rewarded in the present, and especially in the eternal state.

CHAP. XI.

Here, unwearied in his work, Jesus (1) Discourses with John Baptist's messengers concerning the evidence of his Messiahship; 1—6. (2) Bears honourable testimony to John, as his steady self-denying, divinely inspired, and remarkably successful, harbinger; 7—15. (3) Represents the perverseness of the Jewish nation with respect to John's ministrations and his own, and denounces fearful destruction upon the most guilty; 16—24. (4) After thanking his Father for his sovereign manifestations of grace, he invites sinners to come to himself for salvation, instruction, holiness, and comfort; 25—30.

AND it came to pass, when Jesus had made an end of commanding his twelve disciples, ^ahe departed thence to teach and to preach in their cities.

² ¶ ^bNow, when John had heard in the prison the works of Christ, he sent two of his disciples, ³ And said unto him, Art ^cthou he that should come, or do we look for another?

⁴ Jesus answered and said unto them, Go and shew John again ^dthose things which ye do hear and see:

⁵ The blind receive their sight, and the lame walk, the lepers are cleansed, and the deaf hear, the dead are raised up, and the poor have the gospel preached to them.

⁶ And blessed is he whosoever shall not be offended in me.

⁷ ¶ And, as they departed, Jesus began to say unto the multitudes concerning John, What went ye ^eout into the wilderness to see? A reed shaken with the wind?

⁸ But what went ye out for to see? A man clothed in soft raiment? Behold, they that wear soft clothing are in kings houses.

⁹ But what went ye out for to see? A prophet? yea, I say unto you, and more than a prophet.

¹⁰ For this is he of whom it is written, Behold, I sent my messenger before thy face, who shall prepare thy way before thee.

¹¹ Verily I say unto you, Among them that are born of women there hath not risen a ^fgreater than John the Baptist: notwithstanding, he that is least in the kingdom of heaven is ^ggreater than he.

¹² And from the days of John the Baptist until now the kingdom of heaven suffereth violence, and the violent take it by force.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. X.—Christ graciously provides preachers when there is great need for them and success to be expected. And it is necessary that such be prepared by fellowship with, and instruction from, him; that their call should be plainly manifested to themselves and others; and that they should assist one another in their work. But, alas, that in the best of times there should be traitors to Jesus among them! The great design of his gospel is to overthrow the power of Satan in and over men: and in his grace there is an effectual remedy for every evil. But sovereign is his giving or withholding his special favours. Perpetually uniform are his truths, and quickening to diligence the consideration of his approaches in grace or glory.—By no carnal cares, by no greediness of filthy lucre, no peevish moroseness, no intimacy with persons of dishonourable characters, by no infamous reproaches, no fear of men, no dread of persecution, and no regard to carnal relations, ought ministers of the gospel to be ever hindered in their work. But they have great need of a fixed contentment, cautious prudence, and constant dependance on God as their Father. If they be faithful, prudent, and active, Jesus will protect, provide for, and honourably reward, them, and every kindness done to them. And it is at the dreadful peril of their hearers if they either neglect their subsistence, condemn their messages, or persecute their persons. Whatever is done to Jesus' favourites, he takes as done to himself and his Father. And, if it be honourable to suffer with Christ, what must it be to be glorified together, and reign with him on his throne!

CHAP. XI. Ver. 2—5. Though his own long confinement, and the low figure which Christ made in the world, were great trials of John's belief of his being the true Messiah, yet it was probably more for the satisfaction of his disciples than for his own that he now sent them to Christ: and Christ refers them to the works which they saw him do as unanswerable proofs of his true Messiahship. 6. Blessed only is he, who, upon the evidence I give, is so well satisfied of my ¹³ For all the prophets and the law prophesied until John.

¹⁴ And, if ye will receive it, this is ^hElias, which was for to come.

¹⁵ ^mHe that hath ears to hear, let him hear.

¹⁶ ¶ ⁿBut whereunto shall I liken this generation? It is like unto children sitting in the markets, and calling unto their fellows, ¹⁷ And saying, We have piped unto you, and ye have not danced; we have mourned unto you, and ye have not lamented.

¹⁸ ^oFor John came neither eating nor drinking, and they say, He hath a devil.

¹⁹ ^pThe Son of man came eating and drinking, and they say, Behold a man gluttonous, and a wine-bibber, a friend of publicans and sinners. ^qBut wisdom is justified of her children.

²⁰ ¶ ^rThen began he to upbraid the cities wherein most of his mighty works were done, because they repented not:

²¹ Wo unto thee, Chorazin! wo unto thee, Bethsaida! ^sfor, if the mighty works which were done in you had been done in Tyre and Sidon, ^tthey would have repented long ago in sackcloth and ashes.

²² But I say unto you, ^uIt shall be more tolerable for Tyre and Sidon at the day of judgment than for you.

²³ And thou, Capernaum, ^vwhich art exalted unto heaven, shalt be brought down to hell: for, if the mighty works which have been done in thee had been done in ^wSodom, it would have remained until this day.

²⁴ But I say unto you, ^xthat it shall be more tolerable for the land of Sodom in the day of judgment than for thee.

²⁵ ¶ ^yAt that time Jesus answered and said, I thank thee, O Father, Lord of heaven and earth, because thou hast hid these things from the wise and prudent, and hast revealed them unto babes.

²⁶ Even so, Father, ^zfor so it seemed good in thy sight.

divinity and Messiahship, that no prejudices nor discouragements can make him reject or disown me. 7—13. John, whom ye heard preach in the wilderness of Judea, was no unstable pleaser of men, no delicate gentlemen, but an inspired prophet, and greater than all his predecessors, since he pointed me out as already come in the flesh: and yet every gospel minister will be still more honourable, having much clearer views of my person, obedience and sufferings, grace and glory, and of the spiritual design of my kingdom.—Since John began to preach, great multitudes have crowded to hear the gospel; and many, even publicans and other notorious sinners, have, with eagerness and vehemence, sought after the gracious and saving blessings of it: and my coming, and blessings, represented by Moses and the prophets as future and distant, are now considered as present. 16—19. The body of the Jews, now living, are so senseless, peevish, and perverse, that they relish no form of instruction, whether mournful or cheerful. John Baptist recommended his doctrine of humiliation and repentance by a severe and solitary life of fasting and self-denial; and they, instead of mourning with him for their sins, reproached him as a sullen, unsociable man, possessed by the devil. And when I, the Messiah, recommended my glad tidings of salvation by a more free, friendly, and social, conversation, they reproached me as a gluttonous and drunken companion of the vilest miscreants. But, let envy and malice suggest what they will, the wisdom of God in these doctrines, and in the manner of manifesting them, and I as the Messiah, are, and will be, approved, attested, and vindicated, in and by every true believer. 20—24. Christ does not affirm that the extremely wicked inhabitants of Tyre, Sidon, and Sodom, would have repented after a godly sort, but so as to prevent the fearful judgments which came upon them. 25, 26. In thy high sovereignty, and that none may glory in himself, thou hast savingly manifested the doctrines and blessings of the gospel, not to men famous for learning and worldly policy, but to the lowest, plainest, and weakest of men.

CHAP. XII.

(1) To shew that works of necessity and mercy are to be done on the sabbath, Christ vindicates his disciples for plucking and eating ears of corn thereon, and his own healing a withered hand; 1—13. (2) To avoid the fury of the enraged Pharisees, he withdraws, and works multitudes of miracles; and, by his prudence, humility, and self-denial in so doing, fulfils Isaiah's predictions; 14—21. (3) Heals a possessed man, both dumb and blind, and answers the blasphemous cavils of the scribes and Pharisees, who imputed his miracles to a compact with Satan; 22—37. (4) Refuses to grant any sign from heaven; and represents the Jews' wickedness in rejecting him, and their impending ruin, in the parable of the relapsed demoniac; 38—45. (5) His affection to his disciples, and preference of obedient believers to natural relations; 46—50.

AT that time Jesus went on the sabbath day through the corn; and his disciples were an hungered, and began to pluck the ears of corn, and to eat.

2 But, when the Pharisees saw it, they said unto him, Behold, thy disciples do that which is not lawful to do upon the sabbath day.

3 But he said unto them, Have ye not read what David did when he was an hungered, and they that were with him;

4 How he entered into the house of God, and did eat the shew-bread, which was not lawful for him to eat, neither for them that were with him, but only for the priests?

5 Or have ye not read in the law, how that on the sabbath days the priests in the temple profane the sabbath and are blameless?

6 But I say unto you, that in this place is one greater than the temple.

7 But, if ye had known what this meaneth, I will have mercy and not sacrifice, ye would not have condemned the guiltless.

8 For the Son of man is Lord even of the sabbath day.

9 ¶ And, when he was departed thence, he went into their synagogue:

10 And, behold, there was a man who had his hand withered. And they asked him, saying, Is it lawful to heal on the sabbath days? that they might accuse him.

11 And he said unto them, What man shall there be among you, that shall have one sheep, and, if it fall into a pit on the sabbath day, will he not lay hold on it, and lift it out?

12 How much then is a man better than a sheep? wherefore is it lawful to do well on the sabbath days.

13 Then saith he to the man, Stretch forth thine hand. And he stretched it forth; and it was restored whole, like as the other.

14 ¶ Then the Pharisees went out, and held a council against him, how they might destroy him.

15 But when Jesus knew it, he withdrew himself from thence: and great multitudes followed him, and he healed them all;

16 And charged them that they should not make him known:

17 That it might be fulfilled which was spoken by Esaias the prophet, saying,

18 Behold my servant, whom I have chosen; my beloved, in whom my soul is well pleased: I will put my spirit upon him, and he shall shew judgment to the Gentiles.

19 He shall not strive, nor cry; neither shall any man hear his voice in the streets.

20 A bruised reed shall he not break, and smoking flax shall he not quench, till he send forth judgment unto victory.

21 And in his name shall the Gentiles trust.

22 ¶ Then was brought unto him one possessed with a devil, blind and dumb: and he healed him, insomuch that the blind and dumb both spake and saw.

23 And all the people were amazed, and said, Is not this the son of David?

24 ¶ But, when the Pharisees heard it, they said, This fellow doth not cast out devils but by Beelzebub the prince of the devils.

25 And Jesus knew their thoughts, and said unto them, Every kingdom divided against itself is brought to desolation; and every city or house divided against itself shall not stand:

26 And, if Satan cast out Satan, he is divided against himself; how shall then his kingdom stand?

27 And, if I by Beelzebub cast out devils, by whom do your children cast them out? therefore they shall be your judges.

28 But, if I cast out devils by the Spirit of God, then the kingdom of God is come unto you.

27—30. Since my Father, who alone fully knows my nature, character, and work, and whom I fully know and savingly manifest, has intrusted to my care and management all persons and things relative to the redemption of men, I invite and call every one that labours in, or is laden with, guilt, corruption, burdensome ceremonies, or attempts after legal righteousness, to receive me and my full salvation by faith, as the only effectual means of rest and relief. And, since I am gracious, gentle, and condescending, yield yourselves to my instructions and influence, and follow my example, that ye may find refreshment and satisfaction to your souls. For my service is perfect freedom; my commands, particularly under the gospel dispensation, are not grievous; and I will lay no burdens upon my disciples which I will not enable them to bear.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. XI.—Graciously God raises up one minister when he has removed another. And all faithful preachers lead their hearers only to Christ and his truths. Yea, Jesus takes delight in honouring them who honour God; and in satisfying a humble, though doubting, faith, while wilful obstinacy is confounded. It is not outward splendours, but eminent gifts, graces, and faithfulness, that truly commend preachers. And it adds to their honour if by their means poor sinners be cast into the mould of the gospel, or multitudes awakened to an earnest concern about their salvation. But let faithful ministers behave as they will, they must expect reproach and persecution. Nor can the best qualified and most diligent effectually convert their hearers. But, alas, tremendous and infinite is their danger who obstinately rebel against the light and grace of the gospel, stumble at their Redeemer, abuse the means of his grace, and insolently reproach him and his servants! Redoubled vengeance must be their everlasting portion. Let Britain, let my soul, think and tremble. But O how delightful and unbounded are the fitness and fulness of Christ to save sinners, even the chief! And that not by natural qualifications, or by works of righteousness, but according to his own and his Father's rich and sovereign grace. Yet tender, extensive, and free, are his invitations of self-destroyed and self-deceiving sinners to himself; and full are his assurances of salvation directed to them. Yea, the views of his love and influences of his Spirit render their service pleasant, and make his cross easy and light in the way to their glorious crown.

CHAP. XII. Ver. 26—30. If devils weaken their common cause among men; and work for the confirmation of my doctrines of holiness, which are so directly contrary to all their interests and designs, how can their power in the world stand? And, if ye will pretend that I cast out devils by a diabolical influence, 30 ^lHe that is not with me is against me; and he that gathereth not with me scattereth abroad.

31 Wherefore I say unto you, ^mAll manner of sin and blasphemy shall be forgiven unto men: but the blasphemy against the Holy Ghost shall not be forgiven unto men.

32 And whosoever speaketh a word against the Son of man, it shall be forgiven him: but whosoever speaketh against the Holy Ghost, ⁿit shall not be forgiven him, neither in this world, neither in the world to come.

33 ^oEither make the tree good and his fruit good; or else make the tree corrupt and his fruit corrupt: for the tree is known by his fruit.

34 ^pO generation of vipers, how can ye, being evil, speak good things? for out of the abundance of the heart the mouth speaketh.

35 A ^qgood man out of the good treasure of the heart bringeth forth good things: and an evil man out of the evil treasure bringeth forth evil things.

36 But I say unto you, ^rthat every idle word that men shall speak, they shall give account thereof in the day of judgment.

37 For by thy words thou shalt be justified, and by thy words thou shalt be condemned.

38 ¶ ^sThen certain of the scribes and of the Pharisees answered, saying, Master, we would see a sign from thee.

39 But he answered and said unto them, ^tAn evil and adulterous generation seeketh after a sign; and there shall no sign be given to it, but the sign of the prophet Jonas:

40 ^uFor, as Jonas was three days and three nights in the whale's belly, so shall the Son of man be three days and three nights in the heart of the earth.

41 ^vThe men of Nineveh shall rise in judgment with this generation, and shall condemn it: because they repented at 42 ^wThe queen of the south shall rise up in the judgment with this generation, and shall condemn it: for she came from the uttermost parts of the earth to hear the wisdom of Solomon; and, behold, ^aa greater than Solomon is here:
